U.S. Suspends Grain Exports To Soviets

Ag Chief Forecasts 'Patriotic' Coperation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today apparently secured the "patriotic" cooperation of two big American grain companies to suspend major sales of wheat and grain to the Soviet Union, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said.

"We've asked for voluntary cooperation from the companies and I think it will be forthcoming," Butz told reporters after a meeting at the White House.

Officials of Continental Grain Company and Cook Industries, Inc., agreed, according to Butz, to halt for the time being contracts to supply the Russians with 2.4 million tons of corn and 1 million tons of wheat.

Butz called the gesture "very generous and patriotic' and said the firms would lose money because of their action.

The Agriculture Secretary said Ford's surprise action had at least two major goals — to prevent speculation in commodity markets that would drive prices higher with an inevitable fallout on retail food prices, and to keep from imposing the drastic measure of export controls.

The announcement came following a 40-minute White House meeting between Ford, top administration officials and executives of the two American grain firms.

Joining Ford in the meeting with executives of Chicago-based Continental Grain Co. and Cook Industries, Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., were Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Butz, Presidential Assistant L. William Seidman and other officials.

The administration said last night the shipments were being "held in abeyance" after details of the sale were reported to the Agriculture Department.

Simon asked the firms, Continental Grain Co. and Cook Co., to hold up their contracts for a reported 91 million bushels of corn and 34 million bushels of wheat to be delivered in the 1974-75 marketing year.

Simon said he would discuss the government's position with Soviet officials in Moscow next week and that Ford had asked officials of both U.S. companies to meet with him today.

"For the time being, (the President) expects that no large contracts for grain will be signed without specific prior approval by the White House," Simon said.

The administration's action was inspired at least partly by recent crop failures in the Midwest grain belt caused by a crippling summer drought and an early frost that killed thousands of acres of late wheat, corn and soybeans.

The administration may have also wanted to prevent a recurrence of the 1972 Russian grain deal where a few exporters sold 400 million bushels of U.S. grain to Russia forcing domestic prices up.

Sen. Hubert H. Humprhey, D-Minn., called the grain sale "unconscionable and irresponsible" on the part of the companies and demanded an immediate investigation.

Humphrey said shortened domestic grain supplies would mean higher food prices. "We need to take whatever steps are required to protect our national interest."

Meanwhile President Ford was preparing to before Congress and the nation on Tuesday an inflation, energy and tax program which will probably mean some sacrafice and austerity for the vast majority of Americans.

After two months in office, Ford is under pressure from his own party to propose decisive action. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is said to fear that continued drifting in the energy-economy crisis could threaten democracy in some countries of Western Europe.

While the President worked over the weekend on what the White House called a "bite the bullet" program, the broad outlines of what he will propose emerge from a list of his goals.

His purposes are to curtail inflation, head off a recession, reverse the U.S. dependence on foreign oil, revive a depressed housing industry, bring interest rates down, stimulate the stock market, help power companies expand, shelter the worst victims—the jobless and the working poor—from inflation's pains and keep the Republicans from taking a shellacking in next month's elections.

California's Unemployed Rate Soars

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California's unemployment rate soared from 7.6 per cent to 8.2 per cent in September—the biggest monthly increase since 1958.

The state Employment Development Department also reported yesterday that the jump put the unemployment average at a 35-month high for the state and far above the nationwide rate of 5.8 per cent.

The department said last month's rate was the highest since October 1971 when it was 8.5 per cent. It said the increase was the biggest over-the-month jump since April 1958 when the rate rose from 6.7 to 8 per cent.

The total number of Californians out of work last month was 651,600, compared to 536,400 during the same period last year.

Sharp employment declines were reported in construction and manufacturing. Hard-hit industries included lumber, autos, household appliances, structural metals and plumbing and heating equipment.

Population increases and the peak harvest season in agricultural fields combined to raise the total number of persons holding jobs in September to an all-time high of 8.5 million.

Betty Ford Expected Out Of Hospital On Wednesday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford marked the end of a week of hospitalization for removal of a cancerous breast today by walking around in her suite at will and eating a hearty breakfast of eggs, bacon and toast.

Doctors told President Ford his wife would probably be released about Wednesday. Encouraged by the prognosis, the President played his first round of golf in two weeks, at Burning Tree golf course only a few miles from the hospital.

One of the President's golfing partners was comedian Bob Hope.

The daily medical bulletin issued by the White House reported that the First Lady continued to make "excellent progress" after last Saturday's operation to remove her right breast.

Mrs. Ford's surgeon, Dr. William Fouty, said his patient spent "an excellent, restful night" at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in suburban Maryland.

Mrs. Ford is moving about her hospital suite at will and has a good appetite, the bulletin said.

She dined last evening on broiled chicken, vegetables, fruit cocktail and tea and had a poached egg, bacon, toast, juice and tea for breakfast today.

"Mrs. Ford's post operative recuperation continues uncomplicated, her vital signs remain stable and her condition is excellent," Fouty said.

Mrs. Ford greeted the public briefly for the first time last evening. She looked out a window of her third floor quarters and waved to a crowd of perhaps two dozen wellwishers waiting for a glimpse of her husband.

When told of her gesture, Ford laughed and said "she's an awful flirt."

An aide said Mrs. Ford was in the hall waiting when her husband got upstairs. After they exchanged greetings he presented her with the game ball from the Washington Redskin's victory over the Denver Broncos last Monday. Ford had planned to attend the game until his wife was hospitalized. The ball was a gift from head coach George Allen.

Mrs. Ford tossed the ball to her husband — a former college football player — and he lightly tossed it back. Then the couple walked about 25 yards down the hall to Mrs. Ford's suite.

"She's doing very well and the doctors are very encouraged," Ford said yesterday.

"Hopefully, she will be back next Wednesday of thereabouts," the President said, adding that the First Lady's doctors are "running certain tests and they're going to make sure she doesn't leave prematurely —there's no use hurrying her out of there."

Legal Aid's Stand Dims Housing Plan

Hope for a settlement of the dispute over the Richardson Highlands housing development in Marin City appeared dim yesterday as the Legal Aid Society reaffirmed its demand that the project include low-cost housing.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said negotiations with legal aid attorneys, representing five unnamed clients, fell through amid their demands that a percentage of the 389 dwellings to be built for the poor.

Earlier this week, county supervisors were told that legal aid had threatened the developer with a lawsuit to block the project unless some units were designated for low-income families.

Richard A. Hirsch, chief attorney for legal aid, appeared before the board and was criticized by supervisors for attempting "to throw up roadblocks" to the long-delayed redevelopment of Marin City.

The attorney said he was not attempting to block the project but only insure that some low-cost dwellings are included.

Supervisors responded that a master plan for the project, which calls for 389 apartment and townhouse dwellings on 30 acres, did not include low-cost units because Marin City is considered "impacted" by federal agencies.

They noted the developer will be required to provide 20 per cent of the apartment units at moderate-cost, as defined in the county general plan.

After a sharp give and take, Hirsch and the supervisors appeared to reach middle ground with supervisors understanding the attorney to say legal aid would lift its opposition if assured the moderate-cost units, at least, will be built.

Hirsch said the moderate-cost units should be built in both phases of the two-part project, not simply the last phase.

Supervisors asked that he meet with Maloney and a representative of the redevelopment agency to discuss the matter further and report back Tuesday.

Maloney said the negotiations fell through "because the basic issue which the legal aid society is asserting involves the inclusion of low-cost housing in the proposed development."

He said the only legal way for the legal aid's low-cost housing

High Court Opens Term On Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court begins its 1974-75 term Monday with capital punishment, wiretapping and the rights of women, students and aliens among the many issues up for consideration.

The court has already agreed to look at a wide array of subjects, including presidential impoundment of funds authorized by Congress. These cases arrived last spring as the justices were winding down the 1973 term.

In addition, about 1,000 appeals have come in during the summer recess. They include a claim by Watergate coverup defendant H.R. Haldeman — now on trial — that he was illegally indicted. Obscenity problems continue to plague the court. And the upsurge in lawsuits on behalf of the poor is bringing in a steady stream of petitions dealing with welfare payments and family life.

Race questions no longer hold the dominant place on the docket that they once did. In this connection the court has been

French Plan To Bomb Ship

GUERNSEY, Channel Islands (UPI) — A Cypriot cargo ship loaded with 150 tons of dynamite drifted crewless in the English Channel today after catching fire late yesterday. The French Navy said it would send planes to bomb the ship and sink it.

The fire burned itself out today, but port authorities in Brest, France, decided to sink the ship because it endangered navigation in the English Channel, they said.

Senate Votes To Retain Nixon Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has refused to accept President Ford's agreement to give Richard M. Nixon eventual custody of his Watergate tapes and papers.

By a vote of 56 to 7 yesterday, the Senate voted to give the government sole control over them and eventually to make them public. The bill has yet to be acted on by the House.

In a related action, the Senate Appropriations Committee slashed the $850,000 Ford requested for Nixon's transition expenses to $200,000, the same figure voted by the House.

A month ago, when Ford gave a full pardon to the former president, the two agreed that Nixon and the government would have joint access to Nixon's tapes and documents dealing with all subjects for five years; afterward, Nixon would have sole custody, including the power to have them destroyed. But all of the tapes would be destroyed upon Nixon's death.

Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chief sponsor of the government ownership bill, said that as a result of the agreement, "The truth about the Watergate affair may never be known."

Under Ervin's bill all of Nixon's tapes and documents would be screened; the government would retain those dealing with Watergate. The others would go to Nixon.

"The people are entitled to have the full truth about the Watergate affair ... and the extent of the (former) president's involvement in it," Ervin said.

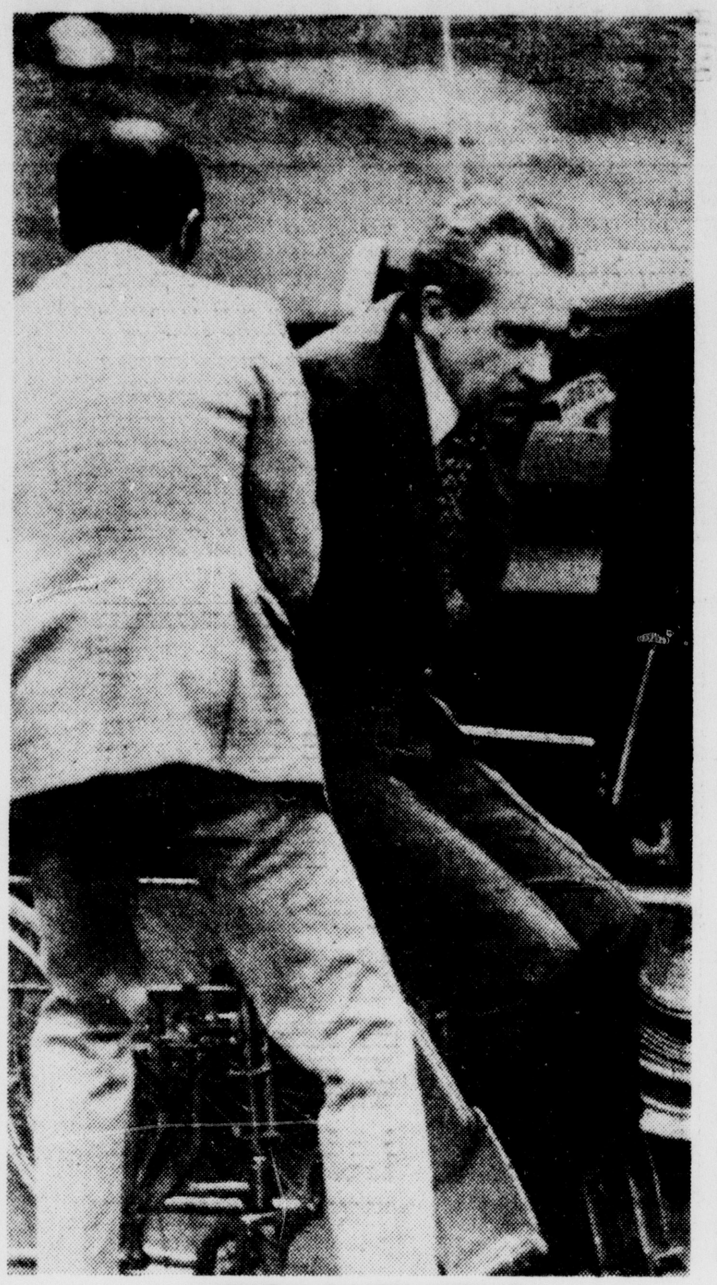
One of the opponents of the bill, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said seizure of a former president's papers — considered in the past to be his personal property — raised "serious constitutional questions of presidential confidentiality and executive privilege."

Hruska was defeated 51 to 15 in an effort to send the bill back to committee. He failed 52 to 14 in an attempt to modify it almost beyond recognition — suggesting it apply to all members of Congress and past presidents back to Franklin Roosevelt, but not to Nixon.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said Ervin's bill "looks like a personal vendetta against President Nixon."

To Visit Ford

WARSAW (UPI) — Poland's Communist party first secretary Edward Gierek will fly to Washington tomorrow for an official visit at the invitation of President Ford.



NIXON BACK HOME

As an aide steadies his wheelchair, former President Richard Nixon steps out of his wheelchair after his release from the Long Beach Memorial Hospital where he had been under treatment since Sept. 23 for phlebitis of the left leg and a blood clot in the lung. The former president, released yesterday, is now back in seclusion at San Clemente, and his physician, Dr. John Lungren, has repeated that Nixon will be too sick to testify at the Watergate trials now under way in Washington.

Jury Selection Under Way Behind Closed Door

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a case of intense public interest, the initial stage of the Watergate cover-up trial has turned into an intensely private affair — conducted behind guarded doors with no press or public allowed.

Only the defendants and their families, their lawyers, the prosecutors, the judge and court personnel were permitted into the sealed-off courtroom.

The painstaking search for an unbiased jury to consider the conspiracy charges against five one-time aides to former President Richard Nixon ate up a fourth day yesterday under conditions so secret even routine progress reports were forbidden.

"The court will not announce at the close of each day's session the number of prospective jurors excused and the number cleared for possible jury service," U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica announced through a spokesman at the end of another eight-hour day.

"Those figures will be provided at the time the court is ready to impanel the jury."

He took no further action on motions filed by Nixon lawyers Thursday asking that subpoenas for his appearance as a trial witness be quashed. His clerk, Todd Christofferson, said Sirica read them but as yet has given no copies to either prosecution or defense counsel.

The defendants — former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, once high White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, Mitchell assistant Robert C. Mardian and Nixon campaign lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson — had no comment as they came and went from the courthouse at the foot of Capitol Hill.

They are all accused of conspiring to hush up the Watergate scandal. All but Mardian are also charged with obstruction of justice and Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also are accused of lying to federal investigators about the bugging case.

Judge Rejects Reduction Of Heiress' Bail

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday rejected a motion that the $500,000 bail for fugitive Patricia Hearst be reduced in an effort to induce her to surrender.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter said the amount was "staggering," but he said he could not change it while the newspaper heiress was still at large.

Attorney James Martin MacInnis said, "The existence of bail in the amount of $500,000 is a violent deterrent against any willingness Miss Hearst might otherwise have to surrender herself."

Carter replied, "I recognize that the bail is extremely high and probably should be cut, but I don't know enough about it. I haven't heard from Miss Hearst.

"As long as she is a fugitive I can't see how I can change it."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Jackson Funds Increasing

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — A campaign committee formed three months ago to gather funds for Sen. Henry Jackson's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination already has raised $106,000 and has pledges for another $300,000, a Jackson aide said today.

Jackson

The Jackson planning committee will be headed by Peter McCulloch, chairman of the board of Xerox and until recently treasurer of the Democratic National committee, the aide said.

"We are presently in the process of raising money to begin a mailing type of effort and so forth to start beginning the long process to gather the money to run a national campaign," press secretary Brian Corcoran said.

However, he said, a final decision on whether there will be a Jackson presidential campaign won't come "until next year."

Drug Cases

MANILA (UPI) — The martial law government today returned to civil courts the right to try dangerous drugs cases but kept for military tribunals jurisdiction over crimes against national security.

Military courts have been trying cases involving prohibited drugs since the new drug laws were established under President Ferdinand E. Marcos' martial law proclamation two years ago.

Hawaiians Vote

HONOLULU (UPI) — Voters on Hawaii's seven populated islands today cast ballots in a crucial primary election which will determine whether a liberal reformist or a maverick dissident can wrest control of America's last state from the "old guard" which has ruled since 1954.

More than 230,000 persons were expected to vote today, with the national weather service predicting clear skies to replace several days of rain. Election officials said about 70 per cent of Hawaii's 333,000 eligible voters would actually cast ballots.

Capture Temples

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian Communist troops have recaptured three temples in the Angkor Wat complex one month after the renowned buildings were reoccupied by government soldiers, military sources said Saturday.

The temples at Lo Lei, Bakou and Bakong, all about 10 miles south of the provincial capital of Siem Reap, fell to Communist forces two days ago, according to military sources.

Oil Cutback

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela will reduce its oil production by about 10 per cent next year, but a Mines Military spokesman said the country does not plan arbitrary cutbacks that might hurt customers.

More than half of Venezuela's oil production goes to U.S. markets and the country now has a daily output of around 3 million barrels.

Finance Minister Hector Hurtado, presenting Venezuela's 1975 budget of $9.6 billion to congress, said that oil revenue next year would be $5.7 billion — nearly $400 million under 1974 levels.

Regain Control

SAIGON (UPI) — Government troops regained control of an outpost lost to Communist forces six months ago and almost immediately the troops came under heavy North Vietnamese mortar attack, the Saigon command said today.

3,500 Turned Back

CALCUTTA, India (UPI) — Indian border security troops have turned back at least 3,500 refugees fleeing famine conditions in neighboring Bangladesh, officials said today.

Officials said some 3,500 Bengalis have been turned back from the Indian border are a over the past two months since floods ravaged Bangladesh.

They said the number of border incidents had increased steadily as people from poorer districts of Bangladesh tried to cross over into India.

Spain Torn

MADRID (UPI) — Spain was torn today by a wave of work stoppages and hunger strikes in prisons that prompted the government quickly to promise reforms in the nation's political and social structures.

Industrial stoppages idled close to 30,000 workers yesterday, labor sources said. Some were called to press wage claims. Others supported 13,600 auto workers locked out of the Fasa-Renault factory in Valladolid.

In Madrid, 18 political prisoners serving terms for terrorism or antigovernment activity joined 65 other political detainees who have been on hunger strikes in four provincial penitentiaries for up to two weeks.

For weeks Spanish newspapers have been predicting a "hot autumn" of labor unrest, economic problems and political tension as a result of the pressures that linger on from the summer illness of Chief of State Francisco Franco, 81.

Way Paved

BANGKOK (UPI) — The Thai National Assembly gave almost unanimous approval today to a new constitution, paving the way for a return of complete democracy to Thailand.

Senate Votes To Retain Nixon Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has refused to accept President Ford's agreement to give Richard M. Nixon eventual custody of his Watergate tapes and papers.

By a vote of 56 to 7 yesterday, the Senate voted to give the government sole control over them and eventually to make them public. The bill has yet to be acted on by the House.

In a related action, the Senate Appropriations Committee slashed the $850,000 Ford requested for Nixon's transition expenses to $200,000, the same figure voted by the House.

A month ago, when Ford gave a full pardon to the former president, the two agreed that Nixon and the government would have joint access to Nixon's tapes and documents dealing with all subjects for five years; afterward, Nixon would have sole custody, including the power to have them destroyed. But all of the tapes would be destroyed upon Nixon's death.

Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chief sponsor of the government ownership bill, said that as a result of the agreement, "The truth about the Watergate affair may never be known."

Under Ervin's bill all of Nixon's tapes and documents would be screened; the government would retain those dealing with Watergate. The others would go to Nixon.

"The people are entitled to have the full truth about the Watergate affair ... and the extent of the (former) president's involvement in it," Ervin said.

One of the opponents of the bill, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said seizure of a former president's papers — considered in the past to be his personal property — raised "serious constitutional questions of presidential confidentiality and executive privilege."

Hruska was defeated 51 to 15 in an effort to send the bill back to committee. He failed 52 to 14 in an attempt to modify it almost beyond recognition — suggesting it apply to all members of Congress and past presidents back to Franklin Roosevelt, but not to Nixon.

HATS IN THE RACE

Since politicians are always tossing their hats in the ring, it would seem to be a good idea to keep an adequate supply on hand. That's what Kansas City Mayor Charles B. Wheeler has done. Three years ago he started collecting headgear from all parts of the United States and overseas. Right now he has more hats than cliches about them. These hats here represent a portion of the 300 he has. (UPI Telephoto)

Banker Blasts Reagan's Appointment Of Harmer

Ernest F. Banker of Ukiah, Democratic nominee in the Second Senatorial District, yesterday branded the appointment of Sen. John L. Harmer as lieutenant governor "an insult to the people of California."

The appointment of the Glendale legislator, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, "is a brazen misuse of power in furtherance of Harmer's sagging campaign fortunes at the expense of the California taxpayer," Banker said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan appointed Harmer Thursday to replace Ed Reinecke, who resigned minutes before being sentenced on a federal perjury conviction.

"It's time that Boss Tweed politics were put to rest with the election of new leaders who will restore dignity and propriety to state government," Banker declared.

KEHOE — John T. Kehoe, Republican nominee for state treasurer, has appointed Mrs. Chester C. Vargas Jr. of Belvedere as Northern California woman's chairman of his campaign, and Walter A. Wellinger of Greenbrae as chairman of his Marin campaign.

HILL — A. Alan Hill of San Rafael, Republican nominee in the Ninth Assembly District, has urged that San Quentin Prison should be moved out of Marin County. The facility should not be in a metropolitan area, and is far too antiquated to provide a successful rehabilitation program for the prisoners, he said.

Hill also has supported a proposal that an independent commission be established to set the Legislature's pay and benefits. He suggested that legislators help control government spending by driving standard government cars instead of the expensive models they use now.

LEAGUE — The pros and cons of propositions on the state's November ballot will be discussed by the League of Women Voters of Central Marin at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 24 at the Lucas Valley Community Center, 1201 Idylberry Road.

The West Marin unit of the league will conduct a forum on county government at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Inverness Yacht Club.

Petaluma Man Draws 90 Days

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A 19-year-old Petaluma man has been sentenced to 90 days in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of statutory rape.

Robert Mark Krause, of 1444 Sierra Drive, also was placed on probation for three years Thursday by Sonoma Superior Court Judge Kenneth M. Eymann, who ordered Krause to begin a program of mental therapy after his release from county jail.

Court officials said the Sonoma Probation Department recommended the 90-day sentence after it was determined that the 13-year old victim had told Krause she was 16 and after it was found that no force was used in the offense.

Krause was arrested at his home by Petaluma Police Aug. 8 after the girl reported she was assaulted the night before near the intersection of East Washington Street and Highway 101 in East Petaluma.

Churches To Hold Candidate Session

Candidates in the Nov. 5 election for the one vacancy on the Sausalito City Council will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Campbell Hall, Santa Rosa and San Carlos Avenues.

Official candidates Wayne Bonnett and Earl Dunphy and write-in candidate Serge Trubach have been invited to the forum, sponsored by Christ Episcopal Church, Star of the Sea Church, Sausalito Presbyterian Church and the First Baptist Church of Sausalito.

ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES

Teachers' Right To Strike Debated

Two nominees for state Assembly yesterday made it clear that they differ markedly on whether teachers should have the right to strike.

Republican A. Alan Hill of San Rafael flatly opposed giving the right to any public employee, including teachers. Democrat Michael Wornum of Mill Valley argued that almost all public employees, including teachers, should have the right to strike.

Wornum said the right should be denied only to employees dealing in life and death services, such as firemen and policemen. He excluded teachers from the small number of such public employees who should be subject to binding arbitration instead of having the right to strike.

The two spoke before the San Rafael Parent-Teacher Association Council at the San Rafael School District Administrative Office. About 50 persons attended.

Hill attacked the California Federation of Teachers, arguing it improperly was aiming at "total control" of schools, including curriculums. Teachers' powers to negotiate with school districts should be limited to collective bargaining, Hill said, and such bargaining should be limited to issues of wages, hours and conditions of employment.

"Teacher input" should provide guidance on educational issues, but policies should be set by district trustees, not teachers, Hill declared.

Taking the opposite tack, Wornum said that "collective bargaining doesn't mean anything without a right to strike." He emphasized that "being in favor of the right to strike doesn't mean I am in favor of strikes." They should occur only when all other avenues to settle disputes prove fruitless, he said.

Collective bargaining is a right held by all employees and is especially vital to public employees, Wornum said. It is easier for governing boards of public agencies to say "no" to employees than it is for officers of private companies, Wornum said. Private companies can always pass increased costs along to consumers, he explained, while public agencies have to face taxpayers' to do so.

Hill rebutted that public and private employment were not comparable because the customer cannot shop around for public services. There are lots of car dealers, but only one government with which to do business, he said.

Wornum and Hill, however, generally agreed on other educational issues. Both favored increasing state school aid so rich districts such as those in Marin will not have to cut spending under the program to equalize districts throughout the state. Both suggested increased income taxes to pay for higher school aid, with Hill also urging higher business taxes and Wornum calling for a temporary statewide property tax to fill the gap until income taxes take over the burden.

Both also favored a bill vetoed by the governor that would have raised limits on school spending to account for unexpectedly high inflation.

Wornum and Hill agreed the state was imposing too many strings on its aid to schools, and favored giving local district trustees more control over curriculums.

Sign Policy To Be Studied

A formal policy statement prohibiting freestanding and projecting signs in the central San Rafael redevelopment area will be considered by the city redevelopment agency at 7:30 p.m. Monday in city hall.

The agency has already approved a policy banning erection of such signs in the downtown redevelopment area, and on Monday will consider the precise area to be included in the ban.

The policy, to be in effect until the city redevelopment master plan is drafted and adopted, would extend to an area bounded by Second Street and Fifth Avenue and E and Hetherton streets, according to a proposal by staff.

Under the policy, property owners would have the right to appeal staff denials of such signs to the agency.

Ford To Speak About Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will outline his new economic program before a joint session of Congress Tuesday but it will not contain a proposal to increase the gasoline excise tax, a White House spokesman said yesterday.

Press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was moving swiftly to form a comprehensive economic policy that will require Americans to "bite the bullet" on various anti-inflation and energy conservation measures. He reiterated Ford's stand against gasoline rationing.

Nessen said Ford had asked to address Congress at 4 p.m. EDT and the legislative body agreed.

L.A. Streaker Found Innocent

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Opel, 33, who startled an audience of movie stars and millions of television viewers by streaking the Academy Awards this year, was found innocent yesterday of indecent exposure for doing the same thing to a city council meeting.

But a municipal court jury found Opel guilty on charges of disrupting a public meeting. Opel appeared in the buff during a heated council debate over allowing nudity on public beaches, strolling up to Police Chief Ed Davis and asking "Is this lewd?"

He was not arrested following his unclothed dash across the stage at the Oscar ceremonies, which provoked a rebuke from presenter David Niven that Opel was "showing his shortcomings."

HATS IN THE RACE

Since politicians are always tossing their hats in the ring, it would seem to be a good idea to keep an adequate supply on hand. That's what Kansas City Mayor Charles B. Wheeler has done. Three years ago he started collecting headgear from all parts of the United States and overseas. Right now he has more hats than cliches about them. These hats here represent a portion of the 300 he has. (UPI Telephoto)

ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES

Teachers' Right To Strike Debated

Two nominees for state Assembly yesterday made it clear that they differ markedly on whether teachers should have the right to strike.

Republican A. Alan Hill of San Rafael flatly opposed giving the right to any public employee, including teachers. Democrat Michael Wornum of Mill Valley argued that almost all public employees, including teachers, should have the right to strike.

Wornum said the right should be denied only to employees dealing in life and death services, such as firemen and policemen. He excluded teachers from the small number of such public employees who should be subject to binding arbitration instead of having the right to strike.

The two spoke before the San Rafael Parent-Teacher Association Council at the San Rafael School District Administrative Office. About 50 persons attended.

Hill attacked the California Federation of Teachers, arguing it improperly was aiming at "total control" of schools, including curriculums. Teachers' powers to negotiate with school districts should be limited to collective bargaining, Hill said, and such bargaining should be limited to issues of wages, hours and conditions of employment.

"Teacher input" should provide guidance on educational issues, but policies should be set by district trustees, not teachers, Hill declared.

Taking the opposite tack, Wornum said that "collective bargaining doesn't mean anything without a right to strike." He emphasized that "being in favor of the right to strike doesn't mean I am in favor of strikes." They should occur only when all other avenues to settle disputes prove fruitless, he said.

Collective bargaining is a right held by all employees and is especially vital to public employees, Wornum said. It is easier for governing boards of public agencies to say "no" to employees than it is for officers of private companies, Wornum said. Private companies can always pass increased costs along to consumers, he explained, while public agencies have to face taxpayers' to do so.

Hill rebutted that public and private employment were not comparable because the customer cannot shop around for public services. There are lots of car dealers, but only one government with which to do business, he said.

Wornum and Hill, however, generally agreed on other educational issues. Both favored increasing state school aid so rich districts such as those in Marin will not have to cut spending under the program to equalize districts throughout the state. Both suggested increased income taxes to pay for higher school aid, with Hill also urging higher business taxes and Wornum calling for a temporary statewide property tax to fill the gap until income taxes take over the burden.

Both also favored a bill vetoed by the governor that would have raised limits on school spending to account for unexpectedly high inflation.

Wornum and Hill agreed the state was imposing too many strings on its aid to schools, and favored giving local district trustees more control over curriculums.

Sign Policy To Be Studied

A formal policy statement prohibiting freestanding and projecting signs in the central San Rafael redevelopment area will be considered by the city redevelopment agency at 7:30 p.m. Monday in city hall.

The agency has already approved a policy banning erection of such signs in the downtown redevelopment area, and on Monday will consider the precise area to be included in the ban.

The policy, to be in effect until the city redevelopment master plan is drafted and adopted, would extend to an area bounded by Second Street and Fifth Avenue and E and Hetherton streets, according to a proposal by staff.

Under the policy, property owners would have the right to appeal staff denials of such signs to the agency.

Banker Blasts Reagan's Appointment Of Harmer

Ernest F. Banker of Ukiah, Democratic nominee in the Second Senatorial District, yesterday branded the appointment of Sen. John L. Harmer as lieutenant governor "an insult to the people of California."

The appointment of the Glendale legislator, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, "is a brazen misuse of power in furtherance of Harmer's sagging campaign fortunes at the expense of the California taxpayer," Banker said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan appointed Harmer Thursday to replace Ed Reinecke, who resigned minutes before being sentenced on a federal perjury conviction.

"It's time that Boss Tweed politics were put to rest with the election of new leaders who will restore dignity and propriety to state government," Banker declared.

KEHOE — John T. Kehoe, Republican nominee for state treasurer, has appointed Mrs. Chester C. Vargas Jr. of Belvedere as Northern California woman's chairman of his campaign, and Walter A. Wellinger of Greenbrae as chairman of his Marin campaign.

HILL — A. Alan Hill of San Rafael, Republican nominee in the Ninth Assembly District, has urged that San Quentin Prison should be moved out of Marin County. The facility should not be in a metropolitan area, and is far too antiquated to provide a successful rehabilitation program for the prisoners, he said.

Hill also has supported a proposal that an independent commission be established to set the Legislature's pay and benefits. He suggested that legislators help control government spending by driving standard government cars instead of the expensive models they use now.

LEAGUE — The pros and cons of propositions on the state's November ballot will be discussed by the League of Women Voters of Central Marin at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 24 at the Lucas Valley Community Center, 1201 Idylberry Road.

The West Marin unit of the league will conduct a forum on county government at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Inverness Yacht Club.

Ford To Speak About Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will outline his new economic program before a joint session of Congress Tuesday but it will not contain a proposal to increase the gasoline excise tax, a White House spokesman said yesterday.

Press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was moving swiftly to form a comprehensive economic policy that will require Americans to "bite the bullet" on various anti-inflation and energy conservation measures. He reiterated Ford's stand against gasoline rationing.

Nessen said Ford had asked to address Congress at 4 p.m. EDT and the legislative body agreed.

Petaluma Man Draws 90 Days

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A 19-year-old Petaluma man has been sentenced to 90 days in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of statutory rape.

Robert Mark Krause, of 1444 Sierra Drive, also was placed on probation for three years Thursday by Sonoma Superior Court Judge Kenneth M. Eymann, who ordered Krause to begin a program of mental therapy after his release from county jail.

Court officials said the Sonoma Probation Department recommended the 90-day sentence after it was determined that the 13-year old victim had told Krause she was 16 and after it was found that no force was used in the offense.

Krause was arrested at his home by Petaluma Police Aug. 8 after the girl reported she was assaulted the night before near the intersection of East Washington Street and Highway 101 in East Petaluma.

Churches To Hold Candidate Session

Candidates in the Nov. 5 election for the one vacancy on the Sausalito City Council will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Campbell Hall, Santa Rosa and San Carlos Avenues.

Official candidates Wayne Bonnett and Earl Dunphy and write-in candidate Serge Trubach have been invited to the forum, sponsored by Christ Episcopal Church, Star of the Sea Church, Sausalito Presbyterian Church and the First Baptist Church of Sausalito.

Business Is Biggest Energy Saver In U.S.

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — If Americans have enough gasoline and home heating oil this fall and winter, they can primarily thank the U.S. business community — biggest energy saver in the nation.

Individual Americans and the U.S. government also are conserving energy, according to the latest estimate by the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

Business, says Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, consumes 70 per cent of all energy used in the U.S. and business across the board has cut its energy demand about 5 per cent in the last year.

Many firms — Alcoa, Dow Chemical, Dupont, Boeing and others — save even more, with some companies, according to experts, having trimmed their energy consumption 20 per cent or more.

Overall, this adds up to the equivalent of millions of barrels of oil saved each day, which leaves more gasoline and heating oil for American families.

Individual consumers are still saving energy partly because it costs so much more and party, said Ronald Bass of the U.S. Treasury, because "people still are responding" to the government's plea to cut down energy use.

American families, prompted by a mixture of cost-consciousness and patriotism, remarked Bass, still are turning out unneeded light and using less air-conditioning in their homes than last year.

The federal government's savings are quite spectacular. From July, 1973 through April, 1974, according to fresh calculations, the U.S. government cut its energy consumption by "25 per cent below anticipated use." This includes the Army, Navy and Ar Force, all thirsty gobblers of oil.

"Put another way," declared an official of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA), "the government during those nine months saved 75 million barrels of oil, valued at $600 million."

Preliminary estimates show that the U.S. government now conserves at least as much, perhaps more, energy than in the previous nine months.

Also contributing to energy savings is a sharp dip in electricity consumption throughout the U.S., said Bass, springing primarily from "tremendous increases in electric utility rates."

These increases, in turn, derive from a roughly 400 per cent price rise in the two fuels used chiefly by utilities — oil and coal.

U.S. stocks of gasoline and higher than they were a year ago, before the Arab embargo began. Weekly production of gasoline at U.S. refineries also is up over last year.

Stocks of distillate fuels, including home heating oil and residual oil for factories and utilities, are somewhat higher than they were at the same time in 1973.

Old Man Insists His Grandsons Live It Up

POZAREVAC, Yugoslavia (AP) — Mile Milovanovic, a retired railroadman, never has had time to go on a spree, so he decided he will give his grandsons a chance.

He worked hard all 40 years of his employed life, married off three daughters and now enjoys three grnadsons.

Recently he made a will bequeathing his entire property to his grandsons, but stipulated that they squander the entire sum eating, drinking and making merry.

"I have had a hard life. Youth passed quickly and I have never got around to go on a drinking spree, once. What I failed to do I wish my grandsons to make up," Mile explains.

Inez Garcia Convicted In Slaying

MONTEREY (UPI) — A convict's wife who admitted the vengeance slaying of a young man who she alleged raped her was convicted yesterday on charges of second-degree murder.

A superior court jury of seven women and five men deliberated three days before returning its verdict to end a seven-week trial which was attended by numerous representatives of women's liberationist groups.

Inez Garcia, 30, once screamed during her trial: "I did it and I'm glad I did it."

She was referring to the slaying last March of Miguel Jimenez, 21. Mrs. Garcia claimed that Jimenez and Luis Castillo, 17, raped her.

She testified that she pumped six .22-caliber bullets into Jimenez in an alley later when they tried to kill Fred Medrano, 25.

Medrano was accused of driving Mrs. Garcia to the death scene but the jury failed to reach a verdict in his case and a retrial was set Nov. 14.

"This is clearly a policy question which has already been once resolved (to exclude such housing) and cannot be negotiated by this office . . .," Maloney wrote.

Maloney's assessment was borne out by Hirsch in a letter to the Independent-Journal saying, "Our clients' demands for 20 per cent low and moderate-income housing, at federal standards, remains firm."

Hirsch called erroneous any impression at the supervisors' meeting on Tuesday "that I softened my demands for low-cost housing to be developed on the R-8 (redevelopment) lands."

asked to look at the redistricting of the New Orleans City Council and racial standards the Federal Communications Commission must use in determining television station ownership.

The court will be meeting all week in private conference to vote on the backlog. The first list of new cases the court will decide by written opinion, and which it will reject, comes Oct. 15. In most instances Supreme Court rejection of petitions for review will allow lower court decisions to become final.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is expected to preside at the brief ceremonial opening, despite a variety of injuries suffered when he fell from a bicycle near his Arlington, Va., home on Sept. 20. Opening day sessions are very short, with the chief justice announcing the start of a new term and admitting a few attorneys to practice.

Seven men on North Carolina's death row brought capital punishment to the high court again. They urged the justices to expand their ground-breaking 1972 decision by banning the death sentence in all circumstances. The earlier opinion held the practice "cruel and unusual punishment" as then carried out by the states because some people would not be sentenced to death while others would be for the same crime.

But because of technicalities in the North Carolina cases, the court could save the men without using their case for another landmark ruling.

Wiretapping, a major source of contention in the Watergate scandals, comes up on an issue hitherto left open: May the government wiretap without a warrant to gather foreign intelligence and may the information be used in a criminal trial. Igor A. Ivanov, a Russian trade agency driver covicted of espionage in 1964 in Newark, N.J., is posing the question.

The court in 1972 barred warrantless wiretapping for domestic security reasons on the ground that it violates the Constitution's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

Business Is Biggest Energy Saver In U.S.

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — If Americans have enough gasoline and home heating oil this fall and winter, they can primarily thank the U.S. business community — biggest energy saver in the nation.

Individual Americans and the U.S. government also are conserving energy, according to the latest estimate by the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

Business, says Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, consumes 70 per cent of all energy used in the U.S. and business across the board has cut its energy demand about 5 per cent in the last year.

Many firms — Alcoa, Dow Chemical, Dupont, Boeing and others — save even more, with some companies, according to experts, having trimmed their energy consumption 20 per cent or more.

Overall, this adds up to the equivalent of millions of barrels of oil saved each day, which leaves more gasoline and heating oil for American families.

Individual consumers are still saving energy partly because it costs so much more and party, said Ronald Bass of the U.S. Treasury, because "people still are responding" to the government's plea to cut down energy use.

American families, prompted by a mixture of cost-consciousness and patriotism, remarked Bass, still are turning out unneeded light and using less air-conditioning in their homes than last year.

The federal government's savings are quite spectacular. From July, 1973 through April, 1974, according to fresh calculations, the U.S. government cut its energy consumption by "25 per cent below anticipated use." This includes the Army, Navy and Ar Force, all thirsty gobblers of oil.

"Put another way," declared an official of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA), "the government during those nine months saved 75 million barrels of oil, valued at $600 million."

Preliminary estimates show that the U.S. government now conserves at least as much, perhaps more, energy than in the previous nine months.

Also contributing to energy savings is a sharp dip in electricity consumption throughout the U.S., said Bass, springing primarily from "tremendous increases in electric utility rates."

These increases, in turn, derive from a roughly 400 per cent price rise in the two fuels used chiefly by utilities — oil and coal.

U.S. stocks of gasoline and higher than they were a year ago, before the Arab embargo began. Weekly production of gasoline at U.S. refineries also is up over last year.

Stocks of distillate fuels, including home heating oil and residual oil for factories and utilities, are somewhat higher than they were at the same time in 1973.

Old Man Insists His Grandsons Live It Up

POZAREVAC, Yugoslavia (AP) — Mile Milovanovic, a retired railroadman, never has had time to go on a spree, so he decided he will give his grandsons a chance.

He worked hard all 40 years of his employed life, married off three daughters and now enjoys three grnadsons.

Recently he made a will bequeathing his entire property to his grandsons, but stipulated that they squander the entire sum eating, drinking and making merry.

"I have had a hard life. Youth passed quickly and I have never got around to go on a drinking spree, once. What I failed to do I wish my grandsons to make up," Mile explains.

Inez Garcia Convicted In Slaying

MONTEREY (UPI) — A convict's wife who admitted the vengeance slaying of a young man who she alleged raped her was convicted yesterday on charges of second-degree murder.

A superior court jury of seven women and five men deliberated three days before returning its verdict to end a seven-week trial which was attended by numerous representatives of women's liberationist groups.

Inez Garcia, 30, once screamed during her trial: "I did it and I'm glad I did it."

She was referring to the slaying last March of Miguel Jimenez, 21. Mrs. Garcia claimed that Jimenez and Luis Castillo, 17, raped her.

She testified that she pumped six .22-caliber bullets into Jimenez in an alley later when they tried to kill Fred Medrano, 25.

Medrano was accused of driving Mrs. Garcia to the death scene but the jury failed to reach a verdict in his case and a retrial was set Nov. 14.

demands to be accommodated would be for the board of supervisors to amend the master plan.

"This is clearly a policy question which has already been once resolved (to exclude such housing) and cannot be negotiated by this office . . .," Maloney wrote.

Maloney's assessment was borne out by Hirsch in a letter to the Independent-Journal saying, "Our clients' demands for 20 per cent low and moderate-income housing, at federal standards, remains firm."

Hirsch called erroneous any impression at the supervisors' meeting on Tuesday "that I softened my demands for low-cost housing to be developed on the R-8 (redevelopment) lands."

The matter will come back before supervisors Tuesday. Their meeting is slated to being a 11 a.m., following a 10:30 a.m. meeting of the open space district board.

Opening day sessions are very short, with the chief justice announcing the start of a new term and admitting a few attorneys to practice.

Seven men on North Carolina's death row brought capital punishment to the high court again. They urged the justices to expand their ground-breaking 1972 decision by banning the death sentence in all circumstances. The earlier opinion held the practice "cruel and unusual punishment" as then carried out by the states because some people would not be sentenced to death while others would be for the same crime.

But because of technicalities in the North Carolina cases, the court could save the men without using their case for another landmark ruling.

Wiretapping, a major source of contention in the Watergate scandals, comes up on an issue hitherto left open: May the government wiretap without a warrant to gather foreign intelligence and may the information be used in a criminal trial. Igor A. Ivanov, a Russian trade agency driver covicted of espionage in 1964 in Newark, N.J., is posing the question.

The court in 1972 barred warrantless wiretapping for domestic security reasons on the ground that it violates the Constitution's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

$1.3 Million Pact Awarded For Governor's Mansion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The long battle by Ronald Reagan for construction of a new governor's mansion peaked with the award yesterday of a $1.3 million contract for an expansive riverfront villa.

State Architect John Worsley announced that Redwood City contractor Budd O. Stevenson won the contract for the disputed, court-stalled project as the lowest of three bidders.

Worsley said workers tentatively will begin construction next week and that "if all godes right it could be finished by August of next year."

Formal award followed removal of the last stumbling block to the project when the state Supreme Court rebuffed mansion opponents. The high court upheld two lower court rulings that the state had followed proper environmental protection procedures in approving construction of the mansion in suburban Carmichael, eight miles east of Sacramento.

Called an "executive residence" by the administration, the mansion will be built on a pastoral bluff overlooking the scenic American River. The 11-acre site was donated to the state by a group of Reagan supporters.

The living area will total 12,000 square feet, about seven times the size of an average three-bedroom California home. The one-story home will be enclosed by adobe brick walls, covered with wood-beam ceilings and an expansive red tile roof and will have hand-crafted tile floors.

A courtyard will lead inside to a living room, study, six bedrooms, two rooms for hired help, a dining room that can seat 40 guests and a recreation room.

Reagan has called it "lovely."

Worsley said that for an additional $180,000 the mansion could also include a swimming pool, sauna, tennis court, security guard house and solar collect to heat water.

He said the additions were included in the mansion design and that bids had been accepted. But Worsley said construction of the additions would depend on the availability of funds from the Department of Finance.

Ten years ago, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown used a contest and several advisory committees to come up with a proposal for a $1.6 million home nearly twice the size of the latest design. The effort died.

Reagan took personal control of the drive for a new mansion during his second and final term, and last year received nearly complete authority over the plans from the legislature.

The fact that Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will never live in the mansion did nothing to dim his enthusiasm.

They personally trimmed the dimensions of the mansion down from 17,000 square feet, eliminating a wine cellar that would have doubled as a bomb shelter, to meet the $1.45 million legislative appropriation for the project.

The leading contender to replace Reagan, bachelor Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., has branded the mansion an "impractical white elephant" and indicated he would rather live in the existing governor's mansion in downtown Sacramento.

Brown's Republican opponent, Houston I. Flournoy, has supported the project, saying the mansion would be a good place to raise his three children.

Reagan vacated the century-old, Victorian-style governor's mansion four months after taking office in 1967, condemning it as a fire hazard unfit to raise children. He subsequently moved into a leased home.

Americans Said Confident On Long-Range Outlook

ATLANTA (UPI) — Americans are worried about inflation and political immorality, and expect things to get worse economically, but they are confident that in the long run everything will be all right, says pollster George Gallup.

"It would be wrong to assume that Americans are consumed with gloom," Gallup, the head of the American Institute of Public Opinion in Princeton, N.J., said in a speech yesterday to the National Broiler Council.

"The mood of the public today should be described as apprehensive, but certainly far from despondent," he said.

He said that Gallup polls indicate 70 per cent of the population expects the economy to get worse, and that about half the citizens think America is headed for a depression like the one in the early 1930's.

But Gallup said most Americans feel they have had hard times before, and can tighten their belts to survive another depression.

He said Americans will support President Ford's economic policies, if they perceive them to be in the national interest.

"The public has a good track record for making sacrifices for the national good in times of crisis," he said. Gallup said times might not be as hard as a lot of people expect.

"Americans tend to overplay their crises, the British to underplay them, while the Iron Curtain countries don't have crises," said Gallup.

In an interview after his speech, Gallup said that the Republicans have become "a third party," and that independent voters now number almost as many as Democrats.

"We find the percentage of people who classify themselves Republican is at an all-time low," said Gallup. "The Democrats are stronger, numerically, the independents are second, and the Republicans come along as a third party."

Gallup noted a surge of independence among voters, with about one third of the electorate claiming no affiliation with either major party. On college campuses, he said, nearly half the student voters call themselves independents.

He said his opinion polls showed that only 24 per cent of adult Americans consider themselves Republicans, but a vast majority consider themselves conservative.

Gallup said Democrats account for about 40 per cent of the voting public, a bit fewer than there were when President Roosevelt was heading for a third term in 1940.

"President Ford's pardon of President Nixon was a real shocker to the American people," said Gallup. "While the pardon may have broken up the presidential honeymoon a bit early, a new president — any new president — is vulnerable to the vagaries of the economy."

Senate Sends Point Reyes Bill To House

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The Senate yesterday passed and sent back to the House a bill expanding Point Reyes National Seashore to Include Inverness Ridge property.

The legislation also designates lands in the Farallon National Wildlife Preserve as wilderness.

The measure, introduced by Rep. Phillip Burton, D-San Francisco, was sent back to the House Interior Committee because of amendments made by the Senate Interior Committee.

Burton attached the Inverness Ridge aquisition as a rider to the Farallon Islands bill before it passed the House last May. It would add some 168 acres of ridge land between Inverness and Inverness Park to the seashore. Conservationists urged the ridge acquisition after the scenic lands were left out of the seashore boundaries through a surveyor's error 10 years ago.

Development of the ridge, conservationists said, would spoil the seashore setting.

The House bill authorized $200,000 for the land.

The Shoreline Unified School District Board has approved 8.2 per cent across-the-board increases for both certificated and classified employees.

Supt. Kenneth Barnes said that the increase will cost the district approximately $56,000 for the fiscal year. The additional money will be taken from the reserve fund, he said.

The Shoreline Unified School District Board also:

AIDES — Approved hiring three half-time teacher aides. One will be for the Tomales Elementary School, one for the Tomales Middle School and one for the Inverness School.

NOMINATION — Nominated Trustee Roy T. R. Parks to succeed himself on the Marin County Committee on School District Organization.

'Sesame Street' Revised For TV In France

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the characters, who live on Sesame Street are also alive and well, and now living in Paris.

The popular children's television show is being shown in a new French-language version on French national television as "Bonjour sesame." The new version is devoid of "street" scenes — no Gordon, Susan or Big Bird, for example — and there are no sequences that depend on the English language or American cultural nuances.

The French-language version is made up of about 65 per cent puppet sketches, 25 per cent animated cartoons and 10 per cent live action sequences. Other international versions of Sesame Street are produced in Spanish for Latin American viewing, in Portuguese for Brazilian audiences and in German for youngsters in that country. The shows in English and other versions are being viewed in 58 countries around the world.

200 Prepared To Assist Schools

More than 200 citizens from the Bay Area who hold certified teaching credentials have been signed up by San Rafael city schools to cross picket lines as volunteer teachers in the event of a strike, the schools administration said yesterday.

Schools publicist Barbara Rosenberg said there has been an "excellent response" to a call for volunteers.

She said the school system needs about 100 more credentialed volunteers in the event all teachers walk out.

(The San Rafael Teachers Association has authorized its executive officers to call for a strike vote if they were not satisfied with the findings of a meadiation team studying salary requests.)

Mrs. Rosenberg said a mediation team's report on school employee pay has been delayed and will probably be issued late next week. The team was expected to issue its report last week.

She said about 215 credentialed volunteers have signed up, but she noted that 320 are needed to fill all potential teaching posts.

Exhibit Opens

A show of paintings by Phoebe Ellsworth of St. Helena titled "Paintings from My Garden," opened today at Gallery Three, 1026 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur. The exhibit will continue through Oct. 25.

Cost Of Burger Ires Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., says he wants to know why he should have to spend 10 cents more for a hamburger in the Senate cafeteria than in the House lunchroom.

In a statement released by his office yesterday, he said hamburgers now cost up to 75 cents on the Senate side of the Capitol compared to 65 cents at the other end of the hall.

"Coming on the heels of the 5.5 per cent pay raise for federal workers is an increase of 25 per cent and more in the price of food served in the Senate cafeterias," Humphrey said. "I question this method of taking back the pay increase for Senate employees."

There were no deer hunting seasons in Illinois from 1901 until 1957. In 1973, 13,730 deer were harvested by 55,440 Illinois hunters.

Marin Women

8 Independent-Journal. Saturday, October 5, 1974

Human Rights Commissioner Proud Of Native Ancestry

By JOAN LISETOR

When Faye Dell Hendricks was a child "you didn't speak about being part Indian."

"I was aware that there was a little Indian heritage on my mother's side, but my father just told me a few years ago there also was on his side," Mrs. Hendricks said.

The San Anselmo woman was appointed last year to the Marin County Human Rights Commission by Supervisor Peter Arrigoni Jr. because of her Native American ancestry.

Mrs. Hendricks considers herself the Native American representative on the commission and has worked to unite the Native Aemrican community in Marin.

"I knew so little about Indians. I had been living a white man's life," she said. "Now I'm learning about each tribe, the different cultures, doing constant study and research, reading and talking to people."

She works with the Native Nations, a student organization at College of Marin, and visits Native American prisoners at San Quentin and communicates with them after they have been released to see if they need help.

MRS. HENDRICKS' three great-grandmothers were full blooded Indians: one a Penuite, one a Cherokee and one a Choctau. Each married white farmers, which was acceptable, she said. Her other great-grandmother was not an Indian. She recalld that her grandfather passed as Mexican because it was impossible for an Indian to get a job in the San Diego area, where she was born and reared.

Mrs. Hendricks did not get involved with the Native American cause five years ago when Alcatraz was taken over because she believes there are better ways of handling things.

The wife of an attorney (Thomas G. Hendricks, Marin chief deputy county counsel) she believes in trying to work through the law, she said.

"If you take the law segment by segment you don't waste time and energy. Laws need to be changed, and the only way to do that is through the courts and the legislature," she said.

She is doing just that with a parcel of land in Sausalito. Sausalito Fire Battalion Chief Steven H. Bogel and firemen Larry Martinez and Jerry Reçor unearthed a 500-year-old human skeleton at Pine and Caledonia Streets last June. The Sausalito City Council voted in July to pay $2,500 to David Boloyan, a graduate student at the University of California at Davis, to excavate the site.

"The city wanted to hire someone to do a dig and put the remains on display," Mrs. Hendricks said. "They didn't realize they were offending Native Americans."

SHE AND several Native Americans, drawn together by her work on the Human Rights Commission, appeared before the Sausalito City Council in August pleading that their ancestor's graves not be desecrated and explaining the importance of the sacred cycle, a belief that man must return his body to the earth after death in repayment for the things he has taken from the earth during life.

"The city has promised that the burial site will not be disturbed," Mrs. Hendricks said. "But in the meantime the owners (Dr. John Elliott of San Anselmo and Barbara Elliott Ward of Larkspur) are paying taxes and don't want to sell the land.

"We don't mind it being covered over. We just don't want to break the cycle by digging up the remains. The remains can't be reburied because we don't know the particular ritual, and what can be learned by digging up bones? They don't tell anything about the culture.

"You know, the Indians believe all of the land belongs to them, but they are going to have a very difficult time taking it away."

Mrs. Hendricks praised the owners of the Sausalito property, who, she said, want to build without destroying the Indian burial ground.

While she was leading what she calls "the white man's life" Mrs. Hendricks developed an interest in organic gardening, collecting herbs, weaving, crocheting rugs, making corn husk dolls, and other hobbies associated with Indian life. It must have been instinct, she said.

"My appointment (to the Human Rights Commission) has brought the Native American nation together, and that makes me feel good inside. If I accomplish just a little I hope to make others aware of the beauty of the culture.

"So far I haven't had any doors slammed in my face, but I don't expect things to change tomorrow. We have to go through procedures, change the way Indian history is taught in the schools, try to change the textbooks, so it is not a fairy tale. I'll keep after it — but slowly."

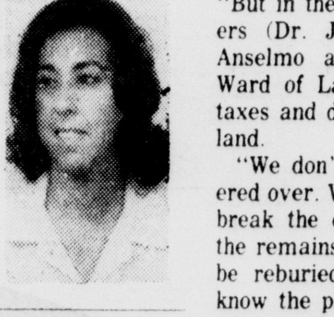
Youngsters Garage Sale? Well, Maybe

By JOAN LISETOR



If you have a 10-year-old son and he wants to have a garage sale, beware! And also be ready for a few laughs.

My son announced he was going to have a garage sale and make $85. He has a lot of toys, but at garage sale prices I wondered. Well, he and a friend had priced the items. There were, for instance, some well worn Mad magazines for 50 cents; games, whether or not they had missing pieces, ranged between $2 and $4; and you could buy some swell posters for $1 and up. I tried to explain the garage sale game: Very low prices. Taking my advice they lowered the prices — slightly.

Next I asked where they planned to hold the garage sale. (We don't have a garage, only a car port at the top of a very steep driveway.) Well, they thought the parking lot of a local supermarket would be ideal. I explained that the store might be reluctant to give up parking space on a busy Saturday, and the store manager confirmed that. Next they suggested the roof of the house. "So people could see us when they drive by." Another squelch.

Early the next Saturday morning I heard a car drive up the driveway and toot. The driver asked where the garage sale was, and then it came out. My son and his friends had posted signs saying "garage sale 9 a.m." and giving the address at many strategic points around the neighborhood. I spent the rest of the morning fending off potential customers, whose expectations were higher than Mad magazines, while my son and his friend took down their signs.

Net proceeds from the sale — a few young customers showed up in the afternoon — perhaps as high as $3. We don't know yet, since most of the buyers didn't have any money, but they promised to get it from their parents, soon.

THE WOMEN'S Political Caucus of Marin conducted a straw vote poll at the Marin County Fair, which proved some interesting results.

Of the 766 voters, men and women, 124 answered the question, "Who would you like to see as President in 1976?" President Gerald Ford, and 121 voted for Shirley Chisholm.

Others mentioned in the random sampling were Sen. Edward Kennedy, 117; Barbara Jordan and Gov. Ronald Reagan, 40; Elliot Richardson, 31; Sen. Barry Goldwater (Rep. Arizona) and Sen. Charles Percy (Rep. Illinois), 27; and Sen. Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), 26.

NOW THAT cosmetics must show the contents, women should be well informed. My new eye shadow contains: color, isopropyl myristate, mineral oil, sorbitan sesquioleate, cetyl alcohol, lanolin oil, paraffin, peg-8, synthetic beeswax, methylparaben, polysorbate-60, bha and bhy and propylparaben.

I'm so glad to know that. I never knew before what I was putting on my face.

A Fashion Luncheon That Was All Free

By MOLLY MARIN

For a fund-raising group, Family Service League chose quite a gimmick for its fall fashion show and luncheon — the whole thing was free!

Fashions came from the league's family shop in Mill Valley. All the clothes, including several authentic outfits from the 1930s and 1940s, were donations to the shop which sells second-hand items to benefit the Family Service Agency of Marin County in San Rafael.

The food — a seemingly endless array of salads — was made by members.

Longtime league member Ivy Wellington of San Rafael confided that, free luncheons notwithstanding, the league contributes a sizable amount annually to the Family Service Agency — $16,000 last year.

"Most people think of thrift shops as a place to buy something cheap," she said, "but in fact they are a big business in Marin." She has recently done research on thrift shops in Marin (she's identified 21 for sure) and said they run a million dollar business, all of it to benefit charitable and service organizations in the community.

DR. TOM KNEZ and Jerry Hauke were stomping and punching each other last Monday night at Lydon Hall of St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon. But it was all in fun; the two big Mill Valley men were practicing the German Ox Dance they will perform at St. Hilary's Parent-Teacher Club's Octoberfest on Saturday, Oct. 12.

FIVE YOUNG Marin women have pledged Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at the University of California.

They are Heidi Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Collins and a graduate of San Rafael High School; Laura Guerin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Guerin of Ross, a graduate of Katherine Branson School, and three Redwood High School graduates, Pamela Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Powell of Belvedere, Shawn Waste, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Waste of Kentfield and Carol Goepp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goepp of Kentfield.

A RECENT Independent-Journal story about the 86th birthday party of Helen Ramey of Corte Madera noted that she was the mother of four sons but failed to mention her one daughter, Helen Mattiu of Short Hills, N. J. Mrs. Ramey hoped we would mention her: "she has been so good to me."

MRS. AND MRS. Harry McCarroll of Riverside will celebrate their 64th wedding anniversary tomorrow with their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Harry (Russ) McCarroll of San Rafael.

The senior McCarrolls were to arrive in San Rafael from Riverside today, their anniversary, and be feted at a party for 30 guests at the McCarrolls' home tomorrow.

The honorees were married in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City. They plan to go to Salt Lake City after their stay in San Rafael, returning to the site of their marriage as they have every year during the week of their anniversary.

Chosen recently in competitive auditions, Lynn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Rothman, joins 27 other dancers in the Marin company.

Lynn has been a dance student at the Marin Civic Ballet School for seven years. She will perform with the full company in its first concert of the season Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

TO CELEBRATE their 45th wedding anniversary, Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Rossman of Sausalito will host the coffee hour after the 10 a.m. service tomorrow at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito, where they were married.

The couple will serve coffee and an anniversary cake to old-time friends and fellow parishioners.

THE GARDEN behind the County Historical Association Museum of Lafayette, Ind., was the setting for the mid-September wedding of Michelle Roth and James A. Stegenga.

Dr. Stegenga is the son of Eleanore Gnecco of San Anselmo.

The bride received a master's degree in anthropology from Purdue University.

The bridegroom received a Ph.D from UCLA and is now an author and professor of political science at Purdue.

The young people have bought a home in West Lafayette near the Purdue campsu.

Piano Scholarship For Gifted Girl

LINDA POLIGONO
Music scholar

Eight-year-old Linda Poligono of Corte Madera has been awarded a full scholarship to the San Francisco Conservatory of Music to continue her studies in piano.

"She is exceptionally gifted, a very musical child," said Maria Cisyk, director of the preparatory department of the conservatory.

Linda, the third of four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Poligono, has been playing the piano for two and a half years as the student of Wanda Baer of Yamaha Music School.

She will be studying with Tomoko Hagiwara of San Rafael, a member of the conservatory faculty.

She began piano lessons at her own request, and since she was a small child has expressed an interest in traveling about the world as a concert pianist.

Is anyone else in the family musical? "Not really," said her mother, Yasuko. "Her father used to play drums."

She will take classes in ear training, musicianship, body movement and drama as well as piano at the conservatory, Ms. Cisyk said. "We seek to turn out a total musician."

Human Rights Commissioner Proud Of Native Ancestry

By JOAN LISETOR

When Faye Dell Hendricks was a child "you didn't speak about being part Indian."

"I was aware that there was a little Indian heritage on my mother's side, but my father just told me a few years ago there also was on his side," Mrs. Hendricks said.

The San Anselmo woman was appointed last year to the Marin County Human Rights Commission by Supervisor Peter Arrigoni Jr. because of her Native American ancestry.

Mrs. Hendricks considers herself the Native American representative on the commission and has worked to unite the Native Aemrican community in Marin.

"I knew so little about Indians. I had been living a white man's life," she said. "Now I'm learning about each tribe, the different cultures, doing constant study and research, reading and talking to people."

She works with the Native Nations, a student organization at College of Marin, and visits Native American prisoners at San Quentin and communicates with them after they have been released to see if they need help.

MRS. HENDRICKS' three great-grandmothers were full blooded Indians: one a Penuite, one a Cherokee and one a Choctau. Each married white farmers, which was acceptable, she said. Her other great-grandmother was not an Indian. She recalld that her grandfather passed as Mexican because it was impossible for an Indian to get a job in the San Diego area, where she was born and reared.

Mrs. Hendricks did not get involved with the Native American cause five years ago when Alcatraz was taken over because she believes there are better ways of handling things.

The wife of an attorney (Thomas G. Hendricks, Marin chief deputy county counsel) she believes in trying to work through the law, she said.

"If you take the law segment by segment you don't waste time and energy. Laws need to be changed, and the only way to do that is through the courts and the legislature," she said.

She is doing just that with a parcel of land in Sausalito. Sausalito Fire Battalion Chief Steven H. Bogel and firemen Larry Martinez and Jerry Reçor unearthed a 500-year-old human skeleton at Pine and Caledonia Streets last June. The Sausalito City Council voted in July to pay $2,500 to David Boloyan, a graduate student at the University of California at Davis, to excavate the site.

"The city wanted to hire someone to do a dig and put the remains on display," Mrs. Hendricks said. "They didn't realize they were offending Native Americans."

SHE AND several Native Americans, drawn together by her work on the Human Rights Commission, appeared before the Sausalito City Council in August pleading that their ancestor's graves not be desecrated and explaining the importance of the sacred cycle, a belief that man must return his body to the earth after death in repayment for the things he has taken from the earth during life.

"The city has promised that the burial site will not be disturbed," Mrs. Hendricks said. "But in the meantime the owners (Dr. John Elliott of San Anselmo and Barbara Elliott Ward of Larkspur) are paying taxes and don't want to sell the land.

"We don't mind it being covered over. We just don't want to break the cycle by digging up the remains. The remains can't be reburied because we don't know the particular ritual, and what can be learned by digging up bones? They don't tell anything about the culture.

"You know, the Indians believe all of the land belongs to them, but they are going to have a very difficult time taking it away."

Mrs. Hendricks praised the owners of the Sausalito property, who, she said, want to build without destroying the Indian burial ground.

While she was leading what she calls "the white man's life" Mrs. Hendricks developed an interest in organic gardening, collecting herbs, weaving, crocheting rugs, making corn husk dolls, and other hobbies associated with Indian life. It must have been instinct, she said.

"My appointment (to the Human Rights Commission) has brought the Native American nation together, and that makes me feel good inside. If I accomplish just a little I hope to make others aware of the beauty of the culture.

"So far I haven't had any doors slammed in my face, but I don't expect things to change tomorrow. We have to go through procedures, change the way Indian history is taught in the schools, try to change the textbooks, so it is not a fairy tale. I'll keep after it — but slowly."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Cherished Wedding Customs Based On Male Dominance

RAP:

I wonder how many people — females especially — would go for a traditional big wedding if they knew how all these traditions started? Almost all our marriage customs are based on man being boss, woman being "owned," first by her father then by her husband.

We all know the dowry (now evolved into the bridal shower) began because a man had to get rid of his (useless) daughters, so offered prospective husbands bribes of livestock, money, whatever he had on hand.

If Pop was wealthy, he celebrated his relief at finally disposing of his female child with a fancy wedding at which he "gave her away." The poor often got stuck with unmarried daughters, but they had an out: they sold them as slaves.

According to the National Geographic Society, wedding rings evolved in the ancient East from huge bands the bride had to wear around her ankles, wrists, and even her waist as symbolic fetters befitting her role as her husband's servant and property.

She wore the wedding ring, later on, but always on the left hand as the right hand stood for power and authority, rights belonging only to her husband.

Tossing a shoe after newlyweds survives in part from the time when the bride's family gave their son-in-law a sandal to denote transfer of chattel — guess who?

Perhaps the "best man" dates back to prehistoric times when the bridegroom needed a strong-armed helper to capture his woman. Kidnapping a mate, even from another "husband," was accepted practice in medieval days.

And to this day, the man walks down the aisle with his "woman" on the left, presumably so his sword arm will be free to fight off thwarted suitors.

The National Geographic Society also reports bridesmaids came into fashion to protect their charge against possible overtures by the free-wheeling best man.

Rice (wheat, nuts, etc.) were originally fertility symbols, thrown at newlyweds to inspire a "ripening" to come.

Carrying the bride across the threshold? In Roman days, this demonstrated the authority and mastership of man, the lord of all his possessions. With cavemen, it might have been the only way to get the captured bride inside her new home! — RESEARCHER

RESEARCHER:

Very interesting. And here's another questioner of tradition:

RAP:

I'm not a lib fanatic, but I'd like to know why the groom's father can't help pay for the wedding. I asked Dad, and he said, "The groom will support the bride all their married lives, so he (or his father) shouldn't have to spring for getting hooked."

That's a chauvinistic answer! Most women work after marriage. They more than pull their own weight. Why shouldn't wedding costs be split down the middle? — HARASSED FIANCEE

DEAR HARASSED:

You're more traditional than you think: I see you wrote "groom's father," rather than "father and mother." Actually, his parents put on the rehearsal dinner, often provide champagne for the reception, and otherwise "assist." It isn't all one-sided. — SUE

DEAR HARASSED:

With modern marriage often postponed until both parties are already into careers, a coming trend is for the bride and bridegroom to pay for their own wedding. And that ceremony is anything but traditional!

Vive le change! — HELEN

The Shoulder Dart Should Be Smooth

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

Does the shoulder dart of a raglan sleeve end exactly at the shoulder tip or is it tapered down the arm? My shoulder darts often look puckered, not smooth. — MRS. R.C.H.

DEAR MRS. R.C.H.,

Perhaps you have narrow shoulders. In any event, the shoulder must look nice and smooth. The curve of the shoulder dart should end at the end of your shoulder, then taper the dart very fine at the end. When pressed, you shouldn't be aware of a dart, simply a well-fitted shoulder line.

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm trying to obtain a pattern for an uplift bra with a bottom band. I need this in order to make halter tops. The ones in the stores give no support and are inappropriate for an older woman to wear in public. — MRS. S.C.B.

DEAR MRS. S.C.B.,

Let's leave the halter tops to the young girls with beautiful bodies who don't need extra support from a bra. We had our chance, so for the "not-so-youngs" let's choose patterns with interesting necklines and not bare everything.

Fashion is only beautiful when it is becoming. There are variations of all fashions that can be modified to every figure. It's wise to check your own figure carefully to see what can be shown and what cannot before selecting your pattern.

DEAR EUNICE,

The sheath-type dresses without a waistline seam always seem to bunch at the waist for me. They look fine when I've just placed the belt in position but the minute I move, my dress bunches up and looks terrible. Is there any way to keep the waistline at the waist? — MRS. N.D.

DEAR MRS. N.D.,

Yes, there is a rather simple way to keep the waistline in place. Try your dress on, then tie a string very tightly around the waistline, at the exact place you would wear your belt. Mark this line with pins in several spots as a guide. When you take your dress off, baste around the entire waistline according to your pins.

Turn your dress to the wrong side, use a zigzag stitch and stitch over a long piece of thin, round elastic. Leave the ends long, try the dress on again, even out the fullness and make it as tight as you desire (I wouldn't recommend it be too tight, just an easy fit). Secure the ends of the elastic and from this point on, you won't have any more worries. You'll find the dress will stay in place beautifully, and the ease or gathers will be exactly where you want them.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Cherished Wedding Customs Based On Male Dominance

RAP:

I wonder how many people — females especially — would go for a traditional big wedding if they knew how all these traditions started? Almost all our marriage customs are based on man being boss, woman being "owned," first by her father then by her husband.

We all know the dowry (now evolved into the bridal shower) began because a man had to get rid of his (useless) daughters, so offered prospective husbands bribes of livestock, money, whatever he had on hand.

If Pop was wealthy, he celebrated his relief at finally disposing of his female child with a fancy wedding at which he "gave her away." The poor often got stuck with unmarried daughters, but they had an out: they sold them as slaves.

According to the National Geographic Society, wedding rings evolved in the ancient East from huge bands the bride had to wear around her ankles, wrists, and even her waist as symbolic fetters befitting her role as her husband's servant and property.

She wore the wedding ring, later on, but always on the left hand as the right hand stood for power and authority, rights belonging only to her husband.

Tossing a shoe after newlyweds survives in part from the time when the bride's family gave their son-in-law a sandal to denote transfer of chattel — guess who?

Perhaps the "best man" dates back to prehistoric times when the bridegroom needed a strong-armed helper to capture his woman. Kidnapping a mate, even from another "husband," was accepted practice in medieval days.

And to this day, the man walks down the aisle with his "woman" on the left, presumably so his sword arm will be free to fight off thwarted suitors.

The National Geographic Society also reports bridesmaids came into fashion to protect their charge against possible overtures by the free-wheeling best man.

Rice (wheat, nuts, etc.) were originally fertility symbols, thrown at newlyweds to inspire a "ripening" to come.

Carrying the bride across the threshold? In Roman days, this demonstrated the authority and mastership of man, the lord of all his possessions. With cavemen, it might have been the only way to get the captured bride inside her new home! — RESEARCHER

RESEARCHER:

Very interesting. And here's another questioner of tradition:

RAP:

I'm not a lib fanatic, but I'd like to know why the groom's father can't help pay for the wedding. I asked Dad, and he said, "The groom will support the bride all their married lives, so he (or his father) shouldn't have to spring for getting hooked."

That's a chauvinistic answer! Most women work after marriage. They more than pull their own weight. Why shouldn't wedding costs be split down the middle? — HARASSED FIANCEE

DEAR HARASSED:

You're more traditional than you think: I see you wrote "groom's father," rather than "father and mother." Actually, his parents put on the rehearsal dinner, often provide champagne for the reception, and otherwise "assist." It isn't all one-sided. — SUE

DEAR HARASSED:

With modern marriage often postponed until both parties are already into careers, a coming trend is for the bride and bridegroom to pay for their own wedding. And that ceremony is anything but traditional!

Vive le change! — HELEN

Kennedy Flays Proposal For Federal Gas Taxes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said yesterday he is "completely and unalterably" opposed to a 10 per cent federal tax increase on gasoline and would not support any such tax without major tax reform first.

"This is one Senator who is going to reject it," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said, "We need tax reform for those who have been harshly hit . . . we need programs that provide tax justice."

"We've responded to his requests and we're prepared for action," he said.

Kennedy said President Ford has the power for "jawboning" to get business to lower prices, but he hasn't exercised it.

The senator said the oil industry had realized 124 per cent increase in profits during the first six months of 1974. He referred to President John F. Kennedy's successful jawboning efforts in the steel industry.

"Jawboning is the best way," he said. "We've never tried phase one of jawboning."

Fire Kills Five

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Five persons were killed and another was injured in a fire which swept through a two-story home before dawn today, fire officials said.

3rd Graders Have Plan For Energy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A delighted President Ford yesterday proudly showed off a two-foot stack of energy-saving suggestions from the public, including a pledge from Michigan third-graders to cut down the family auto mileage by riding bikes whenever possible.

Last weekend, Ford closed his economic summit by asking Americans to send him lists of their 10 favorite energy-saving and inflation-fighting ideas. The result, some 18,025 letters and postcards, filled a large mail basket and overflowed onto the Cabinet table where Ford was meeting with his top-level Economic Policy Board.

Holding a large 2 x 3 foot letter at arms length, the President read the 10 "energy savers" sent by "Mrs. Lykes third Grade Sodt Elementary School, Monroe, Michigan." Among the ideas:

"-We will ride our bikes to our friends instead of having Dad take us in the car.

"-We will always close the door in cold weather.

"-We will get things out of the refrigerator quickly."

Ford, reporters and cameramen all chuckled at a final suggestion:

"-We will eat dinner when Mom cooks it so that she will not have to reheat it."

The President also read from a 10-point list sent by the Warren Nissley Jr. family, Ridgewood, N.J. Their points included taking baths in half the normal amount of water and shutting the door quickly after the cat goes outside.

And the Nissleys added a P.S.: "If we replace our TV, it will be with Solid State," which uses less energy than tube sets.

Ford said he found many of the ideas "extremely helpful" and said some would be worked into his own anti-inflation speech to the nation next Tuesday.

Economic adviser Paul McCracken suggested compiling the ideas into an anthology and Ford nodded his agreement.

Kennedy Flays Proposal For Federal Gas Taxes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said yesterday he is "completely and unalterably" opposed to a 10 per cent federal tax increase on gasoline and would not support any such tax without major tax reform first.

"This is one Senator who is going to reject it," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said, "We need tax reform for those who have been harshly hit . . . we need programs that provide tax justice."

"We've responded to his requests and we're prepared for action," he said.

Kennedy said President Ford has the power for "jawboning" to get business to lower prices, but he hasn't exercised it.

The senator said the oil industry had realized 124 per cent increase in profits during the first six months of 1974. He referred to President John F. Kennedy's successful jawboning efforts in the steel industry.

"Jawboning is the best way," he said. "We've never tried phase one of jawboning."

3rd Graders Have Plan For Energy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A delighted President Ford yesterday proudly showed off a two-foot stack of energy-saving suggestions from the public, including a pledge from Michigan third-graders to cut down the family auto mileage by riding bikes whenever possible.

Last weekend, Ford closed his economic summit by asking Americans to send him lists of their 10 favorite energy-saving and inflation-fighting ideas. The result, some 18,025 letters and postcards, filled a large mail basket and overflowed onto the Cabinet table where Ford was meeting with his top-level Economic Policy Board.

Holding a large 2 x 3 foot letter at arms length, the President read the 10 "energy savers" sent by "Mrs. Lykes third Grade Sodt Elementary School, Monroe, Michigan." Among the ideas:

"-We will ride our bikes to our friends instead of having Dad take us in the car.

"-We will always close the door in cold weather.

"-We will get things out of the refrigerator quickly."

Ford, reporters and catmermen all chuckled at a final suggestion:

"-We will eat dinner when Mom cooks it so that she will not have to reheat it."

The President also read from a 10-point list sent by the Warren Nissley Jr. family, Ridgewood, N.J. Their points included taking baths in half the normal amount of water and shutting the door quickly after the cat goes outside.

And the Nissleys added a P.S.: "If we replace our TV, it will be with Solid State," which uses less energy than tube sets.

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

What About Larry Doby?

The baseball situation in Cleveland has been and may continue to be ridiculous. How they did as well as they did for as long as they did is amazing.

Spring training is the one time of the year when a ball club most uses its coaches. A large number of players are there and it is impossible for a manager to supervise all of them adequately. A coach will take smaller groups and work with them on a special phase of the game. The more coaches you have in spring training, the more work you can accomplish.

The Indians went to spring training with a vacancy on their coaching staff. They spent a great deal of time trying to hire Tommy McCraw, a player with the California Angels, to fill the coaching vacancy. The Angels refused to let McCraw go.

CLEVELAND NEXT turned its sights to Larry Doby, at the time a coach on the Montreal Expo staff. Doby had been a member of Gene Mauch's staff for a few years and had studied very hard learning his job. He observed Mauch, took the good and eliminated the bad. He studied individuals and how to handle them. Doby accepted the position with the Indians because it was an opportunity to further himself in his quest for the job he wanted most, major league manager.

The manager of the Cleveland Indians was Ken Aspromonte. He was on shaky ground last year but was rehired for one more year. I don't know if anything was promised, but I am sure that Larry Doby felt he had the job, if and when it became available.

The Indians, under Aspromonte, did a strange thing at the beginning of this year. They won. It was relatively late in the year before they dropped out of the pennant race. They got great pitching from Gaylord Perry but things kept happening to indicate that Ken Aspromonte had better start looking in the classifieds under Help Wanted - Male. The management staged a 10-cent beer night with no limits. When the inevitable riot developed, the Indians had to forfeit their game.

OTHER PROBLEMS arose. Aspromonte had trouble with all-star outfielder George Hendrick. Hendrick was quoted as saying he would't play for Aspromonte. Another outfielder Oscar Gamble, who leads the major leagues in hair, was accused in a rape case. At no time did the front office offer Aspromonte any support or help.

Meanwhile in Anaheim, Angel outfielder Frank Robinson was busy leading a mutiny againsst manager Bobby Winkles. The situation came to a head, and Winkles was fired. Dick Williams was given a five-year contract to replace Winkles. Williams immediately named Robinson team captain.

Back in Cleveland, the Indians finally were able to hire McCraw and he was closely followed by the newly named captain of the Angels, Robinson. There was no way that Williams would have kept Robinson around.

IN THE SHORT TIME he has been in Cleveland, Robinson (1) stated that he came to play, not manage; (2) got into a shouting and shoving match with Perry and (3) was named to manage the team.

The owner and his assistant are now reportedly leaving the team. The man who expected the job, deserved the job and was best qualified for the job — Larry Doby — is still without a manager's position.

Good luck, Indians.

Warriors' Lee Is 'In Shock'

Commissioner Rules That Forward Must Go To Hawks

HONOLULU (UPI) — Golden State Warriors forward Clayde Lee said he is "in shock" as a result of a decision by National Basektball League commissioner Walter Kennedy that he must go to Atlanta.

CLYDE LEE
Hates to go

Lee, with the Warriors here on an exhibition swing, returned to the Bay Area after learning of Kennedy's decision yesterday.

"I hate to go," said the 6-10 Lee, a defense and rebounding specialist whose greatest service to the Warriors was in holding down opposing hotshots.

"I don't feel as sorry for myself as I do for (Warriors coach) Al Attles. I'm not saying I'm that good, but he helped me and I think I helped him. We have a team that is going to be a lot better than most people think and I thought I was part of that team."

Yesterday's stunner stems from a deal made nearly five years ago by owner Franklin Mieuli when center Nate Thurmond had torn ligaments and center Zelmo Beaty was sitting out his season with the Hawks waiting to jump to the American Basketball League.

Mieuli traded the Warriors top draft pick just to obtain the rights to Beaty and, in an agreement not known until last month, also agreed to give up Lee to Atlanta if the Warriors could sign Beaty.

The latter agreement came to bitter fruition last week when the Warriors got Beaty back from Utah of the ABA and turned him over immediately to Los Angeles in return for a high draft pick.

"It was a small technicality," said new General Manager Dick Vertlieb, who had never been told about the deal, "and it costs us Clyde Lee. I'm sick."

San Rafael, San Marin Tie

By DAVID DEL GRANDE

San Rafael High School felt they could be successful last night if they could just do two things: (1) contain San Marin's Wayne Roche, and (2) keep San Marin from winning.

The Bulldogs accomplished both, yet could only manage a 7-7 tie with the favored Mustangs Marin County Athletic League in their football opener before 1,000 onlookers at Paul Miller Field in San Rafael.

A tenacious Bulldog defense, sparked by linebacker Mike McGrath and a hard-hitting front four, allowed 202 San Marin rushing yards, but these were almost exclusively on short gainers. The Mustangs broke only five rushes over 10 yards, two on 32 and 22-yard runs by Roche. But Rocher, who ran for 75 yards in the first quarter, was stopped after that and ended up with 86 yards in 18 carries, well below his preseason pace. Balancing Roche was Mustang Bob Bennett who rushed for 76 yards in 14 carries.

San Rafael scored first, two plays after Bulldogs Mike Roberts had blocked a Mustang punt and Mike Kinsella had recovered it at the San Marin five. Mark Meredith plunged in from one yard out for the score, midway through the second period.

But four minutes later, Roche rushed three yards for the equalizer. This touchdown came three plays after Mustang Steve Callison ran seven yards to the Bulldog six yard line after recovering a fumble.

Following the intermission, both teams tested their aerial attacks, but neither worked. Taking advantage of Bulldog quarterback Dave Steele's sore arm, Mustangs Brett Schaake, Glenn Stevenson, and Barry Leslie all intercepted fourth-quarter passes in Bulldog territory, but San Marin couldn't capitalize.

Perhaps the biggest threat of the second half came after Stevenson's interception as San Marin was at the Bulldog 14 with 35 seconds left. But on a halfback option, Roche fired a pass into the end zone that was

Dramatic Victory For Tam Gridders

NORTH HIGHLANDS, Calif. — Junior quarterback Dan Lucia fired four touchdown passes to lead Tamalpais High School to a 26-20, come-from-behind victory over Highlands last night in a non-league football game.

Down 14-0 at one point and 20-14 at halftime, the Indians pulled it out with two touchdowns in the last quarter. Lucia threw his final TD pass 18 yards to Rick Lapora for the winning points.

Arthur McIntosh caught two Lucia scoring strikes, for 28 and 14 yards, after Mike Lamb opened the scoring for Tam with a 17-yard TD reception. Lucia had 14 completions in 28 attempts for 187 yards.

Tim Grayson complimented the Tam passing attack with 105 yards rushing in just seven carries.

The victory gave the Indians a final pre-season record of 2-2. They open their Marin County Athletic League season next Saturday at 12:15 p.m. against Novato.

Marin Booters In Opening Win

Four goals by All-American Misak Pirinjian led College of Marin to a 6-1 victory over Alameda yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference soccer opener at Kentfield.

Pirinjian scored twice unassisted and with assists from Bob Gaddini and Tim Pidgeon. Gaddini and Lyle Weden had Marin's other goals.

WFL Storm Signs Receiver Glass

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Wide receiver Leland Glass signed yesterday with the Portland Storm of the World Football League.

Glass played the last two seasons with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League. He was playing out his option with the Packers when released two weeks ago.

QB Moroski Is On Money

Novato Receiver Hoog Cashes In For Victory

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Quarterback Mike Moroski was on the money and wide receiver Steve Hoog cashed in with three touchdowns yesterday to lead Novato High School to a 35-0 victory over Drake in the opening game of the Marin County Athletic League football season.

A crowd of several hundred fans at College of Marin field sat under balmy autumn skies and saw the Hornets explode in pursuit of a second straight MCAL championship.

Hoog caught six passes from Moroski for 134 yards, including touchdown tosses of 25 and 49 yards. He also dashed 81 yards to score on an end reverse, and intercepted a pass on defense.

The shutout was the sixth straight in league play for Novato, and the effort that produced it was team-wide. If one player stood out more than the rest, it was middle linebacker Rich Holshevnikoff. He led the charge that cut off Drake's ground game. He recovered a fumble in the third quarter. And he saved the shutout in the final minute with an interception in the end zone.

Moroski, continuing the pinpoint and poised passing that accounted for five pre-season touchdowns, completed 12 of 24 attempts for 177 yards. The finest pass of the day was the second TD to Hoog, who was so wide open he should have been arrested for over exposure.

The Hornets actually won the game early, as they marched 64 yards to score following the opening kickoff. Glen Dunbar, Novato's workhorse with 53 yards in 11 carries, got the final four.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Novato coach Al Scott removed Moroski and most of the first team offense from the game. He didn't want to run the score up any more.

But he forgot to mention that to halfback Mark Reagan, who took off on a reverse midway through the period and ran 46 yards to score the final touchdown.

Halfback Ross Perry, Drake's claim to a ground game, picked up 88 yards in 18 carries to lead all rushers. Pirate receiver Gary Peak had five catches for 88 yards.

The game was surprisingly clean, with only one penalty in the first half. Novato was not penalized until the fourth quarter.

A crowd of several hundred fans at College of Marin field sat under balmy autumn skies and saw the Hornets explode in pursuit of a second straight MCAL championship.

Hoog caught six passes from Moroski for 134 yards, including touchdown tosses of 25 and 49 yards. He also dashed 81 yards to score on an end reverse, and intercepted a pass on defense.

The shutout was the sixth straight in league play for Novato, and the effort that produced it was team-wide. If one player stood out more than the rest, it was middle linebacker Rich Holshevnikoff. He led the charge that cut off Drake's ground game. He recovered a fumble in the third quarter. And he saved the shutout in the final minute with an interception in the end zone.

Moroski, continuing the pinpoint and poised passing that accounted for five pre-season touchdowns, completed 12 of 24 attempts for 177 yards. The finest pass of the day was the second TD to Hoog, who was so wide open he should have been arrested for over exposure.

The Hornets actually won the game early, as they marched 64 yards to score following the opening kickoff. Glen Dunbar, Novato's workhorse with 53 yards in 11 carries, got the final four.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Novato coach Al Scott removed Moroski and most of the first team offense from the game. He didn't want to run the score up any more.

But he forgot to mention that to halfback Mark Reagan, who took off on a reverse midway through the period and ran 46 yards to score the final touchdown.

Halfback Ross Perry, Drake's claim to a ground game, picked up 88 yards in 18 carries to lead all rushers. Pirate receiver Gary Peak had five catches for 88 yards.

The game was surprisingly clean, with only one penalty in the first half. Novato was not penalized until the fourth quarter.

WITH PRESSURE, MONEY ON LINE

A Study Of Contrasts In Baseball Playoffs

"You'll see them doing things they haven't done in 15 or 20 days, there's no doubt about it," Baltimore manager Earl Weaver said regarding the American League playoffs.

"A good club like the A's feels it can turn it on when it has to," said Orioles third baseman Brooks Robinson.

The A's, seeking a third straight world title, definitely feel they can win again despite a 14-16 record in their final 30 regular season games.

"Put $25,000 out there and we'll play the game over and see what happens," Reggie Jackson said recently of the World Series winners' share.

Baltimore won 28 of its final 34 regular-season games and needed every victory in the drive which carried the Orioles past New York in the Eastern division race.

"We were eight games behind with 30 to play and it was almost time to start thinking about next year," said Robinson, who had a .288 season as a batter.

Weaver said the A's, with a constant lead, were able to play it safe and look ahead in September and he expects them to open up now, especially with their base running.

"They didn't run much in September," he said, "and Jackson and Bert Campaneris missed some games with injuries. You couldn't expect much from them with those two out."

A's manager Alvin Dark said, "I think Campy is 100 per cent and Reggie seems to be all right. We should be 100 per cent healthy."

Meanwhile, a different picture is being painted for the National League playoffs.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, conceded an edge in pitching, surprisingly also had a power advantage over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

(Play began today in both best-of-five playoffs.)

The Dodgers traditionally have been thought of as a team which bunted, sacrificed and singled for a run or two, then relied on pitching to win. The Pirates, on the other hand, are recognized as a hitting club, one whose power overcame defensive deficiencies.

Manager Walter Alston, indignant when asked what he thought were negative questions, contended the 1974 Dodgers were superior over-all.

"All I've heard is how the Dodgers choked last year, were going to choke this year, and now I'm asked how we feel about losing all six games this season here," Alston said.

"What happened before doesn't mean a thing to me or my players," said the obviously annoyed Alston.

The Dodgers actually rely on more than just 20-game winner Andy Messersmith, 19-game winner Don Sutton and super-reliever Mike Marshall, a 13-game winner with 21 saves.

The Dodgers hit 139 homers to 114 for the Pirates, scored 798 runs to 751, batted in 744 runs to 692, and hit .272 as a team, just two points less than Pittsburgh's .274.

Thus the Western Division champion Dodgers, who won 102 games and finished four ahead of runner-up Cincinnati, are the choice to beat the Pirates and reach the World Series. Pittsburgh won the East by 1½ games in a dogfight with the St. Louis Cardinals that wasn't decided until the final day of the 162-game season.

"I'd say in a short series past performance means nothing," Murtaugh said.

The big guns in Los Angeles' attack are center fielder Jim Wynn who hit 32 homers and drove in 108 runs, third baseman Ron Cey who drove in 97, and Steve Garvey, 21 homers and 11 RBIs. The Pirates depend on Richie Zisk, 17 homers, 100 RBIs; Willie Stargell, 25 homers, 96 RBIs, and Al Oliver, a .321 hitter with 85 RBIs.

Sebastopol Bowler Deserves His Share

The Sebastopol bowler teamed with Barbara Delport to score 1,387 Saturday at Nave Lanes in Ignacio. He contributed a 290-238-243—781 series. In addition, Williams bowled on three other teams. He averaged 228 for 12 games.

There were 61 teams competing for $1,403. Eleven shares were paid out.

Two teams tied for second by bowling 1,364. They were Larry Kee and Jerry Stewart and Larry and Robert Betts. Each team will split $200.

Ray and Pat Rinaldo bowled 1,359 to earn $125. Ruth Phillips and Ron Mahoney totalled 1,347 for $100 to complete the top five.

Contestants rolled three games with total pins plus handicap in scoring. Play was held Saturday and Sunday.

JOHN ELLINGSEN turned in the top Marin County bowling league series this week, 700. The Hamilton Air Force Base resident bowled 207-279-214 Tuesday night in the Night Owls at Nave Lanes.

SACRAMENTO — The trout limit would be cut in three Northern California counties under new proposals issued by the state Department of Fish and Game.

Under the proposed regulations, the general season limit on trout would be reduced from 10 to five in Santa Clara, San Mateo and Marin County streams.

The proposals would also designate a section of the Feather River as a salmon spawning area and ban fishing there from the last Saturday in April through Dec. 31.

That section of the river would run from 100 feet upstream of Thermalito Afterbay outlet to the Highway 70 bridge in Oroville.

The recommendations were made yesterday to the California Fish and Game Commission, which will take final action on them Dec. 6.

NFL ROUNDUP

49ers To Host Potent Cards

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Don Coryell made his mark in college as an exponent of wide open offense but it's been his defense that has carried the St. Louis Cardinals to the top of the National Conference East.

Coryell, the Cardinals' second-year coach, had some of the highest scoring offensive clubs in the nation when he coached at San Diego State and is a firm believer in the "big play" theory — let the other guy control the ball, I'll try for touchdowns.

But the big plays this year have been made by the Cardinal defense as they have surged to a 3-0 record and face the San Francisco 49ers tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Candlestick Park. St. Louis held Philadelphia's potent offense to only three points in its opener and allowed only a touchdown and a field goal to Washington and a touchdown to Cleveland — just 20 points.

A strange turnaround for a team that last season gave up the most yards in the league.

St. Louis, in its three victories, had five straight touchdowns which covered 56 yards or more. Defensive end Ron Yankowski ran 71 yards with a fumble and Terry Metcalf had a 75-yard run from scrimmage against Washington. Then against Cleveland, Norm Thompson returned an interception 56 yards for a TD, Metcalf had a 94-yard kickoff return for another and Jim Hart passed 68 yards to Mel Gray for a third before Donny Anderson scored on a mere 10-yard run to snap the big play string.

The Cardinals' trip to San Francisco will also mark the return of running back Ken Willard to his old stomping grounds. Willard starred for the 49ers for nine years and gained 5,930 yards, becoming the No. 7 rusher in NFL history.

"I'm looking forward to it and then again I'm not," Willard said. "Going back and seeing so many people that I've known for years is going to be fun but actually, it just feels strange to be going against the people I was with for so long.

"There's a lot of nostalgia involved in this game for me. I had the majority of my successes there — and the majority of my failures. I really, really came to like the people of San Francisco."

Joe Thomas makes his debut as Baltimore coach when the winless Colts face the unbeaten Patriots. Thomas takes over for Howard Schnellenberger, who was fired after last week's 30-10 loss to Philadelphia.

And Atlanta coach Norm Van Brocklin, whose Falcons also have yet to win, could be in trouble if his team fails against the Giants.

Minnesota, the other unbeaten team in the NFL along with St. Louis and New England, faces a Cowboy team smarting from consecutive upset losses at the hands of Philadelphia and the Giants.

Raiders Stress Need For Attack

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders arrived here for their National Football League battle tomorrow with Cleveland knowing they'll probably have to open up the throttle on offense if they expect to get by the Browns.

Raider fullback Marv Hubbard noted that Oakland's statistics aren't too impressive on offense, but adds that "when the defense has gotten us the ball or we've had a good return, we put the ball in the end zone.

"We've scored the most points in our division, taken advantage of the opportunities we've had. That inspires the defense for you and gives confidence to the offense."

But Hubbard notes that Cleveland plays a wide-open brand of ball and says the offense will have to move the ball better against the Browns, since they have perhaps a little worse defense than the Raiders' first three foes but maybe a little more explosive attack, too.

Hubbard gained only 51 yards in the first two games, but rolled for 96 last week in a 17-0 shutout of Pittsburgh. Clarence Davis added 63 as the Raider ground attack seemed to jell.

Offensive guard star Gene Upshaw says "we're starting to get there. We're building, getting better each game. Offense is something that takes longer.

"You just don't walk on the field and have it click together, even though you're the same guys doing the same things. We haven't been bad, but we can be a lot better and will be."

Upshaw says that his opponent on the other side of the pit tomorrow, Jerry Sherk, is "tough, a real son-of-a-gun. He's a Pro Bowl guy. I'll have to go after him right away. Cleveland doesn't seem to impress people, but they're steady and they get the job done."

Oakland is fresh from shutting out Pittsburgh, the first time that has happened to the Steelers in 132 games.

A Study Of Contrasts In Baseball Playoffs

Marin In Trout Future?

Combined AP & UPI

SACRAMENTO — The trout limit would be cut in three Northern California counties under new proposals issued by the state Department of Fish and Game.

Under the proposed regulations, the general season limit on trout would be reduced from 10 to five in Santa Clara, San Mateo and Marin County streams.

The proposals would also designate a section of the Feather River as a salmon spawning area and ban fishing there from the last Saturday in April through Dec. 31.

That section of the river would run from 100 feet upstream of Thermalito Afterbay outlet to the Highway 70 bridge in Oroville.

The recommendations were made yesterday to the California Fish and Game Commission, which will take final action on them Dec. 6.

NFL ROUNDUP

49ers To Host Potent Cards

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Don Coryell made his mark in college as an exponent of wide open offense but it's been his defense that has carried the St. Louis Cardinals to the top of the National Conference East.

Coryell, the Cardinals' second-year coach, had some of the highest scoring offensive clubs in the nation when he coached at San Diego State and is a firm believer in the "big play" theory — let the other guy control the ball, I'll try for touchdowns.

But the big plays this year have been made by the Cardinal defense as they have surged to a 3-0 record and face the San Francisco 49ers tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Candlestick Park. St. Louis held Philadelphia's potent offense to only three points in its opener and allowed only a touchdown and a field goal to Washington and a touchdown to Cleveland — just 20 points.

A strange turnaround for a team that last season gave up the most yards in the league.

St. Louis, in its three victories, had five straight touchdowns which covered 56 yards or more. Defensive end Ron Yankowski ran 71 yards with a fumble and Terry Metcalf had a 75-yard run from scrimmage against Washington. Then against Cleveland, Norm Thompson returned an interception 56 yards for a TD, Metcalf had a 94-yard kickoff return for another and Jim Hart passed 68 yards to Mel Gray for a third before Donny Anderson scored on a mere 10-yard run to snap the big play string.

The Cardinals' trip to San Francisco will also mark the return of running back Ken Willard to his old stomping grounds. Willard starred for the 49ers for nine years and gained 5,930 yards, becoming the No. 7 rusher in NFL history.

"I'm looking forward to it and then again I'm not," Willard said. "Going back and seeing so many people that I've known for years is going to be fun but actually, it just feels strange to be going against the people I was with for so long.

"There's a lot of nostalgia involved in this game for me. I had the majority of my successes there — and the majority of my failures. I really, really came to like the people of San Francisco."

Joe Thomas makes his debut as Baltimore coach when the winless Colts face the unbeaten Patriots. Thomas takes over for Howard Schnellenberger, who was fired after last week's 30-10 loss to Philadelphia.

And Atlanta coach Norm Van Brocklin, whose Falcons also have yet to win, could be in trouble if his team fails against the Giants.

Minnesota, the other unbeaten team in the NFL along with St. Louis and New England, faces a Cowboy team smarting from consecutive upset losses at the hands of Philadelphia and the Giants.

Raiders Stress Need For Attack

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders arrived here for their National Football League battle tomorrow with Cleveland knowing they'll probably have to open up the throttle on offense if they expect to get by the Browns.

Raider fullback Marv Hubbard noted that Oakland's statistics aren't too impressive on offense, but adds that "when the defense has gotten us the ball or we've had a good return, we put the ball in the end zone.

"We've scored the most points in our division, taken advantage of the opportunities we've had. That inspires the defense for you and gives confidence to the offense."

But Hubbard notes that Cleveland plays a wide-open brand of ball and says the offense will have to move the ball better against the Browns, since they have perhaps a little worse defense than the Raiders' first three foes but maybe a little more explosive attack, too.

Hubbard gained only 51 yards in the first two games, but rolled for 96 last week in a 17-0 shutout of Pittsburgh. Clarence Davis added 63 as the Raider ground attack seemed to jell.

Offensive guard star Gene Upshaw says "we're starting to get there. We're building, getting better each game. Offense is something that takes longer.

"You just don't walk on the field and have it click together, even though you're the same guys doing the same things. We haven't been bad, but we can be a lot better and will be."

Upshaw says that his opponent on the other side of the pit tomorrow, Jerry Sherk, is "tough, a real son-of-a-gun. He's a Pro Bowl guy. I'll have to go after him right away. Cleveland doesn't seem to impress people, but they're steady and they get the job done."

Oakland is fresh from shutting out Pittsburgh, the first time that has happened to the Steelers in 132 games.

Nameless Players On Baseball Field

The tipoff:

That's not an apparition you're seeing if you should happen to be in Las Vegas. That's Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder 42 pounds lighter after a long reducing session in the Duke University hospital.

Q. Why is it that some teams in both the National and American Leagues do not have the names of their players on the back of their uniforms? Is this a way of saving money or something? — David Hickman, Oil City, Pa.

The Hon. Chub Feeney, president of the National League, tells us it's a matter of decision for each individual club, which shows you where baseball is still at — in football, they insist on the individual identification as an aid to the public. Naw, I don't think money enters into it — on some clubs, maybe the owners don't want to know who's playing for them.

Q. What were the last three major college football teams to go undefeated, untied and unscored upon for the regular season? — G. R. Colvin, Concord, Calif.

That would be Duke in 1938, although the Blue Devils were finally dented in the last minute of the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1939 when unknown Doyle Nave threw a touchdown pass to Al Krueger for a 7-3 USC victory. In 1932, Colgate was disappointed at not getting a Rose Bowl bid and in the words of Andy Kerr was "unbeaten, untied, unscored on and uninvited." Finally, Texas A&M also joined the list in 1919. Other schools which had teams that never gave up a point were: Auburn (1908), Illinois (1910), Michigan (1901), Navy (1910), Pitt (1910) and Yale (1888-91-92, 1909).

Q. When Jimmy Wynn was an Astro, why was he unliked by many of his hometown fans and wanted to be traded to Los Angeles? — Jim Scourbes, Sacramento, Calif.

The Toy Cannon's 10-year tenure in Houston wasn't all negative. He blasted a lot of home runs. He also struck out a lot. But the failure of the Astros to progress as a serious title-contending club also hurt Wynn before the homefolks because, as a key guy on the team, he symbolized their collective failure. The change of scenery to Los Angeles got rid of a lot of his emotional hangups about playing in Houston.

Q. I think Bert Campaneris should have gotten the World Series MVP award last year (no offense to Reggie). What was Campy's reaction to his not being picked? — Anna Maria Tinonga, Oakland, Calif.

Utter disappointment. And he didn't mind expressing it while vowing that he'd get a better shot at it in '74. Campy's bitterness wasn't directed at Jackson. He felt that he wasn't picked by "Sport" Magazine, which makes the selection, because he doesn't speak English as well as Jackson, who made a fluent recipient of the honor (and the car that went with it).

Q. Scientists tried to establish that pitcher Nolan Ryan of the California Angels could throw faster than Bob Feller's generally accepted major league record of 98.3 miles per hour. I always had the impression that the great Walter Johnson was once timed at more than 100 miles an hour. Do you know whether this was true? — Ed Cary, Santa Ana, Calif.

A check with baseball authorities convinces me that Johnson never had a true test of his vaunted speed, mainly because there wasn't the sophisticated electronic equipment available in his time. Until Ryan's recent clocking of 100.9 mph for his pitch, Feller topped the list with 98.6 mph, followed surprisingly by Steve Barber at 95.5 and Don Drysdale at 95.3 mph. Where's Sandy Koufax, who was supposed to have the livest ball of all? When he was timed in 1960, same as Drysdale, he was 2.1 mph slower.

Parting shot:

In the sham era of Evel Knievel, the real athletic feat of Lou Brock, at the age of 35, breaking the all-time base stealing record didn't get nearly the recognition it deserved. But that's electronic exploitation for you.

Casa Grande Shows Its Explosiveness

By DIANE FISHER

Casa Grande High School has shown it has an explosive football team. The Gauchos demonstrated this last night by scoring 21 points in the fourth quarter to down Piner, 21-8.

The game on Durst Field in Petaluma was a Sonoma County League opener. After a scoreless first half, the Prospectors (0-3-0) took the lead in the third quarter on a 29-yard touchdown sprint by John Halvorsen. The Santa Rosans added a safety when defensive back Ed Smith tackled Casa Grande's John Lutz in the end zone.

But Casa Grande (3-0-1) promptly tied the score with quarterback Jim Bricker passing for the touchdown (to Lutz) and the two-point conversion.

Bricker then marched the Gauchos 68 yards in 10 plays; Lutz plunged over from the one. With Casa Grande leading only 14-8, Larry Thomas clinched the victory by returning an intercepted pass 33 yards for a touchdown and adding the extra-point kick.

Golf Star Sarazen Sees Ace On Film

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — When Gene Sarazen made his hole-in-one in the 1973 British Open, the five iron shot was shown on television. But Sarazen received a bigger surprise at the eighth annual Tony Lema memorial dinner here when the shot was shown on film.

Sarazen, the chairman of the Lema one-day tournament, said the British Open ace was the seventh of his long career. He also said a bigger thrill came in the 1935 Masters when he registered a double eagle.

FUROR WITH INDIA

South Africa Davis Cup Team Is Not Rejoicing

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South Africa stood to win the coveted Davis cup today, only the fifth nation to win the tennis trophy in 74 years. But there was no rejoicing in the home camp.

The award comes by default in the face of India's refusal to play the Springboks in the finals, an Asian gesture against South Africa's race policies.

South Africa took an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Italy in the fivematch semi-finals yesterday and plunged the International Lawn Tennis Federation into its first no-finals delemma in the cup's long history.

The Indian refusal robs her young players of the chance to capture the trophy, in the past shared among only four countries—Britain, France, Australia and the United States.

"We will not play South Africa under any circumstances," said Raj Khanna, secretary of the all-India Lawn Tennis Association." This means South Africa wins the Davis Cup by default."

But ILTF secretary Basil Reay, in Johannesburg to watch the match, telephoned Khanna in New Delhi who agreed to defer to the Indian Government after" I begged India to play."

South Africa also dropped its insistence on playing the finals in Johannesburg and offered to hold the contest at any neutral venue.

The Springboks made the semi-finals against Italy by defeating five Latin American nations in the Southern and American zone competitions but received one walkover when Argentina also refused to play them on the grounds they objected to South Africa's racial policies.

The South Africans triumphed in these semi-finals with three straight wins in the first two singles matches and the doubles yesterday.

Australian born Bob Hewitt, the Springbok number one, took the home side into the lead Thursday by defeating Italy's Antonio Zugarelli 4-6, 6-0, 9-7, 4-6 and 6-1 in the longest bout in the series.

In the second singles between South Africas Ray Moore and Italy's number one, Adriano Panatta, which was adjourned Thursday, the Springbok completed his sure win in only 70 seconds Friday. Moore took the match 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-4.

The South Africans began the doubles contest with a twomatch lead in the five-match semi-finals and Hewitt teamed with Frew Mcmillan for a closely-fought victory over Panatta and Paulo Bertolucci which ended 7-5, 6-4, 10-8.

Petaluma Gridders Triumph

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma High School bounced back from a losing football pre-season to whip Santa Rosa last night, 20-6.

Petaluma (1-2-1) claimed its North Bay League opening game victory with the help of defensive guard John Burke. Burke set up two Trojan touchdowns by blocking Santa Rosa punts deep in Panther territory.

The first blocked punt came in the second quarter with Burke charging through the Santa Rosa line to give Petaluma the ball on the Panther nine. Quarterback Sam Piezzi then passed four yards to Rick Schroeder for the touchdown.

In the second half, Burke again blocked a punt and Mike Alejos fell on it in the end zone.

Lake Placid Is Olympic Bidder

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — This Adirondack Mountain community of 5,000 people stands alone today in its bid to host the 1980 Winter Olympics — "the Golden Grail we've been chasing so long," Norman Hess says.

"But until the morning of Oct. 23, we're not going to rest on our laurels," added Hess, counsel to the Lake Placid Olympic bid committee. He spoke to a reporter last night following the official withdrawal of Vancouver from the 1980 Winter Games, leaving a lone bidder for the first time in Olympic history.

The news came just hours before Lake Placid organizing officials gave 300 townsfolk a sneak preview of the formal bid they will make Oct. 22 in Vienna, Austria, before the International Olympic Committee.

Lake Placid, which hosted the 1932 Winter Games, has "the site, the backing and the know-how," declared Art Devlin, a former member of U.S. Olympic ski-jumping teams and now a television sports commentator who runs a motel here.

There was no official explanation for Vancouver's withdrawal, but the British Columbia provincial government weeks ago said it could not give financial support.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

Nameless Players On Baseball Field

The tipoff:

That's not an apparition you're seeing if you should happen to be in Las Vegas. That's Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder 42 pounds lighter after a long reducing session in the Duke University hospital.

Q. Why is it that some teams in both the National and American Leagues do not have the names of their players on the back of their uniforms? Is this a way of saving money or something? — David Hickman, Oil City, Pa.

The Hon. Chub Feeney, president of the National League, tells us it's a matter of decision for each individual club, which shows you where baseball is still at — in football, they insist on the individual identification as an aid to the public. Naw, I don't think money enters into it — on some clubs, maybe the owners don't want to know who's playing for them.

Q. What were the last three major college football teams to go undefeated, untied and unscored upon for the regular season? — G. R. Colvin, Concord, Calif.

That would be Duke in 1938, although the Blue Devils were finally dented in the last minute of the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1939 when unknown Doyle Nave threw a touchdown pass to Al Krueger for a 7-3 USC victory. In 1932, Colgate was disappointed at not getting a Rose Bowl bid and in the words of Andy Kerr was "unbeaten, untied, unscored on and uninvited." Finally, Texas A&M also joined the list in 1919. Other schools which had teams that never gave up a point were: Auburn (1908), Illinois (1910), Michigan (1901), Navy (1910), Pitt (1910) and Yale (1888-91-92, 1909).

Q. When Jimmy Wynn was an Astro, why was he unliked by many of his hometown fans and wanted to be traded to Los Angeles? — Jim Scourbes, Sacramento, Calif.

The Toy Cannon's 10-year tenure in Houston wasn't all negative. He blasted a lot of home runs. He also struck out a lot. But the failure of the Astros to progress as a serious title-contending club also hurt Wynn before the homefolks because, as a key guy on the team, he symbolized their collective failure. The change of scenery to Los Angeles got rid of a lot of his emotional hangups about playing in Houston.

Q. I think Bert Campaneris should have gotten the World Series MVP award last year (no offense to Reggie). What was Campy's reaction to his not being picked? — Anna Maria Tinonga, Oakland, Calif.

Utter disappointment. And he didn't mind expressing it while vowing that he'd get a better shot at it in '74. Campy's bitterness wasn't directed at Jackson. He felt that he wasn't picked by "Sport" Magazine, which makes the selection, because he doesn't speak English as well as Jackson, who made a fluent recipient of the honor (and the car that went with it).

Q. Scientists tried to establish that pitcher Nolan Ryan of the California Angels could throw faster than Bob Feller's generally accepted major league record of 98.3 miles per hour. I always had the impression that the great Walter Johnson was once timed at more than 100 miles an hour. Do you know whether this was true? — Ed Cary, Santa Ana, Calif.

A check with baseball authorities convinces me that Johnson never had a true test of his vaunted speed, mainly because there wasn't the sophisticated electronic equipment available in his time. Until Ryan's recent clocking of 100.9 mph for his pitch, Feller topped the list with 98.6 mph, followed surprisingly by Steve Barber at 95.5 and Don Drysdale at 95.3 mph. Where's Sandy Koufax, who was supposed to have the livest ball of all? When he was timed in 1960, same as Drysdale, he was 2.1 mph slower.

Parting shot:

In the sham era of Evel Knievel, the real athletic feat of Lou Brock, at the age of 35, breaking the all-time base stealing record didn't get nearly the recognition it deserved. But that's electronic exploitation for you.

Casa Grande Shows Its Explosiveness

By DIANE FISHER

Casa Grande High School has shown it has an explosive football team. The Gauchos demonstrated this last night by scoring 21 points in the fourth quarter to down Piner, 21-8.

The game on Durst Field in Petaluma was a Sonoma County League opener. After a scoreless first half, the Prospectors (0-3-0) took the lead in the third quarter on a 29-yard touchdown sprint by John Halvorsen. The Santa Rosans added a safety when defensive back Ed Smith tackled Casa Grande's John Lutz in the end zone.

But Casa Grande (3-0-1) promptly tied the score with quarterback Jim Bricker passing for the touchdown (to Lutz) and the two-point conversion.

Bricker then marched the Gauchos 68 yards in 10 plays; Lutz plunged over from the one. With Casa Grande leading only 14-8, Larry Thomas clinched the victory by returning an intercepted pass 33 yards for a touchdown and adding the extra-point kick.

Golf Star Sarazen Sees Ace On Film

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — When Gene Sarazen made his hole-in-one in the 1973 British Open, the five iron shot was shown on television. But Sarazen received a bigger surprise at the eighth annual Tony Lema memorial dinner here when the shot was shown on film.

Sarazen, the chairman of the Lema one-day tournament, said the British Open ace was the seventh of his long career. He also said a bigger thrill came in the 1935 Masters when he registered a double eagle.

FUROR WITH INDIA

South Africa Davis Cup Team Is Not Rejoicing

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South Africa stood to win the coveted Davis cup today, only the fifth nation to win the tennis trophy in 74 years. But there was no rejoicing in the home camp.

The award comes by default in the face of India's refusal to play the Springboks in the finals, an Asian gesture against South Africa's race policies.

South Africa took an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Italy in the fivematch semi-finals yesterday and plunged the International Lawn Tennis Federation into its first no-finals delemma in the cup's long history.

The Indian refusal robs her young players of the chance to capture the trophy, in the past shared among only four countries—Britain, France, Australia and the United States.

"We will not play South Africa under any circumstances," said Raj Khanna, secretary of the all-India Lawn Tennis Association." This means South Africa wins the Davis Cup by default."

But ILTF secretary Basil Reay, in Johannesburg to watch the match, telephoned Khanna in New Delhi who agreed to defer to the Indian Government after" I begged India to play."

South Africa also dropped its insistence on playing the finals in Johannesburg and offered to hold the contest at any neutral venue.

The Springboks made the semi-finals against Italy by defeating five Latin American nations in the Southern and American zone competitions but received one walkover when Argentina also refused to play them on the grounds they objected to South Africa's racial policies.

The South Africans triumphed in these semi-finals with three straight wins in the first two singles matches and the doubles yesterday.

Australian born Bob Hewitt, the Springbok number one, took the home side into the lead Thursday by defeating Italy's Antonio Zugarelli 4-6, 6-0, 9-7, 4-6 and 6-1 in the longest bout in the series.

In the second singles between South Africas Ray Moore and Italy's number one, Adriano Panatta, which was adjourned Thursday, the Springbok completed his sure win in only 70 seconds Friday. Moore took the match 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-4.

The South Africans began the doubles contest with a twomatch lead in the five-match semi-finals and Hewitt teamed with Frew Mcmillan for a closely-fought victory over Panatta and Paulo Bertolucci which ended 7-5, 6-4, 10-8.

Petaluma Gridders Triumph

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma High School bounced back from a losing football pre-season to whip Santa Rosa last night, 20-6.

Petaluma (1-2-1) claimed its North Bay League opening game victory with the help of defensive guard John Burke. Burke set up two Trojan touchdowns by blocking Santa Rosa punts deep in Panther territory.

The first blocked punt came in the second quarter with Burke charging through the Santa Rosa line to give Petaluma the ball on the Panther nine. Quarterback Sam Piezzi then passed four yards to Rick Schroeder for the touchdown.

In the second half, Burke again blocked a punt and Mike Alejos fell on it in the end zone.

Santa Rosa (2-2-0)	0	0	0	6	— 6

Petaluma — Nylander 4 run (Nylander kick)

Petaluma — Schroeder 4 pass from Piezzi (Nylander kick)

Santa Rosa — Lightfoot 1 run (kick failed)

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Traders Send Mart On Toboggan Slide

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gripped by oil-price fear, traders sent prices into a toboggan again this week on the New York Stock Exchange with the Dow Jones industrial average skidding below the 600 level for the first time in nearly 12 years.

Not even a reduction in the prime rate yesterday could spark sustained buying interest, leading one observer to remark, "Wall Street had discounted everything but the end of the world."

And a half-hour extension of trading hours on the exchanges — to 4 p.m. EDT — did little to boost lagging sales on Wall Street. The new operations began Tuesday. The market opening of 10 a.m. was left unchanged.

Volume for the week totaled 73,189,970 shares, up from the 60,883,450 traded a week ago, but substantially lower than the 97,197,492 traded during the same week a year ago.

The Dow, the widely watched average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks, lost 37.39 to 584.56 this week, its lowest finishing since it closed at 579,34 on Oct. 29, 1962 during the Cuban missile crisis.

In the past 11 sessions, all losers for the average, the Dow has fallen 89.49 points. Its decline, particularly its failure to hold at the 600 level, depressed Wall Street.

So have the performances of other averages which have lost heavily in the recent slide. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 2.60 to 62.34. The NYSE common stock index surrendered 1.35 to 32.90.

Margin calls forced some selling early in the week and caused several big losses. The calls contributed in part to 1,257 issues declining in price for the week, against 487 advancers among the 1,981 issues traded. Of that number, 617 stocks registered new lows and only seven reached new highs. On a margin call, an investor must supply more cash or sell his stock.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Traders Send Mart On Toboggan Slide

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gripped by oil-price fear, traders sent prices into a toboggan again this week on the New York Stock Exchange with the Dow Jones industrial average skidding below the 600 level for the first time in nearly 12 years.

Not even a reduction in the prime rate yesterday could spark sustained buying interest, leading one observer to remark, "Wall Street had discounted everything but the end of the world."

And a half-hour extension of trading hours on the exchanges — to 4 p.m. EDT — did little to boost lagging sales on Wall Street. The new operations began Tuesday. The market opening of 10 a.m. was left unchanged.

Volume for the week totaled 73,189,970 shares, up from the 60,883,450 traded a week ago, but substantially lower than the 97,197,492 traded during the same week a year ago.

The Dow, the widely watched average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks, lost 37.39 to 584.56 this week, its lowest finishing since it closed at 579,34 on Oct. 29, 1962 during the Cuban missile crisis.

In the past 11 sessions, all losers for the average, the Dow has fallen 89.49 points. Its decline, particularly its failure to hold at the 600 level, depressed Wall Street.

So have the performances of other averages which have lost heavily in the recent slide. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 2.60 to 62.34. The NYSE common stock index surrendered 1.35 to 32.90.

Margin calls forced some selling early in the week and caused several big losses. The calls contributed in part to 1,257 issues declining in price for the week, against 487 advancers among the 1,981 issues traded. Of that number, 617 stocks registered new lows and only seven reached new highs. On a margin call, an investor must supply more cash or sell his stock.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:
- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:
1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

Sonomans Miss Financial Filing Date

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Several southern Sonomans are among the public officials who have failed to file financial disclosure statements with the county clerk's office here.

Although the governmental conflict of interests act required office holders to report income sources by last Monday, not all have done so, a check revealed.

Those failing to file include Rohnert Park Mayor Louis G. Beary, Cotati Planning Commission Chairman Adrienne Swenson, former Cotati City councilmen Stephen Laughlin and Annette Lombardi and Cotati City Manager Robert A. Switzer.

Mrs. Swenson and Switzer both said they will file as soon as they get a chance to fill out the forms. The other nonfilers could not be reached for an explanation.

The statements filed revealed no apparent conflicts of interest. In most cases they revealed only income from jobs.

Those filing included Carl P. Bellovich, the Petaluma planning commissioner who resigned last month.

Bellovich, a stockbroker for Dean Witter and Co. in San Rafael, said he would rather leave office than reveal his clients.

But like all the other southern Sonoma office holders covered by the state law, Bellovich was required only to outline his income sources in the broadest of terms.

The brokerage job was listed as his sole source of income.

Fred V. Mattei of Petaluma, a haberdahser and member of both the city council and planning commission, listed the most substantial stock portfolio of the southern Sonomans.

He disclosed more than a dozen securities, all yielding incomes of under $1,000 each. These included more than $10,000 worth of stock in the Petaluma Inn and $10,000 or larger investments in the Union Oil Co., Bank of America and Wells Fargo Bank. Mattei also owns real estate in Petaluma's central business district.

M. Patricia Hilligoss, a Petaluma planning commissioner, listed investments of more than $10,000 in Western Motors, her husband's auto dealership, and Western Motors East, a now-defunct subsidiary which sold recreation vehicles. She also owns real estate along Lakeville Highway in Petaluma, and receives income over $1,000 from the family auto business, of which she is vice president and secretary.

Rohnert Park City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan has invested more than $10,000 in Rodavco Inc., a firm owning land near the city golf course. He also owns an apartment house and land in the city of Sonoma. Callinan disclosed salary income from his city job and rental income of over $1,000 from his Sonoma property.

Phillip L. Joerger of Petaluma, second district Sonoma supervisor, disclosed savings exceeding $10,000 each in the Golden West and North Bay Federal Savings and loan companies of Petaluma. Other investments of more than $10,000 were a business loan and a long-term land lease.

Joerger's real estate holdings include the Texaco and Standard Oil service stations in the Denman Flats area north of Petaluma, a vacant lot in the same area and his home.

Joerger listed income from savings accounts, leases on the two service stations and the business loan. He listed his county job under employment and management positions although he did not mention its salary.

Civic Center Question Is To Be Aired

The question of a civic center for Novato will come before the Novato City Council again at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

Last Tuesday the council refused to hear from residents in the area between Sherman and Reichert Avenues and north of De Long Avenue whose property is being studied by the city for purchase or condemnation for the civic center.

The Novato Federated Women's Club has requested a hearing on the necessity of taking this property for a civic center before the city is ready to construct one and whether or not the city needs a civic center.

The council will have the second reading of an ordinance setting up a civic center acquisition and development fund.

The council also will reconsider whether or not to spend more than $100,000 to remodel the Novato Community House or spend a smaller amount to repair the building. The costlier proposal would enlarge the council chambers and kitchen, and move the rest rooms upstairs as well as reroof the building.

Teachers' Pay Pact Approved

Teachers and classified employees of the Mill Valley school district will receive an 8.2 per cent salary increase under a wage agreement that has been approved by district trustees.

The agreement, ratified by board members Thursday, is retroactive to July 1 and ends negotiations under way since April, according to a district spokesman.

Trustees also raised daily salaries for substitute teachers from $32.60 to $35.60. Substitutes will be eligible for the higher salary after working 15 days.

In addition, board members agreed to allow part-time teachers in the educationally handicapped program to participate in group medical and dental plans at their own expense.

Athletic Study Before Board

The question of girls participating on boys' athletic teams will be considered by the Novato Unified School District Board at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Novato High School lecture hall.

Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley has proposed that girls participate in basketball, swimming, tennis, golf and cross country running.

Other items to come before the board include a request by Western Weekend Inc. to use the vacant Atherton Avenue Elementary School site, a request from Domingo Canyon parents for bus transportation from there to Novato High School and setting the criteria for hiring a new superintendent.

Weekend Talks

ROME (UPI) — Politicans today began a weekend of intensive talks and meetings in an effort to either patch up the nation's crumbling government or come up with a new one — Italy's 37th since World War II.

TEAM — Pianists Sylvia Jenkins and her husband, William Corbett Jones, will open the Bay Area Artists in Concert series with a program of music for four hands. The concert will be on Oct. 18 at the Tamalpais in Greenbrae.

4-Handed Piano Concert Opens Series At College

An evening of four-hand music for piano featuring husband and wife pianists William Corbett Jones and Sylvia Jenkins will open the College of Marin's Bay Area Artists in Concert series on Oct. 18 at 8 p.m.

The first program will feature Variations by Mozart, Divertisement a la Francaise D. 823 by Schubert, Bizet's Jeaux d'Enfants and Slavonic Dances by Dvorak.

Jones, pianist of the Alma Trio and artist in residence at the University of California, Santa Cruz, participates regularly in European festivals. This summer he and his wife gave concerts in Germany and Switzerland.

Miss Jenkins, a prodigy, has won many scholarships and prizes. She studied at Stanford University and was a prize winner of the Munich International Competition.

She plays concerts extensively in this country, Canada, Mexico and Europe, and teaches at the University of California, Santa Cruz, and Lone Mountain College in San Francisco.

Other concerts in the series include Amici Musicae, Nov. 22; Dominican College Chorus and Winfred Baker Children's Chorus, Dec. 13; Handel, his champions and rivals, Diane Trethowan Ray, soprano, and Walter Matthes, baritone, Jan. 17; Nicolai Ivan Massenkoff, bass-baritone, Feb. 21; music for cello and piano, Margaret Ashe and Sharon Polk, March 21; Music Now!! with Kay Colette soprano; Judy Phillips, flute, and Barbara Baum, piano-harpsichord, April 18, and Musica Frivola with Mark Jordan, violin; Rebecca Jones, soprano, and Patrick Loomis, piano, May 16.

Season tickets for the general public are $14 with single concert admissions, $2. College of Marin students and Emeritus College members may purchase tickets at half-price. Tickets are available through the College of Marin box office.

3 Local TV Programs Due

JAMES L. BUCKLEY

HEW Draws Sex Rulings Challenge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., Friday accused the Health, Education and Welfare Department of trying to impose abortion as a "social norm" in proposed rules to prevent sex discrimination in educational institutions.

Buckley referred to a section of the regulations proposed by HEW's Civil Rights Office saying that pregnancy "means the entire process of pregnancy, childbirth, and recovery therefrom, and includes false pregnancy, miscarriage, and abortion."

A leader of the anti-abortion "right to life" movement, Buckley said he found he proposed rules "disturbing" because they represent a "kind of bureaucratic legislating" intended to "force acceptance of abortion as a social norm."

"The Congress does not hold that abortion is part of the process of pregnancy, and has made no law or statement to that effect," Buckley told HEW Civil Rights Director Peter E. Holmes in a letter.

Urging the word abortion be deleted wherever it appears in the new regulations, Buckley said the rules in question "are either deliberately subversive of congressional intent, or those who drafted them are dangerously obtuse."

Ferryboat Launching Due

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The super-ferryboat San Francisco, with plush seats, liquor bars and carpeted interior decks, will go into service in November.

The 165-foot, 100-ton aluminum-hulled boat, to be launched into San Diego Bay today, will carry a maximum of 750 passengers between San Francisco and Larkspur.

The vessel can speed up to 26 knots as its three 2,500 horsepower diesel engines propel water through rear chutes. It is one of three similar boats being built under a $12.6 million contract with the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District by Campbell Shipyard, better known for building all-steel tuna seiners.

San Francisco was scheduled to proceed to the Bay Area after sea trials following the launching.

Opening lead — ♠ 3

West opened the three of spades, and dummy won with the queen. Declarer led a low diamond from dummy and played the king from his hand to force out West's ace.

West led another spade, and dummy won with the ace. Now declarer led a low club from the dummy.

East played low, and West's ace was knocked out. Now West had no further entry to his long spades. He could lead a third spade to set up his suit, but he would never get back to cash the established spades. South easily made his contract with three spades and two tricks in each of the other suits.

East had his chance to be the hero, but he muffed it. When the club is led from dummy, East must step right up with the king. Risky? Perhaps, but what good is that king of clubs unless West has the ace?

As the cards lie, East wins the trick with his king of clubs. He returns his last spade, thus establishing his partner's suit. Now West still has the ace of clubs as the entry to his established spades. The defenders will surely get two spades, two clubs and the ace of diamonds. They will get another trick if South desperately tries the heart finesse in the hope of making his contract with four heart tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 9 8 5 3 2
♥- 7 4
♣- A 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

If partner has 18 points and a fine fit for spades he will raise. If his no-trump is less ideal, he will pass; but then you will probably have very little play for a game.

Opening lead — ♠ 3

West opened the three of spades, and dummy won with the queen. Declarer led a low diamond from dummy and played the king from his hand to force out West's ace.

West led another spade, and dummy won with the ace. Now declarer led a low club from the dummy.

East played low, and West's ace was knocked out. Now West had no further entry to his long spades. He could lead a third spade to set up his suit, but he would never get back to cash the established spades. South easily made his contract with three spades and two tricks in each of the other suits.

East had his chance to be the hero, but he muffed it. When the club is led from dummy, East must step right up with the king. Risky? Perhaps, but what good is that king of clubs unless West has the ace?

As the cards lie, East wins the trick with his king of clubs. He returns his last spade, thus establishing his partner's suit. Now West still has the ace of clubs as the entry to his established spades. The defenders will surely get two spades, two clubs and the ace of diamonds. They will get another trick if South desperately tries the heart finesse in the hope of making his contract with four heart tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 9 8 5 3 2
♥- 7 4
♣- A 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

If partner has 18 points and a fine fit for spades he will raise. If his no-trump is less ideal, he will pass; but then you will probably have very little play for a game.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD TO BURN MORTGAGE

The Southern Marin Assembly of God Church congregation in Mill Valley will officially burn the mortgage tomorrow on its $100,000 building at East Blithedale and Sycamore Avenues. The original building was constructed in 1913 by the Methodist Church. Wesley Hall was added to it in 1940. The church building was sold in 1959 to the Assembly of God. In 1960 that church remodeled the platform. The Assembly of God was formed in Sausalito during World War II. It was housed from 1945 until it moved to Mill Valley in 1959 at 35 Caledonia Street where the police station is now housed.

Tiburon Baptist Church To Dedicate New Annex

The Tiburon Baptist Church will dedicate a new addition tomorrow designed for use as offices, Sunday School space and a day care area for preschoolers and the elderly, according to Rev. Jerry Ashby.

A dedication service will be held at 11 a.m. with Rev. Bates Ivey as speaker. Ivey is associate executive secretary-treasurer of the California Baptist Foundation and director of the California Plan of Church Finance and helped the church finance the new facility. Following the service, members will have a picnic lunch.

The 3,500-square-foot addition, designed by Lyle Hood and Associates of Petaluma, cost the church $140,000 and has been financed through donations from members and sale of bonds. Harold Graves, president of Golden Gate Seminary, served as chairman of the building committee.

Groundbreaking was held a year ago, but construction was slowed by rains and a carpenters' strike.

The church began planning the annex about three years ago to provide more Sunday School rooms. Now up to 300 persons can be accommodated in Sunday Morning classes at the church.

REV. BATES IVEY
To speak at dedication

However, the church wants to use the annex on weekdays as well, Ashby said, and is exploring two possible programs — day care for preschoolers and day care for the elderly.

The program for seniors was suggested by a member who once worked in a similar program in Hawaii, Ashby said. It would provide half-day or all-day activities for wheelchair patients living with relatives. Seniors would have the benefit of social contact and their families would get a respite from continuous care of the elderly.

Ashby said that families interested in seeing either of these day care services launched can call him at the church in the mornings to discuss their needs.

He said the church also would like to reactivate a program of Sunday School classes which it once had for educationally handicapped children.

is SUNDAY SCHOOL OUT-OF-DATE?
It's never out-of-date to understand God, and man, and the true nature of the universe.
This understanding is what young people up to the age of 20 gain in our Sunday School.
They're taught a warm and practical Christianity, and how to apply it to everyday problems.
And as they study the Bible, together with Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, they're preparing to help solve the world's problems in the most forward-looking, fresh, and effective way.
Wouldn't you like your children to visit this Sunday?

Tiburon Baptist Church To Dedicate New Annex

The Tiburon Baptist Church will dedicate a new addition tomorrow designed for use as offices, Sunday School space and a day care area for preschoolers and the elderly, according to Rev. Jerry Ashby.

A dedication service will be held at 11 a.m. with Rev. Bates Ivey as speaker. Ivey is associate executive secretary-treasurer of the California Baptist Foundation and director of the California Plan of Church Finance and helped the church finance the new facility. However, the church wants to use the annex on weekdays as well, Ashby said, and is exploring two possible programs — day care for preschoolers and day care for the elderly.

It would provide half-day or all-day activities for wheelchair patients living with relatives. He said the church also would like to reactivate a program of Sunday School classes which it once had for educationally handicapped children.

A concert featuring Bay Area musicians with choir, organ and chamber orchestra will be presented at 8 p.m. tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross.

Contralto Arlene White will sing "Magnificat" by Vaughn-Williams, accompanied by Litton DeSilva on the flute. Miss White is known for her work in oratorio and opera. She has made regular guest appearances with major California music organizations.

Other performers are soprano Joanne Condrin who will sing selections from Handel's "Samson" and church organist George Myers who will play Handel's "Concerto in D Minor."

R. Jay Williamson, St. John's church organist and choirmaser will conduct Schubert's "Mass in G" sung by Eleanor Prugh, Theodore Bakkila and Alexander Scheremetow, members of St. John's Choir.

After the concert, a reception will be held in St. John's Parish Hall.

Hutchinsons To Conduct Services

Rev. and Mrs. Jack Hutchinson, missionaries to Peru under Baptist Mid-Missions, will conduct the services at Calvary Baptist Church of Larkspur tomorrow.

Rev. Hutchinson and his wife will share their own personal testimonies during the Sunday School hour, at 9:45 a.m. Reverend Hutchinson will speak during the Morning Worship service at 11 a.m., and show a slide-film presentation of their missionary work during the Evening Fellowship hour at 7 p.m.

The Hutchinsons also will display cultural artifacts from the Andes Mountains, where they have been establishing a new church and a Bible conference grounds in the city of Quillabamba.

Mrs. Hutchinson is the former Lois Barkowska, a long-time Marin County resident, a graduate of Larkspur schools, and a former student at The College of Marin.

In honor of the Hutchinson's visit, an informal potluck dinner will be held after the morning services, at the church.

It's never out-of-date to understand God, and man, and the true nature of the universe.
This understanding is what young people up to the age of 20 gain in our Sunday School.
They're taught a warm and practical Christianity, and how to apply it to everyday problems.
And as they study the Bible, together with Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, they're preparing to help solve the world's problems in the most forward-looking, fresh, and effective way.

Chamber Board Makes Right Move

THE DIRECTORS of San Rafael Chamber of Commerce showed commendable fortitude when they voted to forego thousands of dollars of subsidy from the City of San Rafael.

One of the weaknesses of the chamber's posture in times past has been that, while it alternately pleaded for and demanded handouts from the public treasury, it received less than the fiscal support it deserved from San Rafael business.

Among other functions a chamber should perform is that of spokesman for the business and economic interests of the community. This is a useful service because both public and public officials will make better decisions if they hear from all segments of the community, including business.

Sometimes, however, what business has to say to city hall, city hall would rather not hear. Under those circumstances, a chamber beholden to city hall for the money it receives as subsidy is not likely to speak up critically.

Thus the interest of business is not served. But public and public officials are deprived of hearing a strong presentation of the business point of view.

Self government never works at its best when one segment of the community is not heard from clearly.

OVER THE DECADES, San Rafael Chamber has from time to time experienced hard times in the pocketbook. The chamber is not exactly the epitome of affluence right now. So saying, "No, thanks" to the city on further tax subsidy cannot have been an easy decision casually arrived at.

The chamber has to have made the hard decision that it will swim unassisted or it will sink and drown.

The courage of the directors is commendable.

Now the chamber is in a position to represent the business community without equivocation. Actually, it can command more respect at city hall because it is independent.

Whether it survives or becomes defunct will depend now on how willing San Rafael business is to put its money where its mouth is.

Self government and the welfare of the community will benefit if the chamber survives.

Chamber directors have put it plainly up to San Rafael businessmen. If they want to have their collective voice heard in the community, they must be prepared to provide the necessary financial support for the chamber.

It Happened In Timberlane

With the threat of a teacher strike in San Rafael schools, we wonder whether any of the teachers have noticed an item in the October issue of Learning magazine. It follows:

"To dramatize their plight, the striking teachers of the Timberlane Regional School District in Plaistow, New Hampshire, marched from their native Granite State to the NEA's annual convention in Chicago last June. At that time, the strike of about 100 teachers was already the longest in the nation's history, and the cries of 'scab' had become a ritual as substitute teachers daily crossed the Timberlane Regional Educational Association picket line.

"But in this age of teacher oversupply, the march of the strikers backfired. They may have gained support from folks they talked to along their route, but they also unwittingly served as job recruiters for the Timberlane district. Shortly after the march ended, Supt. of Schools Robert Crompton began receiving job applications from unemployed teachers the strikers had met in towns along the way. By late summer, he had filled all the strikers' jobs — from more than 1,200 applicants, who obviously didn't think teacher conditions in Timberlane sounded so bad."

Stridulating Crickets

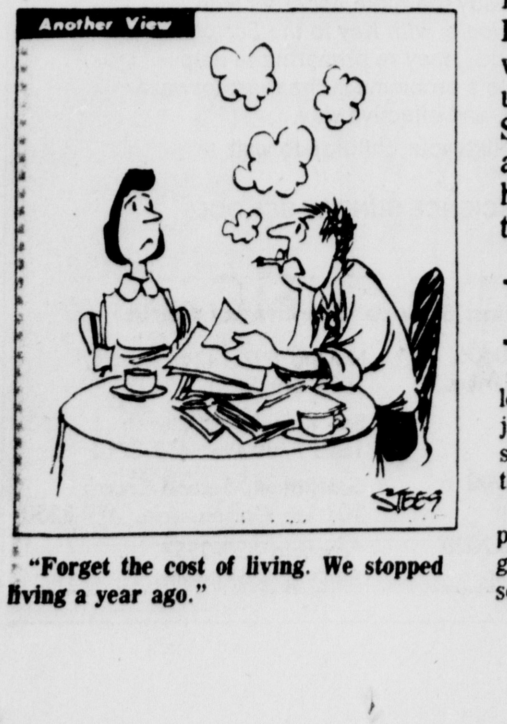
The sound of crickets rises to a mighty chorus in Marin and Sonoma these September evenings. We are strangely moved by this insect noise. It cannot rightly be called song. There is no voice involved. Rather it is stridulation — the vibration caused by pulling a grooved taut leathery forewing against a row of tubercles on the other forewing. Male crickets make this music to excite the females. It is another way of starting a fire by friction.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the City of Novato for adopting restoration of Novato's original post office as a Bicentennial project. We hope to see equally worthwhile projects for the Bicentennial by other cities and by Marin County.

BRICKBATS to Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr for failure to record their votes on repeal of the state legislature's infamous pension "ripoff." Both were too busy campaigning, we assume.

BOUQUET to the City of San Rafael for doing what should always be done, but seldom is, in a street resurfacing project: Having utility companies and water district do any digging up of lines necessary on H Street before giving the go-ahead for the resurfacing. We hope this will be standard practice hereafter.



"Forget the cost of living. We stopped living a year ago."

Fears Quake Danger To Warm Springs Dam

Geologists in our family tell us that an earth-filled dam on an active earthquake fault is hazardous. The structure planned for Sonoma County Warm Springs is obsolete by some 20 years.

Not only is there danger from a first earthquake in a series, but the 1971 reports on Southern California repeatable high ground accelerations from earthquakes force us to urge that the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors meet important design criteria.

Improvement in the design of Warm Springs Dam, as proposed, is imperative.

By voting no on Proposition B in Sonoma County, we can demand safety and protection for our people and the environment, not to mention preserving Dry Creek, one of the last remaining natural fish-spawning areas of the Russian River.

Councilmen Deserve Credit For Service

Over the past month or so there have been a number of articles and letters appearing in the I-J critizing the San Rafael City Council as a whole and in some instances naming specific councilmen.

In reference to Mr. Higby's letter of Thursday (Oct. 3), he seems to fail to recognize the fact that the councilmen are all outstanding citizens who take the time away from their families to devote many hours to the city's business for a small stipend. When a client of a councilman is involved in a council-related decision, what course of action, other than abstaining, can a councilman take?

I find it deplorable that Mr. Higby could so degrade the characters of Mayor Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack Nixon as to imply that they are not men of high moral principles and proven good character and that would resort to graft.

As a citizen who attends the San Rafael Council meetings regularly, I would like to thank the city council for the numerous hours of time devoted to serving the citizens of San Rafael, not only during regular council meetings, but the additional hours spent at budget time and more recently the exceptional number of meetings in the formulation of a general plan for our city.

Newark Sees Its Only Chance: Destabilization By The CIA

WASHINGTON — Newark has been a pothole in the poverty pocket of New Jersey for some time. I went up to talk to the chamber of commerce the other night, and all the speakers had some great ideas as to how they could get Newark out of its doldrums.

After the dinner was over I retired to my hotel room when there was a knock on the door. A man who refused to give his name said he had to talk to me. I let him in.

"LISTEN, ALL THAT talk you heard at dinner tonight about improving Newark — forget it!"

"Oh?" I said.

"It won't work. We need federal money and we're not going to get it. The mayor keeps going to Washington and all he gets is empty promises. No one down there gives a damn about the cities."

"That's true," I agreed.

He said, "Our problem is we keep going to HEW, HUD and the Department of Transportation — and all we get is the runaround. There is only one agency in Washington that has money to burn and it doesn't have to answer to anybody."

"YOU MEAN the CIA?"

"Right. What we want to do is have them destabilize Newark," he said.

"You have to be kidding."

"I'm not. The CIA spent $8 million to destabilize Allende in Chile. If we could get them to spend that kind of money in Newark, we'd be in great shape."

"But why would the CIA want to destabilize Newark?" I asked. "It's not a threat to the United States."

"Have you walked around it lately?" he asked me.

"Looks are not everything," I told him.

"You have to do something that would endanger the security of the Western Hemisphere. Allende was Marxist and we couldn't stand something like that so near to North America."

"OKAY, WE'LL PUT out the word that our mayor is a Marxist, and then they can send us the aid."

"Would your mayor go along with that?"

"He's so desperate for money for the city, he'll go along with anything."

"That's all well and good, but what can I do for you?"

"Get word back to Kissinger that Newark is about to recognize Castro's government and is planning to nationalize the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. Have him call a meeting of the 40 Committee, and let them recommend that the CIA finance the overthrow of the Newark city government. If someone from here tells Kissinger, he won't believe us. But since you're the last foreign correspondent to have visited us, he might believe you. The CIA is our only hope."

"BUT IF THE CIA destabilizes you, they would have to destabilize New York, Chicago, Baltimore and every other city in trouble. They don't have that kind of money."

"How can you be sure?" the man said. "No one knows how much money the CIA has."

"Your idea has merit," I admitted, "and I'm willing to pass it on to Kissinger. But you know the CIA isn't dumb. What makes you think that they would believe that Newark has gone Marxist?"

"What makes you think it won't if we don't get the money?"

The Senate Watergate Committee has gone out of business, but other matters before Congress guarantee plenty of work for Sam Ervin's eyebrows.

No, Hubert Humphrey isn't running for president. But if two or three more persons ask him that question, he may sense an overpowering demand for a different answer.

Threats To Arabs Get U.S. No Support From Europe

This has been the period when the new Ford-Kissinger combination in Washington launched its first important foreign policy initiative, and it got a little bit out of hand — although probably with no serious consequences.

The operation was launched in the form of twin speeches by the president and secretary of state in which the president spoke of "dangers of confrontation" arising out of the high oil prices being maintained by the Arab oil-producing countries and Dr. Kissinger spoke of "deliberate decisions (by Arab producers) to restrict production and maintain an artificial price level."

The combination promptly caused excited speculation about possible American military action against Arab countries. This in turn caused Secy. of Defense James R. Schlesinger to issue a formal denial that any such thing was in the works. The State Department also insisted that military contingency planning was totally out of the question.

The immediate effect of the twinned speeches was to cause the important oil-consuming partners of the United States to take alarm and pull away from the United States. Clearly, they wanted no part of any operation which even hinted at military action against the Arabs.

The French were first to react by announcing their own oil-conservation program. They put a $10.1 billion ceiling on their oil imports for next year.

BEHIND ALL THIS is preliminary maneuvering over the next round of peace efforts for the Middle East. The last Arab-Israeli war began nearly a year ago. It was halted in a cease-fire which contemplated Israeli withdrawals from occupied territories in step with progress toward Arab acceptance of the permanence of Israel.

For six months there has been almost no progress in either part of this process. Israeli withdrawals are less than the Arabs had expected by this time, which in turn explains their refusal to date to reduce the price of oil.

Arabs talk of renewing the fighting unless the peace process is resumed. Israel has been heavily rearmed by Washington, and the Arabs by Moscow.

WAS TALK in Washington about a "confrontation" the best way of getting Mideast peace moving again? Apparently what the president and Dr. Kissinger wanted was the approval and support of Britain, France, West Germany, and Japan when the secretary of state goes to the Middle East next month to launch his next push for more peace (or less war).

The choice of words was unfortunate. It sounded too blustery and threatening for the other oil consumers, whose economies are still staggering from the consequences of last winter's oil embargo. Confrontation does not reflect their sense of the best way of getting the Arabs to reduce oil prices. Territorial concessions by Israel would be the better way (to the British, French, West German, and Japanese).

But can Dr. Kissinger persuade the Israelis to make more territorial concessions?

That is the key question behind all the maneuverings of the week. Such concessions are probably the indispensable first step to lower or at least stabilize Arab prices.

THE ARABS have a weapon in their oil. They have used it with powerful effect once. They are using it again right now, by holding up the price of oil when it could, of course, be brought down.

In effect, the Arabs are telling Dr. Kissinger, and President Ford, that the price of oil is tied to those Arab territories which Israel captured in 1967 and upon which Israeli troops still stand.

The Ford-Kissinger attack did not produce a common front of the industrial oil-consuming countries against the Arabs. But it certainly did underline the connection between oil prices and Israel's occupation of Arab territory.

It also clarified the lack of enthusiasm among the other oil consumers for any form of pressure on the Arabs. The only pressure they would approve would be on Israel to disgorge more of the 1967 conquests.

Such a course could not easily be coordinated with Washington, where Israel is the politically popular case. But Dr. Kissinger perhaps got a little leverage on Israel out of it all from the mere fact that he cannot carry a single other oil consumer along with him for any policy of toughness towards Arabs.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Summit, World Bank Meetings Talking Different Languages

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic summit and the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund might have occurred on different planets instead of in the same city. The appeal that each uttered was irrelevant one to the other.

President Ford, summing up the summit, called for holding down government spending to keep the federal budget at or below $300 billion. He asked Americans to devote 10 days of the month to conserving energy, listing ways to do this and exchanging the lists with neighbors.

With this voluntarism the American standard of living, the highest in the world, will not be seriously impaired.

PRESIDENT ROBERT S. McNamara called on the industrialized members of the World Bank to provide immediately billions of aid for the developing nations. Unless this comes about, the end will be death and disaster for those living at the bottom of the heap. Their already appallingly low standard has been gravely worsened in the past year by the quadrupling of oil prices and a resulting scarcity of food and fertilizer.

For each president, the verdict may be too little and too late.

Split between Democrats and Republicans, labor and management, the summit chose to ignore what has happened to the economy during the past 12 months.

Steel prices have increased by 40 per cent, almost the biggest increase ever. This was true even though in July less steel was produced, despite a greater capacity, than in July a year ago. Industrial chemicals jumped 50 per cent, nonferrous metals 46 per cent, oil 82 per cent. These basic increases are quickly reflected in consumer prices.

With an attempt to roll back these price levels sternly ruled out along with any form of wage and price controls, much of the rhetoric indulged in at the summit was just rhetoric. As a latecomer, Ford gets good marks for an exercise in education. But as for practical results in the war on inflation, they are not yet in sight.

McNAMARA CANNOT be faulted for failing to try. He has repeatedly inveighed against the complacency of the wealthy, industrialized members of his bank. This has hit hard at the United States, which with 6 per cent of the world's population uses more than 30 per cent of all resources.

He waged an increasing struggle, which was finally successful, to get the Congress to provide funds for the American share of a consortium to replenish the International Development Agency, the bank's low-interest subsidiary.

But for all the intensity and concentration of his efforts, the plight of the sub-Saharan nations has steadily grown worse. The structure of a relief system has not been built into what is largely an underdeveloped and primitive area. Even when relief supplies are available, it has often been difficult, if not impossible, to get food and medicines to the starving.

THE REAL GAP, however, is in the attitude of Congress and the public toward aid. It has come almost to a dead stop. Repeatedly, aid programs are cut, and they have become even more unpopular as they are involved, on the arms side, in big power politics.

McNamara is a man of conscience. In his opening address to the World Bank meeting he called the situation of one billion human beings in the poorest of the member countries desperate. Then he went on with an appeal that may or may not be heard on Capitol Hill:

"Aid is not a luxury — something affordable when times are easy, superfluous when times become temporarily troublesome. It is precisely the opposite. Aid is a continuing social and moral responsibility and its need now is greater than ever.

"It is true that the affluent nations in the face of shortages and inflation, and in order to continue to expend aid, may have to accept for the time being some selective reduction in their already immensely high standard of living. If they have to they can absorb such inconveniences."

Presidents Ford and McNamara were each calling for belt tightening. But their aims were light years apart. McNamara was in effect calling on the Congress to add a billion or two billion dollars a year to the aid budget. Ford was asking for budget balancing to hold down inflation.

THE DIRECTORS of San Rafael Chamber of Commerce showed commendable fortitude when they voted to forego thousands of dollars of subsidy from the City of San Rafael.

One of the weaknesses of the chamber's posture in times past has been that, while it alternately pleaded for and demanded handouts from the public treasury, it received less than the fiscal support it deserved from San Rafael business.

Among other functions a chamber should perform is that of spokesman for the business and economic interests of the community. This is a useful service because both public and public officials will make better decisions if they hear from all segments of the community, including business.

Sometimes, however, what business has to say to city hall, city hall would rather not hear. Under those circumstances, a chamber beholden to city hall for the money it receives as subsidy is not likely to speak up critically.

Thus the interest of business is not served. But public and public officials are deprived of hearing a strong presentation of the business point of view.

Self government never works at its best when one segment of the community is not heard from clearly.

OVER THE DECADES, San Rafael Chamber has from time to time experienced hard times in the pocketbook. The chamber is not exactly the epitome of affluence right now. So saying, "No, thanks" to the city on further tax subsidy cannot have been an easy decision casually arrived at.

The chamber has to have made the hard decision that it will swim unassisted or it will sink and drown.

The courage of the directors is commendable.

Now the chamber is in a position to represent the business community without equivocation. Actually, it can command more respect at city hall because it is independent.

Whether it survives or becomes defunct will depend now on how willing San Rafael business is to put its money where its mouth is.

Self government and the welfare of the community will benefit if the chamber survives.

Chamber directors have put it plainly up to San Rafael businessmen. If they want to have their collective voice heard in the community, they must be prepared to provide the necessary financial support for the chamber.

It Happened In Timberlane

With the threat of a teacher strike in San Rafael schools, we wonder whether any of the teachers have noticed an item in the October issue of Learning magazine. It follows:

"To dramatize their plight, the striking teachers of the Timberlane Regional School District in Plaistow, New Hampshire, marched from their native Granite State to the NEA's annual convention in Chicago last June. At that time, the strike of about 100 teachers was already the longest in the nation's history, and the cries of 'scab' had become a ritual as substitute teachers daily crossed the Timberlane Regional Educational Association picket line.

"But in this age of teacher oversupply, the march of the strikers backfired. They may have gained support from folks they talked to along their route, but they also unwittingly served as job recruiters for the Timberlane district. Shortly after the march ended, Supt. of Schools Robert Crompton began receiving job applications from unemployed teachers the strikers had met in towns along the way. By late summer, he had filled all the strikers' jobs — from more than 1,200 applicants, who obviously didn't think teacher conditions in Timberlane sounded so bad."

Stridulating Crickets

The sound of crickets rises to a mighty chorus in Marin and Sonoma these September evenings. We are strangely moved by this insect noise. It cannot rightly be called song. There is no voice involved. Rather it is stridulation — the vibration caused by pulling a grooved taut leathery forewing against a row of tubercles on the other forewing. Male crickets make this music to excite the females. It is another way of starting a fire by friction.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the City of Novato for adopting restoration of Novato's original post office as a Bicentennial project. We hope to see equally worthwhile projects for the Bicentennial by other cities and by Marin County.

BRICKBATS to Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr for failure to record their votes on repeal of the state legislature's infamous pension "ripoff." Both were too busy campaigning, we assume.

BOUQUET to the City of San Rafael for doing what should always be done, but seldom is, in a street resurfacing project: Having utility companies and water district do any digging up of lines necessary on H Street before giving the go-ahead for the resurfacing. We hope this will be standard practice hereafter.

Fears Quake Danger To Warm Springs Dam

Geologists in our family tell us that an earth-filled dam on an active earthquake fault is hazardous. The structure planned for Sonoma County Warm Springs is obsolete by some 20 years.

Not only is there danger from a first earthquake in a series, but the 1971 reports on Southern California repeatable high ground accelerations from earthquakes force us to urge that the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors meet important design criteria.

Improvement in the design of Warm Springs Dam, as proposed, is imperative.

By voting no on Proposition B in Sonoma County, we can demand safety and protection for our people and the environment, not to mention preserving Dry Creek, one of the last remaining natural fish-spawning areas of the Russian River.

Councilmen Deserve Credit For Service

Over the past month or so there have been a number of articles and letters appearing in the I-J critizing the San Rafael City Council as a whole and in some instances naming specific councilmen.

In reference to Mr. Higby's letter of Thursday (Oct. 3), he seems to fail to recognize the fact that the councilmen are all outstanding citizens who take the time away from their families to devote many hours to the city's business for a small stipend. When a client of a councilman is involved in a council-related decision, what course of action, other than abstaining, can a councilman take?

I find it deplorable that Mr. Higby could so degrade the characters of Mayor Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack Nixon as to imply that they are not men of high moral principles and proven good character and that would resort to graft.

As a citizen who attends the San Rafael Council meetings regularly, I would like to thank the city council for the numerous hours of time devoted to serving the citizens of San Rafael, not only during regular council meetings, but the additional hours spent at budget time and more recently the exceptional number of meetings in the formulation of a general plan for our city.

Newark Sees Its Only Chance: Destabilization By The CIA

WASHINGTON — Newark has been a pothole in the poverty pocket of New Jersey for some time. I went up to talk to the chamber of commerce the other night, and all the speakers had some great ideas as to how they could get Newark out of its doldrums.

After the dinner was over I retired to my hotel room when there was a knock on the door. A man who refused to give his name said he had to talk to me. I let him in.

"LISTEN, ALL THAT talk you heard at dinner tonight about improving Newark — forget it!"

"Oh?" I said.

"It won't work. We need federal money and we're not going to get it. The mayor keeps going to Washington and all he gets is empty promises. No one down there gives a damn about the cities."

"That's true," I agreed.

He said, "Our problem is we keep going to HEW, HUD and the Department of Transportation — and all we get is the runaround. There is only one agency in Washington that has money to burn and it doesn't have to answer to anybody."

"YOU MEAN the CIA?"

"Right. What we want to do is have them destabilize Newark," he said.

"You have to be kidding."

"I'm not. The CIA spent $8 million to destabilize Allende in Chile. If we could get them to spend that kind of money in Newark, we'd be in great shape."

"But why would the CIA want to destabilize Newark?" I asked. "It's not a threat to the United States."

"Have you walked around it lately?" he asked me.

"Looks are not everything," I told him. "You have to do something that would endanger the security of the Western Hemisphere. Allende was Marxist and we couldn't stand something like that so near to North America."

"OKAY, WE'LL PUT out the word that our mayor is a Marxist, and then they can send us the aid."

"Would your mayor go along with that?"

"He's so desperate for money for the city, he'll go along with anything."

"That's all well and good, but what can I do for you?"

"Get word back to Kissinger that Newark is about to recognize Castro's government and is planning to nationalize the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. Have him call a meeting of the 40 Committee, and let them recommend that the CIA finance the overthrow of the Newark city government. If someone from here tells Kissinger, he won't believe us. But since you're the last foreign correspondent to have visited us, he might believe you. The CIA is our only hope."

"BUT IF THE CIA destabilizes you, they would have to destabilize New York, Chicago, Baltimore and every other city in trouble. They don't have that kind of money."

"How can you be sure?" the man said. "No one knows how much money the CIA has."

"Your idea has merit," I admitted, "and I'm willing to pass it on to Kissinger. But you know the CIA isn't dumb. What makes you think that they would believe that Newark has gone Marxist?"

"What makes you think it won't if we don't get the money?"

Threats To Arabs Get U.S. No Support From Europe

This has been the period when the new Ford-Kissinger combination in Washington launched its first important foreign policy initiative, and it got a little bit out of hand — although probably with no serious consequences.

The operation was launched in the form of twin speeches by the president and secretary of state in which the president spoke of "dangers of confrontation" arising out of the high oil prices being maintained by the Arab oil-producing countries and Dr. Kissinger spoke of "deliberate decisions (by Arab producers) to restrict production and maintain an artificial price level."

The combination promptly caused excited speculation about possible American military action against Arab countries. This in turn caused Secy. of Defense James R. Schlesinger to issue a formal denial that any such thing was in the works. The State Department also insisted that military contingency planning was totally out of the question.

The immediate effect of the twinned speeches was to cause the important oil-consuming partners of the United States to take alarm and pull away from the United States. Clearly, they wanted no part of any operation which even hinted at military action against the Arabs.

The French were first to react by announcing their own oil-conservation program. They put a $10.1 billion ceiling on their oil imports for next year.

BEHIND ALL THIS is preliminary maneuvering over the next round of peace efforts for the Middle East. The last Arab-Israeli war began nearly a year ago. It was halted in a cease-fire which contemplated Israeli withdrawals from occupied territories in step with progress toward Arab acceptance of the permanence of Israel.

For six months there has been almost no progress in either part of this process. Israeli withdrawals are less than the Arabs had expected by this time, which in turn explains their refusal to date to reduce the price of oil.

Arabs talk of renewing the fighting unless the peace process is resumed. Israel has been heavily rearmed by Washington, and the Arabs by Moscow.

WAS TALK in Washington about a "confrontation" the best way of getting Mideast peace moving again? Apparently what the president and Dr. Kissinger wanted was the approval and support of Britain, France, West Germany, and Japan when the secretary of state goes to the Middle East next month to launch his next push for more peace (or less war).

The choice of words was unfortunate. It sounded too blustery and threatening for the other oil consumers, whose economies are still staggering from the consequences of last winter's oil embargo. Confrontation does not reflect their sense of the best way of getting the Arabs to reduce oil prices. Territorial concessions by Israel would be the better way (to the British, French, West German, and Japanese).

But can Dr. Kissinger persuade the Israelis to make more territorial concessions?

That is the key question behind all the maneuverings of the week. Such concessions are probably the indispensable first step to lower or at least stabilize Arab prices.

THE ARABS have a weapon in their oil. They have used it with powerful effect once. They are using it again right now, by holding up the price of oil when it could, of course, be brought down.

In effect, the Arabs are telling Dr. Kissinger, and President Ford, that the price of oil is tied to those Arab territories which Israel captured in 1967 and upon which Israeli troops still stand.

The Ford-Kissinger attack did not produce a common front of the industrial oil-consuming countries against the Arabs. But it certainly did underline the connection between oil prices and Israel's occupation of Arab territory.

It also clarified the lack of enthusiasm among the other oil consumers for any form of pressure on the Arabs. The only pressure they would approve would be on Israel to disgorge more of the 1967 conquests.

Such a course could not easily be coordinated with Washington, where Israel is the politically popular case. But, Dr. Kissinger perhaps got a little leverage on Israel out of it all from the mere fact that he cannot carry a single other oil consumer along with him for any policy of toughness towards Arabs.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Summit, World Bank Meetings Talking Different Languages

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic summit and the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund might have occurred on different planets instead of in the same city. The appeal that each uttered was irrelevant one to the other.

President Ford, summing up the summit, called for holding down government spending to keep the federal budget at or below $300 billion. He asked Americans to devote 10 days of the month to conserving energy, listing ways to do this and exchanging the lists with neighbors.

With this voluntarism the American standard of living, the highest in the world, will not be seriously impaired.

PRESIDENT ROBERT S. McNamara called on the industrialized members of the World Bank to provide immediately billions of aid for the developing nations. Unless this comes about, the end will be death and disaster for those living at the bottom of the heap. Their already appallingly low standard has been gravely worsened in the past year by the quadrupling of oil prices and a resulting scarcity of food and fertilizer.

For each president, the verdict may be too little and too late.

Split between Democrats and Republicans, labor and management, the summit chose to ignore what has happened to the economy during the past 12 months.

Steel prices have increased by 40 per cent, almost the biggest increase ever. This was true even though in July less steel was produced, despite a greater capacity, than in July a year ago. Industrial chemicals jumped 50 per cent, nonferrous metals 46 per cent, oil 82 per cent. These basic increases are quickly reflected in consumer prices.

With an attempt to roll back these price levels sternly ruled out along with any form of wage and price controls, much of the rhetoric indulged in at the summit was just rhetoric. As a latecomer, Ford gets good marks for an exercise in education. But as for practical results in the war on inflation, they are not yet in sight.

McNAMARA CANNOT be faulted for failing to try. He has repeatedly inveighed against the compiacency of the wealthy, industrialized members of his bank. This has hit hard at the United States, which with 6 per cent of the world's population uses more than 30 per cent of all resources.

He waged an increasing struggle, which was finally successful, to get the Congress to provide funds for the American share of a consortium to replenish the International Development Agency, the bank's low-interest subsidiary.

But for all the intensity and concentration of his efforts, the plight of the sub-Saharan nations has steadily grown worse. The structure of a relief system has not been built into what is largely an underdeveloped and primitive area. Even when relief supplies are available, it has often been difficult, if not impossible, to get food and medicines to the starving.

THE REAL GAP, however, is in the attitude of Congress and the public toward aid. It has come almost to a dead stop. Repeatedly, aid programs are cut, and they have become even more unpopular as they are involved, on the arms side, in big power politics.

McNamara is a man of conscience. In his opening address to the World Bank meeting he called the situation of one billion human beings in the poorest of the member countries desperate. Then he went on with an appeal that may or may not be heard on Capitol Hill:

"Aid is not a luxury — something affordable when times are easy, superfluous when times become temporarily troublesome. It is precisely the opposite. Aid is a continuing social and moral responsibility and its need now is greater than ever.

"It is true that the affluent nations in the face of shortages and inflation, and in order to continue to expend aid, may have to accept for the time being some selective reduction in their already immensely high standard of living. If they have to they can absorb such inconveniences."

Presidents Ford and McNamara were each calling for belt tightening. But their aims were light years apart. McNamara was in effect calling on the Congress to add a billion or two billion dollars a year to the aid budget. Ford was asking for budget balancing to hold down inflation.

Navy Due Toehold In Persian Gulf With Bahrain Pact

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The United States will be able to keep a naval toehold in the strategic Persian Gulf after all.

The Gulf island state of Bahrain has decided to let the U.S. Navy port facilities at Jufair, the harbor for its capital Manama, reliable Gulf sources report, and the news is confirmed by Western diplomatic sources in Beirut.

Bahrain had cancelled the base agreement during last October's Arab-Israeli war and the deadline for the Navy's pullout was set for later this month.

The island's reversal of its earlier decision means that the U.S. will be the only foreign country to have a permanent naval base in the Gulf — the strategic waterway through which 800 million tons of oil are exported every year.

Iraq ports at the head of the Gulf are being developed to levels described in Western reports as "well beyond the likely needs of the Iraqi navy" — presumably to accommodate warships of the Soviet Union, which has a treaty of friendship with Iraq covering military cooperation. But so far no evidence has been produced of a Soviet base in the sense of physical occupation of territory and a force permanently at anchor.

Bahrain's move marks a significant development in the controversial subject of superpower rivalry in the Indian Ocean.

The U.S. administration's decision to build a base on Diego Garcia island, which led to a sharp exchange recently between President Ford and the Kremlin, followed last year's announcement that Bahrain intended to cancel the Jufair base agreement.

So far Bahrain has given no public hints of the policy switch. Bahraini officials are searching for a formula to announce the news in a way minimizing the risk of outcry from radical Arabs both inside Bahrain and elsewhere in the Arab world.

While disclosing no details about the terms of the new U.S.-Bahraini agreement, Western diplomatic sources predict there will be no change in the American naval presence — officially known as Commander Middle East Force (COMIDEASFOR). The smallest operational fleet in the U.S. Navy, it consists of a converted amphibious transport dock, the USS LaSalle, which serves as flagship for Captain Edward Hanks, plus a pair of destroyers detached from the 6th or 7th fleets.

Although COMIDEASFOR officers insist their mission is primarily "flag-waving," communications functions are involved, and monitoring ship movements in the narrow Persian Gulf would be easy. During the October war, COMIDEASFOR destroyers raced around the tip of Arabia to the narrow Bab al-Mandeb straits at the Red Sea exit, where the Egyptian Navy briefly operated a blockade. The imminent reopening of the Suez Canal, expected next year, will increase the value of the Bahrain base.

Bahrain's decision to let the Navy stay followed a visit to the area last month by two top American officials, Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf II and Deputy Assistant Undersecretary of State Sidney Sober, a former Navy officer himself. The little publicized visit took the two men to Saudi Arabia, which has a considerable voice in Bahraini foreign policy, and to Iran, the powerful and assertive non-Arab Gulf state, which recognized Bahrain's independence in 1970 in exchange for assurances of Bahraini cooperation on Gulf defense.

The Shah of Iran has publicized his concern over intensification of Soviet naval activity in the Indian Ocean.

He's constructing rudimentary bases on one of three Gulf islands Iran occupied in 1971, but it offers no substitute to the Bahrain facility for deep water anchorage and shore facilities.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal originally put pressure on Bahrain to withdraw American base facilities last year. Bahrain's American refinery depends on crude oil supplied from Saudi oilfields by an undersea pipeline. But Saudi Arabia has started building its own navy, with American help. Continued American presence appears to fit a pattern of increased regional concern over Gulf security.

A green light from Saudi Arabia was essential for Bahrain to rescind the ouster order. Assuming Egypt will subscribe to Saudi views on Gulf matters, the main Arab criticism is likely to come from Iraq and from Libya. Domestically, Bahrain's new parliament, in existence since last December, has proved tamer than officials feared, as risk of an internal backlash seems light.

Bahrain was always reluctant to close down Jufain. The base brings in several million dollars in much needed annual income for the island. COMIDEASFOR purchases a substantial share of the output of the local refinery of the American-owned Bahrain petroleum company. Relations between the local people and the low-profile navy community are amiable.

The American high school in Jufair draws free-paying Bahrainis and other Arabs as well as Navy children. Bahrainis were distressed at the thought that the school would not reopen this year if Defense Department support ended. A check this week showed school in full swing, with a record enrollment both American and Arab.

Rising Production Costs Forcing Dairy Farmers Out Of The Business

By ROBERT M. PRESS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LITCHFIELD, Minn. — Almost half the commercial dairy farmers in the United States are expected to go out of business by 1980. Experts are split, however, on what this means for milk, butter (and margarine), ice cream, and cheese prices.

More and more dairy farmers either are retiring without their sons taking over the business or are switching work because of fast-rising production costs and lagging income.

Will this force dairy product prices up?

Yes, say dairy leaders. They say dairy farmers must be paid more to keep them in business.

No, says Department of Agriculture (USDA) economist David Cummins, who just finished estimates of milk production up to 1980. The loss in dairy farms and cows will be balanced by an increase in the size of herds on remaining farms, he says.

Cummins sees the price of milk rising inevitably over the next six years, but primarily from higher production costs, not from fewer farms. He thinks prices paid to farmers for milk may even be as much as 70 per cent higher than today by 1980.

Meanwhile, with prices boosted by inflation, Americans are buying slightly less milk than they did last year (average consumption per person in 1973 was about 32 gallons) and buying more margarine and less butter.

And unless farmers start getting more money for milk (many now get roughly 60 cents a gallon), more will quit the business, production will fall, and "consumers will pay wildly escalating prices for milk," says Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation.

Former farmer Glen Boldt of Baldwin, Wis., for example, says he sold all his dairy cows recently because "I wasn't getting a fair return on my investment" (which he estimates was $20,000 for cows and equipment.)

Last year dairy farmers were getting good prices (up to $8.50 for 100 pounds of milk), he said. This year 'you're lucky to get money for your feed back — and nothing for your work," he said.

But Cummins says the number of dairy farmers leaving the business will not make a big change in production levels of milk, cheese, butter, and ice cream.

He said his latest projections on trends in U.S. dairy farming show that from 1973 to 1980:

— The number of commercial dairy farms operating will drop 43 per cent, from about 384,500 to 218,000.

— But the number of milk cows will drop only 9 per cent from about 11,500,000 to 10,500,000.

— And milk production per cow will increase by about 12 per cent —due to better pasture conditions and being fed more corn and other grains.

The federal price support to farmers based on the prices in Wisconsin and Minnesota now is $6.39 per 100 pounds of milk. But in many areas farmers are getting another $1 as a premium from big dairy firms that want a regular supply.

The USDA is currently considering proposals to raise the support price to $7.50 per 100 pounds of milk. That, says Healy, could raise the consumer's price for a gallon of milk by 8 cents. But such a rise is unlikely, since proposed price is roughly the same as firms now pay farmers. The higher support price simply would mean more stability in what the dairy farmer can expect to be paid, he added in a telephone interview.

But David Grimsgard, who runs a dairy farm near Litchfield, says, "Lower milk prices make a better manager out of you. You don't keep the cows that aren't making money."

When he took over the farm from his father, he expanded the herd from 30 to 110 cows and hired a helper. But dairying "ties you down seven days a week from 12 to 15 hours a day," he said recently sitting on his porch just before lunch.

"In five years I haven't taken a day off except to go to a state fair."

And that seems to be the feeling of many dairy farmers. "The bulk of the fellows who are quitting are getting sick and tired of milking cows all their lives — I am, too," says Garfield Kittelson, another Litchfield-area dairy farmer.

Publishing Society

DAYS NUMBERED? — Like so many others, this Massachusetts dairy farmer may be reaching the end of the line. Boxed in by rapidly rising prices but stagnating income, more and more dairy farmers are finding it impossible to make ends meet, and are leaving the business. A rise in the price the consumer pays for milk and other dairy products also may result from this situation.

Behind The News

FRENCHMAN ON THE MOVE

Legrand Becoming Visible

By DAVID STERRITT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — On the 35th floor of a very posh hotel, the door of a very posh suite swings open and an affable, bright-eyed, slightly bushy-haired Frenchman ushers me breezily in. He looks sort of familiar — the way a celebrity looks whom you've admired only from a distance, or whose main contributions have been behind the scenes.

A fellow Frenchman would probably have known him a mile away, because this is Michel Legrand — whose early career in France included night-club pianizing, film acting, and a prodigious amount of composing.

As an American, I know him mainly as the king of the movie score, the man whose melodies have graced pictures ranging from "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg" (soon to tour the United States in concert form) to "Summer of '42," and "Brian's Song." His latest is "A Hero's Song," based on Homer's "Odyssey."

The day approaches when Legrand may be a household word on this side of the Atlantic too, as his career becomes more visible than ever through international night club work, Broadway showwriting (his next one will star Andy Williams), and a list of film/stage/TV/concert-hall projects that boggles the imagination.

At the center of all the Legrand activity, movie scoring remains an unassailed first love. As a young musician he sought out opportunities for film work because "I think the best expression for a composer today is really to work with films. This is where he has the largest medium to expose every different facet of himself, every possibility.

"What's nice in pictures, one day you have to write a jazz score, after that you have to do a heroic film, after that you have to do a very contemporary classical style. So it is an exercise in style all the time . . . It is a vast exposure for a composer in films, much better than in records, television, or in any other thing."

What makes a good score in the master's eyes? "First of all, the music should be very good by itself, it should stand by itself without the movie. And the music should be a sort of second dialogue. It has this importance, it should be equivalent to the drama, very emotional, very good, very right. And not necessarily in the same direction that the picture goes; sometimes you counterpoint. But it must have this kind of strength . . .

MICHEL LEGRAND
Prefers movie scores

"People are sometimes saying to me, good music in a picture is music you don't hear. But that's wrong, that's terrible . . . ridiculous."

Legrand's work habits are simple. He sees a film and, if he decides to score it, requests a copy. With a moviola and other equipment at his home, he "lives with the film" day and night, learning it frame by frame. He works fast, taking anywhere from two weeks to two months for a finished score.

He works with a music editor but has no other assistance, preferring to complete his own work right down to the orchestrations. He works at the piano only when searching for a main theme, "because the piano doesn't help me but it excites me . . . to go here and there."

When beginning work on a project, Legrand seeks "an over-all view of the movie. And I start to reach closer and closer. I write many different scenes and I try them and I try them . . . and finally . . . it's like walking slowly toward an emotion that you want to reach . . . And finally I find exactly what I would like to hear in this movie, as a spectator."

Ask Legrand when his professional career began, and he'll tell you that his work is "more an art than a business" so he can't really say. But he feels that he was gifted at a very early age, and he decided on a musical life when practically an infant. He began playing piano at four or five years of age, imitating songs he heard on the radio.

He started at the Paris Conservatoire at 10, staying there for 10 years and studying with the distinguished teacher, Nadia Boulanger.

Later he struck out as an accompanist for popular singers and as an orchestrator for records. Film scoring came next, and after some five years' work in Paris he headed eagerly for Hollywood — because "this is part of my adventure. I think I am sort of an adventurer, in life and in music too.

"(I wanted to) change my aquarium, to renew the water in which I'm in evolution."

In a personal way, Legrand found Hollywood "a different world" from Paris. But he considers the movie-making atmosphere much the same, except for better facilities. As a composer he seems to work efficiently under any circumstances, and he insists that deadlines can actually help his work — especially when they force ideas to flow during a noncreative mood.

Legrand has scored for television only once, working on the famous "Brian's Song" TV movie. He acknowledges that a TV score will only be heard a couple of times and then shelved along with the movie, but he professes not to mind, citing the huge audience garnered by a major TV show that is only aired once.

In the future, Legrand plans less film work, perhaps two movies a year. He wants to continue night club work and to find fresh new forms for stage and movie musicals. He also plans a return to more formal kinds of music, working in more conventional classical frameworks.

Spain To End Daylight Time

MADRID (UPI) — Spain today ends a six-month experiment with daylight savings time and turns its clocks back an hour at midnight.

The measure was adopted last spring in an effort to reduce fuel costs in the wake of the energy crisis.

As part of the switch over, Spanish trains will stop for an hour after midnight at the nearest station.

Navy Due Toehold In Persian Gulf With Bahrain Pact

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The United States will be able to keep a naval toehold in the strategic Persian Gulf after all.

The Gulf island state of Bahrain has decided to let the U.S. Navy port facilities at Jufair, the harbor for its capital Manama, reliable Gulf sources report, and the news is confirmed by Western diplomatic sources in Beirut.

Bahrain had cancelled the base agreement during last October's Arab-Israeli war and the deadline for the Navy's pullout was set for later this month.

The island's reversal of its earlier decision means that the U.S. will be the only foreign country to have a permanent naval base in the Gulf — the strategic waterway through which 800 million tons of oil are exported every year.

Iraq ports at the head of the Gulf are being developed to levels described in Western reports as "well beyond the likely needs of the Iraqi navy" — presumably to accommodate warships of the Soviet Union, which has a treaty of friendship with Iraq covering military cooperation. But so far no evidence has been produced of a Soviet base in the sense of physical occupation of territory and a force permanently at anchor.

Bahrain's move marks a significant development in the controversial subject of superpower rivalry in the Indian Ocean.

The U.S. administration's decision to build a base on Diego Garcia island, which led to a sharp exchange recently between President Ford and the Kremlin, followed last year's announcement that Bahrain intended to cancel the Jufair base agreement.

So far Bahrain has given no public hints of the policy switch. Bahraini officials are searching for a formula to announce the news in a way minimizing the risk of outcry from radical Arabs both inside Bahrain and elsewhere in the Arab world.

While disclosing no details about the terms of the new U.S.-Bahraini agreement, Western diplomatic sources predict there will be no change in the American naval presence — officially known as Commander Middle East Force (COMIDEASFOR). The smallest operational fleet in the U.S. Navy, it consists of a converted amphibious transport dock, the USS LaSalle, which serves as flagship for Captain Edward Hanks, plus a pair of destroyers detached from the 6th or 7th fleets.

Although COMIDEASFOR officers insist their mission is primarily "flag-waving," communications functions are involved, and monitoring ship movements in the narrow Persian Gulf would be easy. During the October war, COMIDEASFOR destroyers raced around the tip of Arabia to the narrow Bab al-Mandeb straits at the Red Sea exit, where the Egyptian Navy briefly operated a blockade. The imminent reopening of the Suez Canal, expected next year, will increase the value of the Bahrain base.

Bahrain's decision to let the Navy stay followed a visit to the area last month by two top American officials, Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf II and Deputy Assistant Undersecretary of State Sidney Sober, a former Navy officer himself. The little publicized visit took the two men to Saudi Arabia, which has a considerable voice in Bahraini foreign policy, and to Iran, the powerful and assertive non-Arab Gulf state, which recognized Bahrain's independence in 1970 in exchange for assurances of Bahraini cooperation on Gulf defense.

The Shah of Iran has publicized his concern over intensification of Soviet naval activity in the Indian Ocean.

He's constructing rudimentary bases on one of three Gulf islands Iran occupied in 1971, but it offers no substitute to the Bahrain facility for deep water anchorage and shore facilities.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal originally put pressure on Bahrain to withdraw American base facilities last year. Bahrain's American refinery depends on crude oil supplied from Saudi oilfields by an undersea pipeline. But Saudi Arabia has started building its own navy, with American help. Continued American presence appears to fit a pattern of increased regional concern over Gulf security.

A green light from Saudi Arabia was essential for Bahrain to rescind the ouster order. Assuming Egypt will subscribe to Saudi views on Gulf matters, the main Arab criticism is likely to come from Iraq and from Libya. Domestically, Bahrain's new parliament, in existence since last December, has proved tamer than officials feared, as risk of an internal backlash seems light.

Bahrain was always reluctant to close down Jufain. The base brings in several million dollars in much needed annual income for the island. COMIDEASFOR purchases a substantial share of the output of the local refinery of the American-owned Bahrain petroleum company. Relations between the local people and the low-profile navy community are amiable.

The American high school in Jufair draws free-paying Bahrainis and other Arabs as well as Navy children. Bahrainis were distressed at the thought that the school would not reopen this year if Defense Department support ended. A check this week showed school in full swing, with a record enrollment both American and Arab.

Rising Production Costs Forcing Dairy Farmers Out Of The Business

By ROBERT M. PRESS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LITCHFIELD, Minn. — Almost half the commercial dairy farmers in the United States are expected to go out of business by 1980. Experts are split, however, on what this means for milk, butter (and margarine), ice cream, and cheese prices.

More and more dairy farmers either are retiring without their sons taking over the business or are switching work because of fast-rising production costs and lagging income.

Will this force dairy product prices up?

Yes, say dairy leaders. They say dairy farmers must be paid more to keep them in business.

No, says Department of Agriculture (USDA) economist David Cummins, who just finished estimates of milk production up to 1980. The loss in dairy farms and cows will be balanced by an increase in the size of herds on remaining farms, he says.

Cummins sees the price of milk rising inevitably over the next six years, but primarily from higher production costs, not from fewer farms. He thinks prices paid to farmers for milk may even be as much as 70 per cent higher than today by 1980.

Meanwhile, with prices boosted by inflation, Americans are buying slightly less milk than they did last year (average consumption per person in 1973 was about 32 gallons) and buying more margarine and less butter.

And unless farmers start getting more money for milk (many now get roughly 60 cents a gallon), more will quit the business, production will fall, and "consumers will pay wildly escalating prices for milk," says Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation.

Former farmer Glen Boldt of Baldwin, Wis., for example, says he sold all his dairy cows recently because "I wasn't getting a fair return on my investment" (which he estimates was $20,000 for cows and equipment.)

Last year dairy farmers were getting good prices (up to $8.50 for 100 pounds of milk), he said. This year 'you're lucky to get money for your feed back — and nothing for your work," he said.

But Cummins says the number of dairy farmers leaving the business will not make a big change in production levels of milk, cheese, butter, and ice cream.

He said his latest projections on trends in U.S. dairy farming show that from 1973 to 1980:

— The number of commercial dairy farms operating will drop 43 per cent, from about 384,500 to 218,000.

— But the number of milk cows will drop only 9 per cent from about 11,500,000 to 10,500,000.

— And milk production per cow will increase by about 12 per cent —due to better pasture conditions and being fed more corn and other grains.

The federal price support to farmers based on the prices in Wisconsin and Minnesota now is $6.39 per 100 pounds of milk. But in many areas farmers are getting another $1 as a premium from big dairy firms that want a regular supply.

The USDA is currently considering proposals to raise the support price to $7.50 per 100 pounds of milk. That, says Healy, could raise the consumer's price for a gallon of milk by 8 cents. But such a rise is unlikely, since proposed price is roughly the same as firms now pay farmers. The higher support price simply would mean more stability in what the dairy farmer can expect to be paid, he added in a telephone interview.

But David Grimsgard, who runs a dairy farm near Litchfield, says, "Lower milk prices make a better manager out of you. You don't keep the cows that aren't making money."

When he took over the farm from his father, he expanded the herd from 30 to 110 cows and hired a helper. But dairying "ties you down seven days a week from 12 to 15 hours a day," he said recently sitting on his porch just before lunch.

And that seems to be the feeling of many dairy farmers. "The bulk of the fellows who are quitting are getting sick and tired of milking cows all their lives — I am, too," says Garfield Kittelson, another Litchfield-area dairy farmer.

DAYS NUMBERED? — Like so many others, this Massachusetts dairy farmer may be reaching the end of the line. Boxed in by rapidly rising prices but stagnating income, more and more dairy farmers are finding it impossible to make ends meet, and are leaving the business. A rise in the price the consumer pays for milk and other dairy products also may result from this situation.

FRENCHMAN ON THE MOVE

Legrand Becoming Visible

By DAVID STERRITT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — On the 35th floor of a very posh hotel, the door of a very posh suite swings open and an affable, bright-eyed, slightly bushy-haired Frenchman ushers me breezily in. He looks sort of familiar — the way a celebrity looks whom you've admired only from a distance, or whose main contributions have been behind the scenes.

A fellow Frenchman would probably have known him a mile away, because this is Michel Legrand — whose early career in France included night-club pianizing, film acting, and a prodigious amount of composing.

As an American, I know him mainly as the king of the movie score, the man whose melodies have graced pictures ranging from "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg" (soon to tour the United States in concert form) to "Summer of '42," and "Brian's Song." His latest is "A Hero's Song," based on Homer's "Odyssey."

The day approaches when Legrand may be a household word on this side of the Atlantic too, as his career becomes more visible than ever through international night club work, Broadway showwriting (his next one will star Andy Williams), and a list of film/stage/TV/concert-hall projects that boggles the imagination.

At the center of all the Legrand activity, movie scoring remains an unassailed first love. As a young musician he sought out opportunities for film work because "I think the best expression for a composer today is really to work with films. This is where he has the largest medium to expose every different facet of himself, every possibility.

"What's nice in pictures, one day you have to write a jazz score, after that you have to do a heroic film, after that you have to do a very contemporary classical style. So it is an exercise in style all the time . . . It is a vast exposure for a composer in films, much better than in records, television, or in any other thing."

What makes a good score in the master's eyes? "First of all, the music should be very good by itself, it should stand by itself without the movie. And the music should be a sort of second dialogue. It has this importance, it should be equivalent to the drama, very emotional, very good, very right. And not necessarily in the same direction that the picture goes; sometimes you counterpoint. But it must have this kind of strength . . .

MICHEL LEGRAND
Prefers movie scores

"People are sometimes saying to me, good music in a picture is music you don't hear. But that's wrong, that's terrible . . . ridiculous."

Legrand's work habits are simple. He sees a film and, if he decides to score it, requests a copy. With a moviola and other equipment at his home, he "lives with the film" day and night, learning it frame by frame. He works fast, taking anywhere from two weeks to two months for a finished score.

He works with a music editor but has no other assistance, preferring to complete his own work right down to the orchestrations. He works at the piano only when searching for a main theme, "because the piano doesn't help me but it excites me . . . to go here and there."

When beginning work on a project, Legrand seeks "an over-all view of the movie. And I start to reach closer and closer. I write many different scenes and I try them and I try them . . . and finally . . . it's like walking slowly toward an emotion that you want to reach . . . And finally I find exactly what I would like to hear in this movie, as a spectator."

Ask Legrand when his professional career began, and he'll tell you that his work is "more an art than a business" so he can't really say. But he feels that he was gifted at a very early age, and he decided on a musical life when practically an infant. He began playing piano at four or five years of age, imitating songs he heard on the radio.

He started at the Paris Conservatoire at 10, staying there for 10 years and studying with the distinguished teacher, Nadia Boulanger.

Later he struck out as an accompanist for popular singers and as an orchestrator for records. Film scoring came next, and after some five years' work in Paris he headed eagerly for Hollywood — because "this is part of my adventure. I think I am sort of an adventurer, in life and in music too.

"(I wanted to) change my aquarium, to renew the water in which I'm in evolution."

In a personal way, Legrand found Hollywood "a different world" from Paris. But he considers the movie-making atmosphere much the same, except for better facilities. As a composer he seems to work efficiently under any circumstances, and he insists that deadlines can actually help his work — especially when they force ideas to flow during a noncreative mood.

Legrand has scored for television only once, working on the famous "Brian's Song" TV movie. He acknowledges that a TV score will only be heard a couple of times and then shelved along with the movie, but he professes not to mind, citing the huge audience garnered by a major TV show that is only aired once.

In the future, Legrand plans less film work, perhaps two movies a year. He wants to continue night club work and to find fresh new forms for stage and movie musicals. He also plans a return to more formal kinds of music, working in more conventional classical frameworks.

Spain To End Daylight Time

MADRID (UPI) — Spain today ends a six-month experiment with daylight savings time and turns its clocks back an hour at midnight.

The measure was adopted last spring in an effort to reduce fuel costs in the wake of the energy crisis.

As part of the switch over, Spanish trains will stop for an hour after midnight at the nearest station.

Color Photography Has Drama

By ADA GARFINKEL

Though MacSwain's well-composed photos lend sustenance to his strong feeling and appreciation for life, he is not a professional photographer. Nor are these photos merely about nature.

MacSwain, who teaches psychology at Redwood High School, spends his summers leading hiking or backpacking trips. These photos, taken on location, appear to have been mainly shot at ground level and with a wide-angle lens, and usually in the soft light of dawn or dusk.

Like naturalist David Cavagnaro with whom he has studied, MacSwain dwells on the luminosity inherent in water and moist air. Too, there is a pervasive feeling that in the interplay of clear and dissolving light and form which surround his central images — a moth, a worm, or a beetle — that one is sharing a special moment in time and rhythmic motion.

And, as if to emphasize his microcosmic point of view, each of MacSwain's photos is mounted within a colored mat which, in effect, extends the plane of perception to infinity.

MacSwain's rapport with the quiet life and the more sculptural and textural manifestations of nature are seen in the bubbly, pearlescent gray-greens within and surrounding the scaly shell of "Fiddler Crab;" in a shot of a sleepy-eyed "Leopard Lizard," (cast in the same monotonal umber as surrounding fossilized rock and driftwood, their markings almost indistinguishible from his), and in "Western Frog," rising like an ancient jade sculpture from a bed of marsh reeds.

"Morning Blue" encompassing a larger perspective of background area, shows a frayed-wing moth hovering on the yellow mound of a huge shasta daisy. The sturdy strength of the latter emphasizes the fragility of the insect and its cyclical existence.

And the wiry, white antennae of "Cicada Nymph" lending a ghostly quality to this tawney golden shot reinforced by the deep brown tree trunk to which the insect is clinging, exemplifies again the dramatic tone that is basic to MacSwain's vision.

His most impressive landscape, which is also his largest photo, is "Eureka Valley Sand Dunes," a magnificent distance shot in coppery orange with a dusty mauve sky and deeply cleft shadows racing across its surface.

These photos will remain on display through Nov. 8 and may be seen weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Social Security Office is at 549 Northgate Drive.

High School Goals Sought

Supt. Robert D. Torrey will ask Tamalpais Union High School District trustees at their meeting at 8 p.m. Monday to direct the district Citizen's Advisory Committee to formulate a statement of district goals.

Torrey said that such a statement could be used as a basis for planning and evaluating resulting educational programs.

The trustees will also consider activating a legislative task force at the meeting in the district office in Larkspur.

Marin Consumers Told Of Defective Teakettles

Marin consumers who have purchased electric teakettle models which have been recalled should request stores where they were purchased to return the items to the manufacturer, according to Bette Wallace, county consumer affairs deputy.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration recalled certain models Sept. 26 because lead solder inside the kettles boiled into the water when the kettles were used, Mrs. Wallace said. But the FDA added that the hazard exists mainly the first few times the kettles are used, she said.

Recalled models, whose number appear on the kettles, are Everhot 431002, Toastmaster 599, Hamilton Beach 351 and 354, and Dominion 16-30, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 56, 57, 58 and 59, Mrs. Wallace said. If the retail outlet is unknown, the consumer should contact the manufacturer, Mrs. Wallace said.

Taylor Park Stands As Tribute To Tenacious Women

For almost three decades the verdant redwood and Douglas fir-filled Samuel P. Taylor State Park, on the banks of Paper Mill Creek, west of Lagunitas, has been one of the Bay Area's best loved and most widely used overnight camping grounds.

The 2,600 acre preserve, named for a Marin pioneer, who in 1856 opened the West's first paper mill, and later a resort hotel and one of the nation's first campgrounds on the site, became a state park in 1946.

State acquisition of the property came about due to the dedication and tenacity of the Marin Conservation League and its four founders who labored for five years to make the park a reality.

THE LEAGUE HAD been founed in 1934 by four Marin women — Mrs. Albert J. (Sepha) Evers, now of San Francisco; the late Mrs. Norman B. (Caroline) Livermore; Mrs. John F. (Portia) Forbes, both of Ross; and Mrs. Helen Van Pelt, a longtime San Anselmo landscape architect.

The four founders will be honored at an all-day public picnic climaxing a two-month membership drive next Saturday on Angel Island commemorating the Marin Conservation League's 40th anniversary.

(The league has also worked for acquisition of Drake's Bay Beach County Park; Tomales Bay and Stinson Beach State Parks; Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary; Point Reyes National Seashore; Golden Gate National Recreation Area and Angel Island State Park where the highest peak was renamed Mount Caroline S. Livermore in honor of the league founder.)

THE FOUR WOMEN, anticipating the effects of the 1937 opening of the Golden Gate Bridge would have on the then rural and sparsely populated county, in 1934, organized a Citizens Survey Committee and set out to raise $2,500 to study possibilities of setting up a zoning ordinance, according to a tape recorded history of the league made by Mrs. Van Pelt prior to her death at age 85 in Pasadena two years ago.

Soon membership in the league (the organization's name was almost immediately changed to Marin Conservation League) grew as men and women from across the county gathered around the fire in the living room in the Livermores' hilltop Ross home, she said.

"In an astonishingly short time," according to Mrs. Van Pelt, the league collected the needed funds.

They were used to hire pioneer planning consultant Hugh R. Pomeroy who in February, 1935, went to work with a crew of map-makers and draftsmen in Fourth Street's Hotaling Building in San Rafael.

MAPS AND A REPORT were soon drawn up. The report recommended the county hire a planning technician and initiate a zoning ordinance to insure orderly growth.

The result: In 1935 Marin had a county planning department and a zoning ordinance, one of the first to be adopted in the state.

Five years later, in 1940, the league embarked on a five-year struggle to turn Camp Taylor into a state park.

The land was then owned by an accentric widow, Elizabeth Rogers, who was living in San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel.

By 1932 Mrs. Rogers had stopped paying taxes on her Marin property and by 1940 when the league began trying to convince the Marin County Board of Supervisors that the land would make a good park site, her tax bill had climbed to $11,000.

CAROLINE LIVERMORE, who Mrs. Van Pelt said, "from the beginning inspired us with enthusiasm," suggested that if the county were to waive its delinquent taxes on Camp Taylor, the state might provide matching funds to buy it for a park.

Mrs. Livermore, a native of Galveston, Tex., where her father had been a founder of the Santa Fe Railroad and a pioneer banker, settled in San Francisco following her 1910 marriage. When the Livermores' five sons were growing up, the family, in 1929, moved to Marin.

(Mrs. Livermore later led the fight for the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, Angel Island and Tomales Bay State Park. She founded the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross and was among the founders of the Marin Audubon Society. She died at age 84 in 1967.)

ACCORDING TO MRS. Van Pelt, a native of Chicago and a Smith College graduate who moved to Marin from Pasadena around 1932, "there was skepticism on the part of the county" concerning the project — "was it worth the trouble?"

The ladies and the league went to work to prove it was.

Mrs. Sepha Evers, the league's first president and wife of a San Francisco architect, started making "weekly trips to Sacramento" to argue for legislation, according to Mrs. Van Pelt.

She had already gained experience successfully working in 1938 for the league-sponsored county ordinance that banished billboards from Marin roadsides and for acquisition of Drake's Bay Beach County Park and the park at Stinson Beach.

DURING THE FIVE years it took to make Camp Taylor a public preserve, "three bills were introduced into the state legislature," according to Mrs. Van Pelt.

She recalled frequent trips to Sacramento to testify before the 22 members of the Assembly's Ways and Means Committee sitting around a "U" shaped table.

Every time the state, county and property owner were ready to negotiate, Mrs. Rogers changed her mind, according to

Long, Long Drive Of The George Ketrons

By DON KEOWN

Your 1974 vacation over, and you find yourself beset by gloom or boredom?

Rather than bemoan the completion of this year's vacation, why not adopt the happier frame of mind of looking forward to next year's holiday? And begin making plans for same?

Mr. and Mrs. George Ketron have one suggestion.

You might repeat — or work out your own version of their 1974 trip.

It covered 9,753 miles by road vehicle plus another thousand miles by ferryboat.

IT BEGAN JUNE 10 from their 5 Tappan Court, San Anselmo, home in their 1969 Rambler pulling a Junior Compact trailer, and it ended there two months and 11 days later.

And it took them up the Alaska Highway and beyond to a point eight miles north of the Arctic Circle, and it included visits to such points as Spokane's Expo '74 world's fair, Jasper National Park and McKinley National Park.

For those who might be contemplating such a trip, but draw back, intimidated by distance or reports of rough road conditions, the Ketrons offer this advice: "Go ahead. You won't be driving on freeways. And you'll no doubt encounter problems. But the experience is well worth the trouble. And it all adds to the adventure of the trip."

THE KETRONS HAD purchased their trailer, six feet wide and 10 feet long, equipped with stove, oven, icebox and sleeping accommodations, a year ago, and checked it our during a test run to Yellowstone National Park in 1973.

This was in preparation for the long planned drive to Alaska. And the trailer passed not only that trial, but "the real thing" this summer as well, serving efficiently and comfortably George and Eleanor Ketron and their two dogs, an Australian sheepdog and a cockapoo.

George, however, admits he had some misgivings about the trip to the Far North when on Highway 99, less than 150 miles from home, the radiator hose in the Rambler broke.

"I WAS JUST about ready to head back for San Anselmo," he says.

That early mishap, however, did not prove to be an omen of things to come, and the car performed exceptionally well through the long itinerary.

At Weed, the Ketrons branched off onto Highway 97, crossing the Columbia River at the Dalles, and turning off again at Ellensburg, Wash., to pass through the Grand Coulee of the Colorado and on to Spokane for two days at the world's fair.

For Expo '74, the Ketrons generally have high praise.

"IT WAS COMPACT and easy to see. The layout, and the transportation system were fantastic," says Ketron. "And the U.S. and Russian exhibit buildings were excellent."

But Mrs. Ketron had a couple of complaints. "The exhibits were too reptitious," she says. "The environmental theme was hit over and over again. The idea is fine, and important. But at each building, you got the same message all over again."

And the 100 degree heat made drinking water as important as sightseeing to the fair visitors.

So without too much regret, the Ketrons and their dogs left Spokane and headed north, clearing with some "very pleasant custom officers," and entering Canada at King's Gate.

CONTINUING NORTH, they passed through Fort Steele and over the Canadian Rockies, passing Lake Louise and Banff where "the skyride up Sulphur Mountain was one of the highlights of our trip."

It was in Jasper National Park that they began to encounter their first wild animal life — black bear, elk, moose, a bighorn sheep ("we fed him lettuce") and deer.

On to Prince George and then to Dawson Creek they went, and at that point — Mile 0 — they joined the Alaska Highway.

Dawson Creek was also a stopping point to prepare the car and equipment for the more rigorous travel ahead.

"IT IS ALMOST like one of the frontier outposts of the old West where the covered wagons gathered and prepared to cross the prairies," Ketron says. "At Dawson Creek, cars and recreation vehicles were being readied for the long drive up the Alaska Highway, and everyone was taking on provisions."

The preparations included screen protection for windshield and headlights, a cover for the gasoline tank, and mud-

"Don't let others talk you out of making the trip," the George Ketrons advise those contemplating driving the Alaska Highway. "We were almost frightened out of it by some who told us we were too old for such a trip . . . But really, it's not great strain at all, as long as you drive sanely and keep in mind the road conditions."

Taylor Park Stands As Tribute To Tenacious Women

For almost three decades the verdant redwood and Douglas fir-filled Samuel P. Taylor State Park, on the banks of Paper Mill Creek, west of Lagunitas, has been one of the Bay Area's best loved and most widely used overnight camping grounds.

The 2,600 acre preserve, named for a Marin pioneer, who in 1856 opened the West's first paper mill, and later a resort hotel and one of the nation's first campgrounds on the site, became a state park in 1946.

State acquisition of the property came about due to the dedication and tenacity of the Marin Conservation League and its four founders who labored for five years to make the park a reality.

THE LEAGUE HAD been founed in 1934 by four Marin women — Mrs. Albert J. (Sepha) Evers, now of San Francisco; the late Mrs. Norman B. (Caroline) Livermore; Mrs. John F. (Portia) Forbes, both of Ross; and Mrs. Helen Van Pelt, a longtime San Anselmo landscape architect.

The four founders will be honored at an all-day public picnic climaxing a two-month membership drive next Saturday on Angel Island commemorating the Marin Conservation League's 40th anniversary.

(The league has also worked for acquisition of Drake's Bay Beach County Park; Tomales Bay and Stinson Beach State Parks; Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary; Point Reyes National Seashore; Golden Gate National Recreation Area and Angel Island State Park where the highest peak was renamed Mount Caroline S. THIS EARLY ENGRAVING of Samuel Taylor's original Pioneer Paper Mill shows the equipment the pioneer traveled to the East in 1854 to purchase. A thriving 19th century mill town, Taylorville, sprouted up around the old mill. Here the mill's workmen lived with their families in small cottages, shopped for provisions in a local store and ate meals in a large dining hall.

WITH HIS BUSINESS booming in 1884 Samuel Taylor erected this $165,000 water and steam-powered mill close to the tracks of the North Pacific Coast Railroad tracks. The mill was managed by his son, William P. Taylor, who later became a Marin County sheriff. After the mill closed during a financial panic, a San Franciscan foreclosed a mortgage on the property, ending the Taylor family's 40-year ownership of the land.

Park For Which The Conservation League Battled

"There was skepticism on the part of the county" concerning the proposal for a Samuel P. Taylor State Park, recalled the late Helen Van Pelt. "Was it worth the trouble?" The determined women who led the Marin Conservation League effort decided that it would be, and they went to work with a will that refused to accept defeat.

Mrs. Van Pelt.

(According to Putnam Livermore of San Francisco, the founder's son who is chairman of the league's anniversary celebration, these setbacks often "temporarily discouraged" his mother. But soon, he says, "she'd call on her great resilience and be back on the telephone, trying again.")

MRS. CAROLINE S. LIVERMORE, founder of the Marin Conservation League, who later led the fight for the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, Angel Island and Tomales Bay State Parks, came up with the idea in the early 1940s that Marin County waive delinquent taxes and the state provide matching funds to buy Marin's historic Camp Taylor for a state park. Mrs. Livermore died in 1967 at age 84.

DURING THE MARIN Conservation League's five-year struggle to turn Camp Taylor into a state park, league founder Mrs. Helen Van Pelt, a San Anselmo landscape architect, ran a children's summer camp on the site to prove the weather was ideal for picnics and recreation. Mrs. Van Pelt died in Pasadena two years ago at age 85.

IN THE MEANTIME, to refute the county's contention that "there was too much fog near the coast" for a park, Mrs. Van Pelt began operating a children's summer camp at Taylor to "prove the place was ideal for picnics and recreation."

Next the league invited members of the California Park Commission to inspect the property, Mrs. Van Pelt recalled.

Plans called for Mrs. Evers and Mrs. Van Pelt to meet the commissioners' car at the Fairfax turnoff.

By the time the official car pulled up two hours later it was raining, Mrs. Van Pelt recalled, "and you know the effects on a redwood grove that was shady anyway."

THE COMMISSIONERS followed the league leaders' car to the site where "they didn't get out of the car," she said. "They just looked and our hearts sank to the bottom . . . thinking it was a lost cause."

The party went on to dinner at the country club where a parks spokesman announced, "Ladies, we can't thank you enough for showing us that remarkable property that is only 55 minutes driving time from San Francisco." He promised the commission would support the project.

Around this time, Mrs. Livermore, called by Mrs. Van Pelt, "a master strategist," was winning the support of the board of supervisors.

BUT CAMP TAYLOR'S owner, Mrs. Rogers, according to Mrs. Van Pelt, "was getting older, was not well and was becoming more difficult to deal with."

During the negotiations a real estate developer suggested to Mrs. Van Pelt that they "go at it together" with the state to take the left side of the creek for a park site and the developer, the right, for a summer cabin community.

Instead, she said, she told the league "to step up their action."

By 1945, when Mrs. Rogers' business affairs had been taken over by a son-in-law, she agreed to sell her land.

FOR THE FIRST time in history, the state agreed to match delinquent taxes and paid Mrs. Rogers $32,000 for her land. The county waived its $32,000 tax bill and the public had Samuel P. Taylor State Park.

The park's lushly wooded canyons and forest had first been seen by Samuel P. Taylor in 1852 as he rode horseback down the slopes of Mount Tamalpais along the banks of the Lagunitas Creek to Daniels Creek (later renamed Paper Mill.)

Taylor, a New Yorker who had come West to make his fortune during the Gold Rush, immediately realized that the virgin forest around him would be an ideal spot for a paper mill.

He purchased 100 acres from landowner Rafael Gracia.

BY 1854 TAYLOR was on his way to the East Coast to hire millwrights and buy machinery. Next he was off to Massachusetts to renew his courtship of Sarah Washington Irving, a niece of author Washington Irving.

The next spring the couple married and returned to California. By 1856 Taylor's Pioneer Paper Mill was making newsprint for San Francisco's pioneer newspapers from rags picked up on the city's streets by Chinese immigrants.

Eventually Taylor added paper bags, manila paper, paper ballots (for the state) and the first paper wrappers used for fruit being shipped out of state.

HE ERECTED A home in Devil's Gulch for his family that eventually included seven sons and a daughter.

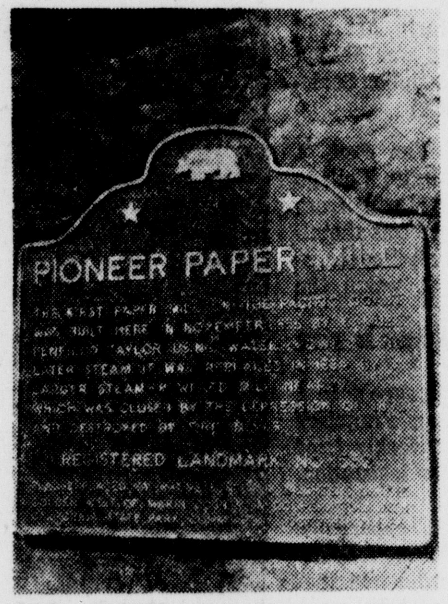
The area east of the mill and Taylorville (today's main picnic and barbecue area) became known as Camp Taylor, a popular vacation and picnic site that, according to Park Ranger Wesley C. Chapin, may have been the first outdoor campground in the nation.

It was here the Bohemian Club of San Francisco held its first encampment in 1878.

UNTIL 1875 A stagecoach carried passengers over the hills from San Rafael. It was replaced that year by the narrow gauge North Pacific Coast Railroad that was built to serve Point Reyes and the Tomales Bay region.

Taylor built a 100-room hotel, called it The Azalea and turned Camp Taylor into a leading resort.

The hotel, located on the creek side of today's picnic area, was surrounded by a dance pavilion, guest cottages, store, bowling alley, laundry and stables, according to a map drawn by the late Mrs. Bertha Stedman Rothwell who grew up in Taylorville.



THIS MARKER designates the spot in Taylor Park where Samuel P. Taylor erected his Pioneer Paper Mill in 1856.

(Mrs. Rothwell compiled a history of the area that is kept at both Taylor Park and Bancroft Library.)

ACCORDING TO Ranger Chapin, rose bushes from the old hotel grounds still grow in the picnic area. Nearby stands a redwood stump, all that is left from the Redwood Stump Bar that a century ago greeted visitors as they walked over a bridge across the creek to Camp Taylor from the train.

In today's Irving area of the park, Samuel Taylor's brother-in-law, James Irving, operated a tannery that processes polar bear and seal pelts and turned angora skins into rugs.

With business booming, Taylor decided in 1884 to build a new $165,000 mill to be powered by water and steam, according to the late Florence Donnelly, the Independent-Journal's long-time historian.

TAYLOR'S SON, William P. Taylor, who later became Marin County sheriff, supervised the three-story high operation.

Shortly afterwards, according to Mrs. Rothwell, the Taylors lost their land and buildings when "Mr. Montgomery" of San Francisco foreclosed a mortgage on the property.

FOLLOWING THE destruction of the Hotel Azalea by fire in 1905, Mrs. Rogers, who later stopped paying taxes on her property, ordered all the remaining buildings razed.

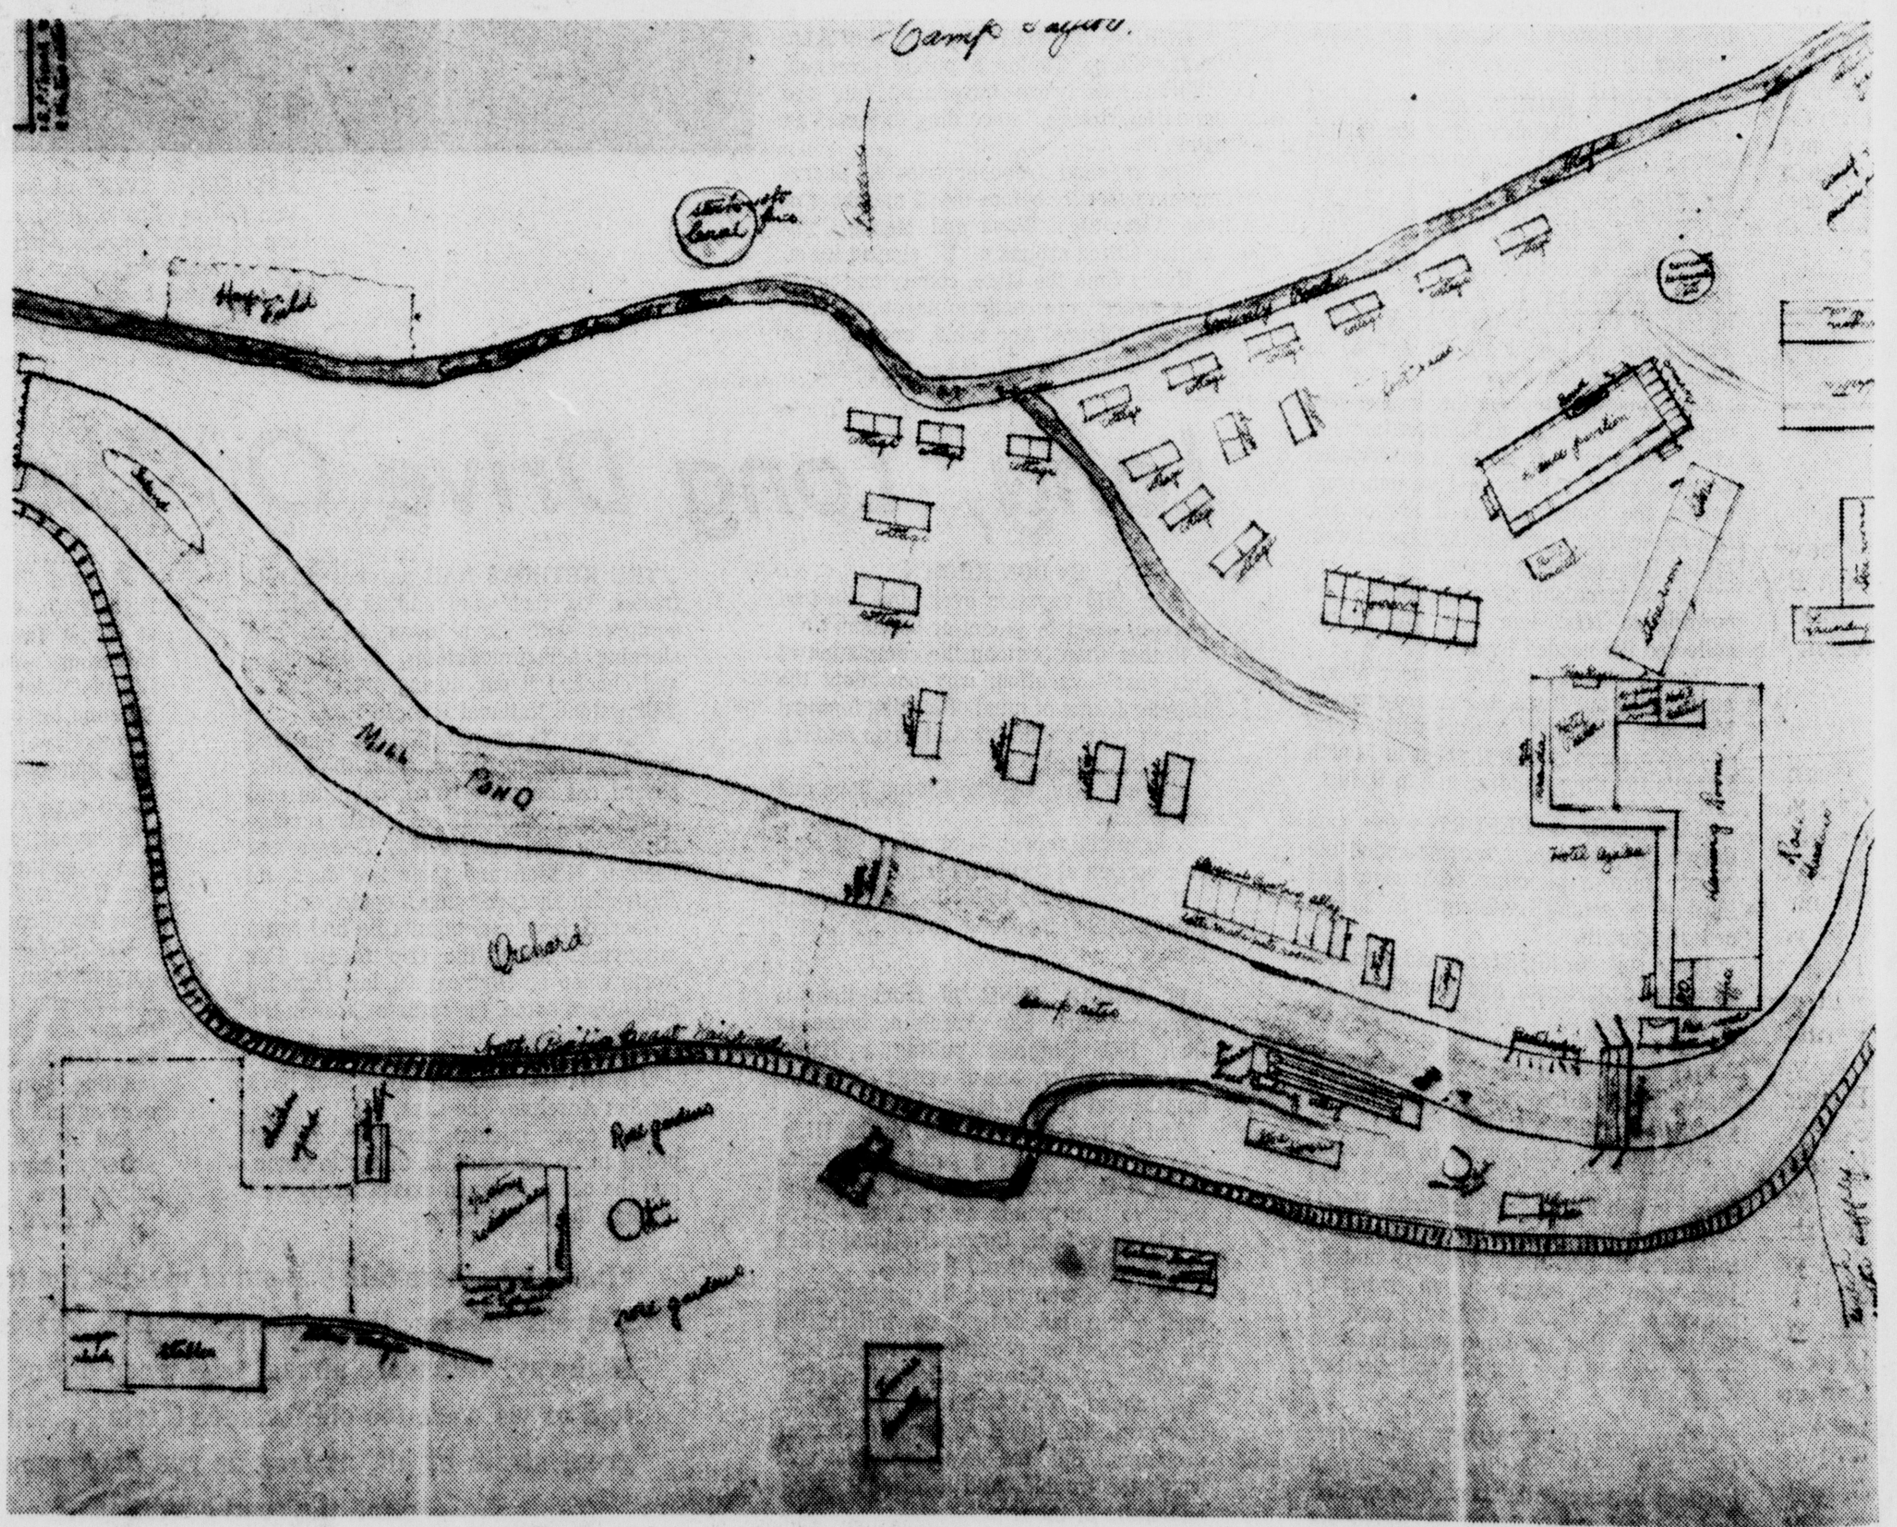
The mill was destroyed in a 1915 blaze apparently set by tramps living inside the building.

SAMUEL P. TAYLOR purchased in 1852 the region that one day would become a state park bearing his name. A native New Yorker who had come West during the Gold Rush, he erected the first paper mill in the West, built a 100-room resort hotel and opened the nation's first overnight campgrounds on his land, west of Lagunitas. Today some 180,000 persons visit the historic Marin site that became a public park 28 years ago.

Today nearly 180,000 of the 10 million persons who annually visit Marin's vast network of parks, go to Taylor.

Here they walk and camp along sylvan trails and roads where a century ago Marin's pioneer millmen worked and lived. They fish and swim in the creek where Samuel P. Taylor's eight children and the nation's first overnight campers splashed a century ago.

Next week the Marin Conservation League pauses to honor the four women who made all this possible.



THIS MAP DRAWN by the late Mrs. Bertha Stedman Rothwell shows how Taylor Park's main picnic and barbecue area appeared a century ago. The 100-room Azalea Hotel, the large building on the right, was built by pioneer Samuel Taylor to accommodate the hordes of summer visitors who traveled by train to summer along the banks of the Paper Mill Creek. The hotel was destroyed in a 1905 fire and the surrounding buildings razed by the eccentric widow who later sold her property to the state.

The park's lushly wooded canyons and forest had first been seen by Samuel P. Taylor in 1852 as he rode horseback down the slopes of Mount Tamalpais along the banks of the Lagunitas Creek to Daniels Creek (later renamed Paper Mill.)

Taylor, a New Yorker who had come West to make his fortune during the Gold Rush, immediately realized that the virgin forest around him would be an ideal spot for a paper mill.

He purchased 100 acres from landowner Rafael Gracia.

BY 1854 TAYLOR was on his way to the East Coast to hire millwrights and buy machinery. Next he was off to Massachusetts to renew his courtship of Sarah Washington Irving, a niece of author Washington Irving.

The next spring the couple married and returned to California. By 1856 Taylor's Pioneer Paper Mill was making newsprint for San Francisco's pioneer newspapers from rags picked up on the city's streets by Chinese immigrants.

Eventually Taylor added paper bags, manila paper, paper ballots (for the state) and the first paper wrappers used for fruit being shipped out of state.

HE ERECTED A home in Devil's Gulch for his family that eventually included seven sons and a daughter.

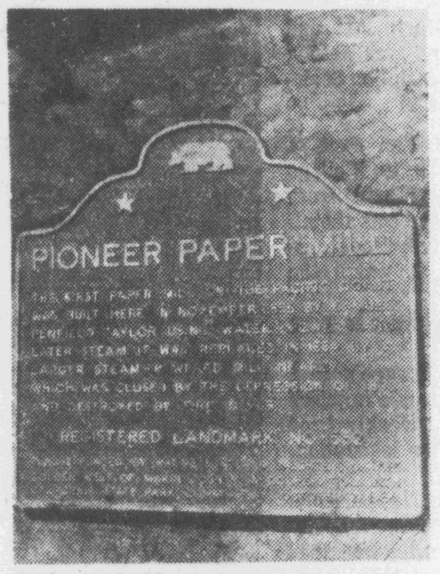
The area east of the mill and Taylorville (today's main picnic and barbecue area) became known as Camp Taylor, a popular vacation and picnic site that, according to Park Ranger Wesley C. Chapin, may have been the first outdoor campground in the nation.

It was here the Bohemian Club of San Francisco held its first encampment in 1878.

UNTIL 1875 A stagecoach carried passengers over the hills from San Rafael. It was replaced that year by the narrow gauge North Pacific Coast Railroad that was built to serve Point Reyes and the Tomales Bay region.

Taylor built a 100-room hotel, called it The Azalea and turned Camp Taylor into a leading resort.

The hotel, located on the creek side of today's picnic area, was surrounded by a dance pavilion, guest cottages, store, bowling alley, laundry and stables, according to a map drawn by the late Mrs. Bertha Stedman Rothwell who grew up in Taylorville.



THIS MARKER designates the spot in Taylor Park where Samuel P. Taylor erected his Pioneer Paper Mill in 1856.

(Mrs. Rothwell compiled a history of the area that is kept at both Taylor Park and Bancroft Library.)

ACCORDING TO Ranger Chapin, rose bushes from the old hotel grounds still grow in the picnic area. Nearby stands a redwood stump, all that is left from the Redwood Stump Bar that a century ago greeted visitors as they walked over a bridge across the creek to Camp Taylor from the train.

In today's Irving area of the park, Samuel Taylor's brother-in-law, James Irving, operated a tannery that processes polar bear and seal pelts and turned angora skins into rugs.

With business booming, Taylor decided in 1884 to build a new $165,000 mill to be powered by water and steam, according to the late Florence Donnelly, the Independent-Journal's long-time historian.

TAYLOR'S SON, William P. Taylor, who later became Marin County sheriff, supervised the three-story high operation.

Shortly afterwards, according to Mrs. Rothwell, the Taylors lost their land and buildings when "Mr. Montgomery" of San Francisco foreclosed a mortgage on the property.

FOLLOWING THE destruction of the Hotel Azalea by fire in 1905, Mrs. Rogers, who later stopped paying taxes on her property, ordered all the remaining buildings razed.

The mill was destroyed in a 1915 blaze apparently set by tramps living inside the building.

SAMUEL P. TAYLOR purchased in 1852 the region that one day would become a state park bearing his name. A native New Yorker who had come West during the Gold Rush, he erected the first paper mill in the West, built a 100-room resort hotel and opened the nation's first overnight campgrounds on his land, west of Lagunitas. Today some 180,000 persons visit the historic Marin site that became a public park 28 years ago.

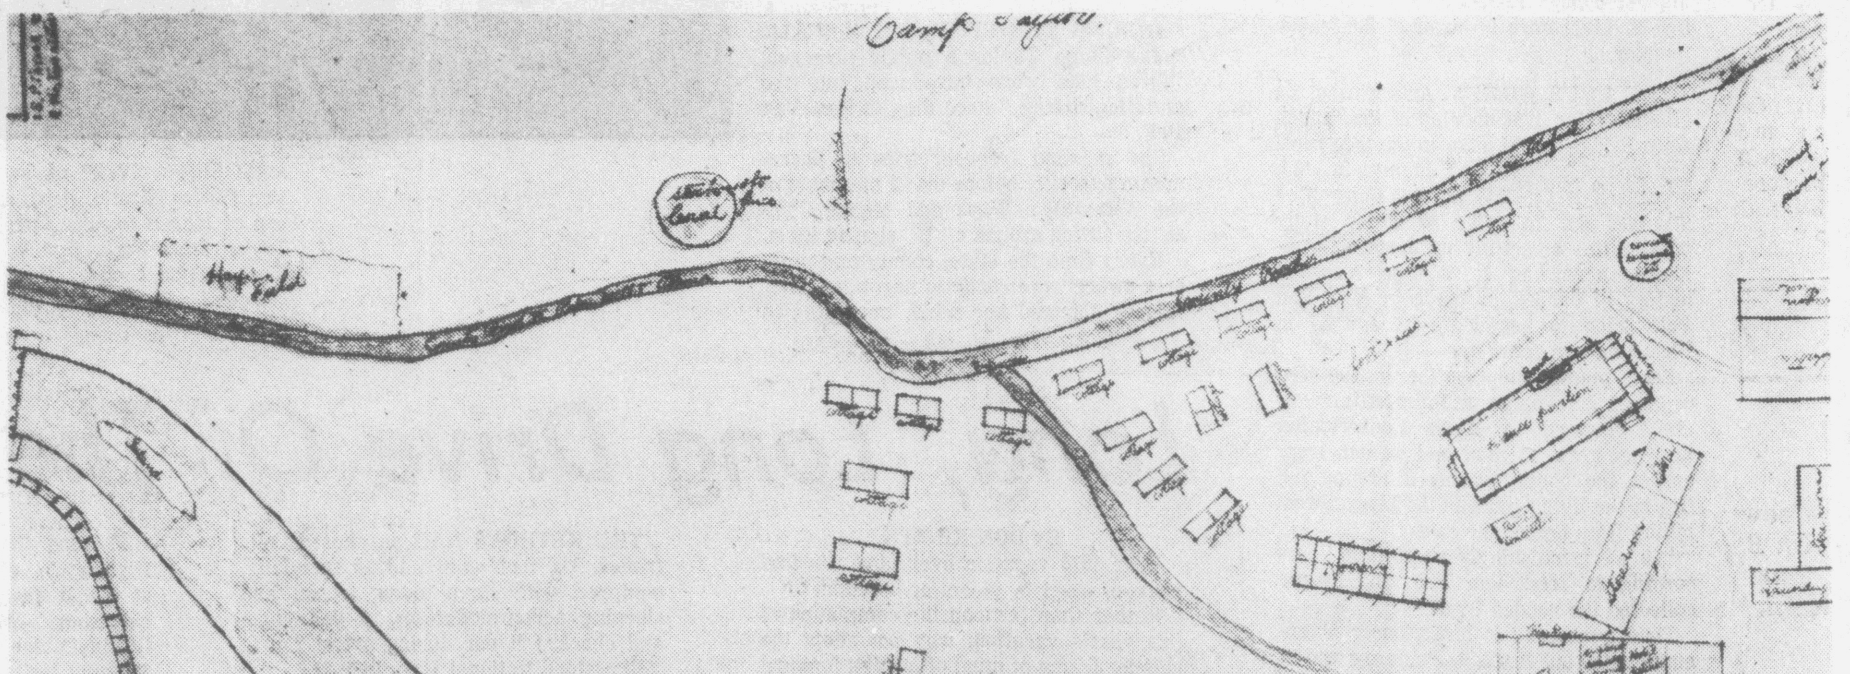
Today nearly 180,000 of the 10 million persons who annually visit Marin's vast network of parks, go to Taylor.

Here they walk and camp along sylvan trails and roads where a century ago Marin's pioneer millmen worked and lived. They fish and swim in the creek where Samuel P. Taylor's eight children and the nation's first overnight campers splashed a century ago.

Next week the Marin Conservation League pauses to honor the four women who made all this possible.



THIS MAP DRAWN by the late Mrs. Bertha Stedman Rothwell shows how Taylor Park's main picnic and barbecue area appeared a century ago. The 100-room Azalea Hotel, the large building on the right, was built by pioneer Samuel Taylor to accommodate the hordes of summer visitors who traveled by train to summer along the banks of the Paper Mill Creek. The hotel was destroyed in a 1905 fire and the surrounding buildings razed by the eccentric widow who later sold her property to the state.

Corte Madera's Dr. Dorothy Morse Has Left Medicine To Devote Her Time To Dog Show Judging

By JEFF GREER

St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco had to convert an old X-ray room into living quarters when it accepted Dr. Dorothy L. Morse — now a Corte Madera resident — as an intern.

The hospital never had a woman physician in residence before that day in 1928.

The administration told the ice-breaking Dr. Morse that she'd have to find another woman intern to share the new quarters, in order to justify the remodeling.

"I could have gone into Children's Hospital — the staff was all women on those days — but I wanted to get into a co-educational hospital," Dr. Morse recalled. She got her way.

THE DOCTOR WAS 27 when she completed her internship and launched into private practice in 1930 — "right in the depths of the Depression."

The times were doubly hard for a woman doctor, even though she had opened the doors of one hospital to her sex.

"I went around and talked to a lot of doctors. They all told me to start some place out of town. But I was determined to stay in San Francisco," she recalled.

"I WENT DOWN and pestered the dickens out of the head of the city's public health department. Finally, I got a job — in the V.D. clinic" — and this was in the days when venereal disease was unmentionable in polite society.

Between her part-time duties with the city and her private practice, she made a life for herself in her native city, despite the discouraging advice from her seniors. Before she retired four years ago, Dr. Morse "delivered more than 4,000 babies before I quit counting them."

One of the highlights of her years in medicine came when she performed Cesarian delivery of triplets for a destitute family from Mexico.

"THE FATHER WAS an unemployed painter; the mother was suffering toxemia; but the two girls and a boy were fine," she recalled. "Neither the hospital nor I ever got paid, but I went around to the milk companies and other people and talked them out of food and clothing to get the babies through the first year. And then they went back to Mexico, and I haven't heard of them since."

She decided early in her medical training to specialize in obstetrics and gynecology, and this led to her selection by the city's medical staff for duties in the girls' wing of the San Francisco Juvenile Hall.

"I became a sort of mother confessor to the girls," as well as treating their ailments and delivering babies for many of them in the years between 1940 and 1965. In addition, she often was called in the middle of the night to rush to the city's Central Emergency Hospital to treat rape victims.

SHE CONTINUED midnight races with the stork to several San Francisco hospitals even after she moved to Corte Madera in 1948.

Perhaps, Dr. Morse confided, she might not have retired yet, but "I felt I was being too regimented" by red tape, spending time on bureaucratic paperwork instead of treating patients.

"One thing wrong with medicine now," she believes, "is there's less personal attention.

"A mother is anesthetized, the doctor delivers the baby and maybe sees her a few times in the next few days, and then she goes home and that's it."

SHE MAINTAINS her medical license and keeps abreast of the new developments. She holds honorary rather than emeritus membership in the San Francisco Medical Society.

Her roots go deep into California history.

"Nobody ever told me what it would be like to be a doctor, but I wanted to be one," says Dr. Dorothy L. Morse. "I didn't even know until later there were other doctors in the family."

Her grandfather, a veteran of Union Navy service in the Civil War, won a post as lighthouse keeper in California, and left behind the rest of his family in New England to move into the old lighthouse at the Farralone Islands with his bride.

"WHEN IT CAME time for my father to be born, the Coast Guard had to send a cutter to the island and take my grandmother off in a breeches buoy, so the birth could occur in a San Francisco hospital," she said.

Dr. Morse spent her childhood vacations in lighthouses near San Francisco and Santa Barbara. Her grandmother, after being widowed, became the first woman lighthouse keeper on the West Coast, tending the light at Santa Barbara.

Dr. Dorothy's father became a plumber in turn-of-the-century San Francisco, and she was three years old when the great 1906 earthquake and fire wreaked havoc with the city.

"I REMEMBER IT distinctly — it was so different from anything that ever happened before or since," she said. "I remember my father going down to Dolores Street — it was the widest street in the fire area — and coming back to tell us how the firefighters had to open up the sewers and fight the fire with that water because the water mains were dry."

"But they stopped the fire" and her own family's home was not endangered, she recalled.

The future doctor attended McKinley Grammar School and Lowell High School, where she made up her mind to go into medicine.

"Nobody ever told me what it would be like to be a doctor, but I wanted to be one. I didn't even know until later that there were other doctors in the family back in New England," she said.

SHE RUSHED THROUGH high school in a little over three years to get into the University of California in the fall of 1920. She worked in her spare time to earn room and board at college. During summer vacations, she took education classes to guarantee herself a way of making a living should she be unable to study medicine.

Even after gaining her doctorate, she continued studying — taking and passing the stiff examinations in 1945 for admission to the national board of gynecology and obstetrics.

"I could have called myself a specialist without the exams — but I wanted to earn the title," she explained.

The determination that put her through medical school and earned her a place in the medical world's heavily male-dominated domain still shows up even after her retirement.

SHE'S LAUNCHED A new career, becoming a dog show judge, licensed by the American Kennel Club.

She's "always had Boston terriers since 1935" but became an owner and breeder of boxers in 1960. The name "Ben-Hame" (it means mountain home in Scotland) is now attached to three generations of champions.

She's been through the chairs of office in the Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club. As president this year, she supervised the largest dog show the club ever held, on Sept. 15. In addition, she has been active with the East Bay Boxer Club, the Golden Gate Boxer Club and Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders.

DR. MORSE NOW is toiling to schedule numerous educational and entertainment performances that will be highlights of the annual Expo K-9 dog show and fund day sponsored by Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders Inc. at the Marin County Fairgrounds on Oct. 27.

She said she has recruited teams of Doberman pinchers and their owners who will put on agility demonstrations, Shetland sheepdog marching and dancing drill units, a squadron of Bernese Mountain Dogs and Great Pyranees who will pull carts to give youngsters rides, sled dog races with wheeled sleds, and other activities.

She's also busy as a director of the Animal Medical Care Foundation of Marin, which recently put on the successful Animal Fair at the San Geronimo Valley Horsemen's arena.

EVER BUSY, SHE also occupies herself with turning the yard of her home at 458 Redwood Avenue into a lush but orderly sort of flowered forest.

She's been hostess there "to at least 10 generations of raccoons and thousands of birds." She feeds all the wild little creatures daily, getting to know them almost as well as the children she's delivered or her own pet dogs.

They now get the benefit of her longtime philosophy in her practice of medicine — personal attention and talk.

Count the distant stars.
Can you reach even one?
Catch a bird in flight.
Will you be as free?
Touch the softness of the night.
Can you feel tenderness?
Taste the dew on a morning flower.
Will you hold love as gently?
Paint a thousand dreams.
Can you bring just one to life?
Behold the weeping faces.
Can you make them smile?
Listen to the babbling voices.
Can you speak a word of peace?
See the forest of the blind.
Will you take their hands?
Feel the weight of the weary world.
Can you lighten it?
Look to the Giants of the Earth.
Can you stand as tall as a tree?
Look upon your inheritance.
Will you leave it to decay,
Or will you rise with the morning sun
And challenge all the shadows.
Will your children step into cold and darkness,
Or will they warm the world
With their legacy,
And shine will all your brightness . . .?

YOUR CHALLENGE, MY CHILDREN . . .

Count the distant stars.
Can you reach even one?
Catch a bird in flight.
Will you be as free?
Touch the softness of the night.
Can you feel tenderness?
Taste the dew on a morning flower.
Will you hold love as gently?
Paint a thousand dreams.
Can you bring just one to life?
Behold the weeping faces.
Can you make them smile?
Listen to the babbling voices.
Can you speak a word of peace?
See the forest of the blind.
Will you take their hands?
Feel the weight of the weary world.
Can you lighten it?
Look to the Giants of the Earth.
Can you stand as tall as a tree?
Look upon your inheritance.
Will you leave it to decay,
Or will you rise with the morning sun
And challenge all the shadows.
Will your children step into cold and darkness,
Or will they warm the world
With their legacy,
And shine will all your brightness . . .?
MILL VALLEY JUNE THUNES

AT DAWSON CITY, the Yukon, Mr. and Mrs. George Ketron paused to enjoy its historic Gold Rush days sights, and to board the Yukon Lou along with other tourists for a boat tour of the Yukon River.

THE TRIP NORTH on the Alaska Highway and ancilliary routes is pitted with nails, and murder on tires. Here George Ketron changes a tire that has fallen victim to spikes at the Dawson City campgrounds.

The End of the Road

AT CIRCLE CITY in the far, far north, the George Ketrons relax outside the trailer and automobile that served them so well on their long trip. The Yukon River appears in the background of this snapshot.

The first 93 miles were on paved road. Then the gravel began. "And you have to see the highway to believe it," says Mrs. Ketron, shaking her head in recollection of dust, bumps, chuckholes and mud.

THE KETRONS were to cover all but 25 miles of the Alaska Highway. At Whitehorse, after enjoying its famous train ride and its sights, they took the Klondike Loop up through historic Dawson City.

The Taylor Highway in Alaska they remember for its "chuckholes more than a foot deep."

At Tetlin Junction they rejoined the Alaska Highway — and paved road. But that lasted only 13 miles. Then along the Glenn Highway and next the Richardson Highway to Valdez, where Kipper the dog was lost for 18 hours.

Word spread around town and the posting of a notice in the post office brought Kipper's return, thanks to a Valdez woman who found the strayed pet.

AT VALDEZ THE Ketrons also saw the stacks of pipe — over 400 miles of it — that had been assembled there for the building of the Alaska Pipeline. Later they were to see the second stockpile, for the other end of the pipeline, in Fairbanks.

The Ketrons describe Valdez as "beautiful — a veritable little Switzerland."

Anchorage, their next stop, they describe as "just another city." But there they visited with Mrs. Ketron's daughter, Kathy Burch. They then continued on to Seward, to Homer and to Anchor Point "where we drove out a mile on the finger of the Cook Inlet which is as far as you can drive on the Western Hemisphere, and from where you can see the Aleutians."

Weather obscured the visibility of the mountain itself, but the Ketrons were much impressed with the abundance of wildlife, sighting grizzly bear, moose, caribou, eagle, etc.

At Fairbanks, they were stunned by grocery prices that included $1.15 for a dozen eggs, $1.72 for a pound of bacon, 73 cents for a quart of milk and 53 cents a pound for carrots.

Out of Fairbanks "we really started hitting those Alaskan roads."

EVEN PAVING IS not the answer to Alaska's road problem, they report, since the permafrost, the thawing and the continuing movement of the sub-surface of the earth play havoc with such roadbeds, as well as with the foundations of buildings.

Driving the Steece Highway to Circle City, they then took a plane flight to Fort Yukon and its Indian village eight miles north of the Arctic Circle.

On July 21, it was 80 degrees. And at 10:30 p.m. the sun was too bright for photography.

RETURNING TO THEIR car and trailer at Circle City, they again visited the Athabaskan Indian friend they had made there, Sandy Roberts, 73 years old, born 160 miles above the Arctic Circle, and still planting his own garden.

A stretch on the Elliott Highway brought the Ketrons "the worst dust yet. It beat them all!"

From Fairbanks they returned to the Alaska Highway and to Haines Junction and on down to Haines. There they caught a ferryboat down the Inland Passage.

Their first stop was Juneau, Alaska's state capital, followed by Sitka where they admired the treasure-laden Russian Orthodox St. Michael's cathedral, restored by the townspeople of all faiths after a disastrous 1966 fire.

IN ALL, THE Ketrons rode "all five ferries of the Alaskan Ferry System," also visiting Wrangell ("where Kipper was lost again") and Ketchikan ("which has the heaviest rainfall in the state, but where we saw our only sunshine of our stint on the Inland Passage").

Several of these towns offered "homespun" entertainment re-creating the flavor of earlier times that the Ketrons enjoyed thoroughly.

From Prince Rupert, B.C., the Ketrons drove to Prince George and made a sidetrip through the Kamloops and the fertile Okanogan Valley. They followed the Fraser River Canyon to Vancouver, and took the ferryboat to Vancouver Island.

Three days were spent enjoying the charm of Victoria.

FROM THERE, THEY crossed to the U.S. mainland at Port Angeles by ferryboat, "and as soon as we hit the shore the dogs seemed to know that we were headed home."

The return home was made via Highway 101.

"And we got home still speaking to each other," chuckles Ketron.

"And without any illnesses. We didn't even have to take an aspirin tablet," adds Mrs. Ketron.

THEIR VEHICLES HAD taken a fearful battering, they admit, but except for the to-be-expected flat tires, had stood the assault well.

"The Canadians and Alaskans are terrific people," they report. "The Canadians, in particular, seemed happy to have visitors. And whenever there was work to be done on the car, the men charged quite reasonably for their labor. There was no taking advantage of the tourists."

Gasoline prices were a pleasant surprise.

"We were 600 miles along the Alaska Highway before we paid as much for gasoline as we were paying here," George Ketron says.

THE HIGHEST PRICE they paid was 90 cents a gallon at remote Circle City. "But gasoline was not one of the really high cost items."

They sighted lots of other recreation vehicles on the highways and roads of both Canada and Alaska. And a good many carried California license plates.

The Ketrons have this advice for Marinites who might be considering a trip to our northern-most state in 1975:

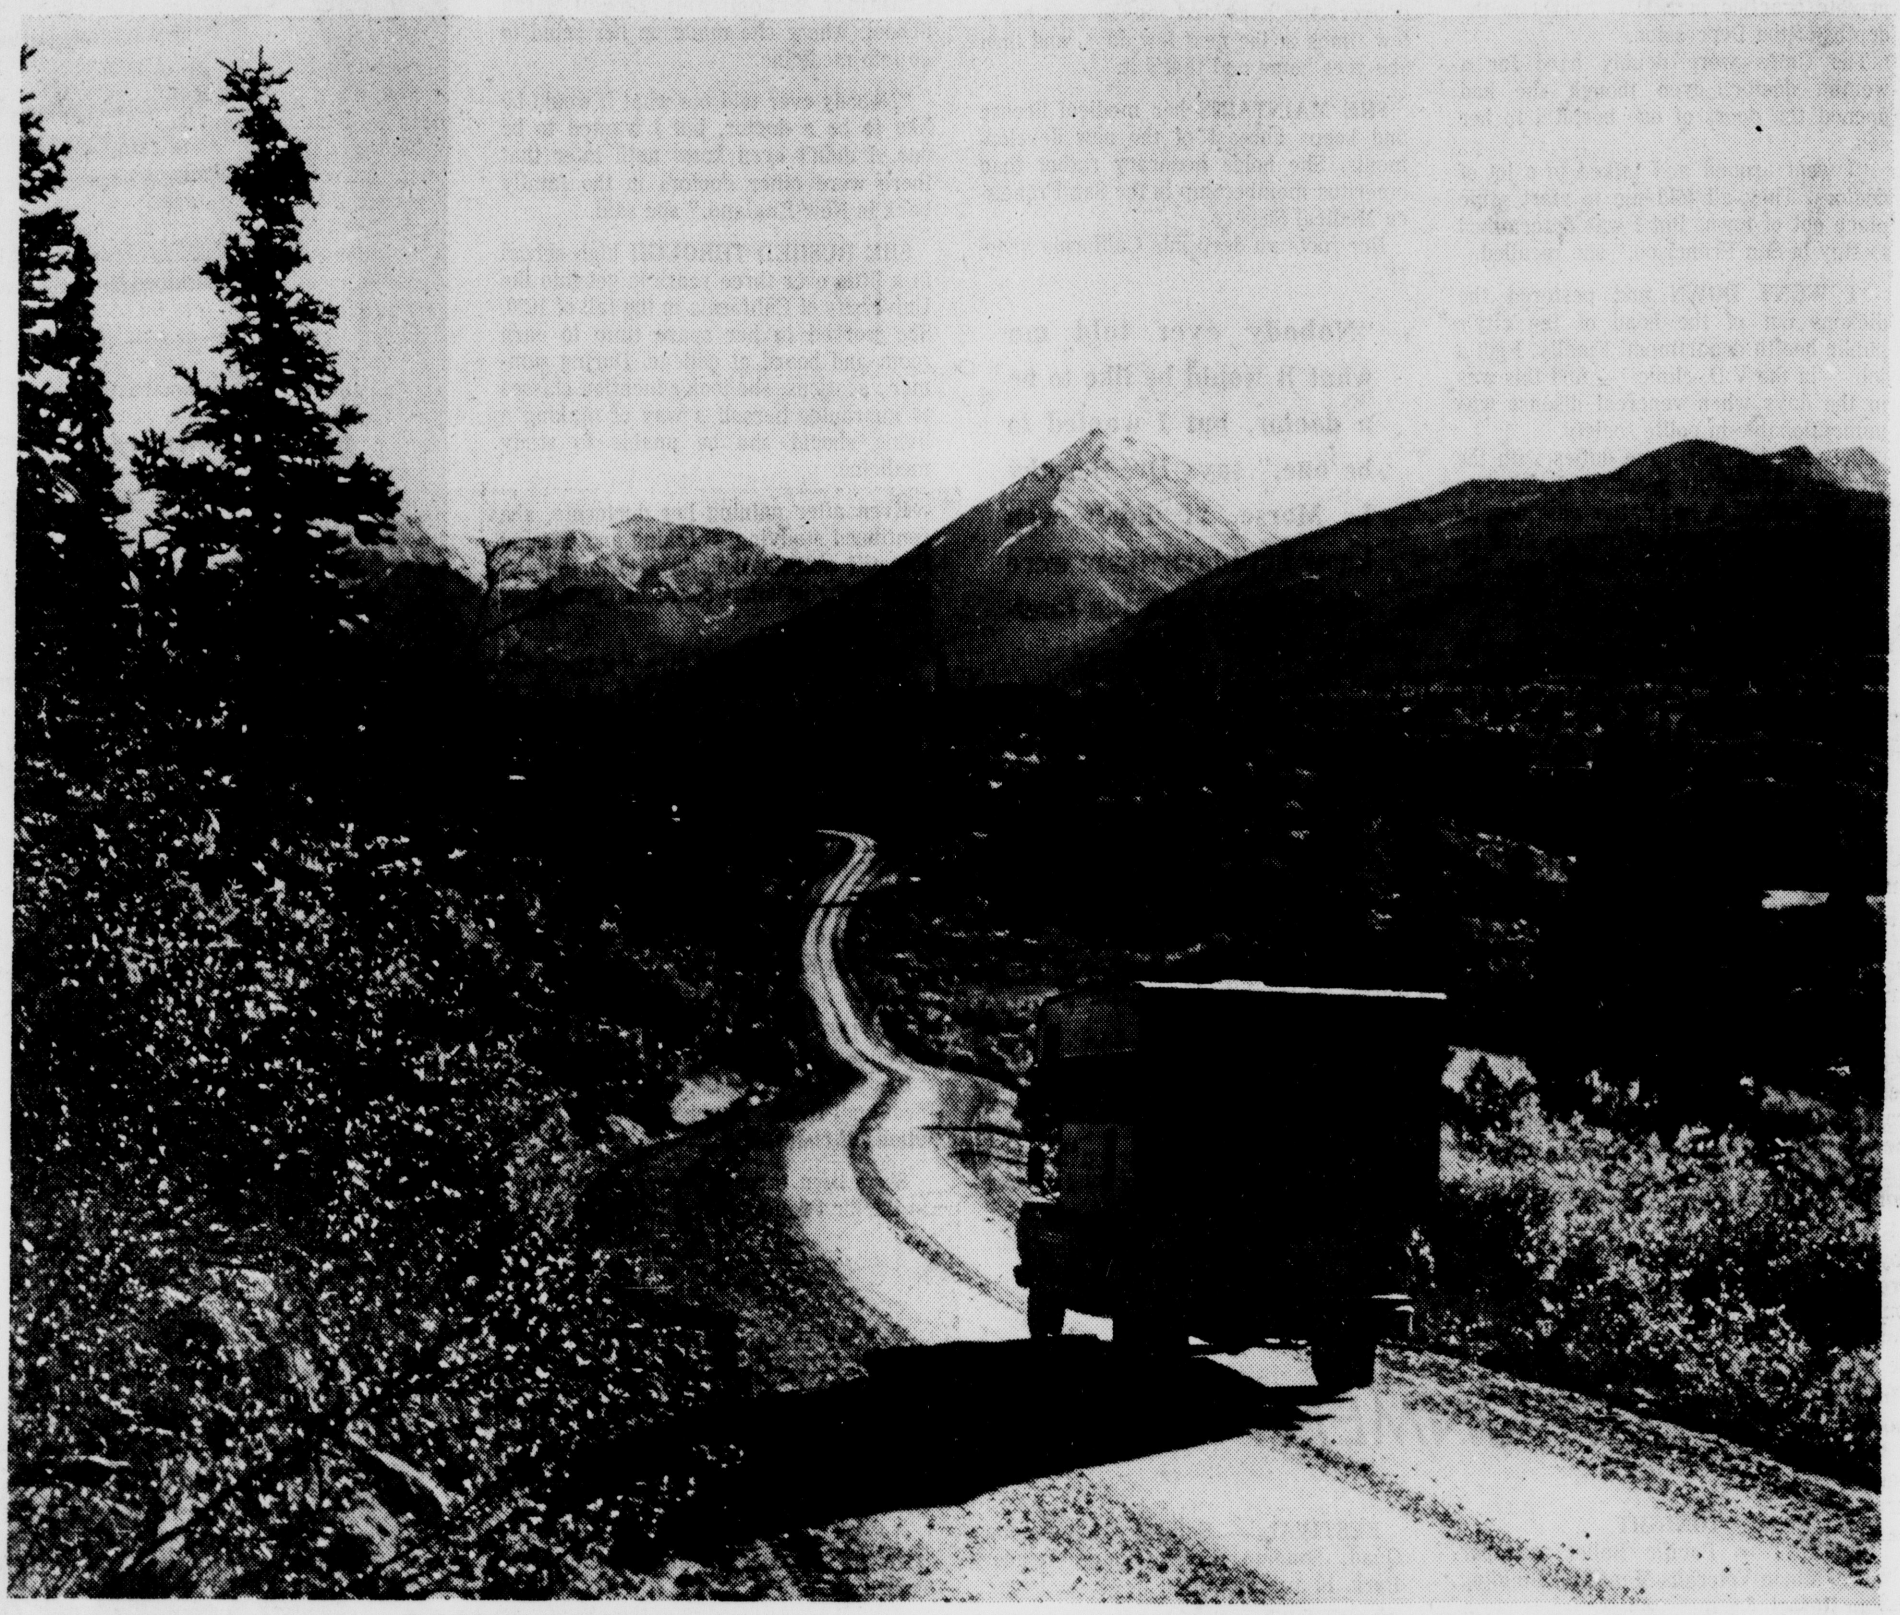
"BE SURE YOU have your car in good mechanical condition. Start out ith brand new tires, including the spares.

"And be prepared to replace the windshield when you get home. It will have had it."

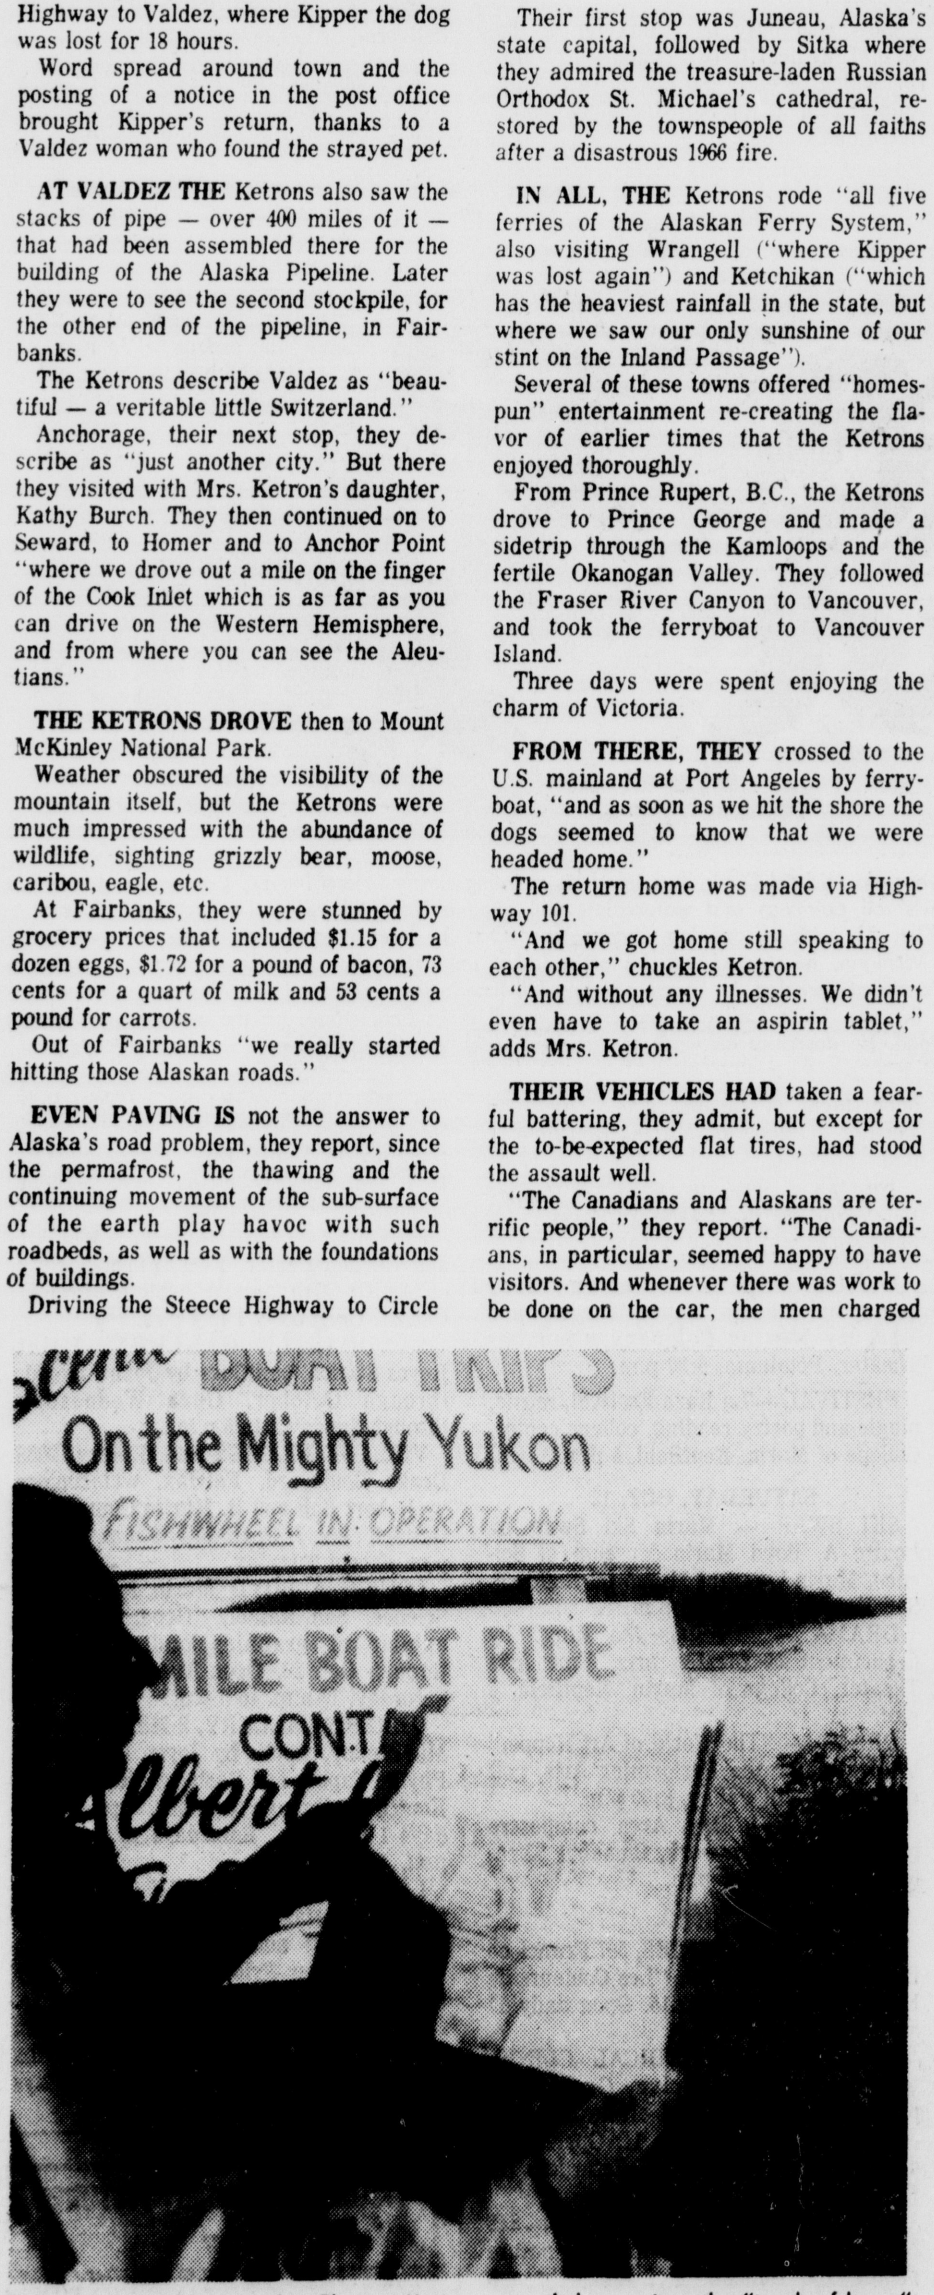
And George Ketron suggests that if you duplicate their ferryboat portion of their trip, you arrange when you buy your tickets for drop-off privileges at every port whether you expect to exercise them or not. Otherwise you can't drop off without an extra charge.

AND FINALLY, THIS piece of advice: "Don't let others talk you out of making the trip. We were almost frightened out of it by some who told us we were too old for such a trip. But while we are almost 60, we saw lots of older travelers on the roads, enjoying themselves and experiencing no difficulties.

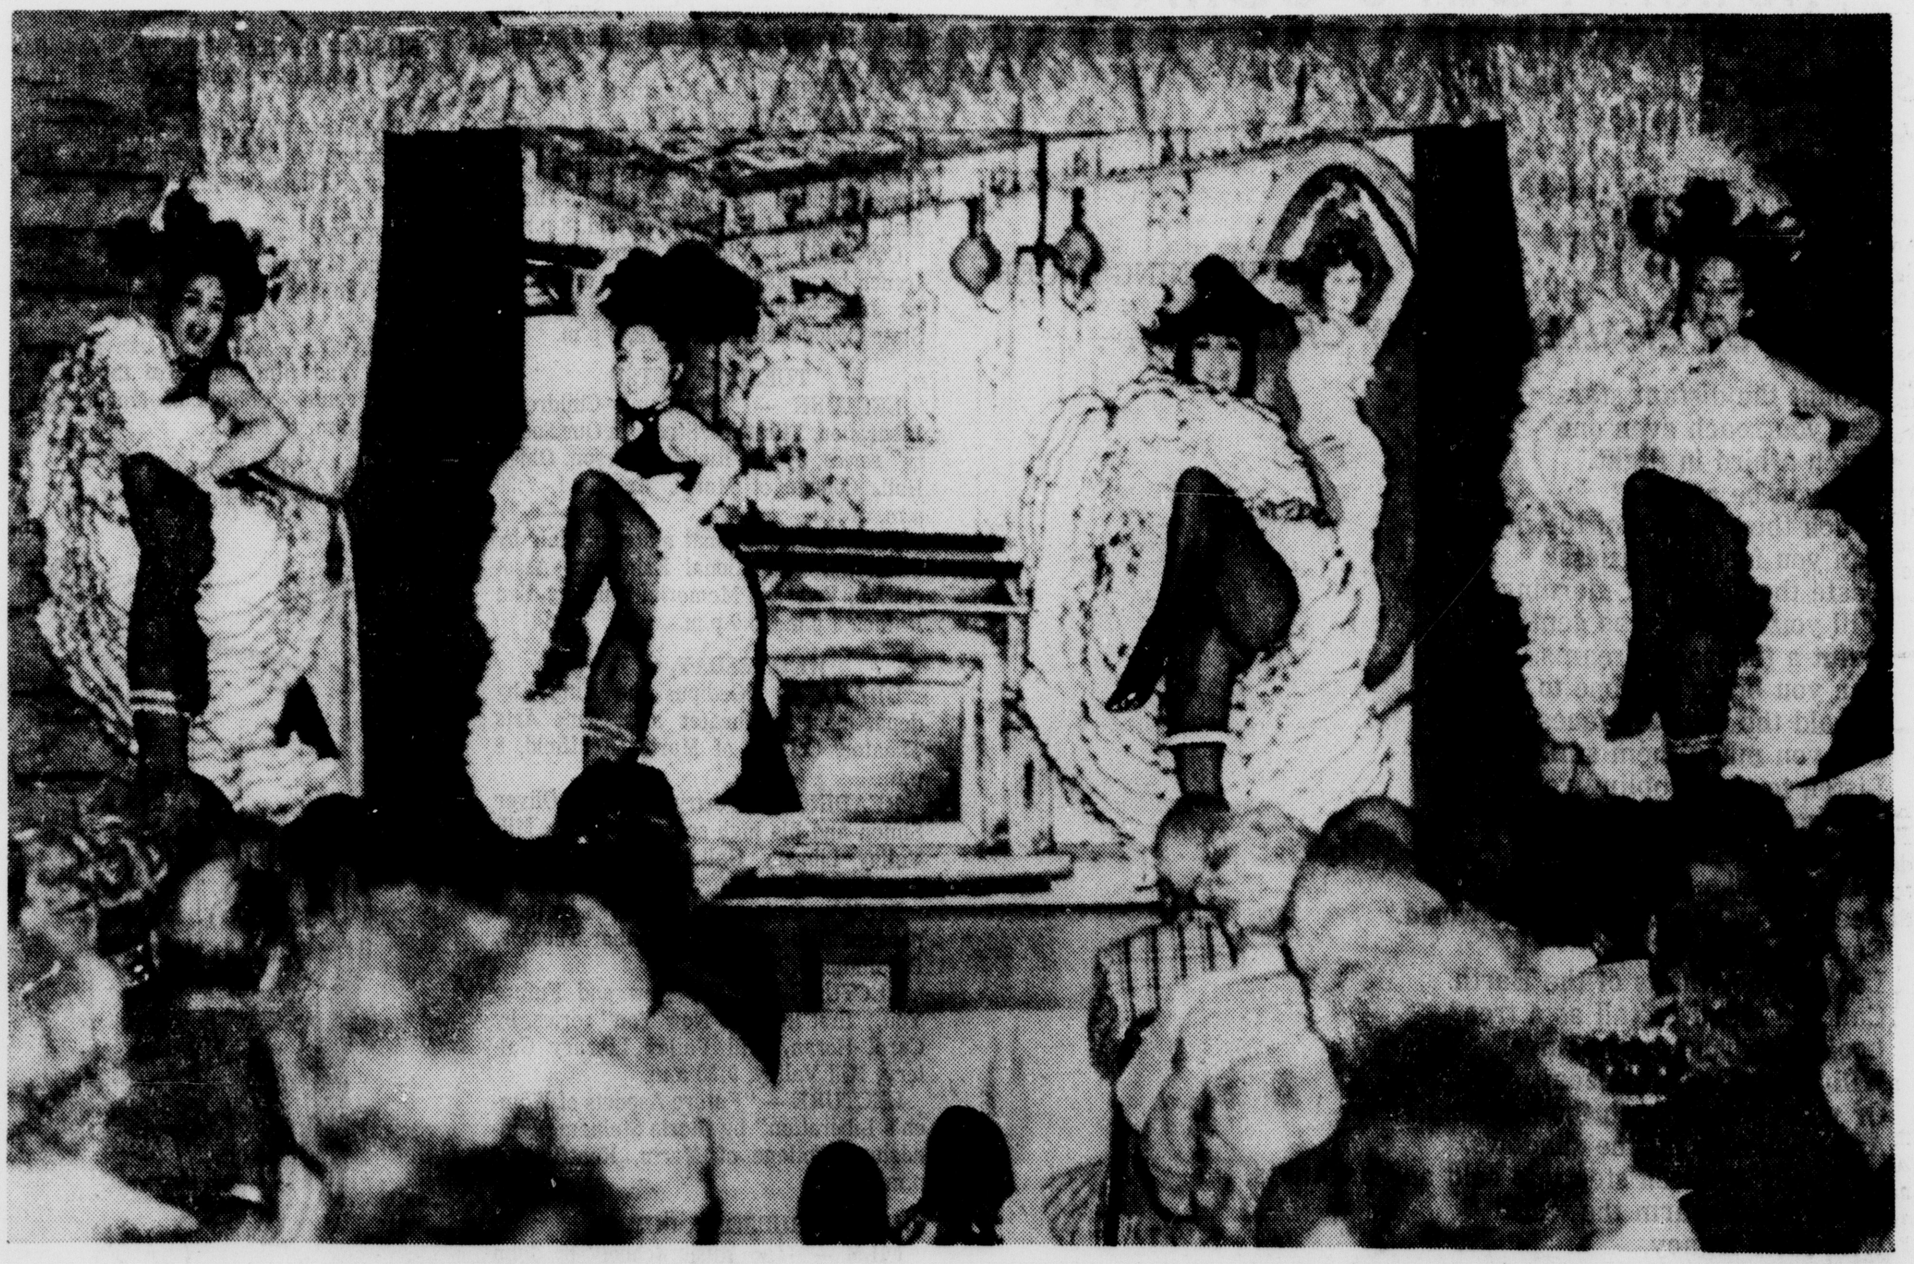
"Really, it's no great strain at all, as long as you drive sanely and keep in mind the road conditions. Your worst problem is the trucks that boom along at 50 to 60 miles an hour, throwing up rocks and dust. But just take it easy and enjoy yourself. There's always something new and interesting, waiting for you up the road."



THE ROADS AND highways of the Yukon and Alaska are very different from California's freeways, admit George and Eleanor Ketron. Nevertheless, recreation vehicles negotiate them with ease. And often there's a Californian behind the steering wheel. The scene here is the Canol Road in the Yukon Territory, with the grandeur of Canada's mountains ahead.



THE NEWS IS A bit old, but Eleanor Ketron, nevertheless, enjoys the "touch of home" that comes from a reading of a copy of the San Rafael Independent-Journal that she found inside their trailer. The place is Circle City, beside the Yukon River. And the time is 10 p.m., but with plenty of natural light for outdoor reading.



THE FRIENDLY PEOPLE of Alaska and the Yukon often stage shows for their visitors that feature home talent and recall the colorful days of the Gold Rush and other early times. The can-can dancers here are residents of Whitehorse, performing before a packed audience that included George and Eleanor Ketron.

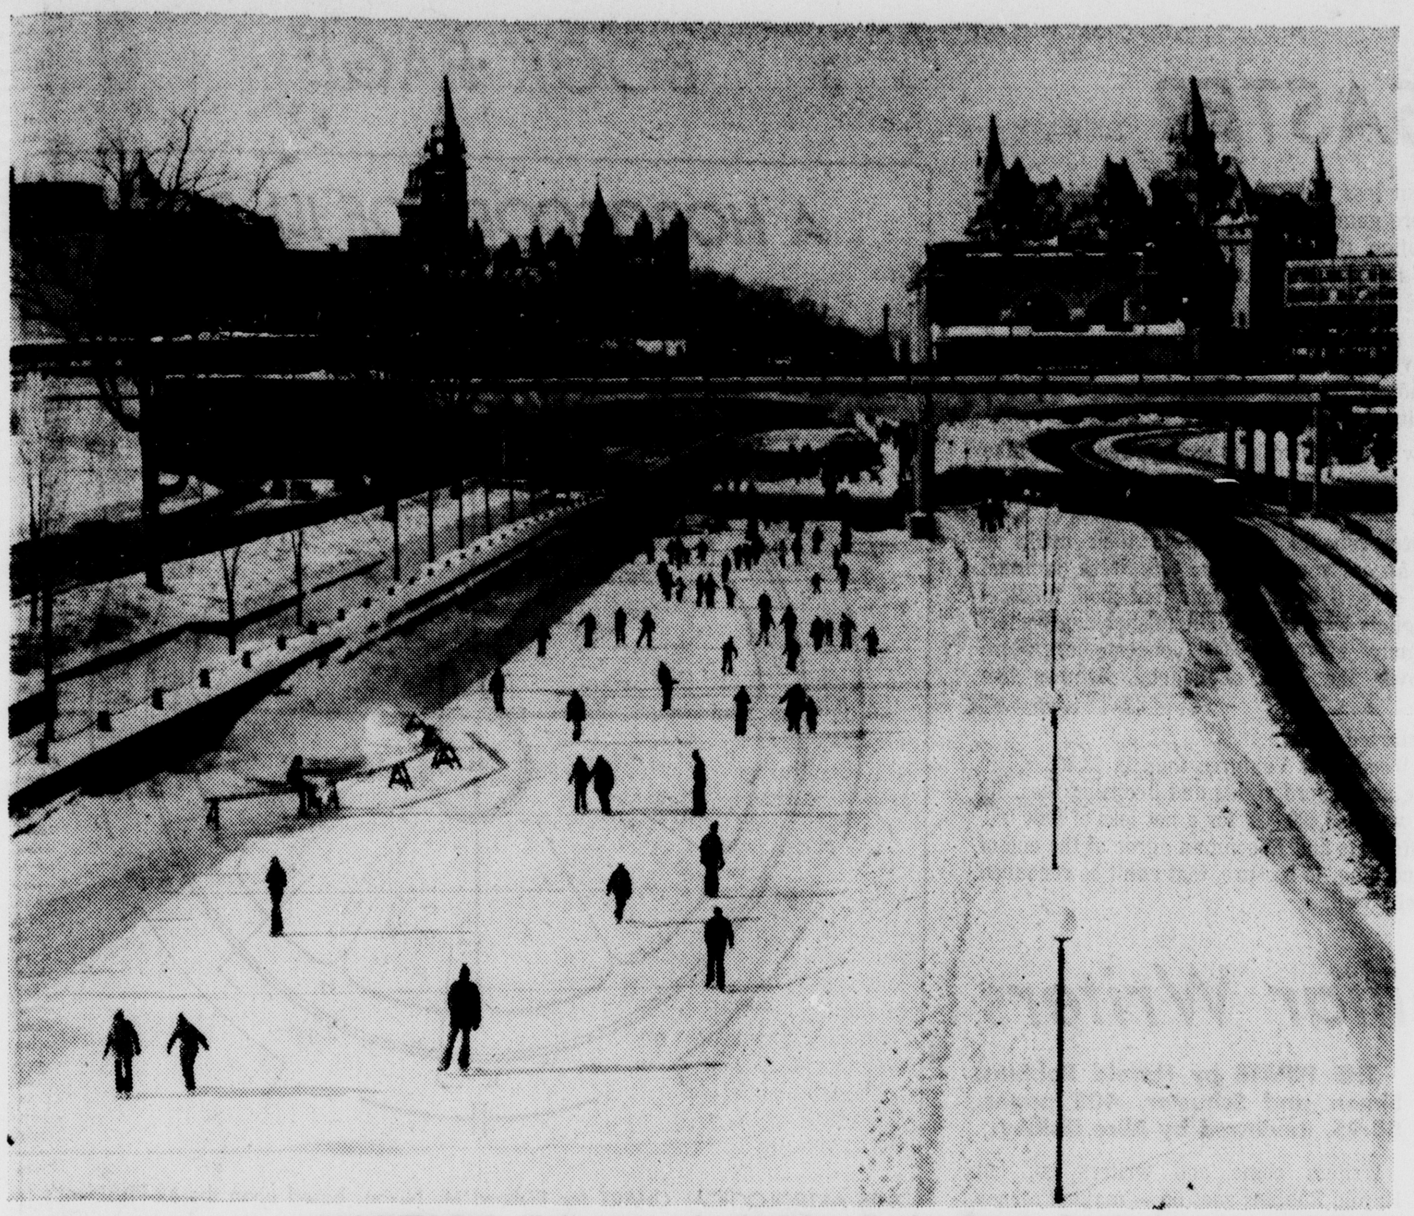
Ottawa's Long, Long Rink



IN WINTER-TIME, which comes early, the Rideau Canal in Ottawa, Canada, becomes a gigantic ice skating rink, five miles long, through the heart of the city and ending at Parliament Hill. Last winter there were 38,000 skaters on the ice in a single day. And in the summer, the canoeing enthusiasts take over.
(Canadian Government Office of Tourism photo)

By MARY JANE CHARTERS

A canal designed as a "back door to the Great Lakes in case of an invasion from the south" is now bringing back the days of mom's apple pie, fireplaces and baked beans.

The Rideau Canal, built in the precautionary days following the War of 1812, is a skating rink — a five mile sheet of ice through the center of Ottawa, Canada's capital, that turns winter weekends into old-fashioned Christmas card scenes.

The parents who canoe their children down the canal in summer, pull them along the route on sleighs in winter. The hopeful Bobby Orrs, Karen Magnussens and Toller Cranstons share ice time, hot dogs and hot chocolates with grandparents, teen-agers, university students and couples on a first date.

LAST WINTER AS many as 38,000 skated on the canal in a single day.

From Parliament Hill where the Rideau Canal meets the Ottawa River, the canal wanders past the National Arts Center newer additions to the University of Ottawa, downtown residential sections of the city, Lansdowne Park and Dow's Lake before ending up at the campus of Carleton University. In all, there's 14 million square feet of ice surface.

Along the way are food concessions, skate sharpenters, benches and change houses. Proficient skaters trained in first aid, act as skate patrols every day from 4 p.m. to midnight and all day on weekends.

The Rideau Canal was constructed on the recommendation of the Duke of Wellington to provide safer lines of communication between Montreal and new settlements on Lake Ontario in the event of resumption of war with the United States. The 123-mile canal connecting Kingston on Lake Ontario with Ottawa, took six years to build and was completed in 1832. It cost the British government four million dollars.

Much of the old stonework on the original locks and dams remains unchanged. Today the canal adds greatly to the natural beauty of the federal capital region of Ottawa — boulevarded driveways, flower gardens, bikepaths used by walkers and cross-country skiers in winter, and huge trees have made the area a park both winter and summer.

Skating along the canal was proposed in 1969 by the then chairman of the National Capital Commission, Douglas Fullerton. The idea was in keeping with the commission's philogosphy of finding imaginative and enjoyable uses for unused resources and prompted Fullerton to write a piece on "how to survive the urban winter." The rink is not a panacea for all winter ills, he said, but a priest had suggested to him that canal skating had done more for family togetherness than all his sermons on the subject.

But the rink was not without its problems.

A skate changing station and four tractors have fallen through the ice; new methods for maintenance had to be devised to avoid large cracks along canal walls caused by the expansion of water as it freezes.

After experimenting with different water levels, researchers discovered if the water was lowered five feet, expansion damage would be minimized and the skating surface would be left as large as if the water hadn't been lowered at all.

A variety of light and heavyweight machinery is used by an ice-clearing staff that works 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to insure best possible conditions.

To re-surface the ice, holes are drilled to the water below and pumped to the surface where it is spread as evenly as possible and allowed to set. Burners are also used to melt the ice surface and make it smoother.

The National Capital Commission has strung colored lights along the canal and initiated a flag system to let skaters know the condition of the ice.

When green flags are up, impromptu skating parties are called, students strap on backpacks full of books, and public servants stride off for work down the "longest-man-made skating rink in the world."

Copenhagen—The City Where The Tourists Really Feel Welcome

By NEIL MORGAN

COPENHAGEN — In theory it is no longer possible to Meet the Danes.

That novel program, through which the people of Copenhagen invited foreigners into their homes for an evening, began in 1946 in the happy flush of Allied victory. But it has recently been abandoned.

"DANES TRAVEL so much now," says Mette Carstens, who helped to direct the program. "They have their own foreign friends. Foreign people are not that interesting to Copenhagen people anymore."

But in a lamp shop not far from the Royal Theater a hearty Dane sweeps the foreign visitor in from the sidewalk, pours coffee, discusses everything but lamps, and finally locks his shop to take the stranger to lunch.

In his taxi, Svend Ryting reminisces about the kindness of western Americans to him and his family when they spent months camping across the United States enroute to his tenure with the Danish seamen's mission in San Francisco.

NIELS HJORTH, whose son pilots an SAS jet to Los Angeles, takes the visitor to the Museum of the Danish Resistance and recalled the close ties of Danes and Americans in World War II.

He points to a statue of Winston Churchill.

"Do you know why he is looking down at the ground?" he asks with the twinkle that the visitor recognizes as standard in smiling Copenhagen. "He has dropped his cigar."

ALONG THE WINDING Strojet, the walking street lined with some of the world's most enticing shops, two backpacking, bearded Americans are agog.

"We shoulda come here sooner," says one. "I dig the vibes of this town."

Copenhagen's mayor has written an open letter that goes to young visitors from all lands, along with invitations to enjoy the city's tent camps that offer overnight lodging and breakfast for $2.50. It notes that Copenhagen welcomes all young people, "even those with whom we disagree."

THAT COMES AS close as anything to suggesting the relaxed, joyful mood of this great Danish city. It is a city to which this reporter returns with increasing affection and appreciation.

It is a tough, honest working city, but its people infuse it with an admirably balanced sense of gaity and restraint.

The Danes' obsession with good design extends to their homes and shops, their sidewalks and public buildings, their ceramics and furniture, and even their own bodies.

BUT THE "PORNO" shops of Copenhagen are old hat, largely inhabited by curious tourists from Germany. The American visitor can no longer curl his lip in sanctimonious abhorrence of Scandinavian sex mores. The most prominently advertised porno films on exhibit in Copenhagen are American-made.

The nightly magic of Tivoli, the walled, 20-acre entertainment center next to Town Hall, continues a daily tribute to the Danes' ability to entertain themselves and their guests with unique charm.

It is a fairyland of colorful lights, flowers, games, music and food. Presumably, its format has undergone constant adaptation since Tivoli opened in 1843, but its impression is that of an unchanging classic. After a dozen visits over the years, this reporter can only conclude that Tivoli's secret is linked to the Danes' instinct for balance and form.

IN THE TRIVOLI Jubilee Book of 1918 one may find a clue:

"Everything must be in the old way, or we cannot understand it. But everything must also be new, or it bores us."

The admission price this year to Tivoli, with its free concerts and displays, is about 50 cents. It is among the best tourist buys left on this troubled continent.

TAXES AND INFLATION, those mortal enemies of carefree travel, dictate that the visitor bring his own alcohol and drink his cocktails in his own hotel room, preferably at an establishment away from mainline tourism.

It is no coincidence that foreign visitors are seen often at hot dog stands, pizzerias and in hotel coffee shops.

The American in Europe is no longer gaudy in his lavish expenditures.

But these high costs tend to push the visitor off tourist thoroughfares and force him to mingle more with the Danes in their own milieu. There remain few countries in which he is more welcome, or the rewards greater.

The Cruise Ships Are On The Move

Despite the fuel crises and inflation — or maybe because of them — West Coast pleasure cruising seems to be doing fine, thank you.

The salt water bonanza that began a half-dozen years back has just totted-up its gaudiest Alaskan summer, and now steers south for the old season, to sunny Mexico, the Caribbean and Polynesia.

Passengers evidently like the security of the pre-sold ticket, and the lines have raised fares enough to cope with the added fuel costs while keeping the customers coming. Brand-wise, some of the familiar names have disappeared, and a few new ones are on the horizon.

Showing British aplomb, P&O Line bought Princess Cruises in July, but instead of digesting the popular Italian-flavored carrier, P&O phased-out its own West Coast cruise operation. The new subsidiary will sail both Island Princess and Spirit of London under the Princess flag, with the latter re-named "Sun Princess".

In 1974-75, there's a new pattern emerging. Some territories are literally dominated by the lines best-suited to serve 'em most profitably.

For example, the Caribbean resembles a Norwegian lake for West Coast cruisers. From now through next June, Royal Viking Line sends its three 22,000-ton liners, nine decks tall, on 18 Carib' jaunts; mostly from California ports (with numerous fly-cruise options), but several from New Orleans. These touch the Gulf Coast of Central America to inspect the amazing Mayan cities, just being reclaimed from the jungle.

Just to keep RVL alert, Island Princess as Caribbean schedules, and so does Fairseas of Sitmar Cruises. Taiwan-based Orient Overseas Line offers 20-day Mexico-Central America trips on the 300-passenger "combination" freighters Oriental Esmeralda and Carnaval, with the first departures in November from San Diego.

Hawaii remains a favorite cruise destination, as it was in Gatsby's day. Hawaiian chief is the U.S.-flag carrier, Pacific Far East Line, sailing comfortable Monterey and Mariposa. October through June, the sisters make five-day passages to Honolulu from California (or vice versa), and they also offer nine 18-day round-trip calls on four Hawaiian Islands.

Mexico is scheduled for more than 50 visits by California-based ships during the season beginning Oct. 12. Island Princess and Spirit of London split the honors evenly, with cruises ranging from one week to 15 days.

Two Royal Viking sailings add to the total on Dec. 22 and Jan. 5. Ports to see and shop include Acapulco, Manzanillo, Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Cabo San Lucas.

The South Pacific is the domain of PEEL's Monterey and Mariposa, featuring 43-day round-trips to the most exotic isles, Australia and New Zealand. The competition is Royal Viking Star and Sky whose cruises last 46 days. Royal Viking Sky also offers a 69-day Circle Pacific adventure to the Antipodes and the Orient, with bon-voyage sailing out of San Francisco on Feb. 24.

Fuel problems resolved, Orient Overseas Line is back in the Asiatic cruise trade. Leisurely 62-day trans-Pacific round trips are highlighted by generous stopovers (for freight) in Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Japan. Esmeralda and Carnval are the ships.

Also in the longer category are a 67-day European cruise in April by Monterey, and several "to and from" by the Royal Vikings. Gem of the collection is Royal Viking Sea's around-the-world cruise, 96 days, from New Orleans next Jan. 6.

There's a free folder listing most of these cruises, by destination and date, available from the Pacific Cruise Conference, 311 California Street, San Francisco, 94104.

Britain Lays Emphasis On Architecture

Four projects in Britain have been chosen for special attention next year as part of the 1975 European Architectural Heritage Year.

They're the leading items in Britain's participation in a major event designed to awaken the interests of Europeans in their great architecture of the past. Emergency programs are being mounted to prevent the destruction of great architecture threatened by "progress."

More than $2,500,000 is being spent on Britain's pilot projects under the presidency of Prince Philip. The New Town of Edinburgh, once a model of city planning, is to be restored and revitalised.

Chester, in western England, already one of Britain's most beautiful towns, will restore and reconstruct a formerly beautiful street.

Poole, in southern England, will preserve and protect the 15 acres of the town center known as "the precinct." In Fife, the Scottish county, which is the home of St. Andrews and the old Scottish capital, there is beginning a program of restoration of many small houses and cottages.

Although these four projects are being taken as keynotes, dozens of other communities in the British Isles are adopting projects for the preservation of everything from 14th century half-timbered buildings to early factories and foundries which were part of the Industrial Revolution. For example, next year is also the 150th anniversary of the foundation of the first railway, which was between Darlington and Stockton in northern England. Numerous observances and restorations are being planned to mark this event.

Thirty one countries are taking part in the event under the auspices of the Council of Europe.

IN WINTER-TIME, which comes early, the Rideau Canal in Ottawa, Canada, becomes a gigantic ice skating rink, five miles long, through the heart of the city and ending at Parliament Hill. Last winter there were 38,000 skaters on the ice in a single day. And in the summer, the canoeing enthusiasts take over.

Ottawa's Long, Long Rink

By MARY JANE CHARTERS

A canal designed as a "back door to the Great Lakes in case of an invasion from the south" is now bringing back the days of mom's apple pie, fireplaces and baked beans.

The Rideau Canal, built in the precautionary days following the War of 1812, is a skating rink — a five mile sheet of ice through the center of Ottawa, Canada's capital, that turns winter weekends into old-fashioned Christmas card scenes.

The parents who canoe their children down the canal in summer, pull them along the route on sleighs in winter. The hopeful Bobby Orrs, Karen Magnussens and Toller Cranstons share ice time, hot dogs and hot chocolates with grandparents, teen-agers, university students and couples on a first date.

LAST WINTER AS many as 38,000 skated on the canal in a single day.

From Parliament Hill where the Rideau Canal meets the Ottawa River, the canal wanders past the National Arts Center newer additions to the University of Ottawa, downtown residential sections of the city, Lansdowne Park and Dow's Lake before ending up at the campus of Carleton University. In all, there's 14 million square feet of ice surface.

Along the way are food concessions, skate sharpenters, benches and change houses. Proficient skaters trained in first aid, act as skate patrols every day from 4 p.m. to midnight and all day on weekends.

The Rideau Canal was constructed on the recommendation of the Duke of Wellington to provide safer lines of communication between Montreal and new settlements on Lake Ontario in the event of resumption of war with the United States. The 123-mile canal connecting Kingston on Lake Ontario with Ottawa, took six years to build and was completed in 1832. It cost the British government four million dollars.

Much of the old stonework on the original locks and dams remains unchanged. Today the canal adds greatly to the natural beauty of the federal capital region of Ottawa — boulevarded driveways, flower gardens, bikepaths used by walkers and cross-country skiers in winter, and huge trees have made the area a park both winter and summer.

Skating along the canal was proposed in 1969 by the then chairman of the National Capital Commission, Douglas Fullerton. The idea was in keeping with the commission's philogosphy of finding imaginative and enjoyable uses for unused resources and prompted Fullerton to write a piece on "how to survive the urban winter." The rink is not a panacea for all winter ills, he said, but a priest had suggested to him that canal skating had done more for family togetherness than all his sermons on the subject.

But the rink was not without its problems.

A skate changing station and four tractors have fallen through the ice; new methods for maintenance had to be devised to avoid large cracks along canal walls caused by the expansion of water as it freezes.

After experimenting with different water levels, researchers discovered if the water was lowered five feet, expansion damage would be minimized and the skating surface would be left as large as if the water hadn't been lowered at all.

A variety of light and heavyweight machinery is used by an ice-clearing staff that works 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to insure best possible conditions.

To re-surface the ice, holes are drilled to the water below and pumped to the surface where it is spread as evenly as possible and allowed to set. Burners are also used to melt the ice surface and make it smoother.

The National Capital Commission has strung colored lights along the canal and initiated a flag system to let skaters know the condition of the ice.

When green flags are up, impromptu skating parties are called, students strap on backpacks full of books, and public servants stride off for work down the "longest-man-made skating rink in the world."

Copenhagen—The City Where The Tourists Really Feel Welcome

By NEIL MORGAN

COPENHAGEN — In theory it is no longer possible to Meet the Danes.

That novel program, through which the people of Copenhagen invited foreigners into their homes for an evening, began in 1946 in the happy flush of Allied victory. But it has recently been abandoned.

"DANES TRAVEL so much now," says Mette Carstens, who helped to direct the program. "They have their own foreign friends. Foreign people are not that interesting to Copenhagen people anymore."

But in a lamp shop not far from the Royal Theater a hearty Dane sweeps the foreign visitor in from the sidewalk, pours coffee, discusses everything but lamps, and finally locks his shop to take the stranger to lunch.

In his taxi, Svend Ryting reminisces about the kindness of western Americans to him and his family when they spent months camping across the United States enroute to his tenure with the Danish seamen's mission in San Francisco.

NIELS HJORTH, whose son pilots an SAS jet to Los Angeles, takes the visitor to the Museum of the Danish Resistance and recalled the close ties of Danes and Americans in World War II.

He points to a statue of Winston Churchill.

"Do you know why he is looking down at the ground?" he asks with the twinkle that the visitor recognizes as standard in smiling Copenhagen. "He has dropped his cigar."

ALONG THE WINDING Strojet, the walking street lined with some of the world's most enticing shops, two backpacking, bearded Americans are agog.

"We shoulda come here sooner," says one. "I dig the vibes of this town."

Copenhagen's mayor has written an open letter that goes to young visitors from all lands, along with invitations to enjoy the city's tent camps that offer overnight lodging and breakfast for $2.50. It notes that Copenhagen welcomes all young people, "even those with whom we disagree."

THAT COMES AS close as anything to suggesting the relaxed, joyful mood of this great Danish city. It is a city to which this reporter returns with increasing affection and appreciation.

It is a tough, honest working city, but its people infuse it with an admirably balanced sense of gaity and restraint.

The Danes' obsession with good design extends to their homes and shops, their sidewalks and public buildings, their ceramics and furniture, and even their own bodies.

BUT THE "PORNO" shops of Copenhagen are old hat, largely inhabited by curious tourists from Germany. The American visitor can no longer curl his lip in sanctimonious abhorrence of Scandinavian sex mores. The most prominently advertised porno films on exhibit in Copenhagen are American-made.

The nightly magic of Tivoli, the walled, 20-acre entertainment center next to Town Hall, continues a daily tribute to the Danes' ability to entertain themselves and their guests with unique charm.

It is a fairyland of colorful lights, flowers, games, music and food. Presumably, its format has undergone constant adaptation since Tivoli opened in 1843, but its impression is that of an unchanging classic. After a dozen visits over the years, this reporter can only conclude that Tivoli's secret is linked to the Danes' instinct for balance and form.

IN THE TRIVOLI Jubilee Book of 1918 one may find a clue:

"Everything must be in the old way, or we cannot understand it. But everything must also be new, or it bores us."

The admission price this year to Tivoli, with its free concerts and displays, is about 50 cents. It is among the best tourist buys left on this troubled continent.

TAXES AND INFLATION, those mortal enemies of carefree travel, dictate that the visitor bring his own alcohol and drink his cocktails in his own hotel room, preferably at an establishment away from mainline tourism.

It is no coincidence that foreign visitors are seen often at hot dog stands, pizzerias and in hotel coffee shops.

The American in Europe is no longer gaudy in his lavish expenditures.

But these high costs tend to push the visitor off tourist thoroughfares and force him to mingle more with the Danes in their own milieu. There remain few countries in which he is more welcome, or the rewards greater.

THREE DAYS OF UNMITIGATED DISASTER

John Roberts and Joel Rosenman were just your basic rich kids out to make their marks on the world back in early 1969.

Six months later they were a million and a half dollars in the hole and the target of numerous lawsuits and hordes of creditors, angry farmers and assorted hangers on in the rock subculture — all as a result of having promoted the love generation's sweetest flower, the Woodstock music festival.

What happened in those frantic months, and after, is described wryly and with flashes of considerable insight in "Young Men With Unlimited Capital."

Much of the book's humor doubtless is the work of writer Robert Pilpel, a law school chum of Rosenman, who collaborated with the promoters and who, according to the liner notes, "considers his sense of humor essential to writing and living."

The book takes its title from an advertisement Rosenman and Roberts inserted in the New York Times: "Young men with unlimited capital looking for interesting, legitimate investment opportunities and business propositions."

From that ad, the two rather straight lads got into a scheme to build a recording studio, and finally were sucked into backing the now-legendary Woodstock Festival.

Because this book is written by the festival's promoters, the men who provided its financial backing, there is an understandable emphasis on money.

Things started going wrong right from the beginning — the original site in upstate New York was yanked out from under them, they fell in with a trio of cutthroat food concessionaires and New York's radical underground shook them down for $10,000 in protection money.

And so it went, right down to the festival itself — "Three Days of Peace and Music," it was billed.

Listening to Roberts and Rosenman describe it, though, it sounded more like "Three Days of Unmitigated Disaster."

The longhairs began arriving at Max Yasgur's dairy farm days before the music was to start, and soon it became evident that it would be impossible to separate the ticketholders from the gatecrashers.

So all pretense of collecting tickets (and money) from the assembled hordes was halted. Setback number one.

Then came the news that the food concessionaires — three fellows calling themselves Food for Love — were going to pull out less than two days before the concert unless they were guaranteed 100 per cent of the profits of their operation (the old arrangement was 50-50). Rosenman and Roberts had to agree — setback number two.

Great hopes had been pinned on earnings from a Woodstock movie, but in a typically unfortunate decision, the promoters decided to let somebody else take the responsibility (and the financial risk) for it.

That was how Warner Brothers was persuaded to take charge of the movie, which to date has grossed 17 million dollars. Still another setback.

Soon the entrepreneurs were up to their necks in disasters. All access routes to the site were jammed with immobile cars, it became clear that food, medical facilities and toilets were going to be in shockingly short supply, and many of the 400,000 concert-goers were mauruading over the land of nearby farmers like locusts.

And then it started to rain.

In the end, Woodstock Ventures took in $3,300,000 in receipts, movie and record rights and licensing fees. Its total expenses were $3,400,000, for a net loss of $100,000.

Not so bad, Roberts and Rosenman agree at the end of the book, and nothing, to be sure, that can't be recouped if their book sells well.

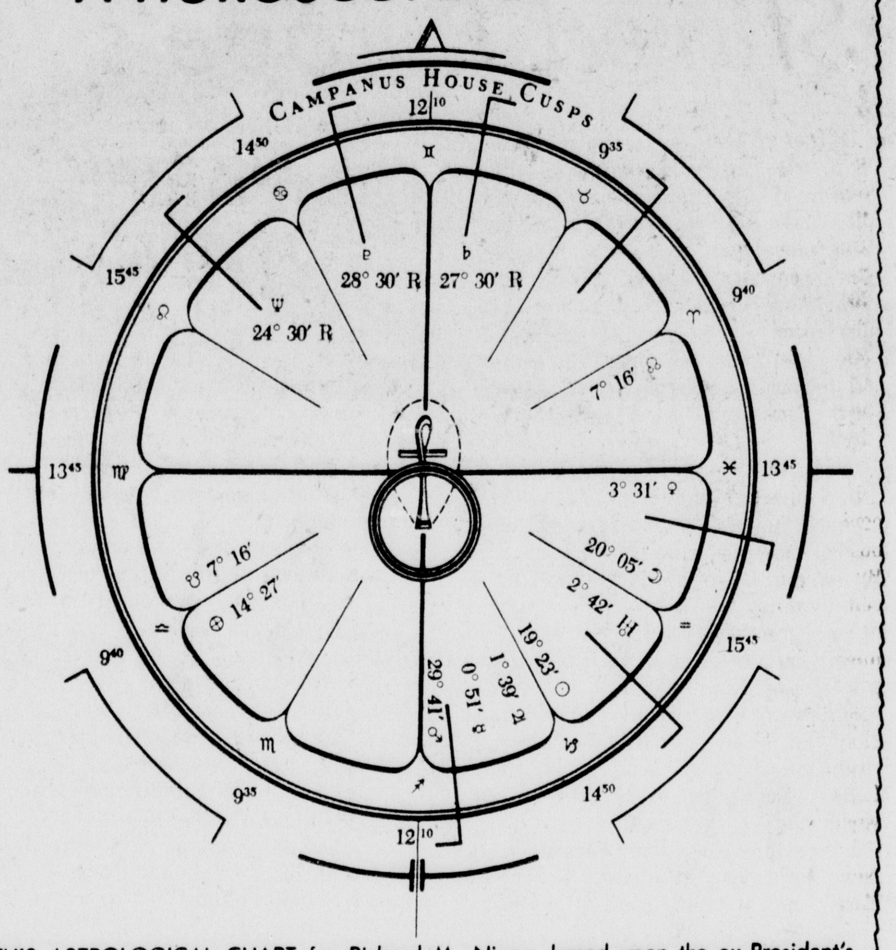
A HOROSCOPE OF ILL-FATE



THIS ASTROLOGICAL CHART for Richard M. Nixon, based upon the ex-President's birth date of Jan. 9, 1913, at Yorba Linda, Calif., is taken from the book, "The Astrology of America's Destiny," by Dane Rudhyar, Random House publisher. "The electroal campaign of 1972 took place under astrological configurations which can only be called ominous, both for Nixon and the United States," writes composer-poet-painter-novelist-astrologer Rudhyar. Neither believer or disbeliever is likely to quarrel with that statement. Rudhyar also includes charts for the United States, its federal government and the 20th century in his $6.95 book.

New Novels By A Couple Of Very Familiar Writers

SOMETHING HAPPENED by Joseph Heller; Alfred A. Knopf, 570 pages, $10. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Joseph Heller, author of "Catch 22," has explored — to infinity and beyond — a battered and beaten theme: the frightened, though successful, middle-aged businessman; his frustrated wife; their unhappy children; and all their psychotic hangers-on and psychic hang-ups.

Bob Slocum, middle-management executive in a prototype company, tells all about his life, past and present, in a stream-of-consciousness style. His self-revelation is total and, somewhere about page 267, it begins to be a total bore.

We have all met Slocum and his crew before.

Heller — speaking as Slocum — is occasionally witty, always on the make, rarely compassionate, usually a double-crosser, and frequently deliberately cruel to his wife and children. Knowing that he is all these things, he continues to live his miserable life, reliving his youthful sexual exploits, enjoying incestual fantasies about his adolescent daughter, contemplating how to get rid of his brain-damaged son.

Then Something Happens — the archtypal event that should destroy him. But it does not. He goes on, his facade undented, his blurry personality undamaged.

Heller's Joe Slocum represents the tragedy of 20th century man and he probably will be dissected — endlessly — by book reviewers and professors.

"Catch-22" was better written and more fun.

True to his formula

THE PIRATE by Harold Robbins; Simon and Schuster, 408 pages. $8.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Writers come and writers go, but Harold Robbins goes on — making money — forever.

His new hero, The Pirate, is, except for native habitat, exactly like all his other heroes — pururient, perverted, vicious — a one-dimensional cardboard cutout of a man.

True to his formula, Robbins has the current crisis by the tail.

The Pirate is an Arab money man (born a Jew, but he doesn't know it), a wheeler-dealer manipulating oil supples, international currencies, Palestinian terrorists, Jews and, of course, assorted worshiping females.

The story sweeps wildly, via 707 jet, from Los Angeles to Geneva, from London to Capri to Syria to Israel — all characters bouncing from beach to beach, from bed to bed.

Each chapter has an Adventure, a Conquest, and at least one — sometimes several — episodes of explicit sex. All events are related in simple sentences — subject, verb, plus a few other one-syllable words.

Wine Pressings

by DAVE RAFFI

Do you have any of those straw-covered Italian Chianti bottles lying around in your attic or basement? If you do, it would be well for you to save them, because they are on the verge of becoming collector's items. Although still available, the traditional Chianti bottles called fiaschi are almost extinct because it is becoming more and more difficult to find peasant women who are willing to weave the straw baskets around the squat bottles.

(Fiaschi is the plural form of the word fiasco. Whether it has anything to do with the way we use the word in English is difficult to discern. Webster's primary definition for fiasco is "a crash" so perhaps it refers to what happens when a bottle of wine is dropped. Certainly dropping a bottle full of wine could be described as a "complete and utter failure.")

A hard-working Italian woman can turn out about fifty fiaschi in eight hours. She is paid on a piece-work basis at the rate of 7c per bottle. With Italy now becoming an economically thriving country, such employment is no longer rewarding.

Chianti's wine makers are therefore turning to the use of high-shouldered bottles similar in shape to French Bordeaux bottles. These bottles do offer one definite advantage over the fiaschi — they are easier to store on their sides. Italian vintners are aware of the world's demand for top-quality wines and bottle aging is a sure way to improve most wines. Romance may be on the way out in Italian wines, but quality is on the way in.

That Guide For Walkers, Now Even More Complete

Six years ago, when "The Complete Walker" came out, it was received as the last word on backpacking. Fletcher loaded that book with all so many details and fine techniques of the growing sport that the book did, indeed, seem complete.

But here we are with a new, revised and expanded edition — 50 per cent bigger, the publisher tells us. The list of suppliers has grown as has the list of hiking and camping organizations, sources of information and places to go.

Fletcher even describes gear that the manufacturers have not yet put on the market.

In addition to updating and increasing the details, Fletcher has reworded the text, and improved it, particularly in the opening chapter.

So here we have the last work on the last work in backpacking — recommended for veterans as well as beginners.

THE NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

The potential readership for "The Dog Lover's Reader," as assembled and edited by Timothy T. Clarke and handsomely published by Hart Publishing Co. at $12.50, has to be enormous.

The thick, nicely illustrated and imaginatively designed anthology is intended for "anyone who owns a dog, or has owned a dog."

Selections come from the works of such as James Thurber (his "How to Name a Dog" rib-tickler), Anatole France, E. B. White, Jack London, Rudyard Kipling (a piece from his "Actions and Reactions"), Corey Ford, Albert Payson Terhune, Leon F. Whitney, Konrad Lorenz and Raymond A. Sokolov, among others.

There's a strong strain of humor. But also some sound advice in the care and training of dogs. Some history of man's best friend. Some classic fiction. And considerably sentimentality, which is to be expected.

Photographs and drawings, both old and new, dress up the pages. And this, indeed, looks like a book that should cost $12.50 — or more. Corey Ford's "Every Dog Should Own a Man" is worth a good part of it, alone.

THE SOFTCOVER reprint publishing house that has been cutting the biggest swath of late is the Warner Paperback Library, whose batches of books inevitably include a number of titles of special interest.

The most recent output, for instance, includes the riotous "W. C. Fields by Himself" cornucopia of memorabilia of the great comedian, collected by his grandson, Ronald J. Fields. "A mammoth yet perfectly fascinating grabbag of Fieldsiana," said Publishers Weekly of the hardcover version.

A thick book, Warner offers it at $1.95 and includes some 100 photos and other illustrations.

Some companion paperbacks from Warner: John Cheever's collection of short stories, "The World of Apples," $1.25; "Separation: Journal of a Marriage" by Eve Baguedor, actually the journal of the collapse of a marriage, but with a happy ending, $1.50; "Expressway," the Elleston Trevor novel, $1.50; and "My Years with Edgar Cayce," written by that mystic's secretary of 20 years, Mary Ellen Carter, $1.25.

"HEALTH FOODS and Fads" by Canadian psychologist Frank J. MacHovec is a small $1.95 hardcover booklet from Peter Pauper Press, Mount Vernon, N.Y., that jumps into the heated nutrition controversy and tries to guide the consumer toward more wholesome eating without exorbitant costs. Generally, MacHovec upholds the value of the so-called natural foods, but he points out fallacies and exploitations that have sprung up in the mushrooming field.

Continental's John Wayne Of Board Room

MAVERICK: THE STORY OF ROBERT SIX AND CONTINENTAL AIRLINES by Robert J. Serling; Doubleday, 351 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

Three men, W. A. Patterson of United, C. R. Smith of American and Robert Six of Continental, were directly responsible for the growth, direction and accomplishments of this country's commercial aviation.

Of the trio, only Robert Six still actively runs his airline, and "Maverick: The Story of Robert Six and Continental Airlines" by Robert J. Serling ably chronicles not only his career but the story of the entire industry.

Robert Six is a rugged individualist of the old school, creating the odd image in the board room of John Wayne starring in a John Ford Western, and his simularity even carries over into a physical resemblance of the executive to the actor.

The danger with this sort of biography is either that it can be written hat in hand as a kind of cloying saint's life and hymn to big business, or else as an abrasive, unfair indictment of something misunderstood from the vantage of an ivory tower. "Maverick" avoids these extremes, being written by a veteran aviation writer who portrays Six, warts and all, while giving a wealth of historical detail that will delight the aviation buff and entertain the general reader.

A high school drop out from Stockton, Six knocked about the world for a few years before learning to fly and getting in the airline business, which of course is not as easy as it sounds. He has had many personal setbacks and near disasters during virtually all his adult years spent creating Continental Airlines from a local air service to a major carrier.

It is a very interesting story, and Six emerges as an extremely impressive man, both on account of his achievements, and the rare type of blunt honesty and integrity that has typified his career.

NICHOLS' MASTERPIECE

A Book That Enlivens The Literary Season

THE MILAGRO BEANFIELD WAR by John Nichols; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 445 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

"I knew Jose Mondragon couldn't go through his entire life," says Ruby Archuleta, who kills deer with her bare hands, "without attempting one great thing".

The enterprise occurs when the scrappy little Chicano farmer taps a big developer's stream to irrigate his beanfield.

A deceptively simple event, like the seduction of Helen sparking the Trojan War, is the central incident in John Nichol's new novel, "The Milagro Beanfield War," and it should enliven this literary season as Thomas Pynchon did a year ago with "Gravity's Rainbow".

"The Milagro Beanfield War" possesses a richness of plot and madcap inventiveness that were present in the author's earlier novels, "The Sterile Cuckoo" and "The Wizard of Unhappiness." Yet in his new book, Nichols has outdone himself by transforming what could be another dreary, social protest situation into a witty, universal statement.

This is a novel not to be missed.

That a man should illegally moisten the New Mexican fields of his ancestors with water legally stolen from him by politicians is a symbolic act. And it is not lost upon other dispossessed farmers or the Establishment responsible for the deprivation. In a way the action of Jose Mondragon is a miniaturization of American history and human life.

Like Steinbeck, Nichols can explore the fantasies and peculiarities of the nonliterate in such a way that we laugh with them, not at them. This humorous compassion exemplifies the paradoxical high seriousness and conservatism of all effective satire.

The Anglo adversaries of the farmers are portrayed with equal understanding and fairness. They tend the mindless machine which is government, and assume it to be a numinous instrument that will make everything work out all right. They do not perceive that their legal codes are as much a part of their own folklore as the Evil Eye or cult of "machismo" define the old New Mexican culture.

People's various life styles are metaphors to explain reality, in the same way that a painter executes a canvas to interpret the world. What happens, of course, is that reality is thus further obscured by another layer of interpretation. Nichols discerns this, and the placid self delusion of his characters lends a fine psychological cutting edge to writing that is already technically outstanding.

The serious implications of "The Milagro Beanfield War", though, do not obscure the ever ascendant wit and humanity. Nichols is excruciatingly funny, piling up a wealth of anecdote and eccentric characterization into an elaborate structure that few other writers could either conceive or manage.

"The Milagro Beanfield War" will be enjoyed by all manner of readers on any level of participation, a hallmark of literary achievement shared with works like "Gulliver's Travels" and "Don Quixote."

What conclusions these readers draw from the war in the beanfield will probably derive from individual factors of temperament. Yet the deck seems to be stacked in favor of the farmers.

Like John Nichols, they are close to the earth and aware that men are amiable fools who should relish rotgut and jokes before their days run out.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

BATS FLY UP FOR INSPECTOR GHOTE by H.R.F. Keating; Doubleday (Crime Club), 180 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Mary Craig.

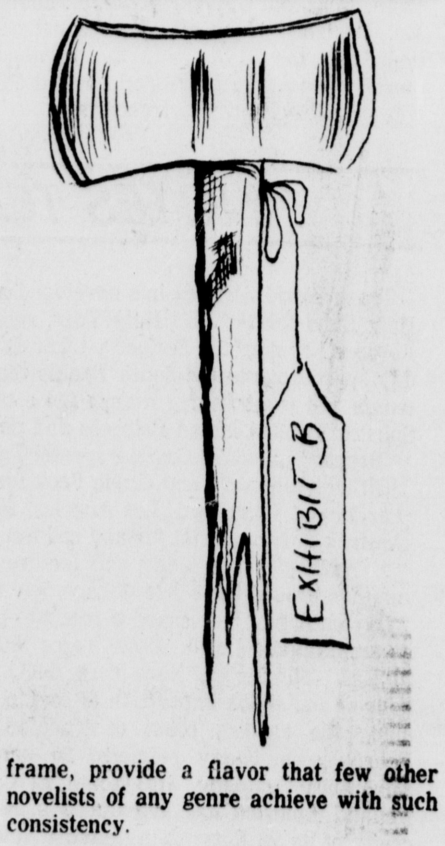
Readers who have followed Inspector Ghote of the Bombay police through his several previous adventures will find it inconceivable that any assignment could cause him to retire from the force.

But that was before Ghote was transferred (from the menial task of trapping pickpockets) to the staff of BATS.

The Black Money and Allied Transactions Squad had been formed to combat the racketeers who dealt in vast undercover tax evasion deals and who (in Ghote's words) "were callously ripping out the biggest hole in the financial fabric of the country."

Learning that BATS' failure seemed tied to an inside informer forces Ghote to develop total mistrust of everybody . . . his bosses, his peers, and in the end, even the people nearest to him.

Full of the great characters and absorbing action at which Keating excels, this is another good read for Keating aficinadoes. And through it all the sights and smells, the atmosphere and festivals of Bombay, set in a bustling modern time frame, provide a flavor that few other novelists of any genre achieve with such consistency.



THREE DAYS OF UNMITIGATED DISASTER

John Roberts and Joel Rosenman were just your basic rich kids out to make their marks on the world back in early 1969.

Six months later they were a million and a half dollars in the hole and the target of numerous lawsuits and hordes of creditors, angry farmers and assorted hangers on in the rock subculture — all as a result of having promoted the love generation's sweetest flower, the Woodstock music festival.

What happened in those frantic months, and after, is described wryly and with flashes of considerable insight in "Young Men With Unlimited Capital."

Much of the book's humor doubtless is the work of writer Robert Pilpel, a law school chum of Rosenman, who collaborated with the promoters and who, according to the liner notes, "considers his sense of humor essential to writing and living."

The book takes its title from an advertisement Rosenman and Roberts inserted in the New York Times: "Young men with unlimited capital looking for interesting, legitimate investment opportunities and business propositions."

From that ad, the two rather straight lads got into a scheme to build a recording studio, and finally were sucked into backing the now-legendary Woodstock Festival.

Because this book is written by the festival's promoters, the men who provided its financial backing, there is an understandable emphasis on money.

Things started going wrong right from the beginning — the original site in upstate New York was yanked out from under them, they fell in with a trio of cutthroat food concessionaires and New York's radical underground shook them down for $10,000 in protection money.

And so it went, right down to the festival itself — "Three Days of Peace and Music," it was billed.

Listening to Roberts and Rosenman describe it, though, it sounded more like "Three Days of Unmitigated Disaster."

The longhairs began arriving at Max Yasgur's dairy farm days before the music was to start, and soon it became evident that it would be impossible to separate the ticketholders from the gatecrashers.

So all pretense of collecting tickets (and money) from the assembled hordes was halted. Setback number one.

Then came the news that the food concessionaires — three fellows calling themselves Food for Love — were going to pull out less than two days before the concert unless they were guaranteed 100 per cent of the profits of their operation (the old arrangement was 50-50). Rosenman and Roberts had to agree — setback number two.

Great hopes had been pinned on earnings from a Woodstock movie, but in a typically unfortunate decision, the promoters decided to let somebody else take the responsibility (and the financial risk) for it.

That was how Warner Brothers was persuaded to take charge of the movie, which to date has grossed 17 million dollars. Still another setback.

Soon the entrepreneurs were up to their necks in disasters. All access routes to the site were jammed with immobile cars, it became clear that food, medical facilities and toilets were going to be in shockingly short supply, and many of the 400,000 concert-goers were maurauding over the land of nearby farmers like locusts.

And then it started to rain.

In the end, Woodstock Ventures took in $3,300,000 in receipts, movie and record rights and licensing fees. Its total expenses were $3,400,000, for a net loss of $100,000.

Not so bad, Roberts and Rosenman agree at the end of the book, and nothing, to be sure, that can't be recouped if their book sells well.

New Novels By A Couple Of Very Familiar Writers

SOMETHING HAPPENED by Joseph Heller; Alfred A. Knopf, 570 pages, $10. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Joseph Heller, author of "Catch 22," has explored — to infinity and beyond — a battered and beaten theme: the frightened, though successful, middle-aged businessman; his frustrated wife; their unhappy children; and all their psychotic hangers-on and psychic hang-ups.

Bob Slocum, middle-management executive in a prototype company, tells all about his life, past and present, in a stream-of-consciousness style. His self-revelation is total and, somewhere about page 267, it begins to be a total bore.

We have all met Slocum and his crew before.

Heller — speaking as Slocum — is occasionally witty, always on the make, rarely compassionate, usually a double-crosser, and frequently deliberately cruel to his wife and children. Knowing that he is all these things, he continues to live his miserable life, reliving his youthful sexual exploits, enjoying incestual fantasies about his adolescent daughter, contemplating how to get rid of his brain-damaged son.

Then Something Happens — the archtypal event that should destroy him. But it does not. He goes on, his facade undented, his blurry personality undamaged.

Heller's Joe Slocum represents the tragedy of 20th century man and he probably will be dissected — endlessly — by book reviewers and professors.

"Catch-22" was better written and more fun.

THE PIRATE by Harold Robbins; Simon and Schuster, 408 pages. $8.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Writers come and writers go, but Harold Robbins goes on — making money — forever.

His new hero, The Pirate, is, except for native habitat, exactly like all his other heroes — pururient, perverted, vicious — a one-dimensional cardboard cutout of a man.

True to his formula, Robbins has the current crisis by the tail.

The Pirate is an Arab money man (born a Jew, but he doesn't know it), a wheeler-dealer manipulating oil supples, international currencies, Palestinian terrorists, Jews and, of course, assorted worshiping females.

The story sweeps wildly, via 707 jet, from Los Angeles to Geneva, from London to Capri to Syria to Israel — all characters bouncing from beach to beach, from bed to bed.

Each chapter has an Adventure, a Conquest, and at least one — sometimes several — episodes of explicit sex. All events are related in simple sentences — subject, verb, plus a few other one-syllable words.

Do you have any of those straw-covered Italian Chianti bottles lying around in your attic or basement? If you do, it would be well for you to save them, because they are on the verge of becoming collector's items. Although still available, the traditional Chianti bottles called fiaschi are almost extinct because it is becoming more and more difficult to find peasant women who are willing to weave the straw baskets around the squat bottles.

(Fiaschi is the plural form of the word fiasco. Whether it has anything to do with the way we use the word in English is difficult to discern. Webster's primary definition for fiasco is "a crash" so perhaps it refers to what happens when a bottle of wine is dropped. Certainly dropping a bottle full of wine could be described as a "complete and utter failure.")

A hard-working Italian woman can turn out about fifty fiaschi in eight hours. She is paid on a piece-work basis at the rate of 7c per bottle. With Italy now becoming an economically thriving country, such employment is no longer rewarding.

The Voyages Of Columbus Stirred Europe's Imagination

MARIN LIVING

(Editor's Note: This is the second of 18 articles exploring the theme, "In Search of the American Dream," in the University of California at San Diego-developed Courses by Newspaper program. Entitled "Voyaging," this article is the first of a three-part discussion of the general subject of The New World as Utopia. The author of this article is professor of history at the University of California, Berkeley.)

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN

It requires effort to realize what a powerful impact the voyages of Columbus had upon the European imagination. By comparison, it could be argued, recent landings on the moon have been of no very great importance and indeed are merely one more extension of the historic process begun by Columbus.

Shortly after his discoveries, it became clear that America was not China and the "Indians" not natives of the sought-for Indies. Europeans thus confronted a world that was truly new.

It was precisely the newness of the New World that stimulated Sir Thomas More, in the 16th century, to write "Utopia." In this book about an ideal country, More used the unspoiled novelty of the new lands as a foil for exposing the stale failures of the Old World.

> "To each nation the advantages of the New World were enhanced by the knowledge that others were eyeing them. Interest in America was in reality the beginning of nearly 500 years of European exploitation of the peoples and natural resources of the remainder of the globe."

Sir Thomas' fellow Englishmen were late in taking so great an interest in the lands beyond the Atlantic. Had it not been for voyages in the 1490s by John and Sebastian Cabot, two Italian-born mariners somewhat offhandedly supported by Henry VII, England might not have been able to lay claim among the Christian nations to original discovery and therefore settlement.

As it was, England was just beginning to recover from a period of civil strife.

The country was headed for wracking political, religious, and social changes, which seemed at times to turn on the tortuous marital difficulties of Henry VIII. It was not until three generations had passed that Englishmen began to take an active interest in exploiting the claim established by the Cabot voyages.

> "It took experience and experimentation, but gradually Englishmen in America were able to realize the hope that the New World would give forth wealth to the Old. Wealth meant power and national greatness. America came to nurture the island nation."

Rather suddenly, in the 1570s, a number of gentlemen-adventurers became interested in the New World. It was not merely a matter of mounting a voyage to America or of actually going there (which some of them did); it was above all necessary to rouse the English nation or (as we would now say) to advertise the desirability of colonization. Some men did both.

Sir Humphrey Gilbert, for example, not only wrote the first promotional tract (1576) but himself led two expeditions. It proved easier to advocate colonization than to achieve it. His first voyage never reached America; the second did, but Sir Humphrey was lost at sea on the way back.

He was last seen seated in the sternsheets of a 10-ton fishing smack, reading (of all things) a copy of More's "Utopia."

The greatest English publicist of American settlement was Richard Hakluyt (the Younger). Known as Preacher Hakluyt, he was a successful preacher of divinity; more effectively still, though, he preached to the entire literate English nation the importance and indeed necessity of English planting in the New World.

Today it still is possible to sense the stirring impact of his glorification of the cause. (As was once said of him, "Master Hakluyt hath served for a very good trumpet.") At the behest of Gilbert's half-brother, Sir Walter Raleigh, he addressed a tract to Queen Elizabeth, commonly called "A Discourse Concerning Western Planting" (1584), which set forth the case for settlement as a national program.

Hakluyt's "Discourse" was a persuasive "collection of certain reasons to induce her Majesty and the state to take in hand the western voyage and the planting there."

Some reasons were economic: "cheap commodities" might be sold to the Indians and particularly might a market be found for English woolens.

Some reasons looked as much to social as to financial advantage: unemployed mariners, returning war veterans, and "the fry of the wandering beggars of England, that grow up idly" might in America be put to gainful employments.

A point not to be neglected was that "we shall by planting there enlarge the glory of the gospel, and from England plant sincere religion" — by which Hakluyt meant, naturally, Protestantism. Yet clearly what most animated his "Discourse" was Hakluyt's fear that all these advantages might accrue not to the English nation but to someone else.

As he eloquently phrased the matter, "This enterprise may stay the Spanish king from flowing over all the face of that waste firmament of America, if we seat and plant there in time." It was a bold suggestion; this was before the defeat of the Armada and Hakluyt was urging the English nation to take on the world's super-power. Opposition to Spain wrapped national pride, financial gain, and religious faith into a single glorious enterprise.

As Hakluyt put the matter, planting in America would enable the English "to spoil Philip's navy, and to deprive him of yearly passage of his treasure to Europe, and consequently to abate the pride of Spain and of the supporter of the great Antichrist of Rome." The New World would be the fulcrum by which England would raise itself to greatness in the Old.

Thus it is clear that European perceptions of America were from the beginning very much shaped by European national rivalries.

To each nation the advantages of the New World were enhanced by the knowledge that others were eyeing them. Interest in America was in reality the beginning of nearly 500 years of European exploitation of the peoples and natural resources of the remainder of the globe.

The Spanish had begun such exploitation of the New World nearly a century before the English. Not all Spaniards had been motivated by the lust for treasure which drove Cortez and so many of his followers.

Some came to save souls and, as they conceived it, to better the lot of their Indian subjcts; Vasco de Quiroga, first bishop of Michoacan, successfully organized two Indian villages on the principles laid down in Thomas More's "Utopia." But such utopian ventures were exceptional, and for the Spanish conquerors, the primary issue was gold.

Although the Spanish claimed a monopoly on the entire New World, in fact they effectively controlled those accessible portions of South and Central America where precious metals were readily available. Englishmen, enormously frustrated by this fact, of necessity focused their attention elsewhere in America.

It took the English a long time to realize that they were not going to find much gold themselves and even longer to appreciate that they had not been shunted into the less desirable parts of the New World.

Sir Walter Raleigh was so firmly convinced that the gilded city of "El Dorado" actually existed in South America that he mounted a disastrous attempt to found an English colony in Guiana.

Another Elizabeth adventurer made three voyages in the 1570s in search of the supposed Northwest Passage to the orient; he became so diverted by his discovery of "gold" that he hauled several hundred tons of ore back to London.

Upon assay, however, the ore proved to contain only fool's gold (iron pyrites), and for several decades the ore lay heaped just inside the gates of the Tower of London, entirely blocking the way. Even as late as 1607 the first settlers at Jamestown, Va., went searching for gold while the tiny settlement nearly starved out of existence.

Gradually Englishmen came to realize that their portion of the New World could produce other forms of wealth.

The fisheries yielded the first genuine profits. Pulling fish from the North Atlantic, one of the world's great fishing grounds, was scarcely a glamorous business, nor was it a business for gentlemen-adventurers. But the fisheries came to be greatly appreciated, both as nurseries for seamen and as a supply of food and of trade to other nations.

The forests, another great natural resource of the northern parts of the New World, soon were equally appreciated as a boon to England's national defense and economic self-sufficiency.

The northern forests yielded masts, spars, and other stores for the backbone of national power, the navy. These same forests were teeming with fur-bearing animals. Furs were greatly in demand in Europe, and for nearly two centuries the fur trade was a central concern in England's diplomatic relations with the native nations of America.

What Englishmen did not appreciate initially about America was that in the long run, truly enormous wealth could be derived from certain agricultural staples which could be cultivated there.

The most important staple proved to be sugar, a product which turned the little islands of the Caribbean into by far the most profitable part of the Old British Empire.

Another was tobacco, and Englishmen in Virginia were soon able to prove, despite many assertions to the contrary, that it was indeed possible to "found an empire upon smoke."

Other products proved disappointing.

Operating upon the age-old geographical supposition that similar latitudes necessarily had similar climates, countless attempts were made to cultivate such products as silk, wines, and citrus fruits, all of them pronounced failures.

Much of the labor for these enterprises came from Englishmen who were lacking opportunities at home. A very sizable proportion of English settlers came to America as "indentured servants," having sold their labor for a period of years to a master in exchange for their ocean passage. By thus alleviating some of the pressures of population within England, the colonies further contributed, as Hakluyt had predicted, to her social and economic welfare.

It took experience and experimentation, but gradually Englishmen in America were able to realize the hope that the New World would give forth wealth to the Old.

ON THE STEREO SCENE: A Band Called Kansas

By BRUCE MEYER

Probably because of its unbroken geography and the conservative nature of its politics of late, the state of Kansas has acquired a modern image of — well, dreariness. Not the kind of place you'd expect to find a powerful rock band.

But the present-day image of Kansas belies its stormy past — a land of bitter violence, political extremism and contrasts as sharp as any in the nation. It is the kind of history that fits well with the eclectic rock band of a band that calls itself Kansas.

KANSAS IS THE fourth incarnation of a five-year-old group that began in a Topeka high school.

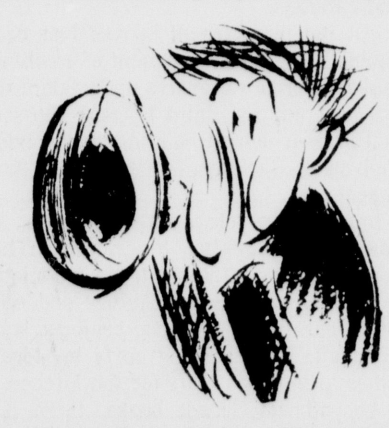
Life has not been easy for a band featuring an amplified violinist and that insists on playing all-original material in a state with no ready-made audience like that found on the coasts.

Drummer Phil Ehart: "It's too hard to get out of there. There's no music scene. The music world doesn't know Kansas (the state) exists — other than maybe a distributor dropping some albums there every three years or so."

"He won't even land — he just parachutes them out," adds bassist Dave Hope, with a grin.

Some months back, Kansas (the band) got lucky. A demonstration tape found its way into the hands of super-promoter Don Kirschner, who signed them up for his new record label.

IT WAS AN UNUSUAL move for Kirshner, who has a reputation for manufactured commercial groups, including the Monkees and the Archies. His approach apparently works; he is credited with some 300 million records sold. But he apparently believes in Kansas.



"Kirshner — you know, he's really centered around the almighty single," says Phil. "But our album sales this week hit 95,000 without a single (one attempt to pull a single from the LP failed), so he's not giving us any pressure."

The album, "Kansas" (Kirshner K2-32817), is one of the best debuts of the year — a showpiece for the band's varied and impressive talent.

Nearly every cut is a gem, from "Belexes," a multi-level boogie with a dose of Led Zeppelin and a dash of country reel, to "Journey from Mariabronn," a heavily classical, serious kind of tune that lets the band show off its solid firepower and tight rhythms.

Kansas: So long, Topeka. Hello, world.

FACES GUITARIST Ron Wood should have his new solo album out very soon. The LP features such guests as Mick Jagger, George Harrison, Keith Richard and Rod Stewart . . . Fleetwood Mac — the real one, with Mick Fleetwood, the McVies and Bob Welch — has won its fight with a former manager over use of the name and will have a new album this fall . . . Emerson, Lake & Palmer's latest three-record LP is already platinum: sales over two million dollars before it was released . . .Zoo World magazine quotes Rick Wakeman as saying he left Yes because "it was like five people all going in different directions" . . . Meanwhile, Yes has replaced Wakeman on keyboards with Patric Moraz, formerly of a band called Refugee.

For String Quartet Fans, A Feast Of Recordings

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

For string quartet lovers, an exalted group, the recording industry has provided some good listening.

For RCA the fine Cleveland Quartet group has recorded the 14th of Franz Schubert's 15 string quartets, in D minor, sometimes seductively intitled "Death and the Maiden" (ARL 1 0483).

The Cleveland group, now based at the State University of New York in Buffalo, has been given rave notices since it was formed in 1969, and this recording confirms them. On the reverse side is also Mozart's Adagio.

Another excellent group now playing is the Tokyo Quartet, a Japanese group which records for a German company, Deutsche Grammophon.

Their latest record (DGG 2330 440) includes the first two of Joseph Haydn's six "Prussian quartets" — so named because he dedicated them to Friederick Wilhelm II of Prussia in gratitude for the gift of a diamond ring. This is more fine listening.

Finally, there is Stephen Bishop playing Anton Dvorak's delightful piano quintet, Opus 81, with members of the Berlin Philharmonic Octet (Philips 6500 363). On the reverse side is the string quintet in E Flat, written in the summer of 1883 when Dvorak was vacationing in the Czech settlement of Stillville, Iowa.

Bishop is a fine pianist and the group is one of the best playing.

Jorge Bolet is possessed of prodigious technique and plays the piano in great Romantic tradition for most of us who missed his Carnegie Hall recital last February it was recorded in a two record set by RCA (ARL 2 0512).

Recording live is, of course, a compromise. What one loses in studio conditions, one is supposed to gain in the artistic tension of a live performance.

At any rate, Bolet is one of the great artists who merits the trouble. He makes music in a fabulous way in this program of Bach, Chopin, J. Strauss, Wagner-Liszt, Moszkowski and Rubenstein.

Recommended: Alfred Brendel playing Schubert's Sonata in A Minor and "moment Musicaux" (Philips 6500 418).

David Distrakh playing and directing the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in Mozart's violin concertos, Nos. 4 and 5 (Angel S 36894).

Neville Marriner and the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields playing Mozart's early symphonies, Nos. 1, 4, 5 and 44 (Philips 6500 532). The development towards Mozart's greatest music.

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM

The Voyages Of Columbus Stirred Europe's Imagination

MARIN LIVING

(Editor's Note: This is the second of 18 articles exploring the theme, "In Search of the American Dream," in the University of California at San Diego-developed Courses by Newspaper program. Entitled "Voyaging," this article is the first of a three-part discussion of the general subject of The New World as Utopia. The author of this article is professor of history at the University of California, Berkeley.)

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN

It requires effort to realize what a powerful impact the voyages of Columbus had upon the European imagination. By comparison, it could be argued, recent landings on the moon have been of no very great importance and indeed are merely one more extension of the historic process begun by Columbus.

Shortly after his discoveries, it became clear that America was not China and the "Indians" not natives of the sought-for Indies. Europeans thus confronted a world that was truly new.

It was precisely the newness of the New World that stimulated Sir Thomas More, in the 16th century, to write "Utopia." In this book about an ideal country, More used the unspoiled novelty of the new lands as a foil for exposing the stale failures of the Old World.

> "To each nation the advantages of the New World were enhanced by the knowledge that others were eyeing them. Interest in America was in reality the beginning of nearly 500 years of European exploitation of the peoples and natural resources of the remainder of the globe."

Sir Thomas' fellow Englishmen were late in taking so great an interest in the lands beyond the Atlantic. Had it not been for voyages in the 1490s by John and Sebastian Cabot, two Italian-born mariners somewhat offhandedly supported by Henry VII, England might not have been able to lay claim among the Christian nations to original discovery and therefore settlement.

As it was, England was just beginning to recover from a period of civil strife.

The country was headed for wracking political, religious, and social changes, which seemed at times to turn on the tortuous marital difficulties of Henry VIII. It was not until three generations had passed that Englishmen began to take an active interest in exploiting the claim established by the Cabot voyages.

> "It took experience and experimentation, but gradually Englishmen in America were able to realize the hope that the New World would give forth wealth to the Old. Wealth meant power and national greatness. America came to nurture the island nation."

Rather suddenly, in the 1570s, a number of gentlemen-adventurers became interested in the New World. It was not merely a matter of mounting a voyage to America or of actually going there (which some of them did); it was above all necessary to rouse the English nation or (as we would now say) to advertise the desirability of colonization. Some men did both.

Sir Humphrey Gilbert, for example, not only wrote the first promotional tract (1576) but himself led two expeditions. It proved easier to advocate colonization than to achieve it. His first voyage never reached America; the second did, but Sir Humphrey was lost at sea on the way back.

He was last seen seated in the sternsheets of a 10-ton fishing smack, reading (of all things) a copy of More's "Utopia."

The greatest English publicist of American settlement was Richard Hakluyt (the Younger). Known as Preacher Hakluyt, he was a successful preacher of divinity; more effectively still, though, he preached to the entire literate English nation the importance and indeed necessity of English planting in the New World.

Today it still is possible to sense the stirring impact of his glorification of the cause. (As was once said of him, "Master Hakluyt hath served for a very good trumpet.") At the behest of Gilbert's half-brother, Sir Walter Raleigh, he addressed a tract to Queen Elizabeth, commonly called "A Discourse Concerning Western Planting" (1584), which set forth the case for settlement as a national program.

Hakluyt's "Discourse" was a persuasive "collection of certain reasons to induce her Majesty and the state to take in hand the western voyage and the planting there."

Some reasons were economic: "cheap commodities" might be sold to the Indians and particularly might a market be found for English woolens.

Some reasons looked as much to social as to financial advantage: unemployed mariners, returning war veterans, and "the fry of the wandering beggars of England, that grow up idly" might in America be put to gainful employments.

A point not to be neglected was that "we shall by planting there enlarge the glory of the gospel, and from England plant sincere religion" — by which Hakluyt meant, naturally, Protestantism. Yet clearly what most animated his "Discourse" was Hakluyt's fear that all these advantages might accrue not to the English nation but to someone else.

As he eloquently phrased the matter, "This enterprise may stay the Spanish king from flowing over all the face of that waste firmament of America, if we seat and plant there in time." It was a bold suggestion; this was before the defeat of the Armada and Hakluyt was urging the English nation to take on the world's super-power. Opposition to Spain wrapped national pride, financial gain, and religious faith into a single glorious enterprise.

As Hakluyt put the matter, planting in America would enable the English "to spoil Philip's navy, and to deprive him of yearly passage of his treasure to Europe, and consequently to abate the pride of Spain and of the supporter of the great Antichrist of Rome." The New World would be the fulcrum by which England would raise itself to greatness in the Old.

Jorge Bolet is possessed of prodigious technique and plays the piano in great Romantic tradition for most of us who missed his Carnegie Hall recital last February it was recorded in a two record set by RCA (ARL 2 0512).

Recording live is, of course, a compromise. What one loses in studio conditions, one is supposed to gain in the artistic tension of a live performance.

At any rate, Bolet is one of the great artists who merits the trouble. He makes music in a fabulous way in this program of Bach, Chopin, J. Strauss, Wagner-Liszt, Moszkowski and Rubenstein.

Recommended: Alfred Brendel playing Schubert's Sonata in A Minor and "moment Musicaux" (Philips 6500 418).

David Distrakh playing and directing the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in Mozart's violin concertos, Nos. 4 and 5 (Angel S 36894).

Neville Marriner and the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields playing Mozart's early symphonies, Nos. 1, 4, 5 and 44 (Philips 6500 532). The development towards Mozart's greatest music.

Mobilize Now For Winter To Win The Fuel War

HOMES PAGE

In the battle to slash living costs and save fuel supplies, home owners can hold gas and electric bills to a minimum by preparing now for the winter, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. advises.

Proper care of home heating equipment and adequate insulation offer ways to get the most out of each energy dollar.

Heating costs can be cut as much as 45 per cent by weatherstripping and proper insulation of walls and ceilings. Because heat rises, cracks and crevices under the roof usually are responsible for the greatest heat loss. Attic floors should have six inches of insulation to provide protection from the cold. Insulation batts tacked inside sloping rafters also will help prevent heat loss.

All cracks or excess space around doors and windows should be sealed with felt or metal stripping. Sweeps will keep cold air from entering along the bottoms of doors.

AN EFFICIENT heating system can save fuel and keep home heating costs down. PG&E offers these tips:

1. Clean heating equipment thoroughly, removing dust, lint and other obstructions from all accessible parts. Clean or replace dirty filters that make the furnace work harder to provide heat. (Turn off thermostat and all blower controls before cleaning.)

2. Heating system ducts should be checked for air leaks, especially around the connecting joints. Leaking warm air can be costly, but usually leaks can be repaired with cloth adhesive tape. Where exposed to cold air, heating ducts should be wrapped with insulation.

3. Make sure the gas furnace burner produces a blue flame. A yellow flame indicates improper combustion and requires adjustment.

4. Move furniture or rugs that block hot or cold air registers and reduce furnace efficiency.

5. Set thermostat at 68 degrees and leave it, except for turning it down when you leave home or go to bed. Turning up the thermostat does not produce more heat; it merely keeps the furnace operating longer, wasting fuel and increasing your bill.

AS THE WEATHER turns cold, let "close it" become your rule of thumb. Close up unused rooms, and close the heating vents into those rooms. Close the damper when the fireplace is not in use so heat does not escape up the chimney. Keep all exterior doors — and those to garage, attic and basement — tightly closed to keep heat indoors where it is needed.

At night and on gloomy days draw drapes across windows to avoid up to 16 per cent loss of heat, but keep drapes open on sunny days to take advantage of nature's heat.

To prevent further heat waste use hot water efficiently. Properly insualte hot water pipes exposed to cold air to hold down heating costs.

Replace worn faucet washers and turn off faucets to prevent leaking water. A dripping hot water tap can keep your water heater working to heat water that just runs down the drain.

SET THE WATER heater thermostat at 140 degrees, the normal setting, or slightly above if a dishwasher is used.

These steps can save energy and help hold bills to a minimum, PG&E says, but some factors affecting energy use and heating costs are outdoors, not inside. The prevailing winds in the locality and whether the location is sheltered or exposed can make a difference.

Other variables are the size of the house, the height of ceilings, the kind of roof, the amount of window glass, the kind of drapes and whether the floors are bare or covered with rugs.

Whether To Stain Or Not To Stain? Here's The Answer

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Letters from furniture buffs suggest that there is a good deal of confusion about the use of wood stains. Today I'll try to set the record straight.

Stains have an important place in the finishing of furniture; but, with rare exceptions they are not finishes.

Normally, a finish coat must be applied over the stain. Stains are used to give color to wood that has no natural color beauty, such as white pine and gumwood. It seldom is used on naturally beautiful woods like mahogany and walnut.

They also are used to match the color of differing pieces of wood or a patch with the surrounding wood.

The use of stains requires some consideration and planning. Don't jump to conclusions. Consider carefully whether a stain will enhance the beauty of the piece you are finishing or whether perhaps it will have the reverse effect.

Stains are commercially available in a wide assortment of colors and stains of a similar type may be mixed by the dealer to achieve the exact color you want if it's not on the color chart. There also are varieties of stains — including water, oil, spirit, pigment wiping and vegetable stains — as well as a number of specialty stains. Each has its place in wood finishing.

THE PROSPECTIVE user should consult his paint dealer concerning the stain best suited to the immediate job and follow the instructions on the label.

However, there are some general rules that apply to the use of most stains.

The surface you are about to stain must be dust-free and thoroughly dry. I suggest that before applying a new stain to your furniture you try it on a piece of similar wood.

You will get the best results in applying stains by quickly brushing it on, if possible on a horizontal surface. All surplus stain should then be wiped off with a lint-free rag. Wipe all over to an even color.

The longer you wait before wiping, the darker the color you will obtain.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

PUZZLED ABOUT CARPETING? It's no wonder, with so many fine new materials available to you, offered in such a dazzling range of colors and textures.

Here are a few brief pointers to help you choose. Wool is the most luxurious of all carpeting — and the best wool broadloom is also the most expensive. It is highly crush resistant and you can choose from deep plush piles and handsome sculptured patterns.

Among the modern man-made fibers, the acrylics are especially rugged and easy to clean, and they don't mat. The nylons, which are a current favorite, especially the long fiber continuous filament nylons, are very long wearing and easy to clean, with no shedding or piling. These take to vibrant colors beautifully.

Where economy and service are the most important considerations, there are fine cotton carpetings to choose from, the lowest-priced carpets for comparable quality.

So the choice is wide and colorful . . . just as the selection of fine home furnishings and accessories is colorful and complete in our showroom. Stop in — for the answers to all your decorating problems!

Add Storage Without A Lot Of Cost

The storage space in any home just seems to shrink with the passing of the years, as possessions accumulate.

Thus the high priority given shelves and cabinets.

But the purchase of bookshelves or of cabinets, or the employment of a cabinetmaker, can be expensive undertakings.

Sunset editors claim to have the solution in their newest building book, "Bookshelves & Cabinets," priced at $1.95 in paperback.

Introductory chapters deal with the basic woodworking techniques. Then come sections applying those techniques to the making of bookshelves and cabinets. And, finally, specific projects, some 25 in all, from serving carts to storage cubes to modular units for the kitchen.

As with all Sunset books, there is a strong emphasis upon illustrations to supplement and clarify the directions. These include both photographs and drawings.

"Even if you have never handled a saw, you can make professional looking shelving and cabinets at a reasonable cost," promise the editors, perhaps carried away a bit by their enthusiasm. For "professional" results, some experience with woodworking tools would appear to be a requisite.

The book can be ordered from the publisher, Lane Publishing Co., Willow and Middlefield Roads, Menlo Park, Calif., 94025, or purchased at many retail and book stores. D.K.

YOU CAN BEAT wet and windy weather by covering the walkway between your back door and garage, and at the same time provide yourself with a protected patio. This wide post and beam cover has been accomplished with four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts, four-by-six-inch beams and two-by-six-inch joists supporting translucent roofing. The eight-foot-wide tiered walkway eases the slope and increases safety.

Covering The Walk Is Simple

When a garage is detached from the house, the hike from auto to kitchen door has some disadvantages.

Not that a little exercise ins't beneficial — but lugging bulgy bags along a wet, slippery walkway risks life and limb, and the groceries, too.

Fortunately, that's a situation which can be remedied. A roof over the walkway does it.

ROOFING THE PATH also presents a golden opportunity to correct other problems while adding a little zip to this often drab-looking area.

If, for instance, the walk slopes noticeably, grading it with level terraces and steps makes it safer. A brilliant second thought is that, since the roof must be at least eight feet wide to provide effective cover, the walk can be broadened and one terrace developed as a covered outdoor sitting space.

Whether or not the walk is terraced, top appearance can be achieved by building the roof in stepped tiers.

IN A LEVEL SITUATION, three tiers could be used with the two end sections built at the same height and the center tier either higher or lower. On a slope, the roof should be tiered to follow the stepped terraces.

In both cases, the roof sections should overlap each other a couple of feet to keep rain out.

Construction of the roof is a matter of a post-and-beam framework. Four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts and four-by-six-inch beams are the dominant choice, with two-by-six-inch joists used to support the roofing material.

IN AREAS WHERE extreme winds are a factor, it will be necessary to engineer the roof to meet those extra requirements. Through most of the country, however, the roof can be built much as a patio roof would be, with corrugated fiberglass used for roofing.

If the posts are to be mounted over the walkway's paving, use commercial post holders: U-shaped, stirrup-like affairs that bolt to the concrete and hold the post butts a couple of inches above the paving.

They're available at lumberyards, are easy to use, and make it simple to plumb the post.

For Your Safety And Convenience

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

An automatic garage door opener: like the dishwasher, any one can live without one — until he's had one.

Basically, the automatic opener does by remote control what the driver does for himself: opens the garage door, turns on the light, closes and locks the door, turns off the light.

The convenience and luxury of not having to get out of the car is obvious, particularly in these days of the mandatory seatbelt interlock which makes it harder than ever to climb in and out of an auto. No more struggling with a heavy door in all kinds of weather.

THE SAFETY FEATURES are an even stronger incentive.

"Light is a powerful crime deterrent. With an automatic system you need never be in the dark from the time you enter your driveway until you're safely in your home. Light also eliminates the chance of stumbling over toys or whatever else is stored in the garage, before reaching the light witch."

With the automatic opener, you won't be tempted to leave the door open because you're in a hurry — an announcement to burglars that no one is at home. Because there is light in the garage before you get out of the car, there's less chance of a prowler lurking in wait.

SAFETY IS A consideration, too, in buying an automatic grarage door opener, Mrs. Finney stresses.

"The first thing to look for is safety. There are certain features that are optional, others you simply should not do without. Safety is one of them," she says.

Good systems, she adds, should have built-in safeguards to prevent the disaster of a child or pet being crushed by a descending door.

In an automatic stop system, the door stops immediately if it encounters an obstruction during the opening or closing cycle. When you activate the operator again, it realigns itself and reverses the door.

WITH AN AUTOMATIC reverse system, when a door comes in contact with an obstruction, it reverses itself and returns to its original open position. This feature is particularly good, she says, where there are small children.

A good automatic system includes a positive security lock that automatically locks the door each time it is closed. It is designed to open only in response to the signal from your particular transmitter, an outside key-operated switch, or a pushbutton inside. Forced entry, Mrs. Finney says, is virtually impossible without extreme noise.

The system also should include a safety release that readily converts to manual operation in the event of power failure.

THE EXPERTS AT Chamberlain Manufacturing Corp., a leading manufacturer of residential garage door openers, echo Mrs. Finney's advice on safety and offer other tips on choosing a system.

"It is wise," they say, "to make careful examination of the existing manual door and spring system on your garage. Many home owners mistakenly believe an automatic garage door opener will solve a variety of garage door ills.

"If the existing door has a bent track, for instance, or the door itself is warped or unbalanced, the automatic mechanism may be overloaded in opening the door. Automatic openers can do only what the homeowner does manually — only more efficiently."

IT IS SUGGESTED that in evaluating an opener you make sure both opener mechanism and remote controls are made by the same manufacturer as assurance the two independent systems will operate properly, and to simplify dealings if problems should arise. It is wise, too, to check to see if local installation and service is available either from the dealer from whom you purchase or the manufacturer.

The opener and control should have the Underwriters' Laboratory seal of approval, as with any electric appliance.

You should check that the system you choose is designed for your type of garage door.

CHECK DRIVE MECHANISM of the opener. Some operate under the rotating screw principle, some use a chain-cable combination and others combine sprocket and roller chain.

The last, Chamberlain says, is the most popular drive in the industry because it gives positive transmission of power for a variety of door sizes and weights and provides quieter operation, especially important in attached garages.

Let Nature Help You

Just about everyone has some sort of secret in the yard that would be better kept from public view.

Often it's the trash cans, sometimes a utility meter, an air conditioning unit, a compost pile — something that can be an eye-sore in an otherwise handsome corner of the world.

A clever planting of any of a number of different kinds of bushes can create a screen to conceal the secret, serve as a most attractive addition to the landscape at the same time. Right now is a good time to put the plants in so they will begin doing their domestic job when their next growing season begins.

THE VARIETY OF bushes you use and where you place them depends, of course, on your own preferences and the location in your yard where the secret is kept; however, in most cases a sight-barrier planting should be one that will grow to fair height.

Your nursery garden center can provide good advice and instructions on the subject.

The American Association of Nurserymen has some planting and care suggestions that apply to most of the different shrubs you might select:

The first consideration, the nursery spokesmen advise, is the spacing of the plants, and this depends on the size they will attain when they are fully mature.

DIG INDIVIDUAL holes for each plant slightly larger than the root structure or container of the bush (much larger if the soil is tightly compacted). Prepare the soil generously with peat moss, leaf mold or other organic matter that will increase the moisture-holding capacity.

Set the plant in the center of the hole no deeper than it was in the nursery, then replace the soil, packing it snugly around the roots. Finally, water the soil well to bring it close to the roots.

Most sight-barrier shrubbery will need about the equivalent of an inch of rainfall every ten days during their growing season, but during dry spells they should be soaked thoroughly every seven to 10 days. Be sure the water reaches all the way down to the bottom roots.

YOU WILL WANT to feed the plants next spring with organic or commercial fertilizer, and your garden center or mailorder nurseryman can suggest the best type of plant food for your needs. Whatever you use, the food should be mixed in well with the soil around the plant's perimeter according to instructions on the package.

SHE'S GOT A SECRET, but it's well hidden. Handsome shrubbery creates a sight barrier and hides trash cans that would otherwise be an eye-sore. The bushes used here are young holly. And when they reach maturity the trash cans will be completely obscured. There are many other plantings that will do the job equally well.

Presenting The Other Side Of The Organic Gardening Argument

By EARL ARONSON

Last week we presented the views of an organic gardener. This week we present a report that says modern science has continuously provided new and improved methods and procedures for the safe production of quality food that contributes to better health rather than its deterioration.

The report, by Purdue University researchers, says, "For one to arrive at a general conclusion based on a one-time experience or observation is not practical and the information is not reliable. How could one know that the result would be the same the next time?"

SUPPOSE, THE report says, you wanted to determine the value of organic matter in a soil.

"If all the plants grown in the experiment were grown in soil rich in organic matter, how could we determine just how valuable the organic matter was to plant growth and vigor? And, do we know for sure that plants growing under similar conditions, but in soil low in organic matter would not grow as well or possibly even better than those growing in soil supplied with organic matter?

"To provide a control or comparison in the experiment, some plants must be grown in soil with little or no organic matter and some in a soil either naturally organic or one that has been enriched with organic matter. Organic content of a soil can be determined by laboratory analysis and recorded for each sample used in the experiment. All plants must be grown under identical environmental conditions with the only difference in treated or untreated plots being the organic matter.

"Plants growing in soil with little or no organic matter will serve as the control or comparison in the experiment."

IF PLANTS GROWING in organic enriched soil are taller, more sturdy and vigorous than those growing in soil with little or no organic matter, then we can conclude that organic matter does contribute to improved growth and development.

In reading gardening literature, the report suggests, one should read carefully and critically, considering whether the information given and the statements made were likely arrived at on the basis of research that would produce reliable information.

"Man," the report continued, "must intervene to assist nature in growing adequate, quality products . . . The gardener assists nature in producing abundant yields of top quality food by using modern, scientific agricultural methods. This often involves the use of biological, physical and chemical materials and methods.

"The important consideration is getting safe and productive results."

"Nature's way," the report said, "is not always the best way to produce food, especially where people could starve to death if nature's insect and disease 'control' system fails. Chemicals are nothing to be afraid of if they are used in the proper way . . .".

Autumn Should Be Clean-Up Time In Your Yard

By BILL MEACHEM

Fall is the time of year when you take a good look at the yard and want to turn around, shut the back door and go inside to watch the new television shows.

But if you can spare a little time outside now it will be a big help and timesaver next spring when the work rush starts.

The lawn is your first project.

Every gardening piece you read now will tell you to keep mowing right up until the grass stops growing. I wish I could say no to this, but I can't. The reason for mowing right to the end is to prevent the long grass from matting on the surface. Long, matted grass on the surface could smother the crown and roots of the little plants. The crown is that part of the plant from which both the blades and roots grow.

THIS IS ALSO another reason people say to remove any leaves from the lawn. They'll mat, too, and cause problems. There are a few lawn diseases which, believe it or not, grow during winter. These will flourish under matted grass or leaves.

But there's a solution to the last mowings and leaf removal. Use your rotary lawn mower for both jobs — at the same time. There is a suction coming from the mower blades and this will pick up the leaves and deposit them in the catcher bag, along with the clippings from the last mowings. It works — I do it all the time.

In fact, I was able to buy an oversized bag for the mower just for collecting the leaves in fall.

I KNOW A friend who uses his rotary mower to clean up his vegetable garden. He runs the mower over the plot without the catcher bag and leaves all the chopped-up plant stems on the surface to rot and help the soil. He claims that it makes the area look better and that his soil is improved because he tills in all the debris in the spring.

I have mentioned many times about using leaves collected in the fall to make a compost pile. When they are chopped up a little, which happens when they are collected with a rotary mower, they will decay faster than if left whole.

But, suppose you don't have the place for a compost pile, what then? You can take the chopped-up leaves and place them around your shrubs and other plants. When they are shredded like this they will not mat together as they would if left whole. In spring you can dig them into the soil — this is on-the-spot composting.

NOW, THERE IS some plant debris that you don't want to put on a compost pile. The remains of all your perennials should be destroyed. These are plants like peonies, day lilies, iris, Oriental poppies and chrysanthemums. These should be thrown out in the waste.

They could contain some diseases which you may not know you have. Certain of these diseases live over winter in the dead plant remains and start growing again in spring. Take no chances — throw them out.

Also, it would be a good idea to spray the soil around them — yes, the soil. A short burst from an aerosol spray will get any insects harboring there. Sprays also contain materials that can help control some diseases.

ROSES ARE PRUNED in the winter so don't do too much with them now. But, if you find some stems that grow exceptionally tall you can cut them down to about three feet high. Long stems whipping back and forth in the winter can loosen the roots and result in injury to the swollen stem at the base called the bud union — where the good rose was budded on to the wild rose understock. This is the weakest spot on the rose plant.

You could also spray your roses even if there is no active growth and only a few leaves remaining. Spray the stems because this is where some insects lay their eggs to hatch come spring.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✓Give Chrysanthemums a final feeding if their buds are still not showing color. If you haven't done so already, stake the plants securely.

✓Cut off those dead hydrangea blooms now, but most growers prefer to wait until late winter to do a real pruning job.

✓Snails and slugs become more active as cool weather arrives. Bait to stop the pests before they gain a foothold.

✓This is an excellent time to set out California natives. Check your nursery's varieties of ceanothus, fremontia, toyons and other fine California plants. Most of them are sun-loving, drought-resistant and need little care.

✓This month is a signal to get spring-blooming bulbs into the ground. Daffodils, freesias, ranunculus and anemones are but a few of the many easy-to-grow bulbs available at nurseries now.

✓October is a good time for planting lawns in most of California. The earlier you start the better. Your nurseryman can outline planting procedures and recommend the best type turf for your family's needs and the local conditions.

✓Dahlia stalks should be cut back to about six inches above the ground and let stand for 10 days. Then lift the bulb gently from the ground, hose off excess dirt and sun dry before storage. Tubers should not be separated until ready for planting in the spring.

✓Keep fallen leaves raked from your yard, so as not to smother the grass.

For a free copy of a 1974 fall season report by Bill Meachem, send your request to Bill Meachem, care of Johnson Wax, Post Office Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017.

This timely booklet offers tips, hints and suggestions for fall and early winter gardening, now that summer has left us.

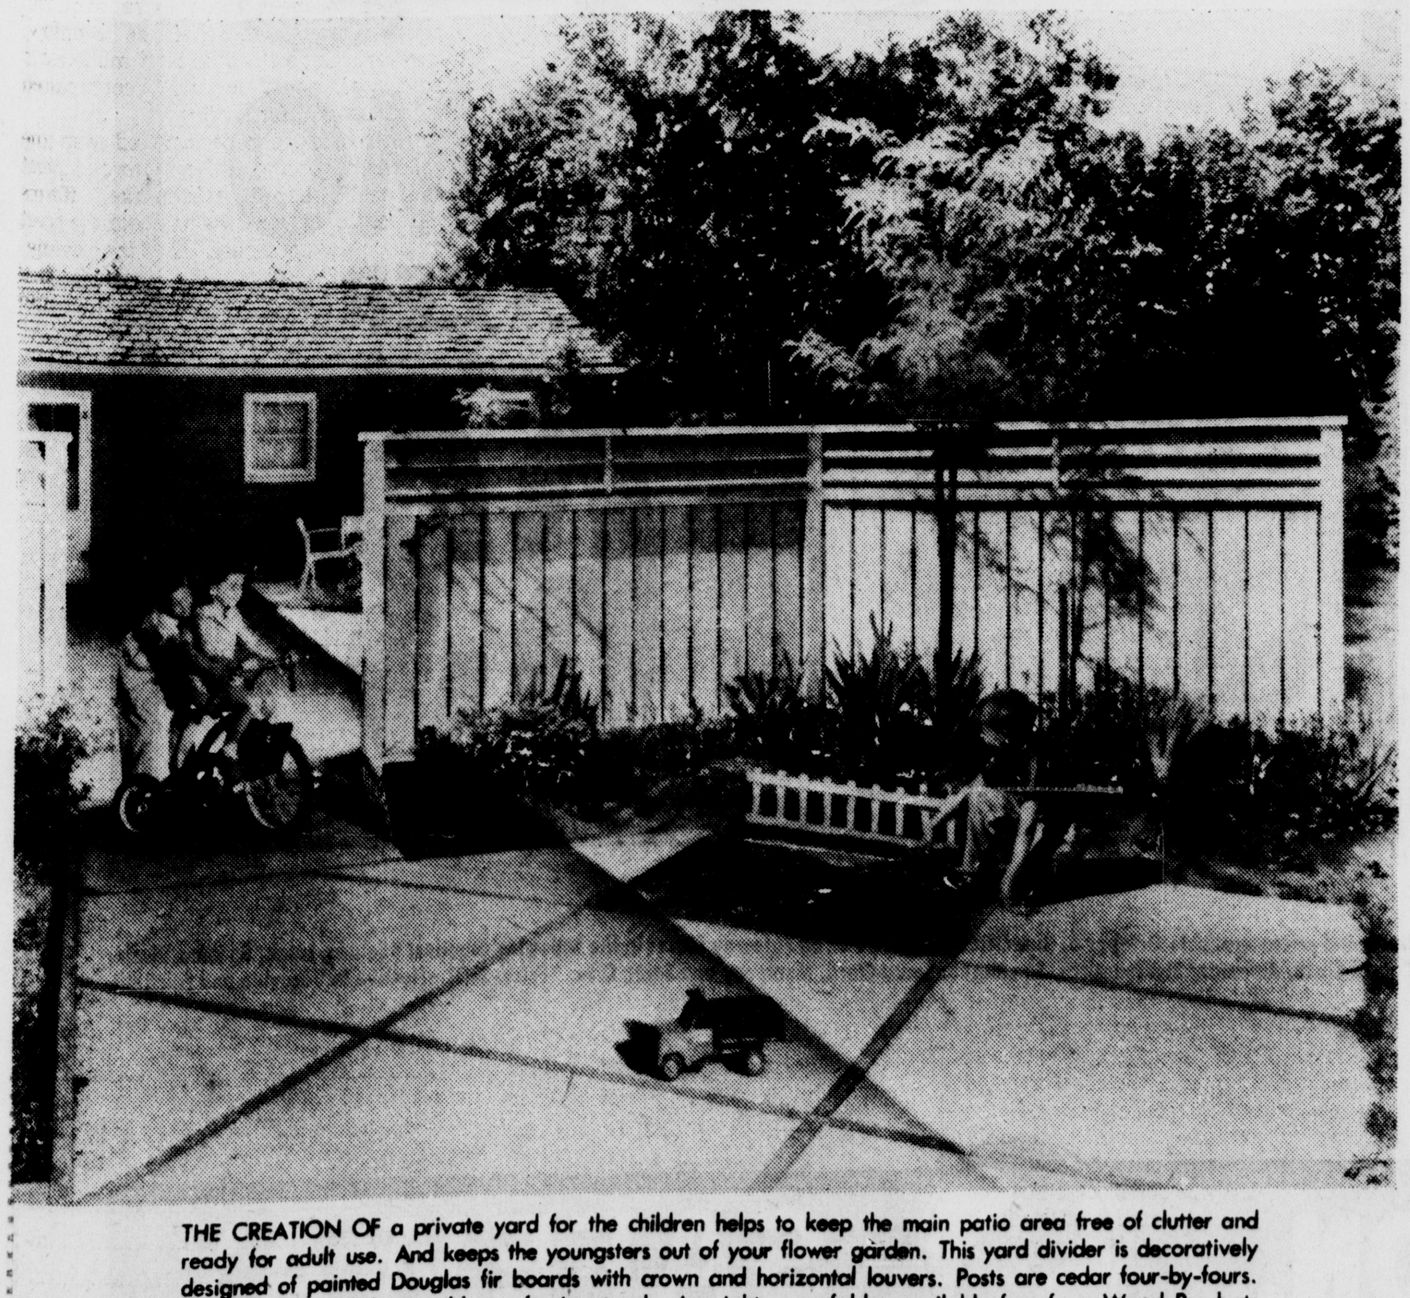
A PLACE FOR THEM TO PLAY



THE CREATION OF a private yard for the children helps to keep the main patio area free of clutter and ready for adult use. And keeps the youngsters out of your flower garden. This yard divider is decoratively designed of painted Douglas fir boards with crown and horizontal louvers. Posts are cedar four-by-fours. Carefully chosen plants add a softening touch. An eight-page folder available free from Wood Products Industry Fund, Box 1696, 1240 Bayshore Highway, Burlingame, Calif., 94010, contains many ideas for fences and dividers.

Teammates: Ranunculus And Anemone

It is recorded that ranunculus were grown for their beauty over 375 years ago.

In the early 1800s they were one of the most popular flowers grown in the European spring garden. Today ranunculus along with anemones are two of the most popular plants of the bulb world for gardeners in the West and Southwest of the United States.

Now with the newer and more vigorous strains of ranunculus available, millions of "Tecolote" Giant Ranunculus are harvested annually in Southern California alone. As a tribute to their stamina and vigor, these bulbs are exported around the world as well as providing enjoyment for gardeners throughout the United States.

THOSE WHO HAVE had the thrill of viewing the results of their plantings want to make it an annual event. As well as adding a rainbow of color to the garden, ranunculus make an excellent cut flower.

Bring spring beauty indoors. Just imagine: one bulb is capable of providing from 50 to 70 flowers — plenty for garden beauty and also cutting.

Available for your pleasure today, ranunculus come in many shades; red, yellow, pink, gold, rose, white and orange, as well as a picotee (bi-color) mixture which is relatively new to the garden scene.

RANUNCULUS WHEN planted one inch deep and eight inches apart will create one of the most colorful borders any garden can behold. These plants reach a height up to 18 to 24 inches and will produce armloads of colorful florist type blooms for over a five to six week period.

This is where the "Tecolote" Anemones come in!

Being of the same family as ranunculus, only lower growing, they are the perfect companion to plant with your ranunculus. Anemones also bloom over a five to eight week period and along with ranunculus make excellent cut flowers.

Enjoy the broad spectrum of colors ranging from blue, violet, red, pink and white, both as color accents in your garden and as a focal point in arrangements.

GROWING RANUNCULUS and anemones to perfection is very easy!

Plant the bulbs in the fall, watch and water in the winter and enjoy the rainbow of color during March and April. There is absolutely nothing else in the gardening world that is as easy to grow or gives you so much for your money as do ranunculus and anemones.

The time to plant is September to January in our mild climate and in the spring where there are freezing winters.

You should select your bulbs early while there still is a good supply to choose from, but hold off planting until the weather has cooled before planting.

IF YOU'RE NEW to this area, you may wonder why you have not heard of either ranunculus or anemones. The reason for this is simple and easy to explain. Neither of these items are winter hardy, so they cannot be planted and grown in the fall in climates where low freezing temperatures occur.

However, the weather conditions here are ideal for these two outstanding bulbs and in our climate they easily grow to perfection. As a matter of fact, because of these ideal climatic conditions, the world's largest commercial planting of ranunculus and anemones is found in Southern California.

This is the famous Tecolote Ranch located near Oceanside, California where each year over 100 acres are devoted to these two crops alone. During March and April people driving along the Pacific Coast Highway are thrilled by the wave upon wave of exciting color that meets the eye when the fields are in full bloom.

Daffodils Are A Must In Your Bulb Garden

Be sure to include daffodil bulbs in your fall planting kit.

Plenty of these bulbs are now available in many varieties at nurseries througout Marin.

Daffodils are a big favorite in the California — they are permanent, increasing from year to year; can stand cold and heat and are so useful in many garden situations: in containers, display beds, borders or under trees and shrubs.

DAFFODILS HAVE fascinating flower forms along with elegant colors. The colors are basically yellow and white, but there are many variations of orange, red, apricot, pink and cream.

The California Association of Nurserymen recommends you check with your nursery for the different classes of daffodils.

Then there's Golden Dawn, with clusters of yellow and flame orange flowers; Riotus is a huge double; February Gold has star shaped petals with a fluted orange trumpet and Fortune is a large-cupped yellow beauty with a semi-long golden-orange trumpet.

There are also mid-season and late season daffodils as well.

Landscaping Through Mail

Most home owners spend considerable time in the selection of their lot and plans for their home and furnishings.

However, an equal share of planning time should be devoted to the landscaping of their home grounds. A well developed landscaping plan adds considerably to the value of a property.

You can enroll now in Pennsylvania State University's correspondence course on Landscape Planning and be prepared, when spring arrives, to put your developed plans into action.

To enroll in the course write to Box 5000, University Park, Pa., 16802 and request "Landscaping." Enclose your check in the amount of $4.25, payable to Penn State.

Let Nature Help You

Just about everyone has some sort of secret in the yard that would be better kept from public view.

Often it's the trash cans, sometimes a utility meter, an air conditioning unit, a compost pile — something that can be an eye-sore in an otherwise handsome corner of the world.

A clever planting of any of a number of different kinds of bushes can create a screen to conceal the secret, serve as a most attractive addition to the landscape at the same time. Right now is a good time to put the plants in so they will begin doing their domestic job when their next growing season begins.

THE VARIETY OF bushes you use and where you place them depends, of course, on your own preferences and the location in your yard where the secret is kept; however, in most cases a sight-barrier planting should be one that will grow to fair height.

Your nursery garden center can provide good advice and instructions on the subject.

The American Association of Nurserymen has some planting and care suggestions that apply to most of the different shrubs you might select:

The first consideration, the nursery spokesmen advise, is the spacing of the plants, and this depends on the size they will attain when they are fully mature.

DIG INDIVIDUAL holes for each plant slightly larger than the root structure or container of the bush (much larger if the soil is tightly compacted). Prepare the soil generously with peat moss, leaf mold or other organic matter that will increase the moisture-holding capacity.

Set the plant in the center of the hole no deeper than it was in the nursery, then replace the soil, packing it snugly around the roots. Finally, water the soil well to bring it close to the roots.

SHE'S GOT A SECRET, but it's well hidden. Handsome shrubbery creates a sight barrier and hides trash cans that would otherwise be an eye-sore. The bushes used here are young holly. A 'Human Libber,' Valerie Harper Has An Eye On Her Life

By ARTHUR UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

You are invited to the Oct. 28 wedding of Rhoda Morgenstern and Joe Gerard . . . on CBS.

Yes, Mary Tyler Moore's upstairs neighbor, who migrated back to New York only three weeks ago ("Rhoda," Mondays, Channels 5 and 10 9:30-10 p.m.) has found a mate.

Star Valerie Harper is only too happy to share her home and her ratings ("Rhoda" jumped into the number one spot in her first week on the air) with actor David Groh, who plays her husband. Julie Kavner plays her sister Brenda and Nancy Walker (on off days when she's not Rock Hudson's maid or selling paper towels plays Mother Ida.

In Los Angeles, where the MTM Enterprises crew has just finished the special one-hour marriage show (which, by the way, also will feature most of the Mary Tyler Moore cast), Valerie Harper is resting up for a couple of weeks before heading back to the sound stage for more "Rhoda."

According to Valerie, she is not so different from Rhoda.

"I call on a lot from my own life," she says. "But, I guess I am not as funny a person as Rhoda . . . or as free. I'm working on it but Rhoda is very free. That's what I like about her — she's the person who says the unsayable. I'm getting better — but I must admit that I am a little more uptight than Rhoda. Otherwise I guess it's me.

"I, too, have a weight problem. When I started on the 'Mary Tyler Moore' show I weighed about 150, then lost about 30 pounds."

In private life Valerie Harper is Mrs. Richard Schaal. Her husband is an actor and director very much involved in his own theater group in Los Angeles. They both studied and acted with Paul Sills of "Second City" and his mother, the famous coach, Viola Spolin. Three-time Emmy winner Valerie Harper also has been a ballet dancer.

Has the instantaneous success of "Rhoda" changed the daily life of Valerie Harper? "Well, we were never really poor. Dick always has managed to work as an actor. We've been down to very little money but we were never hurting hurting.

"Now, we have a business manager and all that — I feel like a teen-ager again with an allowance. It's less than I used to give myself.

"And we bought a house in Westwood. Not a mansion — a house with neighbors, and we can walk to the rest of the village. We just hated the idea of living in a canyon and depending upon a car.

"Dick's daughter by an earlier marriage lives with us — she's 20 . . ."

Rhoda is a rather liberated character. Why is she getting married?

"Well, at first I resented that as a compromise. But then I realized — Rhoda would want to be married. She's not the swinging singles type — and when she meets the right guy, she wants a wedding and all that."

WEDDING INVITATION — Valerie Harper, Mary Tyler Moore's old upstairs neighbor, will be getting married Oct. 28 on her own show, "Rhoda," shown Mondays on CBS. That's Channels 5 and 10.

Is Valerie Harper a liberated woman?

"I'm not sure what that means. I'm ever thankful to 'MS' Magazine — I read it and think it's fabulous. I've given 25 subscriptions for Christmas. And I can remember being absolutely altered by Germaine Greer's book. And in my own way I think I'm working daily at my consciousness being raised. Sure I'm a libber — a human libber, though.

"Don't forget that in the acting profession, males and females operate on the same level — we're all kind of pieces of meat. We're always being used — so there's a common bond. Also no man can fill my job. So, I believe — but I haven't joined any organization.

"Maybe I ought to?" Miss Harper often asks questions of herself, of anybody around her.

What comes after "Rhoda"?

"I'd like to dance again. And do many different things. I've been offered many roles like Rhoda, but I'd be a fool to do her anywhere but on this show. For one thing, she could never be as well written as she is by our own writers. But, I've learned that Broadway is not the only place for talent. There's just as much artistry and probably more rewards in television and movies."

Rhoda Morgenstern is Jewish. Valerie Harper is not. Has playing the role made her feel more Jewish?

"There's a lot of Gittl (of 'Two for the Seesaw') in my Rhoda. I saw Anne Bancroft in it many years ago. But I guess I have an identity crisis because I feel Jewish and I feel Italian and I am neither. But, having lived in New York for a long time, I think maybe I'm more Zionist than a lot of Jewish people I know, but, no question about it — I've never paid any dues. I've never faced exclusion, discrimination.

"We'd all be so much happier, though, if we all just danced together in the garden."

There'll be dancing in the garden . . . and probably in the streets as well . . . at the Morgenstern house on Oct. 28 when Rhoda marries her fellow in what may turn out to be the most publicized domestic event on television since Lucy had her baby. And they're dancing right now at MTM enterprises . . . over the phenomenal ratings.

Masterpiece Theatre Brings Ads To PBS

I-J Special Report

Under Federal statutes, no advertising of any kind is permitted on public television. So what has Masterpiece Theatre come up with on PBS? A new Lord Peter Wimsey detective series set almost entirely in an advertising agency.

But don't call the FCC. It's not the typical Madison Avenue agency. It's a London agency of the 1930s, a time when not only the TV commercial but television itself had not yet arrived into the nation's living rooms.

So while advertising does rear its head as an integral clue in "Murder Must Advertise," the ad in question was designed for newspapers. Public TV remains sacrosanct.

The fourth BBC-produced Lord Wimsey series to be televised in this country, "Murder Must Advertise" will launch the new fall season on the Mobil-funded Masterpiece Theatre. With Ian Carmichael again portraying writer Dorothy L. Sayers' aristocratic amateur sleuth, the four-part series will be aired over Channel 9 Sunday evenings at 8:30 P.M. beginning tomorrow. Alistair Cooke will be on hand, as usual, as program host and narrator.

Using an advertising agency as a backdrop for "Murder Must Advertise" was a natural for the author. She herself worked several years in a London agency. Benson's. Viewers, as a result, can be certain the facts in "Murder Must Advertise" are authentic. The original story, in fact, is considered one of the best novels ever written about the advertising profession.

In the story the head of an agency is confronted with the murder of an employee. He hires a detective to join his firm as a copywriter, not knowing the detective is really Lord Wimsey in disguise. With his usual aplomb and the assistance of Chief Inspector Parker, the whimsical Wimsey ties the murder into a drug-smuggling ring operating out of the agency and finally, after facing death himself, unmasks the killer.

Critics have termed previous Wimsey mysteries on Masterpiece Theatre as "lovely stuff," marked by "super performances and period charm." Carmicahel's enactment of Wimsey was described as having "exactly the right outward touch of aristocratic frivolity, but more than the ability to suggest the steel underneath."

Assassinated Kennedy Brothers To Be Portrayed In A Special

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The assassinated Kennedy brothers will be portrayed for the first time in a dramatic television story when "The Missiles of October" is telecast Dec. 18.

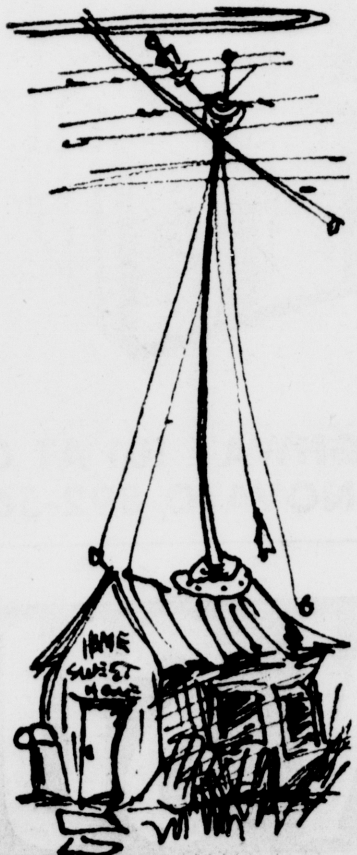
Producer Irv Wilson and playwright Stanley R. Greenberg choose to call their three-hour drama of the Cuban missile crisis "theater of fact."

In addition to John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy such other figures as Khrushchev, Adlai Stevenson, Dean Rusk and Pierre Salinger are represented on screen.

Martin Sheen, the brilliant young actor who won accolades last season in "The Execution of Private Slovik," portrays Bobby Kennedy, a man he knew and loved.

ROBERT KENNEDY
To be portrayed

"I met him several times," Sheen recalled. "And I was a campaign worker for Bobby in his 1964 senatorial election in New York. I followed every step of his career closely and watched all his television appearances.



"Portraying him in this show I used all his mannerisms and voice inflections, including the flat Boston-New England accent."

Sheen spoke a few words that were unmistakably Kennedy patois. But his eyes were sad. He didn't smile.

"I did everything I could in my performance to sound and behave like Robert Kennedy," he said. "This was a labor of love. I wanted to play President Kennedy originally, but I am too short and too young.

"The role went to William Devane.

"They'd have had to surround me with shorter actors. JFK was 6-foot-1 and Bobby was only 5-foot-10." Sheen is at least two inches shorter than the late senator.

"The missile crisis was the high point of the Kennedy administration. It was certainly the most dramatic moment of his presidency. But it was Bobby who steered the course away from bombing Cuba in favor of confrontation with the blockade."

Sheen read three books dealing with the crisis — by RFK, David Powers and Ted Sorenson.

"They all pretty much agree on what each man said and did during meetings and making decisions," Sheen said. "It was the only time Bobby and the President really clashed. Bobby wanted to get rid of Adali Stevenson. The President refused. Bobby backed down. This is all in the script. And in his book Bobby admits his mistake.

"So far as I know this is the first time the Kennedy brothers have been portrayed on the tube. I hope the family understands the seriousness of our intent and agree that both men are honestly portrayed."

Personally Sheen is attuned to the Kennedy family. His politics are precisely those of the brothers.

Yet he would just as quickly play Richard M. Nixon, whom he abhors, should a dynamite script dealing with the ex-president he offered him.

"You play any role out of love for your craft and yourself," Sheen said. "Even if I'm unsympathetic to Nixon, I'd get involved with the role emotionally and play it as honestly as I have Bobby Kennedy. I would have the same conviction that I do in 'The Missiles of October.' "

Perhaps. But it would not be a labor of love.

Bit Parts: Jack Jones will star in an hour-long musical special for television in November . . . Dennis Weaver was named first national chairman for the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve's annual "Toys for Tots" drive . . . Polly Bergen, away from acting roles for two years, stars in "The Cruise," an ABC-TV Movie of the Week.

Score for Redford

Assassinated Kennedy Brothers To Be Portrayed In A Special

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The assassinated Kennedy brothers will be portrayed for the first time in a dramatic television story when "The Missiles of October" is telecast Dec. 18.

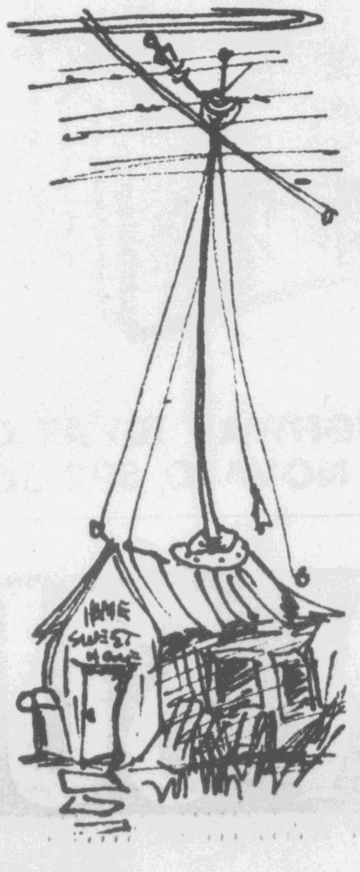
Producer Irv Wilson and playwright Stanley R. Greenberg choose to call their three-hour drama of the Cuban missile crisis "theater of fact."

In addition to John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy such other figures as Khrushchev, Adlai Stevenson, Dean Rusk and Pierre Salinger are represented on screen.

Martin Sheen, the brilliant young actor who won accolades last season in "The Execution of Private Slovik," portrays Bobby Kennedy, a man he knew and loved.

"I met him several times," Sheen recalled. "And I was a campaign worker for Bobby in his 1964 senatorial election in New York. I followed every step of his career closely and watched all his television appearances.

ROBERT KENNEDY
To be portrayed



"Portraying him in this show I used all his mannerisms and voice inflections, including the flat Boston-New England accent."

Sheen spoke a few words that were unmistakably Kennedy patois. But his eyes were sad. He didn't smile.

"I did everything I could in my performance to sound and behave like Robert Kennedy," he said. "This was a labor of love. I wanted to play President Kennedy originally, but I am too short and too young.

"The role went to William Devane.

"They'd have had to surround me with shorter actors. JFK was 6-foot-1 and Bobby was only 5-foot-10." Sheen is at least two inches shorter than the late senator.

"The missile crisis was the high point of the Kennedy administration. It was certainly the most dramatic moment of his presidency. But it was Bobby who steered the course away from bombing Cuba in favor of confrontation with the blockade."

Sheen read three books dealing with the crisis — by RFK, David Powers and Ted Sorenson.

"They all pretty much agree on what each man said and did during meetings and making decisions," Sheen said. "It was the only time Bobby and the President really clashed. Bobby wanted to get rid of Adali Stevenson. The President refused. Bobby backed down. This is all in the script. And in his book Bobby admits his mistake.

"So far as I know this is the first time the Kennedy brothers have been portrayed on the tube. I hope the family understands the seriousness of our intent and agree that both men are honestly portrayed."

Personally Sheen is attuned to the Kennedy family. His politics are precisely those of the brothers.

Yet he would just as quickly play Richard M. Nixon, whom he abhors, should a dynamite script dealing with the ex-president he offered him.

"You play any role out of love for your craft and yourself," Sheen said. "Even if I'm unsympathetic to Nixon, I'd get involved with the role emotionally and play it as honestly as I have Bobby Kennedy. I would have the same conviction that I do in 'The Missiles of October.' "

Perhaps. But it would not be a labor of love.

Bit Parts: Jack Jones will star in an hour-long musical special for television in November ... Dennis Weaver was named first national chairman for the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve's annual "Toys for Tots" drive ... Polly Bergen, away from acting roles for two years, stars in "The Cruise," an ABC-TV Movie of the Week.

Salmi Is No Super Star, But In Finland He's A Hero

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Albert Salmi, so far as he knows, is the only prominent actor in the world of Finnish extraction — and he may be seen weekly co-starring in the new "Petrocelli" series.

A familiar face in movies and television, Salmi is no super star and probably never will be. But in Finland he is a hero.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., where he was reared in what he calls a Finnish ghetto, Salmi now lives with his wife Roberta and daughters Elizabeth, 10, and Jennifer, 9, in Brentwood, a fancy Los Angeles suburb.

Salmi and Roberta admire genuine antique furniture, selecting every piece with care. Their home is a showcase of excellent furnishings.

The actor is particularly fond of an ancient chest which he bought in New York. It is a duplicate of one on display in the Tower of London. On a trip to England he examined the original and found it wasn't in as good shape as his own.

The Salmis' Dutch-English house is rustic in appearance with leaded glass window panes and high beamed ceilings. His den includes a polished wood bar and cozy fireplace.

It is colorfully decorated with old playbills from Salmi's theatrical appearances, along with a rich collection of pewter mugs. In one corner an ornate umbrella stand holds 18 old and beautiful walking sticks he has collected over the years in various countries.

But in order to star in the new NBC-TV adventure series it was necessary for Salmi to move away from his comfortable surroundings to live six months a year in a hotel room in Tucson, Ariz.

That's where the "Petrocelli" show is filmed on location.

There is no opportunity to spend his weekends at home because the series films six days a week. During the summer Roberta and the girls spent their vacation with Salmi, but now they are back in school.

Live-in help allows Roberta to visit her husband for four or five days at a stretch, especially when Salmi has a light schedule.

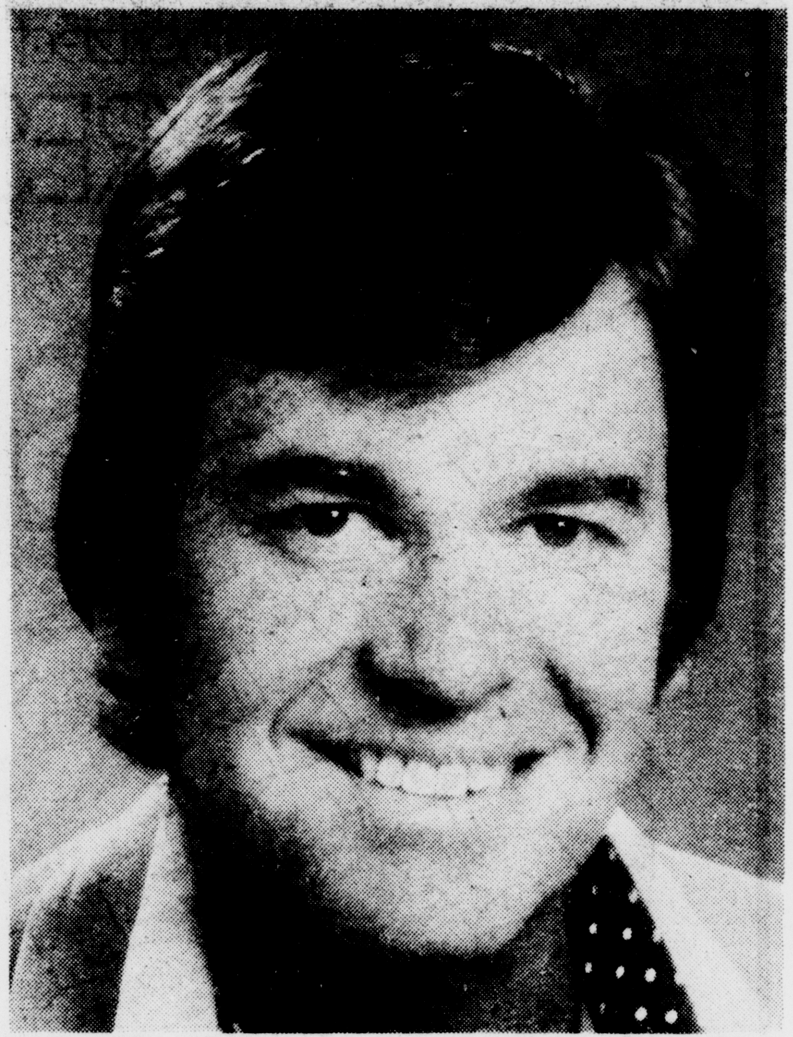
Most of the time he works only three or four days of the week, for five or six hours at a stretch. But he must be on call at all times.

He fills his free hours by fishing in local streams for bass and catfish, swimming in the hotel pool and polishing his formidable tennis game at a local tennis club.

Salmi is also free for long days of sight-seeing and shopping for his precious antiques, collecting old firearms and branding irons.

It is an altogether different life from what he is accustomed to back in Brentwood where he and Roberta often host small dinner parties for their friends. Once a year they throw an enormous party for as many as 150 acquaintances as a means of repaying social obligations.

Weekends at home are devoted to Elizabeth and Jennifer.



DICK CLARK, host of the longest-running sock hop of them all — "American Bandstand" — is seen at 11:30 a.m. Saturdays on Channels 7 and 11.

Salmi Is No Super Star, But In Finland He's A Hero

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Albert Salmi, so far as he knows, is the only prominent actor in the world of Finnish extraction — and he may be seen weekly co-starring in the new "Petrocelli" series.

A familiar face in movies and television, Salmi is no super star and probably never will be. But in Finland he is a hero.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., where he was reared in what he calls a Finnish ghetto, Salmi now lives with his wife Roberta and daughters Elizabeth, 10, and Jennifer, 9, in Brentwood, a fancy Los Angeles suburb.

Salmi and Roberta admire genuine antique furniture, selecting every piece with care. Their home is a showcase of excellent furnishings.

The actor is particularly fond of an ancient chest which he bought in New York. It is a duplicate of one on display in the Tower of London. On a trip to England he examined the original and found it wasn't in as good shape as his own.

The Salmis' Dutch-English house is rustic in appearance with leaded glass window panes and high beamed ceilings. His den includes a polished wood bar and cozy fireplace.

It is colorfully decorated with old playbills from Salmi's theatrical appearances, along with a rich collection of pewter mugs. In one corner an ornate umbrella stand holds 18 old and beautiful walking sticks he has collected over the years in various countries.

But in order to star in the new NBC-TV adventure series it was necessary for Salmi to move away from his comfortable surroundings to live six months a year in a hotel room in Tucson, Ariz.

That's where the "Petrocelli" show is filmed on location.

There is no opportunity to spend his weekends at home because the series films six days a week. During the summer Roberta and the girls spent their vacation with Salmi, but now they are back in school.

Live-in help allows Roberta to visit her husband for four or five days at a stretch, especially when Salmi has a light schedule.

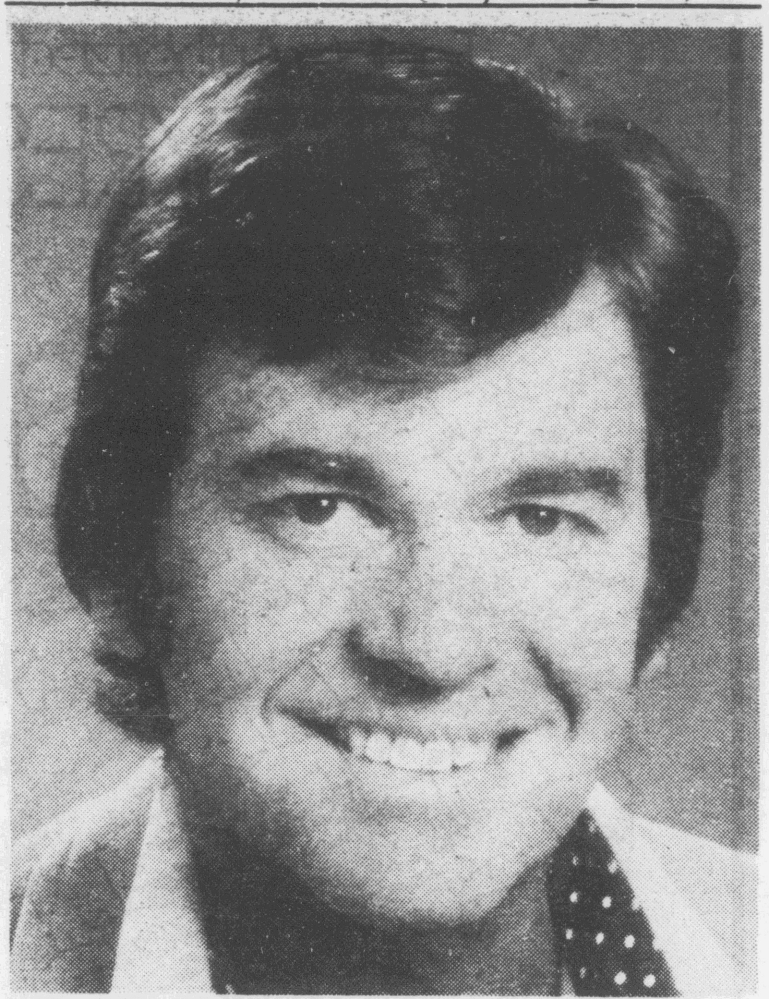
Most of the time he works only three or four days of the week, for five or six hours at a stretch. But he must be on call at all times.

He fills his free hours by fishing in local streams for bass and catfish, swimming in the hotel pool and polishing his formidable tennis game at a local tennis club.

Salmi is also free for long days of sight-seeing and shopping for his precious antiques, collecting old firearms and branding irons.

It is an altogether different life from what he is accustomed to back in Brentwood where he and Roberta often host small dinner parties for their friends. Once a year they throw an enormous party for as many as 150 acquaintances as a means of repaying social obligations.

Weekends at home are devoted to Elizabeth and Jennifer.



DICK CLARK, host of the longest-running sock hop of them all — "American Bandstand" — is seen at 11:30 a.m. Saturdays on Channels 7 and 11.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BARBARA WALTERS

Which has been your most memorable interview, and which has had the most lasting effect on your personal life?—Lillian Sheps, Reno, Nev.

● It was one of the first I did when I began on the "Today" program. I interviewed deaf-blind poet Robert Smithdas, who teaches those with similar handicaps at a training center and home in Brooklyn. He's the first deaf-blind person to have earned a master's degree. We communicated by his putting his thumb on my lips. No celebrity, politician or leader I have ever interviewed moved me as much as that meeting with Robert Smithdas. More than his courage, I was impressed with his humor.

FOR MICHAEL DOUGLAS,

star of "The Streets of San Francisco"

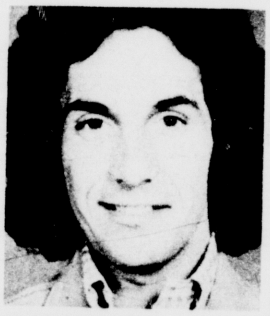
When were you first aware you were the son of a celebrity? —Betty G., Kingsport, Tenn.

● At six. We were visiting my father, who was making a film in Paris. There were other children on the plane, but when we got off, all the photographers made a mad rush toward me. They asked my dad to lift me up and kiss me, which he did. I remember being blinded by all those flashbulbs and asking my dad what the funny lights were.

FOR ANN LANDERS

I've heard that you and your twin sister, who does the "Dear Abby" column, haven't spoken for years. If you do talk, do you ask each other for help on reader problems?—Mrs. J.B., Buffalo, N.Y.

● My twin sister Abigail Van Buren and I have a very good relationship, in spite of constant rumors to the contrary by people who love controversy. We do not counsel one another, however, and keep our work out of our social and family lives.



FOR BILL HUDSON of the Hudson Brothers

Is Hudson your real name, or were you inspired by Rock Hudson?—R. Jeffries, Mansfield, Ohio

● Hudson is our real name. We weren't inspired by Rock, and only met him once, on the MGM lot, where we were introduced by my uncle Keenan Wynn. The one who did inspire us was Elvis Presley (I was six, and my brothers were four and two, when we saw him at a concert). After that my mother bought us ukes and drums, and that's when we got started.

FOR LORETTA LYNN, singer

Is it true you were married at the age of 14?—Kelly Huenergardt, Amarillo, Texas

● Absolutely. I was married right before my 14th birthday to Mooney Lynn. Mooney is five years older than I am and was fresh out of the service when we met. He worked on farms and was a garage mechanic. He started me on my career by persuading the manager of a local club to hire me. Mooney's a better manager than he was a mechanic. Look what's happened to me since then!

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Whatever happened to the fabled millions that Mafia chief Frank Costello was said to have accumulated during his lifetime?—Frances Scott, San Francisco, Calif.

● The IRS would like to know the answer to that too! According to Leonard Katz, author of "Uncle Frank," a biography of the late gangster (which Anthony Quinn announced he'll make into a movie), no one knows what happened to all his wealth. He died intestate. He and his wife Bobbie were childless. Mrs. Costello, who claims she's flat broke, now lives with her brother in New Orleans. The late Mafia boss had a passion for collecting gold watches and gold cuff links—he had thousands of them. At the height of his power, he named judges to the bench, owned real estate on Wall Street, gambling casinos in New Orleans and Las Vegas, and was reputed to be the head man in the national gambling empire.

FOR MARY BACON, jockey

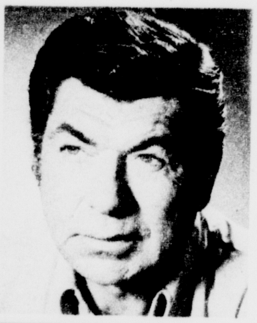
I'm 12. Please tell me what training I need to become a lady jockey like you.—Cindy Love, Elmendorf, Texas

● First, learn to ride at your local stable. When you're 16, go to the track and get a job walking or grooming horses. Your trainer will teach you to gallop horses. By this time you'll know if you want to make riding your career (it takes from one to three years). It's fun—till you break that first bone. And remember: Even though you're a man on the horse, be a lady when you're on your own two feet.



FOR CLAUDE AKINS, star of "Movin' On"

● No, it's almost impossible to sneer badly. But try smiling for a photograph and you'll get an idea how hard it is to act the good guy!

FOR JERRY STILLER

Why don't you and Anne Meara have your own TV show?— Larry Freund, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Just give us the chance, and we'll break the speed record as we run to accept! Unfortunately, we have not yet had an offer that we could not refuse. We've made several pilots together, but they never made it to the series stage. Our dream is to do a variety talk show, and if that ever happens, Anne has given me her solemn promise that she'll let me get one word in at some point during each show.

FOR GOV. RONALD REAGAN of California

If you should decide not to continue in politics, would you consider returning to acting? If not, what would you do?— Dick Mack, San Leandro, Calif.

● I left my film and TV career for good when I entered public service as governor. Two things I do plan after I leave office are to speak on college campuses and do the "mashed potato" circuit to try to dispell some social and economic myths that are hurting our country. And, if I have time, I'd like to do some ranching too.

Amy Vanderbilt on the Lighter Side of Being "Commissioner of Etiquette"

Recently, I received a letter from a reader whose letterhead announced him as Lucifer D. Satan. It read as follows:

Dear Miss Vanderbilt,

In the event that I will be taking a long trip to Heaven over the holidays, I will be faced with a problem. How do I address the King, saints and all of the other Heavenly beings? I do attain a different set of manners in my humble abode and am not familiar with the situation of life in Heaven. Could you please send me some helpful hints on how to act in the presence of the Heavenites?

Fashion is another problem. In light of the fact that you have much knowledge of current fashions, what is the latest fad in Heaven? I know that I will have to buy a whole new wardrobe, but I don't know what to buy. Please send me some information on fashions too. Thank you for your time and help.

His name was signed with red ink.

I don't know whether Mr. Satan is a put-on artist or simply some strange variety of kook. But the point is, etiquette, like the prune, can be funny. And, in the course of my career as an etiquette authority, I have been on the receiving end of a fair number of funny (either intentionally or unintentionally) stories.

A very funny question from a reader was once quoted in FAMILY WEEKLY. It read as follows:

"How do I address the King, saints and all of the other Heavenly beings?"

Dear Miss Vanderbilt;

I'm an unmarried mother, but that's not my problem. I don't know about correct table setting. Can you help me? —A.B.

One is not born with a sense of etiquette, of course, and some of the most embarrassing gaffs are made by children—including (I'll admit it!) my own.

Once I was traveling with my children in Denmark. We were invited to a tea given by a charming woman who had once been the premiere danseuse of the Danish Royal Ballet. A royal princess was to be at the tea. I explained to my children that they were to be on their best behavior and that one does not direct questions to royalty except in the third person—for example, "Would Your Royal Highness like to have a cookie?" My middle son practiced this awkward circumlocution all afternoon. When we got to the tea, he looked around for the royal princess, but was told that the princess couldn't be there because of an accident. My young son was then presented to a baroness. His disappointment showed in his face. "You mean you're just a baroness?" he blurted.

I do get some strange mail from abroad. This amusing letter came from England in response to a question of mine as to why people feel they must say, "Please excuse me; I want to wash my hands," instead of expressing their more basic need quite frankly.

Dear Miss Vanderbilt:

I want to tell you about an instance of false modesty that almost caused a respectable middle-aged married man to be picked up by the police. The man I refer to was visiting my apartment. When he arrived, he said something about his car, held up his hands with a few grease marks on them, and asked where he could wash them. I directed him to the kitchen. He seemed a little surprised, but I thought nothing of it.

Soon afterward, we were shocked by the arrival of the police. A neighbor had called and reported seeing a man in the dark just inside the iron gate that leads to the back of the building. The neighbor didn't know if the man was a prowler, a Peeping Tom or an exhibitionist—but he certainly was not acting properly! It took us a while to put two and two together – but when we did, we all had a good laugh (all, that is, except the disgruntled policemen).

Of course there are letters that come to me that I can't answer, even with the help of a big law firm, a friendly psychiatrist who helps me or other experts. Here is one:

I have a friend whose sister goes by her first husband's name. She divorced him and was married twice afterward and then lived with a man for many years before he died. Now she goes to Florida with another man and goes by his name in Florida. Otherwise, she signs everything with her first husband's name. Is this legal? What name should she go by? It is hard to know how to introduce her. Also, she has taken another first name because she doesn't like her own. It is a mess. Her sister thinks it is wonderful that she is having such a good time. I think it is terrible. Also, this person I'm writing about drinks and smokes.

Some letters from mothers are very delicate.

My daughter is now 12 years old and started maturing quite early. I started her shaving her legs and under her arms when she was about nine. I bought her an electric shaver to take care of herself but sometimes she neglects to do so voluntarily. Sometimes my husband tells her to go shave. Do you think it is proper for the father to tell a girl to go shave?

We are arguing over the age of an old maid. We say the age for an old maid is 25. They say 30. Please answer as it is important.

Or how about this one?

Dear Miss Vanderbilt,

When we purchased our home, the real estate agent showed us an area that he referred to as the "butler's pantry." We are thinking of acquiring a butler and wonder how to install him in this pantry.

And a mother gets her syntax a little confused in this one:

My daughter is being married. As I paid much more than I feel like I can afford to buy the most beautiful gown, I would like for everyone to have the privilege to see it walk down the aisle. Please advise.

Perhaps the classic funny question that I received is this:

My husband and I are always arguing about which side he should walk on when we are out. To settle the argument, please tell me the proper method of street walking.

And I can't end without this rather strange letter from a New Jersey man:

Dear Miss Vanderbilt,

Please inform me on your public affairs.

Very truly yours, etc.

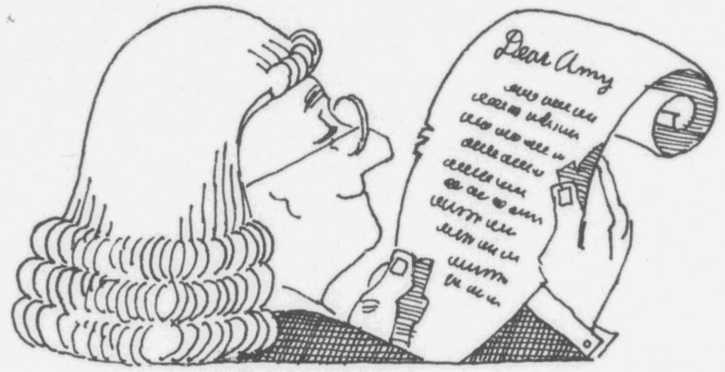
> Fashion is another problem. In light of the fact that you have much knowledge of current fashions, what is the latest fad in Heaven? I know that I will have to buy a whole new wardrobe, but I don't know what to buy. Please send me some information on fashions too. Thank you for your time and help.

His name was signed with red ink.

I don't know whether Mr. Satan is a put-on artist or simply some strange variety of kook. But the point is, etiquette, like the prune, can be funny. And, in the course of my career as an etiquette authority, I have been on the receiving end of a fair number of funny (either intentionally or unintentionally) stories.

A very funny question from a reader was once quoted in FAMILY WEEKLY. It read as follows:



"How do I address the King, saints and all of the other Heavenly beings?"

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt;
> I'm an unmarried mother, but that's not my problem. I don't know about correct table setting. Can you help me? —A.B.

One is not born with a sense of etiquette, of course, and some of the most embarrassing gaffs are made by children—including (I'll admit it!) my own.

Once I was traveling with my children in Denmark. We were invited to a tea given by a charming woman who had once been the premiere danseuse of the Danish Royal Ballet. A royal princess was to be at the tea. I explained to my children that they were to be on their best behavior and that one does not direct questions to royalty except in the third person—for example, "Would Your Royal Highness like to have a cookie?" My middle son practiced this awkward circumlocution all afternoon. When we got to the tea, he looked around for the royal princess, but was told that the princess couldn't be there because of an accident. My young son was then presented to a baroness. His disappointment showed in his face. "You mean you're just a baroness?" he blurted.

I do get some strange mail from abroad. This amusing letter came from England in response to a question of mine as to why people feel they must say, "Please excuse me; I want to wash my hands," instead of expressing their more basic need quite frankly.

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt:
> I want to tell you about an instance of false modesty that almost caused a respectable middle-aged married man to be picked up by the police. The man I refer to was visiting my apartment. When he arrived, he said something about his car, held up his hands with a few grease marks on them, and asked where he could wash them. I directed him to the kitchen. He seemed a little surprised, but I thought nothing of it.
> Soon afterward, we were shocked by the arrival of the police. A neighbor had called and reported seeing a man in the dark just inside the iron gate that leads to the back of the building. The neighbor didn't know if the man was a prowler, a Peeping Tom or an exhibitionist—but he certainly was not acting properly! It took us a while to put two and two together—but when we did, we all had a good laugh (all, that is, except the disgruntled policemen).

Of course there are letters that come to me that I can't answer, even with the help of a big law firm, a friendly psychiatrist who helps me or other experts. Here is one:

> I have a friend whose sister goes by her first husband's name. She divorced him and was married twice afterward and then lived with a man for many years before he died. Now she goes to Florida with another man and goes by his name in Florida. Otherwise, she signs everything with her first husband's name. Is this legal? What name should she go by? It is hard to know how to introduce her. Also, she has taken another first name because she doesn't like her own. It is a mess. Her sister thinks it is wonderful that she is having such a good time. I think it is terrible. Also, this person I'm writing about drinks and smokes.

Some letters from mothers are very delicate.

> My daughter is now 12 years old and started maturing quite early. I started her shaving her legs and under her arms when she was about nine. I bought her an electric shaver to take care of herself but sometimes she neglects to do so voluntarily. Sometimes my husband tells her to go shave. Do you think it is proper for the father to tell a girl to go shave?

> We are arguing over the age of an old maid. We say the age for an old maid is 25. They say 30. Please answer as it is important.

Or how about this one?

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt,
>
> When we purchased our home, the real estate agent showed us an area that he referred to as the "butler's pantry." We are thinking of acquiring a butler and wonder how to install him in this pantry.

And a mother gets her syntax a little confused in this one:

> My daughter is being married. As I paid much more than I feel like I can afford to buy the most beautiful gown, I would like for everyone to have the privilege to see it walk down the aisle. Please advise.

Perhaps the classic funny question that I received is this:

> My husband and I are always arguing about which side he should walk on when we are out. To settle the argument, please tell me the proper method of street walking.

And I can't end without this rather strange letter from a New Jersey man:

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt,
>
> Please inform me on your public affairs.
>
> Very truly yours, etc.

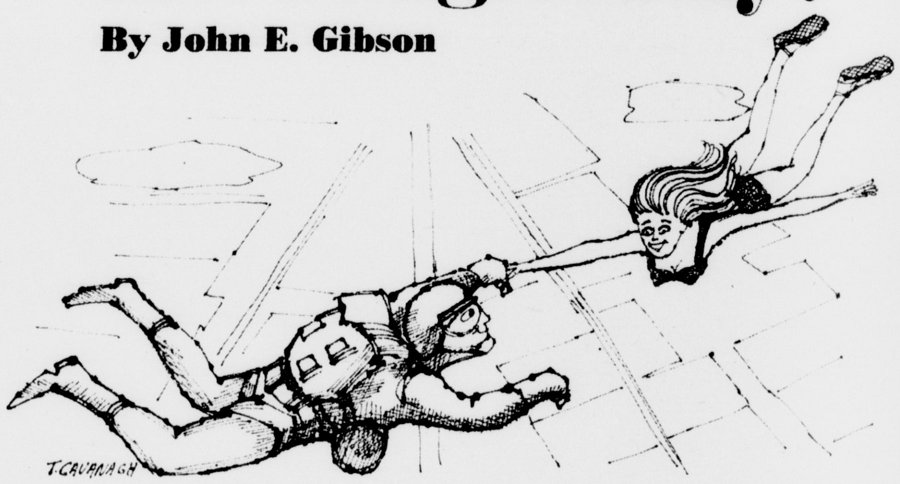
With Their Money... With Their Lives...

What Makes People Live Dangerously?

By John E. Gibson



True or False: People who risk their lives in sports that involve extreme hazards—sky-diving, etc.—are the most susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex. (See number 1)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who risk their lives in sports that involve extreme hazards – sky-diving, etc.—are the most susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex.

2. People will take greater risks when they've been drinking than when they're cold sober.

3. People are willing to take the biggest risks when they are feeling discouraged and depressed because they figure "What have I got to lose?"

4. People with the best balanced personalities are the least prone to risk-taking.

5. If you're driving all day on a trip, there is a three-hour period when you're most likely to take chances you shouldn't and thereby run the greatest risk of accident.

ANSWERS

1. False—as shown by a psychological study of participants in extremely high-risk sports done at the University of British Columbia. Investigators found—after administering a battery of personality tests—that devotees of such extremely hazardous pursuits were less susceptible than others to the charms of the opposite sex. One might say that they tended to prefer courting danger to courting love.

2. True—however, the type of liquor a person has been drinking plays a significant role in determining how willing he is to take chances. In one university study, for example, it was found that subjects "who were given bourbon took significantly more risks than those given vodka." The findings of other investigators indicate that the person who's been drinking doesn't actually think of himself as willing to take greater chances than he would if he were sober, but the liquor causes him to perceive various actions as less risky than they really are.

3. False. Studies of hundreds of men and women from various walks of life, conducted at the Institute of Psychiatry, University of London, show that people who are feeling depressed tend to be the most cautious where risk-taking is concerned.

4. False. Studies show that people who are cautious in the extreme, who are afraid to take risks even if the odds are clearly in their favor, tend to be afraid of life itself—which, of course, is also a gamble. They do not, needless to say, rank among the best balanced personalities. Neither do those at the other end of the pole, who regard taking high risks and courting chancy situations as a way of life. The best balanced personality, psychologists have found, is likely to follow a middle path between these extremes.

5. True—according to findings of the Medical Research Council, Applied Psychology Research Unit, Cambridge (England), which showed that for an all-day driving period – 12 hours—"risky maneuvers were found to be initiated 50 percent more often during the last three hours." fw

The American League's Best, Luis Tiant, and Its Fastest, Nolan Ryan.
In the National League, the kingpins are Andy Messersmith (see our cover) and Tom Seaver (fastest).

Last March 31, a FAMILY WEEKLY panel of top major-league pitchers compiled hypothetical lineups of the batters they would least like to face. With the pennant playoffs now in full swing in both the National and American leagues, and the opening game of the 71st World Series only a few days off, FAMILY WEEKLY has turned to big-gun batters to evaluate the toughest pitchers and rate them in various categories of effectiveness.

Seven top hitters from each league comprise the FAMILY WEEKLY panel, listed elsewhere on these pages.

BEST OVERALL

Ironically, both Tiant and Messersmith came to their present clubs labeled questionable. After winning 21 games and posting a league-leading 1.60 earned-run average for Cleveland in 1968, Tiant faded to the minor leagues by 1971. He eventually recaptured his effectiveness and was brought back to the majors by the Red Sox, whose mainstay he has been for the past three years. Now 34 years old, the 5-11, 190-pound native of Havana, Cuba, is a master of deception. On the mound he rarely even looks at a batter, but gazes skyward, all around him, to either side—everywhere but straight ahead. Then, from behind a high leg kick and one or two head feints, he delivers a bewildering assortment of pitches.

Last August 23, Tiant—son of another Luis Tiant who was a top pitcher in the Negro National League a quarter-century ago—became the first pitcher to reach the 20-victory mark in the majors this year. Number 20 was a sparkling six-hit, 3-0 shutout over the defending world-champion Oakland A's. Tiant also won 20 for Boston in 1973.

A 6-1, 200-pound, 29-year-old from Toms River, N. J., John Alexander (Andy) Messersmith came to the Dodgers from the California Angels in a pre-1973 season trade. Andy won 20 games for the Angels in 1971, but the former pitching star at the University of California never fulfilled all the promise that was expected of him in the American League.

With the Dodgers, however, Messersmith struck out the first six Philadelphia batters he faced in one of his first 1973 appearances and has gone on from there. Combining a powerful fast ball and a change-up that is regarded as the best by far in the senior circuit, Andy has recorded low earned-run averages and low hit yields in each of the last two seasons. He was the National League's starting pitcher in the 1974 All-Star Game.

BEST FAST BALL

No one today throws a ball as hard as Nolan Ryan, the California Angels' 27-year-old flame-throwing right-hander, and perhaps no one ever did. All the American League batters on our panel conceded that Ryan threw the fastest pitches they faced all year. In 1974 Ryan became the first major-league pitcher to strike out more than 300 batters for three straight seasons. He fanned an American League record 19 Red Sox batters in one nine-inning game in August and followed that with a 19-strikeout performance in an 11-inning game against Detroit—which he lost, 1-0.

Despite a below-par 1974 season, Tom Seaver, a two-time Cy Young Award winner as the top pitcher in the National League, still drew the nod from the majority of our NL hitting panelists as the hardest thrower in the league. Seaver, 30, an eight-year veteran with the New York Mets, throws a rising fast ball that, in the words of Mike Schmidt, the slugging third baseman of the Phillies, "comes at you belt high and winds up at your letters with plenty of smoke on it."

BEST CURVE BALL

Bert Blyleven of the Minnesota Twins was a virtually unanimous choice among our panelists as the league's top curve-baller. Rod Carew, who has won four AL batting championships, says his Dutch-born teammate "has the best breaking ball in the league. It's common knowledge." Carew says that Gaylord Perry of Cleveland throws the best curve ball among the opponents he faces. But Blyleven, who won 20 games for Minnesota in 1973, was the choice of the rest of our panel. Jeff Burroughs, the strapping young outfield star of the Texas Rangers, says Blyleven's curve is "hard and fast, with a quick break about three-quarters of the way down toward the plate."

Blyleven and Sutton Throw the "Best" Curve Balls

Wide World

BEST OVERALL

Ironically, both Tiant and Messersmith came to their present clubs labeled questionable. After winning 21 games and posting a league-leading 1.60 earned-run average for Cleveland in 1968, Tiant faded to the minor leagues by 1971. He eventually recaptured his effectiveness and was brought back to the majors by the Red Sox, whose mainstay he has been for the past three years. Now 34 years old, the 5-11, 190-pound native of Havana, Cuba, is a master of deception. On the mound he rarely even looks at a batter, but gazes skyward, all around him, to either side—everywhere but straight ahead. Then, from behind a high leg kick and one or two head feints, he delivers a bewildering assortment of pitches.

Last August 23, Tiant—son of another Luis Tiant who was a top pitcher in the Negro National League a quarter-century ago—became the first pitcher to reach the 20-victory mark in the majors this year. Number 20 was a sparkling six-hit, 3-0 shutout over the defending world-champion Oakland A's. Tiant also won 20 for Boston in 1973.

A 6-1, 200-pound, 29-year-old from Toms River, N. J., John Alexander (Andy) Messersmith came to the Dodgers from the California Angels in a pre-1973 season trade. Andy won 20 games for the Angels in 1971, but the former pitching star at the University of California never fulfilled all the promise that was expected of him in the American League.

With the Dodgers, however, Messersmith struck out the first six Philadelphia batters he faced in one of his first 1973 appearances and has gone on from there. Combining a powerful fast ball and a change-up that is regarded as the best by far in the senior circuit, Andy has recorded low earned-run averages and low hit yields in each of the last two seasons. He was the National League's starting pitcher in the 1974 All-Star Game.

BEST FAST BALL

No one today throws a ball as hard as Nolan Ryan, the California Angels' 27-year-old flame-throwing right-hander, and perhaps no one ever did. All the American League batters on our panel conceded that Ryan threw the fastest pitches they faced all year. In 1974 Ryan became the first major-league pitcher to strike out more than 300 batters for three straight seasons. He fanned an American League record 19 Red Sox batters in one nine-inning game in August and followed that with a 19-strikeout performance in an 11-inning game against Detroit—which he lost, 1-0.

Despite a below-par 1974 season, Tom Seaver, a two-time Cy Young Award winner as the top pitcher in the National League, still drew the nod from the majority of our NL hitting panelists as the hardest thrower in the league. Seaver, 30, an eight-year veteran with the New York Mets, throws a rising fast ball that, in the words of Mike Schmidt, the slugging third baseman of the Phillies, "comes at you belt high and winds up at your letters with plenty of smoke on it."

BEST CURVE BALL

Bert Blyleven of the Minnesota Twins was a virtually unanimous choice among our panelists as the league's top curve-baller. Rod Carew, who has won four AL batting championships, says his Dutch-born teammate "has the best breaking ball in the league. It's common knowledge." Carew says that Gaylord Perry of Cleveland throws the best curve ball among the opponents he faces. But Blyleven, who won 20 games for Minnesota in 1973, was the choice of the rest of our panel. Jeff Burroughs, the strapping young outfield star of the Texas Rangers, says Blyleven's curve is "hard and fast, with a quick break about three-quarters of the way down toward the plate."

best in the National League. This year, Messersmith has drawn most of the raves, but Dodger Don Sutton has not been overlooked. According to our seven-man NL panel, the handsome nine-year NL veteran throws the best curve ball in the league.

Others whose curve balls were rated highly in the NL were Lynn McGlothen of the St. Louis Cardinals, Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh and Jack Billingham of Cincinnati. But Sutton's curve was the consensus choice. Richie Zisk of the Pirates says of the Dodger right-hander's breaking delivery: "You can practically hear it speaking to you. It's a quick one, and it bites."

BEST CHANGE OF PACE

Andy Messersmith throws a change of pace that is the scourge of the NL. It is his best pitch, according to the batters who face him. "His fast ball is very good too," says Ralph Garr, Atlanta's 1974 NL batting champion. "But he sets up his change-up with his fast ball. He gets this change over all the time, and he throws it with exactly the same motion as he does his fast one. Messersmith's change is pretty fast, too-about three-quarters as fast as his regular fast ball."

In the American League, Gaylord Perry, Luis Tiant and John Hiller, the classy left-handed relief specialist for the Detroit Tigers, were praised for their change-ups. But overall, the nod went to Mike Cuellar, the Baltimore Oriole southpaw, for his deceptive change curve. "It goes up before it finally breaks down over the plate," says New York Yankee outfielder Bobby Murcer, "and Cuellar throws it with different speeds and different breaks. All of them are tough to hit."

BEST MOVE TO FIRST

Bill Lee of Boston, one of the best left-handers in the AL, was rated tops at keeping base runners on first. Others mentioned in the AL were Ken Holtzman of Oakland and Clyde Wright, who are also left-handers.

Rod Carew cites Steve Busby, the young right-hander of the Kansas City Royals, who has pitched two no-hit games in his two-year major-league career, for his move to first. Busby is the only righty mentioned in this category by our AL panel.

One of the big stories this past season was Lou Brock's chase of the single-season record for stolen bases. This makes Brock a man to be listened to on the subject of pick-off artists. Brock mentions Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Jim Barr of San Francisco and Wayne Twitchell of Philadelphia among those who tend to inhibit his all-out stealing style.

American League

Best move to first

Bill Lee, Boston Red Sox left-hander

Best fielder

Jim Kaat, Chicago White Sox left-hander

National League

Best move to first

Dick Ruthven, Philadelphia Phillies' right-hander

Best fielder

Mike Marshall, Los Angeles Dodgers

BEST FIELDER

Over the years, veteran Jim Kaat in the American League has dominated the fielding statistics. Kaat, a 36-year-old left-hander who spent nearly 15 seasons with Minnesota and was dealt to the Chicago White Sox late in the '73 campaign, draws the praise of our AL panelists. "When he pitches, his team has an extra infielder in the lineup," says Baltimore's Brooks Robinson, himself a master of defense. "Kaat is excellent at getting off the mound to field bunts, covers first very well, and never seems to make a defensive mistake."

According to our experts, the best fielding pitcher in the NL is Mike Marshall of Los Angeles, who established new standards this season for appearances by a relief pitcher. A scholarly doctoral candidate at Michigan State, the mustachioed Marshall throws one of the most baffling screwballs in the game, which results in opposing batters rapping a lot of grounders to him or to members of the Dodger infield. "He's a terrific fielder," says Mike Schmidt. "That's just another way he has of beating you. He can start the pitcher-to-second-to-first double play as well as anybody, and he's quick off the mound to cover first. His pitching is tough enough, but he really works on his fielding."

BEST RIGHT-HANDER

Luis Tiant of Boston edged Nolan Ryan in the American League balloting, as he did in the "best overall pitcher" category. Blyleven of Minnesota was the only other AL right-hander mentioned, though Baltimore's Jim Palmer, who sat out much of 1974 with an ailing arm, drew praise for his past efforts, including four consecutive 20-victory seasons, 1970-73.

Los Angeles' Messersmith, also cited as the NL's best overall, was the choice as best right-hander in that circuit. Messersmith's two Dodger teammates on our panel, first baseman Steve Garvey and center fielder Jim Wynn, tabbed Tom Seaver of the Mets and Lynn McGlothen of the Cardinals as the toughest righties the Dodgers faced this year.

Though he hasn't duplicated his sensational 24-8 season as a 22-year-old in 1971, Blue at 25 has become a more mature moundsman, our American League panelists point out. "He may not be as fast as he was a couple of years ago," says Bobby Grich, the Orioles' second baseman, "but he still throws very hard, and he mixes up his pitches better than he did in the past."

Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies was rated the top NL southpaw. "He throws very hard and has an excellent curve and slider too," says Pittsburgh's Richie Zisk. a top hitter to all fields. "He sets up right-handed hitters like me with his slider. The last seven or eight feet down to the plate it moves a few inches in on your fists and makes it very tough to handle."

Other senior-circuit southpaws who drew special praise were Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Don Gullett of the Cincinnati Reds and Jerry Reuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "I don't think Matlack is as good yet as he's going to be," says Steve Garvey of the Mets' 24-year-old lefty. "He has the ability to work in tight to the hitters. He needs to improve his confidence."

Why you should buy a chain saw from a company that cuts it with lumberjacks.

Homelite is the largest maker of professional chain saws in America.

Because it just makes sense that the company that can satisfy the demands of the professional logger can make a saw to meet the needs of the average homeowner.

And a perfect example of that is the new Homelite XL which sells for under $100.

The XL has a tough, lightweight engine which allows you to feel like a lumberjack without requiring that you be built like one. It also features an all-weather ignition system which makes for fast starts. And automatic chain oiling. For $99.95, the new XL is really a great chain saw.

But then again, so is the Homelite XL 2, which sells for $119.95. The big thing about the XL 2 is that it has two triggers.

A trigger up front which lets you get right up on top of your work, where you need control.

And a second trigger in the rear to give you leverage for the big jobs.

The XL 2 also tips the scales at a light 7¼ pounds.* It comes with a 12" guide bar. And the same Power Tip® sprocket nose that professional loggers use to boost their cutting power.

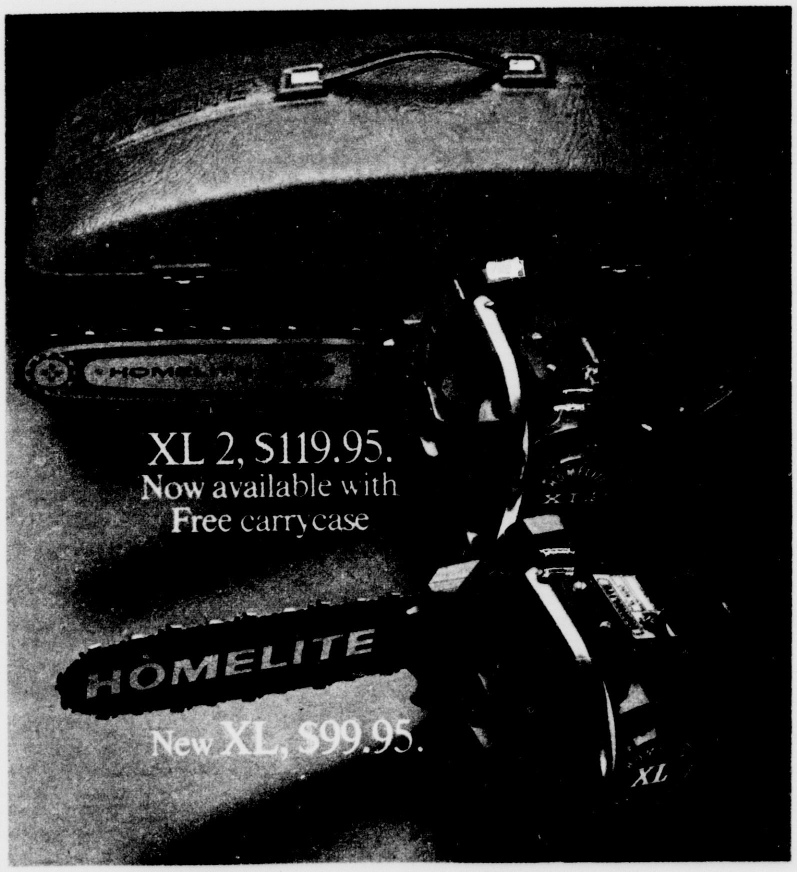
And right now, to really make a case for buying the XL 2, we throw in a case, free. This carrycase regularly sells for $10.95 and can accommodate the chain saw plus all its accessories.

Of course, another benefit in buying a Homelite chain saw is that we have more dealers to serve you if something should go wrong. More than 7,500 of them in the U.S.

Homelite's XL and XL 2. Considering everything they come with, it's hard to believe what they go for.

HOMELITE®

For the Homelite dealer nearest you, check the Yellow Pages under Saws. Homelite, a textron Division, Port Chester, N.Y. 10573.



*Less bar and chain. Free carrycase offer good at participating dealers only while supply lasts. Expires December 31, 1974. Suggested Retail Prices: XL, $99.95; XL 2, $119.95.

I smoke. And I'm not going to apologize for it.

Sure, I've heard it all. I'd light up at a cocktail party. And somebody would remind me of what they've read about smoking in the papers.

Well, I read the papers, too.

I've heard all that stuff they say about high 'tar' and nicotine. And I'd be less than honest if I said it didn't make me concerned.

So I went the whole route. Tried one of those low 'tar' cigarettes, and got as much flavor out of it as a toothpick.

But I kept trying. Guess I enjoyed smoking too much.

That's when I ran across Vantage. And what do you know. It tasted like a cigarette.

Now Vantage wasn't the lowest in 'tar' and nicotine. It didn't claim to be. Just the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette that still gave me the full tobacco taste I'd missed.

Maybe it's the Vantage filter. Frankly I don't know, and I don't care.

I just know I can cut down on 'tar' and nicotine. Without cutting out the flavor.

Now I don't have to make any excuses for smoking. Not since they made Vantage.

Maybe you'll feel the same way.

BEST RIGHT-HANDER

Luis Tiant of Boston edged Nolan Ryan in the American League balloting, as he did in the "best overall pitcher" category. Blyleven of Minnesota was the only other AL right-hander mentioned, though Baltimore's Jim Palmer, who sat out much of 1974 with an ailing arm, drew praise for his past efforts, including four consecutive 20-victory seasons, 1970-73.

Los Angeles' Messersmith, also cited as the NL's best overall, was the choice as best right-hander in that circuit. Messersmith's two Dodger teammates on our panel, first baseman Steve Garvey and center fielder Jim Wynn, tabbed Tom Seaver of the Mets and Lynn McGlothen of the Cardinals as the toughest righties the Dodgers faced this year.

Though he hasn't duplicated his sensational 24-8 season as a 22-year-old in 1971, Blue at 25 has become a more mature moundsman, our American League panelists point out. "He may not be as fast as he was a couple of years ago," says Bobby Grich, the Orioles' second baseman, "but he still throws very hard, and he mixes up his pitches better than he did in the past."

Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies was rated the top NL southpaw. "He throws very hard and has an excellent curve and slider too," says Pittsburgh's Richie Zisk, a top hitter to all fields. "He sets up right-handed hitters like me with his slider. The last seven or eight feet down to the plate it moves a few inches in on your fists and makes it very tough to handle."

Other senior-circuit southpaws who drew special praise were Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Don Gullett of the Cincinnati Reds and Jerry Reuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "I don't think Matlack is as good yet as he's going to be," says Steve Garvey of the Mets' 24-year-old lefty. "He has the ability to work in tight to the hitters. He needs to improve his confidence."

Why you should buy a chain saw from a company that cuts it with lumberjacks.

Homelite is the largest maker of professional chain saws in America.

Because it just makes sense that the company that can satisfy the demands of the professional logger can make a saw to meet the needs of the average homeowner.

And a perfect example of that is the new Homelite XL which sells for under $100.

The XL has a tough, lightweight engine which allows you to feel like a lumberjack without requiring that you be built like one. It also features an all-weather ignition system which makes for fast starts. And automatic chain oiling. For $99.95, the new XL is really a great chain saw.

But then again, so is the Homelite XL 2, which sells for $119.95. The big thing about the XL 2 is that it has two triggers.

A trigger up front which lets you get right up on top of your work, where you need control.

And a second trigger in the rear to give you leverage for the big jobs.

The XL 2 also tips the scales at a light 7¼ pounds.* It comes with a 12" guide bar. And the same Power Tip® sprocket nose that professional loggers use to boost their cutting power.

And right now, to really make a case for buying the XL 2, we throw in a case, free. This carrycase regularly sells for $10.95 and can accommodate the chain saw plus all its accessories.

Of course, another benefit in buying a Homelite chain saw is that we have more dealers to serve you if something should go wrong. More than 7,500 of them in the U.S.

Homelite's XL and XL 2. Considering everything they come with, it's hard to believe what they go for.

What Our Panelists Said

Murcer

Garr

Reggie Jackson on Luis Tiant:

"He's the best right now. When he gets into a groove, he's tough to beat. But Jim Palmer of Baltimore, who missed a lot of the 1974 season, is as good as anybody when he's right. He has a great fast ball, great off-speed pitches and control."

Al Kaline on Bert Blyleven:

"Blyleven's curve is real hard and sharp. He has good control with it, but the major feature of his curve is that he throws it harder than anyone else. It breaks very sharply about three-quarters of the way down to the plate."

Bobby Murcer on Luis Tiant:

"He has every pitch there is. And he's a very smart pitcher. All the head motions he goes through on the mound aren't done for effect. Every one of them has a meaning and can really confuse you if you pay too much attention to them."

Jeff Burroughs on Nolan Ryan:

"I hate to face him, even though he throws mostly fast balls and I'm a fast-ball hitter. He's quite a bit faster than anyone else. When he's right, you can't touch him. Among left-handers, Vida Blue is the toughest for me. I've faced him since minor-league days, and I've had trouble with him from the very first time."

Johnny Bench on Andy Messersmith:

"He developed a lot more consistency with his change-up this year and became awfully tough to hit. He is able to throw his change all the time and get away with it because you can't anticipate it. He throws his changing stuff with exactly the same motion and delivery as his fast ball."

Jim Wynn on Tom Seaver:

"His effectiveness was down this year, but he still throws as hard as anyone in the league. The most impressive thing about his fast ball is that it rises as it comes in on you, until it's about letter-high. It's very tough to time properly. Lynn McGlothen of St. Louis, who came to the National League this year from the Boston Red Sox, throws a good fast ball and a hard curve. He's going to be real tough in the next few years."

Ralph Garr on Steve Carlton:

"Whenever I'm up at the plate, I'm just trying to make contact with the ball. We're a power-hitting team, and I try to set things up for the homer hitters who follow me in the lineup. Carlton, with his hard slider, gives me trouble, and so does Tommy John of the Dodgers, who throws a good sinker."

Steve Garvey on Bob Gibson:

"He's still one of the toughest pitchers around, especially with men on base. I wasn't in the league during his real big years, so I didn't face him at his peak. But he's still very fast and very tough. You'll get your hits off him, but you have to work hard to score. He's an excellent fielder too. Very quick at getting off the mound on bunts and on covering first."

Richie Zisk on Andy Messersmith:

"He has the best overall stuff. His fast ball is good, his change-up is excellent, and he knows how to pitch. I was more effective against him in 1973 than I was this year. He comes right at you and challenges you. Because he's on a staff that has several very good pitchers, he probably doesn't get as much credit as he should."

Rod Carew on Nolan Ryan:

"He's the fastest in the league. But Jim Bibby of the Texas Rangers isn't too far behind, and Jim Palmer always has been one of the hardest throwers around."

I smoke. And I'm not going to apologize for it.

Sure, I've heard it all. I'd light up at a cocktail party. And somebody would remind me of what they've read about smoking in the papers.

Well, I read the papers, too.

I've heard all that stuff they say about high 'tar' and nicotine. And I'd be less than honest if I said it didn't make me concerned.

So I went the whole route. Tried one of those low 'tar' cigarettes, and got as much flavor out of it as a toothpick.

But I kept trying. Guess I enjoyed smoking too much.

That's when I ran across Vantage. And what do you know. It tasted like a cigarette.

Now Vantage wasn't the lowest in 'tar' and nicotine. It didn't claim to be. Just the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette that still gave me the full tobacco taste I'd missed.

Maybe it's the Vantage filter. Frankly I don't know, and I don't care.

I just know I can cut down on 'tar' and nicotine. Without cutting out the flavor.

Now I don't have to make any excuses for smoking. Not since they made Vantage.

Maybe you'll feel the same way.

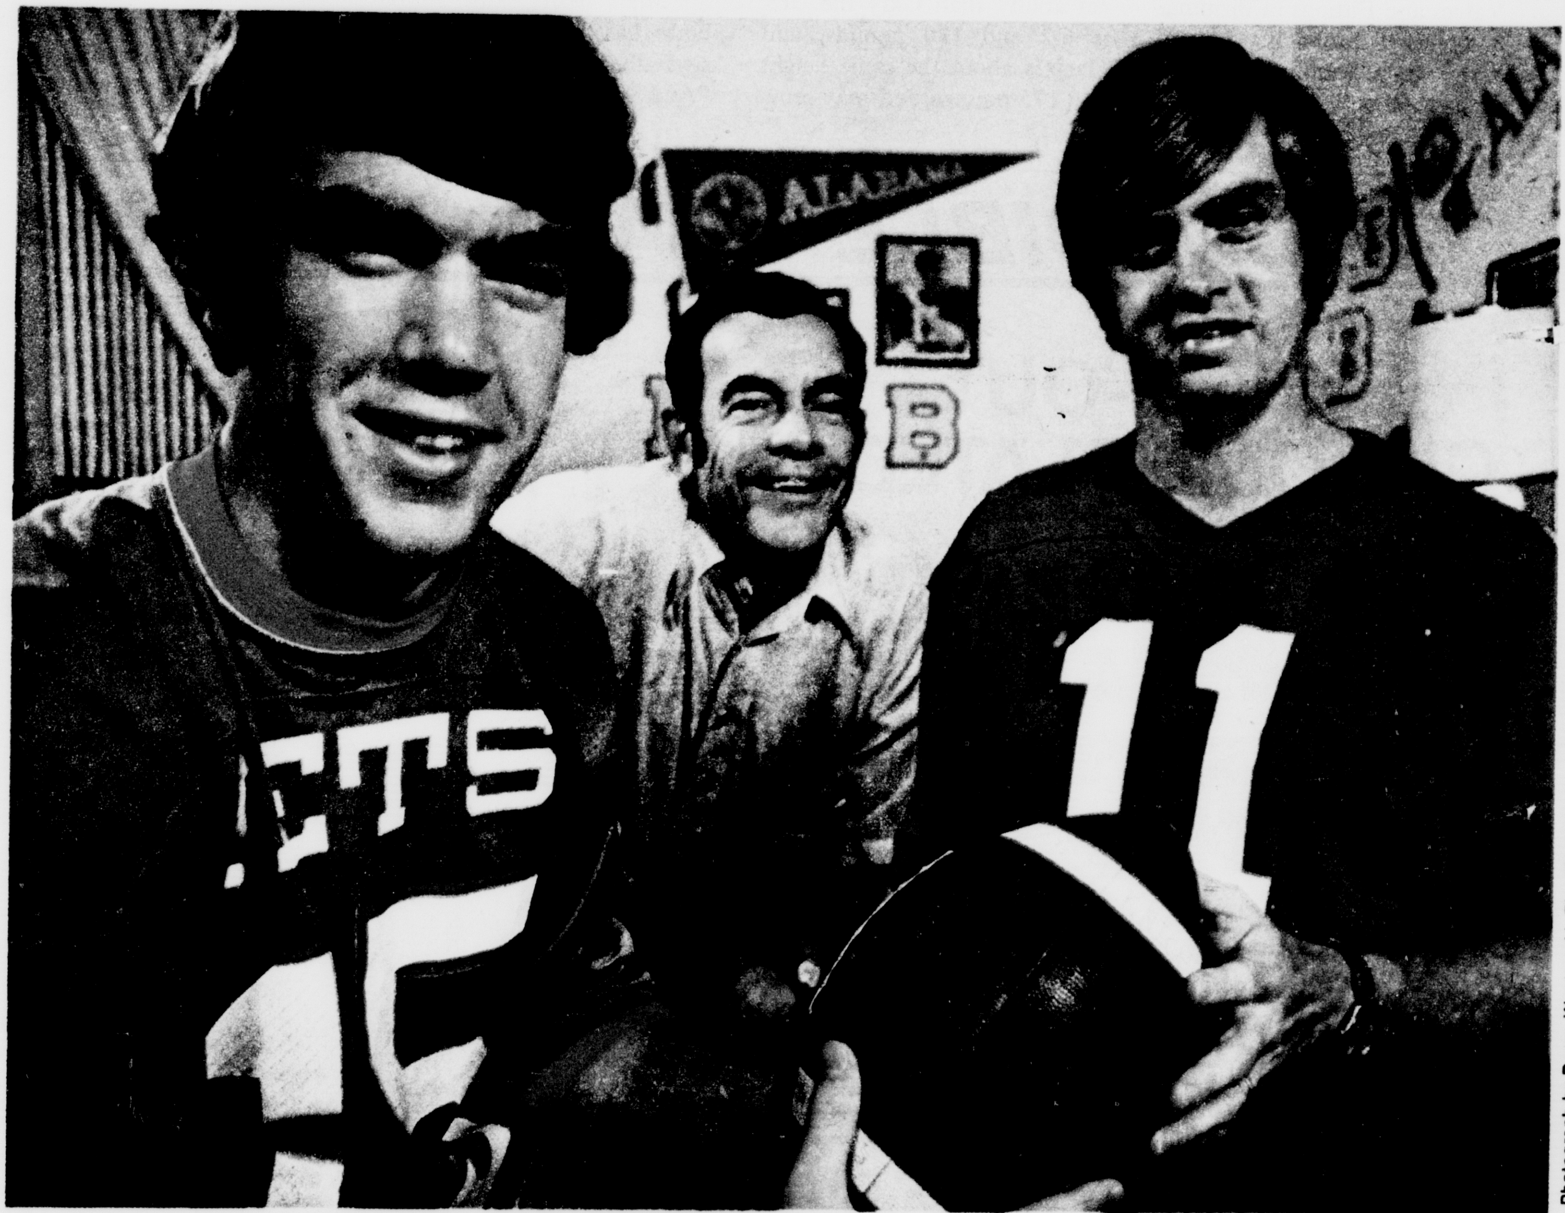
Family Weekly's High School All-America Forecast

By Larry Bortstein

College coaches see these high school stars as tomorrow's football heroes on university campuses



Photograph by Roger Wentowski, The Montgomery Advertiser

THE RUTLEDGES OF ALABAMA: Proud Papa Jack with his two quarterbacks, Jeff (left) of Birmingham's Banks High School, and Gary, who does his quarterbacking at the University of Alabama.

A quarterback who passed for 2,178 yards . . .
A running back who scored 19 touchdowns . . .
A lineman who stands 6-6 and weighs 250 . . .
Will one of them be tomorrow's Heisman winner?

Football recruiters for colleges across the country may be wearing out the roads that lead to Birmingham, Ala., by the time the 1974 high school season winds down. The football bird dogs have an uncommon interest in Alabama's biggest city this fall. The reason? Of the more than 300,000 residents of "the Pittsburgh of the South," two are considered among the most prized high school senior prospects in the nation.

They are Jeff Rutledge, the quarterback at Banks High School, and Tony Nathan, a running back from Woodlawn High School. Along with 28 other highly touted youngsters, Rutledge and Nathan drew raves from a panel of men representing seven of the finest university football programs in the U.S. – Alabama, Maryland, Michigan, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Southern California and Texas.

Jeff Rutledge's family has known its share of athletic accomplishment. His father Jack was a scholarship baseball player at the University of Alabama in the early 1950's and spent six seasons as an infielder in the Chicago Cubs' farm system. Gary, the redheaded older brother of brown-haired Jeff, is the starting senior quarterback for the current University of Alabama football squad, and is considered an outstanding candidate for All-America honors this year. Last fall, in leading the Crimson Tide to the Sugar Bowl, Gary paced the Southeastern Conference in completion percentage and was voted the conference's "Back of the Year."

The Rutledge home in Birmingham's South End is only two blocks away from Banks High, where Jeff has thrown for 2,178 yards and run for another 1,046 yards in leading his team to the state championship the past two years. Banks has won 25 and tied one without losing at all over that span.

With two University of Alabama products in the same household, many expect Jeff to join Bear Bryant's troops at Tuscaloosa in the fall of 1975. "But he hasn't ruled out other schools completely yet," says Jack Rutledge, a buyer for Stockham Valves and Fittings in Birmingham. "He'll probably wind up at one of the Southeastern Conference schools, but not necessarily Alabama."

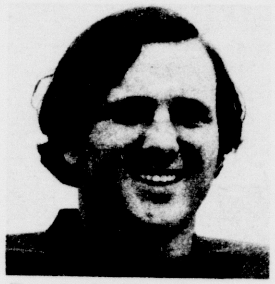
George White, who has coached both Gary and Jeff at Banks, thinks Jeff, his current field leader, "has more physical ability than Gary did. Jeff is 6-2 and 190 pounds, and Gary is about the same height and 175 pounds. Jeff may grow some more too."

For his part, Jeff hopes to enter professional sports someday, either in baseball or football. He batted .385 as a shortstop for the Banks baseball team last spring. He also averaged about 15 points per game as a forward on the basketball team, but plans to abandon basketball this year to concentrate on honing his other sports skills. "I like both baseball and football," says the youngest Rutledge. "And I'd like to stay with both as long as I can before I have to make up my mind which one I'll concentrate on."

Right now, Jeff is concentrating on Friday evening, November 8. On that night, his Banks squad takes on Woodlawn High at Birmingham's Legion Field in a contest that could have a large bearing on the Alabama state title. Legion Field, the home stadium of the Birmingham Americans of the World Football League and the site of many of the University of Alabama's top games, has a seating capacity of 72,000. The Banks-Woodlawn clash is expected to attract more than 20,000 fans—an astonishing number for high school football. But they may well be watching an astonishing contest that night. Last year, Banks beat Woodlawn 17-7, after Nathan, the ace ballcarrier from the school on the east side of Birmingham, reeled off a 68-yard touchdown run in the opening two minutes of the first quarter. "Luckily, our defense held Nathan in check the rest of the way," recalls Banks Coach White. "But there was no question that he was the best back we faced last year. He's really something."

Tony scored 19 touchdowns in all in 1973, running from scrimmage and on kick returns. He scampered for more than 1,000 yards. Of the 6-2, 195-pounder from Woodlawn High, one member of our panel of college recruiters says, "He's just a big kid with great speed. Everybody wants him." Jerry Pettibone of the Oklahoma coaching staff points out that the Sooners rarely have looked to the state of Alabama as a supplier of football players. "But in Nathan's case, we hope he'll consider us carefully before he makes up his mind."



Ronnie Smith, big Baytown, Texas, tackle.

If Nathan isn't the best running-back prospect in the U.S., the only other candidate for that designation is Paul Rice of Lewisville, Texas. According to a FAMILY WEEKLY recruiting panelist, Lewisville High, about 50 miles northwest of Dallas, gained prominence in Texas prep-football circles only in the past two or three years. Rice, a 5-11, 195-pound lad, will see to it that the school continues to be highly regarded this fall. Paul has rushed for more than 1,000 yards in each of the past two years and has been clocked at 4.6 seconds for 40 yards. In one 1973 game, Rice picked up a whopping 328 yards on the ground all by himself.

They are Jeff Rutledge, the quarterback at Banks High School, and Tony Nathan, a running back from Woodlawn High School. Along with 28 other highly touted youngsters, Rutledge and Nathan drew raves from a panel of men representing seven of the finest university football programs in the U.S. – Alabama, Maryland, Michigan, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Southern California and Texas.

Jeff Rutledge's family has known its share of athletic accomplishment. His father Jack was a scholarship baseball player at the University of Alabama in the early 1950's and spent six seasons as an infielder in the Chicago Cubs' farm system. Gary, the redheaded older brother of brown-haired Jeff, is the starting senior quarterback for the current University of Alabama football squad, and is considered an outstanding candidate for All-America honors this year. Last fall, in leading the Crimson Tide to the Sugar Bowl, Gary paced the Southeastern Conference in completion percentage and was voted the conference's "Back of the Year."

The Rutledge home in Birmingham's South End is only two blocks away from Banks High, where Jeff has thrown for 2,178 yards and run for another 1,046 yards in leading his team to the state championship the past two years. Banks has won 25 and tied one without losing at all over that span.

The most prominent besides Rice and Nathan are 227-pound fullback Greg Bielko of Lakewood, Ohio; Ron Bonner of Westwood High in Mesa, Ariz.; Billy Sims, a lad from Hooks, Texas, near the Arkansas border, who sprints 40 yards in an eye-popping 4.5 seconds; and Markey Crane of San Francisco's Galileo High, the same school that turned out O. J. Simpson.

Top senior quarterbacks on the national scene, in addition to Jeff Rutledge, include Thomas Lott of Jay High in San Antonio and Turk Schonert of Servite High, a small Catholic school in Anaheim, Calif. Lott, an excellent runner and passer, coolly runs Jay High's wishbone-T offense, while Schonert, join Bear Bryant's troops at Tuscaloosa in the fall of 1975. "But he hasn't ruled out other schools completely yet," says Jack Rutledge, a buyer for Stockham Valves and Fittings in Birmingham. "He'll probably wind up at one of the Southeastern Conference schools, but not necessarily Alabama."

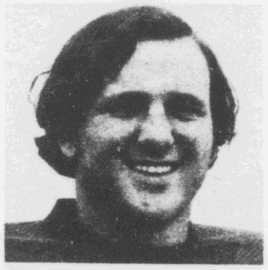
George White, who has coached both Gary and Jeff at Banks, thinks Jeff, his current field leader, "has more physical ability than Gary did. Jeff is 6-2 and 190 pounds, and Gary is about the same height and 175 pounds. Jeff may grow some more too."

For his part, Jeff hopes to enter professional sports someday, either in baseball or football. He batted .385 as a shortstop for the Banks baseball team last spring. He also averaged about 15 points per game as a forward on the basketball team, but plans to abandon basketball this year to concentrate on honing his other sports skills. "I like both baseball and football," says the youngest Rutledge. "And I'd like to stay with both as long as I can before I have to make up my mind which one I'll concentrate on."

Right now, Jeff is concentrating on Friday evening, November 8. On that night, his Banks squad takes on Woodlawn High at Birmingham's Legion Field in a contest that could have a large bearing on the Alabama state title. Legion Field, the home stadium of the Birmingham Americans of the World Football League and the site of many of the University of Alabama's top games, has a seating capacity of 72,000. The Banks-Woodlawn clash is expected to attract more than 20,000 fans—an astonishing number for high school football. But they may well be watching an astonishing contest that night. Last year, Banks beat Woodlawn 17-7, after Nathan, the ace ballcarrier from the school on the east side of Birmingham, reeled off a 68-yard touchdown run in the opening two minutes of the first quarter. "Luckily, our defense held Nathan in check the rest of the way," recalls Banks Coach White. "But there was no question that he was the best back we faced last year. He's really something."

Tony scored 19 touchdowns in all in 1973, running from scrimmage and on kick returns. He scampered for more than 1,000 yards. Of the 6-2, 195-pounder from Woodlawn High, one member of our panel of college recruiters says, "He's just a big kid with great speed. Everybody wants him." Jerry Pettibone of the Oklahoma coaching staff points out that the Sooners rarely have looked to the state of Alabama as a supplier of football players. "But in Nathan's case, we hope he'll consider us carefully before he makes up his mind."



Ronnie Smith, big Baytown, Texas, tackle.

If Nathan isn't the best running-back prospect in the U.S., the only other candidate for that designation is Paul Rice of Lewisville, Texas. According to a FAMILY WEEKLY recruiting panelist, Lewisville High, about 50 miles northwest of Dallas, gained prominence in Texas prep-football circles only in the past two or three years. Rice, a 5-11, 195-pound lad, will see to it that the school continues to be highly regarded this fall. Paul has rushed for more than 1,000 yards in each of the past two years and has been clocked at 4.6 seconds for 40 yards. In one 1973 game, Rice picked up a whopping 328 yards on the ground all by himself.

This important opportunity to acquire ingots of artistic and historical significance in gold and silver comes at a time when economists and investment advisors are predicting gold and silver will become even more valuable in the years ahead. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. A 1970 Christmas Ingot, for example, was issued for $12.00 and is now being re-sold for $185. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and is now trading at about $22. So please act promptly to share in the excitement of owning this magnificent collection.

GUARANTEED PRICE PROTECTION

Under the terms of this offer, The Hamilton Mint is officially committed to deliver to you the complete set of 38 ingots over the next 19 months, regardless of how high the price of silver and gold climbs. The Hamilton Mint does reserve the right to limit the edition below the published maximum limits, but once your application is accepted, your subscription is guaranteed.

Irma and Peter McNulty

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. Non-profit. Non-partisan. An association of more than 6 million people. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's probably one of the few organizations in the world that offers you the opportunity to give so much of yourself, if you so desire and at the same time provides so many benefits and services. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health insurance. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents your interest with state legislatures and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights for all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf, and what remains to be accomplished.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So one of AARP's most important benefits is eligibility for supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They help you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a Skilled Nursing Facility and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by more than 6 million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? The AARP recommended travel service can help you do it. You can choose from a wide variety of quality tours and cruises, ranging from luxury to economy, escorted by experienced tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, may be able to help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are over 1600 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aide Program. Or just meet new friends.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

As an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto-insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina, Texas and Massachusetts.

NICOLA NAYLOR
Blind, yes, but . . .

Nicola Naylor's life changed the day she met a spirited horse named Storm Haven. Pretty blonde Nicola, almost totally blind since birth, is also a willful wisp of a woman. For some reason the combination of Nicola and Storm Haven was the right one. They struck up an immediate mutual understanding that has led them, astoundingly, to show jumping, ribbons and silver trophies. How does a girl with tunnel vision in one eye and no sight in the other manage to guide her horse over a jumping course? Easily, is Nicola's reply. She walks the course with Storm Haven before the events and counts the strides between each fence. "I memorize the turns and discover whether the obstacle is a wall or a gate," she says. Her form over the fences is so good that judges are generally unaware of her problem.

MARY JOHNSTON
Oldest "paper boy"

Next Saturday is International Newspaper Carrier Day, named in honor of more than a million newspaper carriers throughout the world. The vast percentage of newspaper carriers are boys, generally in the 12-14 age bracket. The "paper boy" in Coalgate, Okla., is not a boy at all. She is a woman, Mary Johnston. She is 88, has been delivering newspapers for 34 years, and, according to the International Association of Newspaper Circulation Managers, Washington, D.C., is the nation's oldest paper carrier. Daily, Coalgate residents see Mrs. Johnston striding briskly up and down the streets of the small town delivering the Ada, Okla., Evening and Sunday News. Her route covers five miles, and she walks it six days a week, rain or shine. She admits she is occasionally tempted to give up her job. But she always reconsiders. "Keeps me limbered up," she says. "I'm old, and if old people don't do something, they start to set. They wind up setting in wheelchairs. Not me!"

Nancy

Sssssssssss . . . Hissing back at a hooded-cobra radiator cap on a car that once belonged to Rudolph Valentino is one of the ways 17-year-old Nancy McIntosh likes to clown at work. Her job: car polisher for the 85 antique automobiles at the Merle Norman World of Beauty at San Sylmar, located just outside Los Angeles in the San Fernando Valley. San Sylmar, completed only recently, houses a large collection of "functional fine arts" (that is, everything there was designed for use, and can still be used). The cobra radiator cap was a gift to Valentino from Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. Non-profit. Non-partisan. An association of more than 6 million people. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's probably one of the few organizations in the world that offers you the opportunity to give so much of yourself, if you so desire and at the same time provides so many benefits and services. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health insurance. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents your interest with state legislatures and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights for all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf, and what remains to be accomplished.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So one of AARP's most important benefits is eligibility for supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They help you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a Skilled Nursing Facility and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by more than 6 million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? The AARP recommended travel service can help you do it. You can choose from a wide variety of quality tours and cruises, ranging from luxury to economy, escorted by experienced tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, may be able to help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

Irma and Peter McNulty

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are over 1600 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aide Program. Or just meet new friends.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

As an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto-insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina, Texas and Massachusetts.

Available to You Direct-From-The-Publisher

A breakthrough in encyclopedia publishing history. Since 1768, Encyclopaedia Britannica has been recognized as the reference standard of the world. Now . . . the world's most authoritative and complete reference work has been redesigned and totally rewritten to bring you and your family a far more readable, usable, informative encyclopedia than ever before available.

A revolutionary new encyclopedia for today . . . and the 21st Century. While realizing the satisfaction that comes from the publication of the world's most respected encyclopedia, The Editors of Britannica have struggled for decades to develop a work which would be more than a reference . . . a work which would also excite and satisfy the appetite for knowledge of educationally-minded families. Now, after 17 years and 32 million dollars, the Editors proudly announce a startling all-new encyclopedia—BRITANNICA 3—which outmodes every other encyclopedia ever published. In a dramatic 3-part arrangement that makes seeking, finding and knowing easier than ever, BRITANNICA 3 provides immense help in homework assignments and, as never before, is a great help to school children in everyday learning. At the same time it can motivate student and adult alike into the magical world of fact and self-enrichment.

More useful . . . in more ways . . . to more people. The extraordinary usefulness of the revolutionary BRITANNICA 3 is founded on a simple objective . . . the desire to serve the three basic requirements of a meaningful, family encyclopedia. Consequently, BRITANNICA 3 is arranged for three distinct purposes into three distinct parts:

1. TO GET AT THE FACTS, OR A SINGLE FACT, QUICKLY AND EASILY. This need is served by the 10-volume Ready Reference and Index (Micropedia), containing 102,000 short articles, each less than 750 words, and written in a style that makes them quickly and easily readable. So readable, in fact, that many school children will find the Ready Reference and Index of immense value in homework assignments.
2. TO DISCOVER THE MEANING OF THE FACTS. This need is served by the 19 Knowledge in Depth volumes (Macropedia), containing 4,200 authoritative articles on major subjects, providing the reader with knowledge in depth and with the understanding, insight, and wisdom that is available in every field of learning.
3. TO EXPLORE ENTIRE FIELDS OF KNOWLEDGE—TO HAVE AT YOUR DISPOSAL THE TEACHING RESOURCES OF A UNIVERSITY WITHOUT WALLS. This need is served by the one-volume Outline and Guide (Propedia), which is a readable outline of the whole of human knowledge, with introductory essays that make it a helpful guide to study in the Britannica any area of learning.

BRITANNICA 3 Provides Thousands of Subjects of Practical Value. BRITANNICA 3 has special articles on interior design, medicine, science, mathematics, religion, politics, health, sports, child care and more . . . useful information that can save you many dollars and make everyone in your family a better informed individual.

BRITANNICA 3 is Abundantly Alive With Colorful Illustrations. With over 24,000 magnificent maps and illustrations—thousands in vivid color—BRITANNICA 3 doesn't merely show "attractive pictures." The illustrations are an integral part of an approach which brings life and greater meaning to the facts they depict.

Immense Value in Homework—Never Before As Useful to School Children! For students, BRITANNICA 3 is indispensable. It is the finest, most complete reference published in the world. It helps develop the active, alert minds that bring success in school and later life.

May we send you, free and without obligation, our new Preview Booklet which pictures and describes BRITANNICA 3 in detail. We'll also give you complete information on this exciting offer. For details on this complete program, just mail the attached postage-free card today.

Would You Believe . . . ?
I Fell In Love
With A Micropedia

Sound crazy? Maybe it is.

But a short time ago I had an opportunity to get a sneak preview of Britannica's brand new encyclopedia and; believe me, it's nothing like the old one that my family cherished for years. In fact, this one is in three parts, and—hold your hat—the part I like most is called the Micropedia!

Seriously, if you or your children need to have at your fingertips a way to find out about anything at all, this part of THE NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA may get to you, too. But, that's just the beginning.

There are two more parts to this new encyclopedia, and when you put them all together, there's no better family encyclopedia around.

A revolutionary new encyclopedia for today . . . and the 21st Century. While realizing the satisfaction that comes from the publication of the world's most respected encyclopedia, The Editors of Britannica have struggled for decades to develop a work which would be more than a reference . . . a work which would also excite and satisfy the appetite for knowledge of educationally-minded families. Now, after 17 years and 32 million dollars, the Editors proudly announce a startling all-new encyclopedia—BRITANNICA 3—which outmodes every other encyclopedia ever published. In a dramatic 3-part arrangement that makes seeking, finding and knowing easier than ever, BRITANNICA 3 provides immense help in homework assignments and, as never before, is a great help to school children in everyday learning. At the same time it can motivate student and adult alike into the magical world of fact and self-enrichment.

More useful . . . in more ways . . . to more people. The extraordinary usefulness of the revolutionary BRITANNICA 3 is founded on a simple objective . . . the desire to serve the three basic requirements of a meaningful, family encyclopedia. Consequently, BRITANNICA 3 is arranged for three distinct purposes into three distinct parts:

1. TO GET AT THE FACTS, OR A SINGLE FACT, QUICKLY AND EASILY. This need is served by the 10-volume Ready Reference and Index (Micropedia), containing 102,000 short articles, each less than 750 words, and written in a style that makes them quickly and easily readable. So readable, in fact, that many school children will find the Ready Reference and Index of immense value in homework assignments.
2. TO DISCOVER THE MEANING OF THE FACTS. This need is served by the 19 Knowledge in Depth volumes (Macropedia), containing 4,200 authoritative articles on major subjects, providing the reader with knowledge in depth and with the understanding, insight, and wisdom that is available in every field of learning.
3. TO EXPLORE ENTIRE FIELDS OF KNOWLEDGE—TO HAVE AT YOUR DISPOSAL THE TEACHING RESOURCES OF A UNIVERSITY WITHOUT WALLS. This need is served by the one-volume Outline and Guide (Propedia), which is a readable outline of the whole of human knowledge, with introductory essays that make it a helpful guide to study in the Britannica any area of learning.

BRITANNICA 3 Provides Thousands of Subjects of Practical Value. BRITANNICA 3 has special articles on interior design, medicine, science, mathematics, religion, politics, health, sports, child care and more . . . useful information that can save you many dollars and make everyone in your family a better informed individual.

BRITANNICA 3 is Abundantly Alive With Colorful Illustrations. With over 24,000 magnificent maps and illustrations—thousands in vivid color—BRITANNICA 3 doesn't merely show "attractive pictures." The illustrations are an integral part of an approach which brings life and greater meaning to the facts they depict.

Immense Value in Homework—Never Before As Useful to School Children! For students, BRITANNICA 3 is indispensable. It is the finest, most complete reference published in the world. It helps develop the active, alert minds that bring success in school and later life.

May we send you, free and without obligation, our new Preview Booklet which pictures and describes BRITANNICA 3 in detail. We'll also give you complete information on this exciting offer. For details on this complete program, just mail the attached postage-free card today.

Would You Believe . . . ?
I Fell In Love
With A Micropedia

Sound crazy? Maybe it is.

But a short time ago I had an opportunity to get a sneak preview of Britannica's brand new encyclopedia and; believe me, it's nothing like the old one that my family cherished for years. In fact, this one is in three parts, and—hold your hat—the part I like most is called the Micropedia!

Seriously, if you or your children need to have at your fingertips a way to find out about anything at all, this part of THE NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA may get to you, too. But, that's just the beginning.

There are two more parts to this new encyclopedia, and when you put them all together, there's no better family encyclopedia around.

U.S. Suspends Grain Exports To Soviets

Ag Chief Forecasts 'Patriotic' Coperation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today apparently secured the "patriotic" cooperation of two big American grain companies to suspend major sales of wheat and grain to the Soviet Union, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said.

"We've asked for voluntary cooperation from the companies and I think it will be forthcoming," Butz told reporters after a meeting at the White House.

Officials of Continental Grain Company and Cook Industries, Inc., agreed, according to Butz, to halt for the time being contracts to supply the Russians with 2.4 million tons of corn and 1 million tons of wheat.

Butz called the gesture "very generous and patriotic' and said the firms would lose money because of their action.

The Agriculture Secretary said Ford's surprise action had at least two major goals — to prevent speculation in commodity markets that would drive prices higher with an inevitable fallout on retail food prices, and to keep from imposing the drastic measure of export controls.

The announcement came following a 40-minute White House meeting between Ford, top administration officials and executives of the two American grain firms.

Joining Ford in the meeting with executives of Chicago-based Continental Grain Co. and Cook Industries, Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., were Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Butz, Presidential Assistant L. William Seidman and other officials.

Among six representatives from the companies were Continental President Michael Fribourg and Cook President Edward "Ned" Cook.

The administration said last night the shipments were being "held in abeyance" after details of the sale were reported to the Agriculture Department.

Simon asked the firms, Continental Grain Co. and Cook Co., to hold up their contracts for a reported 91 million bushels of corn and 34 million bushels of wheat to be delivered in the 1974-75 marketing year.

Simon said he would discuss the government's position with Soviet officials in Moscow next week and that Ford had asked officials of both U.S. companies to meet with him today.

"For the time being, (the President) expects that no large contracts for grain will be signed without specific prior approval by the White House," Simon said.

The administration's action was inspired at least partly by recent crop failures in the Midwest grain belt caused by a crippling summer drought and an early frost that killed thousands of acres of late wheat, corn and soybeans.

The administration may have also wanted to prevent a recurrence of the 1972 Russian grain deal where a few exporters sold 400 million bushels of U.S. grain to Russia forcing domestic prices up.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called the grain sale "unconscionable and irresponsible" on the part of the companies and demanded an immediate investigation.

Humphrey said shortened domestic grain supplies would mean higher food prices. "We need to take whatever steps are required to protect our national interest."

Meanwhile President Ford was preparing to before Congress and the nation on Tuesday an inflation, energy and tax program which will probably mean some sacrafice and austerity for the vast majority of Americans.

After two months in office, Ford is under pressure from his own party to propose decisive action. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is said to fear that continued drifting in the energy-economy crisis could threaten democracy in some countries of Western Europe.

Ford will spell out his proposals before a joint session of Congress at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

While the President worked over the weekend on what the White House called a "bite the bullet" program, the broad outlines of what he will propose emerge from a list of his goals.

His purposes are to curtail inflation, head off a recession, reverse the U.S. dependence on foreign oil, revive a depressed housing industry, bring interest rates down, stimulate the stock market, help power companies expand, shelter the worst victims—the jobless and the working poor—from inflation's pains and keep the Republicans from taking a shellacking in next month's elections.

California's Unemployed Rate Soars

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California's unemployment rate soared from 7.6 per cent to 8.2 per cent in September—the biggest monthly increase since 1958.

The state Employment Development Department also reported yesterday that the jump put the unemployment average at a 35-month high for the state and far above the nationwide rate of 5.8 per cent.

The department said last month's rate was the highest since October 1971 when it was 8.5 per cent. It said the increase was the biggest over-the-month jump since April 1958 when the rate rose from 6.7 to 8 per cent.

The total number of Californians out of work last month was 651,600, compared to 536,400 during the same period last year.

Sharp employment declines were reported in construction and manufacturing. Hard-hit industries included lumber, autos, household appliances, structural metals and plumbing and heating equipment.

Population increases and the peak harvest season in agricultural fields combined to raise the total number of persons holding jobs in September to an all-time high of 8.5 million.

Betty Ford Expected Out Of Hospital On Wednesday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford marked the end of a week of hospitalization for removal of a cancerous breast today by walking around in her suite at will and eating a hearty breakfast of eggs, bacon and toast.

Doctors told President Ford his wife would probably be released about Wednesday. Encouraged by the prognosis, the President played his first round of golf in two weeks, at Burning Tree golf course only a few miles from the hospital.

One of the President's golfing partners was comedian Bob Hope.

The daily medical bulletin issued by the White House reported that the First Lady continued to make "excellent progress" after last Saturday's operation to remove her right breast.

Mrs. Ford's surgeon, Dr. William Fouty, said his patient spent "an excellent, restful night" at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in suburban Maryland.

Mrs. Ford is moving about her hospital suite at will and has a good appetite, the bulletin said.

She dined last evening on broiled chicken, vegetables, fruit cocktail and tea and had a poached egg, bacon, toast, juice and tea for breakfast today.

"Mrs. Ford's post operative recuperation continues uncomplicated, her vital signs remain stable and her condition is excellent," Fouty said.

Mrs. Ford greeted the public briefly for the first time last evening. She looked out a window of her third floor quarters and waved to a crowd of perhaps two dozen wellwishers waiting for a glimpse of her husband.

When told of her gesture, Ford laughed and said "she's an awful flirt."

An aide said Mrs. Ford was in the hall waiting when her husband got upstairs. After they exchanged greetings he presented her with the game ball from the Washington Redskin's victory over the Denver Broncos last Monday. Ford had planned to attend the game until his wife was hospitalized. The ball was a gift from head coach George Allen.

Mrs. Ford tossed the ball to her husband — a former college football player — and he lightly tossed it back. Then the couple walked about 25 yards down the hall to Mrs. Ford's suite.

"She's doing very well and the doctors are very encouraged," Ford said yesterday.

"Hopefully, she will be back next Wednesday of thereabouts," the President said, adding that the First Lady's doctors are "running certain tests and they're going to make sure she doesn't leave prematurely—there's no use hurrying her out of there."

Legal Aid's Stand Dims Housing Plan

Hope for a settlement of the dispute over the Richardson Highlands housing development in Marin City appeared dim yesterday as the Legal Aid Society reaffirmed its demand that the project include low-cost housing.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said negotiations with legal aid attorneys, representing five unnamed clients, fell through amid their demands that a percentage of the 389 dwellings to be built for the poor.

Earlier this week, county supervisors were told that legal aid had threatened the developer with a lawsuit to block the project unless some units were designated for low-income families.

Richard A. Hirsch, chief attorney for legal aid, appeared before the board and was criticized by supervisors for attempting "to throw up roadblocks" to the long-delayed redevelopment of Marin City.

The attorney said he was not attempting to block the project but only insure that some low-cost dwellings are included.

Supervisors responded that a master plan for the project, which calls for 389 apartment and townhouse dwellings on 30 acres, did not include low-cost units because Marin City is considered "impacted" by federal agencies.

They noted the developer will be required to provide 20 per cent of the apartment units at moderate-cost, as defined in the county general plan.

After a sharp give and take, Hirsch and the supervisors appeared to reach middle ground with supervisors understanding the attorney to say legal aid would lift its opposition if assured the moderate-cost units, at least, will be built.

Hirsch said the moderate-cost units should be built in both phases of the two-part project, not simply the last phase.

Supervisors asked that he meet with Maloney and a representative of the redevelopment agency to discuss the matter further and report back Tuesday.

Maloney said the negotiations fell through "because the basic issue which the legal aid society is asserting involves the inclusion of low-cost housing in the proposed development."

He said the only legal way for the legal aid's low-cost housing

High Court Opens Term On Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court begins its 1974-75 term Monday with capital punishment, wiretapping and the rights of women, students and aliens among the many issues up for consideration.

The court has already agreed to look at a wide array of subjects, including presidential impoundment of funds authorized by Congress. These cases arrived last spring as the justices were winding down the 1973 term.

In addition, about 1,000 appeals have come in during the summer recess. They include a claim by Watergate coverup defendant H.R. Haldeman — now on trial — that he was illegally indicted. Obscenity problems continue to plague the court. And the upsurge in lawsuits on behalf of the poor is bringing in a steady stream of petitions dealing with welfare payments and family life.

Race questions no longer hold the dominant place on the docket that they once did. In this connection the court has been

French Plan To Bomb Ship

GUERNSEY, Channel Islands (UPI) — A Cypriot cargo ship loaded with 150 tons of dynamite drifted crewless in the English Channel today after catching fire late yesterday. The French Navy said it would send planes to bomb the ship and sink it.

The fire burned itself out today, but port authorities in Brest, France, decided to sink the ship because it endangered navigation in the English Channel, they said.

Senate Votes To Retain Nixon Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has refused to accept President Ford's agreement to give Richard M. Nixon eventual custody of his Watergate tapes and papers.

By a vote of 56 to 7 yesterday, the Senate voted to give the government sole control over them and eventually to make them public. The bill has yet to be acted on by the House.

In a related action, the Senate Appropriations Committee slashed the $850,000 Ford requested for Nixon's transition expenses to $200,000, the same figure voted by the House.

A month ago, when Ford gave a full pardon to the former president, the two agreed that Nixon and the government would have joint access to Nixon's tapes and documents dealing with all subjects for five years; afterward, Nixon would have sole custody, including the power to have them destroyed. But all of the tapes would be destroyed upon Nixon's death.

Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chief sponsor of the government ownership bill, said that as a result of the agreement, "The truth about the Watergate affair may never be known."

Under Ervin's bill all of Nixon's tapes and documents would be screened; the government would retain those dealing with Watergate. The others would go to Nixon.

"The people are entitled to have the full truth about the Watergate affair ... and the extent of the (former) president's involvement in it," Ervin said.

One of the opponents of the bill, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said seizure of a former president's papers — considered in the past to be his personal property — raised "serious constitutional questions of presidential confidentiality and executive privilege."

Hruska was defeated 51 to 15 in an effort to send the bill back to committee. He failed 52 to 14 in an attempt to modify it almost beyond recognition — suggesting it apply to all members of Congress and past presidents back to Franklin Roosevelt, but not to Nixon.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said Ervin's bill "looks like a personal vendetta against President Nixon."

NIXON BACK HOME

As an aide steadies his wheelchair, former President Richard Nixon steps out of his wheelchair after his release from the Long Beach Memorial Hospital where he had been under treatment since Sept. 23 for phlebitis of the left leg and a blood clot in the lung. The former president, released yesterday, is now back in seclusion at San Clemente, and his physician, Dr. John Lungren, has repeated that Nixon will be too sick to testify at the Watergate trials now under way in Washington.

Jury Selection Under Way Behind Closed Door

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a case of intense public interest, the initial stage of the Watergate cover-up trial has turned into an intensely private affair — conducted behind guarded doors with no press or public allowed.

Only the defendants and their families, their lawyers, the prosecutors, the judge and court personnel were permitted into the sealed-off courtroom.

The painstaking search for an unbiased jury to consider the conspiracy charges against five one-time aides to former President Richard Nixon ate up a fourth day yesterday under conditions so secret even routine progress reports were forbidden.

"The court will not announce at the close of each day's session the number of prospective jurors excused and the number cleared for possible jury service," U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica announced through a spokesman at the end of another eight-hour day.

"Those figures will be provided at the time the court is ready to impanel the jury."

He took no further action on motions filed by Nixon lawyers Thursday asking that subpoenas for his appearance as a trial witness be quashed. His clerk, Todd Christofferson, said Sirica read them but as yet has given no copies to either prosecution or defense counsel.

The defendants — former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, once high White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, Mitchell assistant Robert C. Mardian and Nixon campaign lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson — had no comment as they came and went from the courthouse at the foot of Capitol Hill.

They are all accused of conspiring to hush up the Watergate scandal. All but Mardian are also charged with obstruction of justice and Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also are accused of lying to federal investigators about the bugging case.

Judge Rejects Reduction Of Heiress' Bail

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday rejected a motion that the $500,000 bail for fugitive Patricia Hearst be reduced in an effort to induce her to surrender.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter said the amount was "staggering," but he said he could not change it while the newspaper heiress was still at large.

Attorney James Martin MacInnis said, "The existence of bail in the amount of $500,000 is a violent deterrent against any willingness Miss Hearst might otherwise have to surrender herself."

Carter replied, "I recognize that the bail is extremely high and probably should be cut, but I don't know enough about it. I haven't heard from Miss Hearst.

"As long as she is a fugitive I can't see how I can change it."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Jackson Funds Increasing

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — A campaign committee formed three months ago to gather funds for Sen. Henry Jackson's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination already has raised $106,000 and has pledges for another $300,000, a Jackson aide said today.

The Jackson planning committee will be headed by Peter McCulloch, chairman of the board of Xerox and until recently treasurer of the Democratic National committee, the aide said.

Jackson

"We are presently in the process of raising money to begin a mailing type of effort and so forth to start beginning the long process to gather the money to run a national campaign," press secretary Brian Corcoran said.

However, he said, a final decision on whether there will be a Jackson presidential campaign won't come "until next year."

Drug Cases

MANILA (UPI) — The martial law government today returned to civil courts the right to try dangerous drugs cases but kept for military tribunals jurisdiction over crimes against national security.

Military courts have been trying cases involving prohibited drugs since the new drug laws were established under President Ferdinand E. Marcos' martial law proclamation two years ago.

Hawaiians Vote

HONOLULU (UPI) — Voters on Hawaii's seven populated islands today cast ballots in a crucial primary election which will determine whether a liberal reformist or a maverick dissident can wrest control of America's last state from the "old guard" which has ruled since 1954.

More than 230,000 persons were expected to vote today, with the national weather service predicting clear skies to replace several days of rain. Election officials said about 70 per cent of Hawaii's 333,000 eligible voters would actually cast ballots.

Capture Temples

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian Communist troops have recaptured three temples in the Angkor Wat complex one month after the renowned buildings were reoccupied by government soldiers, military sources said Saturday.

The temples at Lo Lei, Bakou and Bakong, all about 10 miles south of the provincial capital of Siem Reap, fell to Communist forces two days ago, according to military sources.

Oil Cutback

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela will reduce its oil production by about 10 per cent next year, but a Mines Military spokesman said the country does not plan arbitrary cutbacks that might hurt customers.

More than half of Venezuela's oil production goes to U.S. markets and the country now has a daily output of around 3 million barrels.

Finance Minister Hector Hurtado, presenting Venezuela's 1975 budget of $9.6 billion to congress, said that oil revenue next year would be $5.7 billion — nearly $400 million under 1974 levels.

Regain Control

SAIGON (UPI) — Government troops regained control of an outpost lost to Communist forces six months ago and almost immediately the troops came under heavy North Vietnamese mortar attack, the Saigon command said today.

3,500 Turned Back

CALCUTTA, India (UPI) — Indian border security troops have turned back at least 3,500 refugees fleeing famine conditions in neighboring Bangladesh, officials said today.

Officials said some 3,500 Bengalis have been turned back from the Indian border are a over the past two months since floods ravaged Bangladesh.

They said the number of border incidents had increased steadily as people from poorer districts of Bangladesh tried to cross over into India.

Spain Torn

MADRID (UPI) — Spain was torn today by a wave of work stoppages and hunger strikes in prisons that prompted the government quickly to promise reforms in the nation's political and social structures.

Industrial stoppages idled close to 30,000 workers yesterday, labor sources said. Some were called to press wage claims. Others supported 13,600 auto workers locked out of the Fasa-Renault factory in Valladolid.

In Madrid, 18 political prisoners serving terms for terrorism or antigovernment activity joined 65 other political detainees who have been on hunger strikes in four provincial penitentiaries for up to two weeks.

For weeks Spanish newspapers have been predicting a "hot autumn" of labor unrest, economic problems and political tension as a result of the pressures that linger on from the summer illness of Chief of State Francisco Franco, 81.

Way Paved

BANGKOK (UPI) — The Thai National Assembly gave almost unanimous approval today to a new constitution, paving the way for a return of complete democracy to Thailand.

Americans Said Confident On Long-Range Outlook

ATLANTA (UPI) — Americans are worried about inflation and political immorality, and expect things to get worse economically, but they are confident that in the long run everything will be all right, says pollster George Gallup.

"It would be wrong to assume that Americans are consumed with gloom," Gallup, the head of the American Institute of Public Opinion in Princeton, N.J., said in a speech yesterday to the National Broiler Council.

"The mood of the public today should be described as apprehensive, but certainly far from despondent," he said.

He said that Gallup polls indicate 70 per cent of the population expects the economy to get worse, and that about half the citizens think America is headed for a depression like the one in the early 1930's.

But Gallup said most Americans feel they have had hard times before, and can tighten their belts to survive another depression.

He said Americans will support President Ford's economic policies, if they perceive them to be in the national interest.

"The public has a good track record for making sacrifices for the national good in times of crisis," he said. Gallup said times might not be as hard as a lot of people expect.

"Americans tend to overplay their crises, the British to underplay them, while the Iron Curtain countries don't have crises," said Gallup.

In an interview after his speech, Gallup said that the Republicans have become "a third party," and that independent voters now number almost as many as Democrats.

"We find the percentage of people who classify themselves Republican is at an all-time low," said Gallup. "The Democrats are stronger, numerically, the independents are second, and the Republicans come along as a third party."

Gallup noted a surge of independence among voters, with about one third of the electorate claiming no affiliation with either major party. On college campuses, he said, nearly half the student voters call themselves independents.

He said his opinion polls showed that only 24 per cent of adult Americans consider themselves Republicans, but a vast majority consider themselves conservative.

Gallup said Democrats account for about 40 per cent of the voting public, a bit fewer than there were when President Roosevelt was heading for a third term in 1940.

"President Ford's pardon of President Nixon was a real shocker to the American people," said Gallup. "While the pardon may have broken up the presidential honeymoon a bit early, a new president — any new president — is vulnerable to the vagaries of the economy."

Senate Sends Point Reyes Bill To House

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The Senate yesterday passed and sent back to the House a bill expanding Point Reyes National Seashore to Include Inverness Ridge property.

The legislation also designates lands in the Farallon National Wildlife Preserve as wilderness.

The measure, introduced by Rep. Phillip Burton, D-San Francisco, was sent back to the House Interior Committee because of amendments made by the Senate Interior Committee.

Burton attached the Inverness Ridge aquisition as a rider to the Farallon Islands bill before it passed the House last May. It would add some 168 acres of ridge land between Inverness and Inverness Park to the seashore. Conservationists urged the ridge acquisition after the scenic lands were left out of the seashore boundaries through a surveyor's error 10 years ago.

Development of the ridge, conservationists said, would spoil the seashore setting.

The House bill authorized $200,000 for the land.

Distress Call Termed Hoax

JENNER, Calif. (UPI) — The Coast Guard has called off efforts to find eight survivors from an outboard motorboat which reportedly sank in the Pacific because the distress call which led to the search apparently was a hoax.

A Coast Guard spokesman said in San Francisco yesterday. that the search would be resumed if there was evidence the SOS was authentic.

$1.3 Million Pact Awarded For Governor's Mansion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The long battle by Ronald Reagan for construction of a new governor's mansion peaked with the award yesterday of a $1.3 million contract for an expansive riverfront villa.

State Architect John Worsley announced that Redwood City contractor Budd O. Stevenson won the contract for the disputed, court-stalled project as the lowest of three bidders.

Worsley said workers tentatively will begin construction next week and that "if all godes right it could be finished by August of next year."

Formal award followed removal of the last stumbling block to the project when the state Supreme Court rebuffed mansion opponents. The high court upheld two lower court rulings that the state had followed proper environmental protection procedures in approving construction of the mansion in suburban Carmichael, eight miles east of Sacramento.

Called an "executive residence" by the administration, the mansion will be built on a pastoral bluff overlooking the scenic American River. The 11-acre site was donated to the state by a group of Reagan supporters.

The living area will total 12,000 square feet, about seven times the size of an average three-bedroom California home. The one-story home will be enclosed by adobe brick walls, covered with wood-beam ceilings and an expansive red tile roof and will have hand-crafted tile floors.

A courtyard will lead inside to a living room, study, six bedrooms, two rooms for hired help, a dining room that can seat 40 guests and a recreation room.

Reagan has called it "lovely."

Worsley said that for an additional $180,000 the mansion could also include a swimming pool, sauna, tennis court, security guard house and solar collect to heat water.

He said the additions were included in the mansion design and that bids had been accepted. But Worsley said construction of the additions would depend on the availability of funds from the Department of Finance.

Ten years ago, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown used a contest and several advisory committees to come up with a proposal for a $1.6 million home nearly twice the size of the latest design. The effort died.

Reagan took personal control of the drive for a new mansion during his second and final term, and last year received nearly complete authority over the plans from the legislature.

The fact that Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will never live in the mansion did nothing to dim his enthusiasm.

They personally trimmed the dimensions of the mansion down from 17,000 square feet, eliminating a wine cellar that would have doubled as a bomb shelter, to meet the $1.45 million legislative appropriation for the project.

The leading contender to replace Reagan, bachelor Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., has branded the mansion an "impractical white elephant" and indicated he would rather live in the existing governor's mansion in downtown Sacramento.

Brown's Republican opponent, Houston I. Flournoy, has supported the project, saying the mansion would be a good place to raise his three children.

Reagan vacated the century-old, Victorian-style governor's mansion four months after taking office in 1967, condemning it as a fire hazard unfit to raise children. He subsequently moved into a leased home.

'Sesame Street' Revised For TV In France

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the characters, who live on Sesame Street are also alive and well, and now living in Paris.

The popular children's television show is being shown in a new French-language version on French national television as "Bonjour sesame." The new version is devoid of "street" scenes — no Gordon, Susan or Big Bird, for example — and there are no sequences that depend on the English language or American cultural nuances.

The French-language version is made up of about 65 per cent puppet sketches, 25 per cent animated cartoons and 10 per cent live action sequences. Other international versions of Sesame Street are produced in Spanish for Latin American viewing, in Portuguese for Brazilian audiences and in German for youngsters in that country. The shows in English and other versions are being viewed in 58 countries around the world.

200 Prepared To Assist Schools

More than 200 citizens from the Bay Area who hold certified teaching credentials have been signed up by San Ráfael city schools to cross picket lines as volunteer teachers in the event of a strike, the schools administration said yesterday.

Schools publicist Barbara Rosenberg said there has been an "excellent response" to a call for volunteers.

She said the school system needs about 100 more credentialed volunteers in the event all teachers walk out.

(The San Rafael Teachers Association has authorized its executive officers to call for a strike vote if they were not satisfied with the findings of a meadiation team studying salary requests.)

Mrs. Rosenberg said a mediation team's report on school employee pay has been delayed and will probably be issued late next week. The team was expected to issue its report last week.

She said about 215 credentialed volunteers have signed up, but she noted that 320 are needed to fill all potential teaching posts.

Cost Of Burger Ires Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., says he wants to know why he should have to spend 10 cents more for a hamburger in the Senate cafeteria than in the House lunchroom.

In a statement released by his office yesterday, he said hamburgers now cost up to 75 cents on the Senate side of the Capitol compared to 65 cents at the other end of the hall.

"Coming on the heels of the 5.5 per cent pay raise for federal workers is an increase of 25 per cent and more in the price of food served in the Senate cafeterias," Humphrey said. "I question this method of taking back the pay increase for Senate employees."

Marin Women

Human Rights Commissioner Proud Of Native Ancestry

By JOAN LISETOR

When Faye Dell Hendricks was a child "you didn't speak about being part Indian."

"I was aware that there was a little Indian heritage on my mother's side, but my father just told me a few years ago there also was on his side," Mrs. Hendricks said.

The San Anselmo woman was appointed last year to the Marin County Human Rights Commission by Supervisor Peter Arrigoni Jr. because of her Native American ancestry.

Mrs. Hendricks considers herself the Native American representative on the commission and has worked to unite the Native Aemrican community in Marin.

"I knew so little about Indians. I had been living a white man's life," she said. "Now I'm learning about each tribe, the different cultures, doing constant study and research, reading and talking to people."

She works with the Native Nations, a student organization at College of Marin, and visits Native American prisoners at San Quentin and communicates with them after they have been released to see if they need help.

MRS. HENDRICKS' three great-grandmothers were full blooded Indians: one a Penuite, one a Cherokee and one a Choctau. Each married white farmers, which was acceptable, she said. Her other great-grandmother was not an Indian. She recalld that her grandfather passed as Mexican because it was impossible for an Indian to get a job in the San Diego area, where she was born and reared.

Mrs. Hendricks did not get involved with the Native American cause five years ago when Alcatraz was taken over because she believes there are better ways of handling things.

The wife of an attorney (Thomas G. Hendricks, Marin chief deputy county counsel) she believes in trying to work through the law, she said.

"If you take the law segment by segment you don't waste time and energy. Laws need to be changed, and the only way to do that is through the courts and the legislature," she said.

She is doing just that with a parcel of land in Sausalito. Sausalito Fire Battalion Chief Steven H. Bogel and firemen Larry Martinez and Jerry Recor unearthed a 500-year-old human skeleton at Pine and Caledonia Streets last June. The Sausalito City Council voted in July to pay $2,500 to David Boloyan, a graduate student at the University of California at Davis, to excavate the site.

"The city wanted to hire someone to do a dig and put the remains on display," Mrs. Hendricks said. "They didn't realize they were offending Native Americans."

SHE AND several Native Americans, drawn together by her work on the Human Rights Commission, appeared before the Sausalito City Council in August pleading that their ancestor's graves not be desecrated and explaining the importance of the sacred cycle, a belief that man must return his body to the earth after death in repayment for the things he has taken from the earth during life.

"The city has promised that the burial site will not be disturbed," Mrs. Hendricks said. "But in the meantime the owners (Dr. John Elliott of San Anselmo and Barbara Elliott Ward of Larkspur) are paying taxes and don't want to sell the land.

"We don't mind it being covered over. We just don't want to break the cycle by digging up the remains. The remains can't be reburied because we don't know the particular ritual, and what can be learned by digging up bones? They don't tell anything about the culture.

"You know, the Indians believe all of the land belongs to them, but they are going to have a very difficult time taking it away."

Mrs. Hendricks praised the owners of the Sausalito property, who, she said, want to build without destroying the Indian burial ground.

While she was leading what she calls "the white man's life" Mrs. Hendricks developed an interest in organic gardening, collecting herbs, weaving, crocheting rugs, making corn husk dolls, and other hobbies associated with Indian life. It must have been instinct, she said.

"My appointment (to the Human Rights Commission) has brought the Native American nation together, and that makes me feel good inside. If I accomplish just a little I hope to make others aware of the beauty of the culture.

"So far I haven't had any doors slammed in my face, but I don't expect things to change tomorrow. We have to go through procedures, change the way Indian history is taught in the schools, try to change the textbooks, so it is not a fairy tale. I'll keep after it — but slowly."

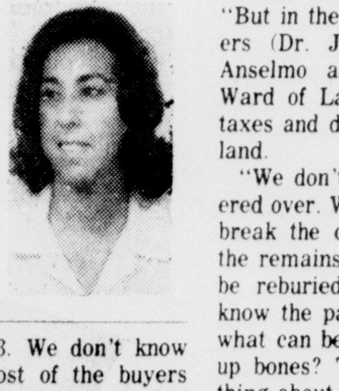
Youngsters Garage Sale? Well, Maybe

By JOAN LISETOR



If you have a 10-year-old son and he wants to have a garage sale, beware! And also be ready for a few laughs.

My son announced he was going to have a garage sale and make $85. He has a lot of toys, but at garage sale prices I wondered. Well, he and a friend had priced the items. There were, for instance, some well worn Mad magazines for 50 cents; games, whether or not they had missing pieces, ranged between $2 and $4; and you could buy some swell posters for $1 and up. I tried to explain the garage sale game: Very low prices. Taking my advice they lowered the prices — slightly.

Next I asked where they planned to hold the garage sale. (We don't have a garage, only a car port at the top of a very steep driveway.) Well, they thought the parking lot of a local supermarket would be ideal. I explained that the store might be reluctant to give up parking space on a busy Saturday, and the store manager confirmed that. Next they suggested the roof of the house. "So people could see us when they drive by." Another squelch.

Early the next Saturday morning I heard a car drive up the driveway and toot. The driver asked where the garage sale was, and then it came out. My son and his friends had posted signs saying "garage sale 9 a.m." and giving the address at many strategic points around the neighborhood. I spent the rest of the morning fending off potential customers, whose expectations were higher than Mad magazines, while my son and his friend took down their signs.

Net proceeds from the sale — a few young customers showed up in the afternoon — perhaps as high as $3. We don't know yet, since most of the buyers didn't have any money, but they promised to get it from their parents, soon.

THE WOMEN'S Political Caucus of Marin conducted a straw vote poll at the Marin County Fair, which proved some interesting results.

Of the 766 voters, men and women, 124 answered the question, "Who would you like to see as President in 1976?" President Gerald Ford, and 121 voted for Shirley Chisholm.

Others mentioned in the random sampling were Sen. Edward Kennedy, 117; Barbara Jordan and Gov. Ronald Reagan, 40; Elliot Richardson, 31; Sen. Barry Goldwater (Rep. Arizona) and Sen. Charles Percy (Rep. Illinois), 27; and Sen. Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), 26.

NOW THAT cosmetics must show the contents, women should be well informed. My new eye shadow contains: color, isopropyl myristate, mineral oil, sorbitan sesquioleate, cetyl alcohol, lanolin oil, paraffin, peg-8, synthetic beeswax, methylparaben, polysorbate-60, bha and bhy and propylparaben.

I'm so glad to know that. I never knew before what I was putting on my face.

A Fashion Luncheon That Was All Free

By MOLLY MARIN

For a fund-raising group, Family Service League chose quite a gimmick for its fall fashion show and luncheon — the whole thing was free!

Fashions came from the league's family shop in Mill Valley. All the clothes, including several authentic outfits from the 1930s and 1940s, were donations to the shop which sells second-hand items to benefit the Family Service Agency of Marin County in San Rafael.

The food — a seemingly endless array of salads — was made by members.

Longtime league member Ivy Wellington of San Rafael confided that, free luncheons notwithstanding, the league contributes a sizable amount annually to the Family Service Agency — $16,000 last year.

"Most people think of thrift shops as a place to buy something cheap," she said, "but in fact they are a big business in Marin." She has recently done research on thrift shops in Marin (she's identified 21 for sure) and said they run a million dollar business, all of it to benefit charitable and service organizations in the community.

DR. TOM KNEZ and Jerry Hauke were stomping and punching each other last Monday night at Lydon Hall of St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon. But it was all in fun; the two big Mill Valley men were practicing the German Ox Dance they will perform at St. Hilary's Parent-Teacher Club's Octoberfest on Saturday, Oct. 12.

FIVE YOUNG Marin women have pledged Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at the University of California.

They are Heidi Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Collins and a graduate of San Rafael High School; Laura Guerin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Guerin of Ross, a graduate of Katherine Branson School, and three Redwood High School graduates, Pamela Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Powell of Belvedere, Shawn Waste, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Waste of Kentfield and Carol Goepp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goepp of Kentfield.

A RECENT Independent-Journal story about the 86th birthday party of Helen Ramey of Corte Madera noted that she was the mother of four sons but failed to mention her one daughter, Helen Mattiu of Short Hills, N. J. Mrs. Ramey hoped we would mention her: "she has been so good to me."

MRS. AND MRS. Harry McCarroll of Riverside will celebrate their 64th wedding anniversary tomorrow with their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Harry (Russ) McCarroll of San Rafael.

The senior McCarrolls were to arrive in San Rafael from Riverside today, their anniversary, and be feted at a party for 30 guests at the McCarrolls' home tomorrow.

The honorees were married in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City. They plan to go to Salt Lake City after their stay in San Rafael, returning to the site of their marriage as they have every year during the week of their anniversary.

LYNN ROTHMAN of San Rafael is, at 13, the youngest member of the Marin Civic Ballet company.

Chosen recently in competitive auditions, Lynn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Rothman, joins 27 other dancers in the Marin company.

Lynn has been a dance student at the Marin Civic Ballet School for seven years. She will perform with the full company in its first concert of the season Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

TO CELEBRATE their 45th wedding anniversary, Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Rossman of Sausalito will host the coffee hour after the 10 a.m. service tomorrow at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito, where they were married.

The couple will serve coffee and an anniversary cake to old-time friends and fellow parishioners.

THE GARDEN behind the County Historical Association Museum of Lafayette, Ind., was the setting for the mid-September wedding of Michelle Roth and James A. Stegenga.

Dr. Stegenga is the son of Eleanore Gnecco of San Anselmo.

The bride received a master's degree in anthropology from Purdue University.

The bridegroom received a Ph.D from UCLA and is now an author and professor of political science at Purdue.

The young people have bought a home in West Lafayette near the Purdue campsu.

ITALIAN SONGS were sung at the wedding of Claudia Lisa Harvey and Vittoriano DeSanti in mid-September at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in San Francisco.

Piano Scholarship For Gifted Girl

LINDA POLIGONO
Music scholar

Eight-year-old Linda Poligono of Corte Madera has been awarded a full scholarship to the San Francisco Conservatory of Music to continue her studies in piano.

"She is exceptionally gifted, a very musical child," said Maria Cisyk, director of the preparatory department of the conservatory.

Linda, the third of four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Poligono, has been playing the piano for two and a half years as the student of Wanda Baer of Yamaha Music School.

She will be studying with Tomoko Hagiwara of San Rafael, a member of the conservatory faculty.

She began piano lessons at her own request, and since she was a small child has expressed an interest in traveling about the world as a concert pianist.

Linda is a student at St. Patrick's School in Larkspur.

Is anyone else in the family musical? "Not really," said her mother, Yasuko. "Her father used to play drums."

She will take classes in ear training, musicianship, body movement and drama as well as piano at the conservatory, Ms. Cisyk said. "We seek to turn out a total musician."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Cherished Wedding Customs Based On Male Dominance

RAP:

I wonder how many people — females especially — would go for a traditional big wedding if they knew how all these traditions started? Almost all our marriage customs are based on man being boss, woman being "owned," first by her father then by her husband.

We all know the dowry (now evolved into the bridal shower) began because a man had to get rid of his (useless) daughters, so offered prospective husbands bribes of livestock, money, whatever he had on hand.

If Pop was wealthy, he celebrated his relief at finally disposing of his female child with a fancy wedding at which he "gave her away." The poor often got stuck with unmarried daughters, but they had an out: they sold them as slaves.

According to the National Geographic Society, wedding rings evolved in the ancient East from huge bands the bride had to wear around her ankles, wrists, and even her waist as symbolic fetters befitting her role as her husband's servant and property.

She wore the wedding ring, later on, but always on the left hand as the right hand stood for power and authority, rights belonging only to her husband.

Tossing a shoe after newlyweds survives in part from the time when the bride's family gave their son-in-law a sandal to denote transfer of chattel — guess who?

Perhaps the "best man" dates back to prehistoric times when the bridegroom needed a strong-armed helper to capture his woman. Kidnapping a mate, even from another "husband," was accepted practice in medieval days.

And to this day, the man walks down the aisle with his "woman" on the left, presumably so his sword arm will be free to fight off thwarted suitors.

The National Geographic Society also reports bridesmaids came into fashion to protect their charge against possible overtures by the free-wheeling best man.

Rice (wheat, nuts, etc.) were originally fertility symbols, thrown at newlyweds to inspire a "ripening" to come.

Carrying the bride across the threshold? In Roman days, this demonstrated the authority and mastership of man, the lord of all his possessions. With cavemen, it might have been the only way to get the captured bride inside her new home! — RESEARCHER

RESEARCHER:

Very interesting. And here's another questioner of tradition:

RAP:

I'm not a lib fanatic, but I'd like to know why the groom's father can't help pay for the wedding. I asked Dad, and he said, "The groom will support the bride all their married lives, so he (or his father) shouldn't have to spring for getting hooked."

That's a chauvinistic answer! Most women work after marriage. They more than pull their own weight. Why shouldn't wedding costs be split down the middle? — HARASSED FIANCEE

DEAR HARASSED:

You're more traditional than you think: I see you wrote "groom's father," rather than "father and mother." Actually, his parents put on the rehearsal dinner, often provide champagne for the reception, and otherwise "assist." It isn't all one-sided. — SUE

DEAR HARASSED:

With modern marriage often postponed until both parties are already into careers, a coming trend is for the bride and bridegroom to pay for their own wedding. And that ceremony is anything but traditional!

Vive le change! — HELEN

SEW SIMPLE

The Shoulder Dart Should Be Smooth

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

Does the shoulder dart of a raglan sleeve end exactly at the shoulder tip or is it tapered down the arm? My shoulder darts often look puckered, not smooth. — MRS. R.C.H.

DEAR MRS. R.C.H.,

Perhaps you have narrow shoulders. In any event, the shoulder must look nice and smooth. The curve of the shoulder dart should end at the end of your shoulder, then taper the dart very fine at the end. When pressed, you shouldn't be aware of a dart, simply a well-fitted shoulder line.

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm trying to obtain a pattern for an uplift bra with a bottom band. I need this in order to make halter tops. The ones in the stores give no support and are inappropriate for an older woman to wear in public. — MRS. S.C.B.

DEAR MRS. S.C.B.,

You will probably find this type of pattern wherever lingerie fabrics and supplies are sold.

Let's leave the halter tops to the young girls with beautiful bodies who don't need extra support from a bra. We had our chance, so for the "not-so-youngs" let's choose patterns with interesting necklines and not bare everything.

Fashion is only beautiful when it is becoming. There are variations of all fashions that can be modified to every figure. It's wise to check your own figure carefully to see what can be shown and what cannot before selecting your pattern.

DEAR EUNICE,

The sheath-type dresses without a waistline seam always seem to bunch at the waist for me. They look fine when I've just placed the belt in position but the minute I move, my dress bunches up and looks terrible. Is there any way to keep the waistline at the waist? — MRS. N.D.

DEAR MRS. N.D.,

Yes, there is a rather simple way to keep the waistline in place. Try your dress on, then tie a string very tightly around the waistline, at the exact place you would wear your belt. Mark this line with pins in several spots as a guide. When you take your dress off, baste around the entire waistline according to your pins.

Turn your dress to the wrong side, use a zigzag stitch and stitch over a long piece of thin, round elastic. Leave the ends long, try the dress on again, even out the fullness and make it as tight as you desire (I wouldn't recommend it be too tight, just an easy fit). Secure the ends of the elastic and from this point on, you won't have any more worries. You'll find the dress will stay in place beautifully, and the ease or gathers will be exactly where you want them.

Kennedy Flays Proposal For Federal Gas Taxes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said yesterday he is "completely and unalterably" opposed to a 10 per cent federal tax increase on gasoline and would not support any such tax without major tax reform first.

"This is one Senator who is going to reject it," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said, "We need tax reform for those who have been harshly hit . . . we need programs that provide tax justice."

"We've responded to his requests and we're prepared for action," he said.

Kennedy said President Ford has the power for "jawboning" to get business to lower prices, but he hasn't exercised it.

The senator said the oil industry had realized 124 per cent increase in profits during the first six months of 1974. He referred to President John F. Kennedy's successful jawboning efforts in the steel industry.

"Jawboning is the best way," he said. "We've never tried phase one of jawboning."

Fire Kills Five

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Five persons were killed and another was injured in a fire which swept through a two-story home before dawn today, fire officials said.

3rd Graders Have Plan For Energy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A delighted President Ford yesterday proudly showed off a two-foot stack of energy-saving suggestions from the public, including a pledge from Michigan third-graders to cut down the family auto mileage by riding bikes whenever possible.

Last weekend, Ford closed his economic summit by asking Americans to send him lists of their 10 favorite energy-saving and inflation-fighting ideas. The result, some 18,025 letters and postcards, filled a large mail basket and overflowed onto the Cabinet table where Ford was meeting with his top-level Economic Policy Board.

Holding a large 2 x 3 foot letter at arms length, the President read the 10 "energy savers" sent by "Mrs. Lykes third Grade Sodt Elementary School, Monroe, Michigan." Among the ideas:

"-We will ride our bikes to our friends instead of having Dad take us in the car.

"-We will always close the door in cold weather.

"-We will get things out of the refrigerator quickly."

Ford, reporters and cameramen all chuckled at a final suggestion:

"-We will eat dinner when Mom cooks it so that she will not have to reheat it."

The President also read from a 10-point list sent by the Warren Nissley Jr. family, Ridgewood, N.J. Their points included taking baths in half the normal amount of water and shutting the door quickly after the cat goes outside.

And the Nissleys added a P.S.: "If we replace our TV, it will be with Solid State," which uses less energy than tube sets.

Ford said he found many of the ideas "extremely helpful" and said some would be worked into his own anti-inflation speech to the nation next Tuesday.

Economic adviser Paul McCracken suggested compiling the ideas into an anthology and Ford nodded his agreement.

Heart Transplant Patient Is Dead

STANFORD (UPI) — Ralph Trout III, 38, a pizza parlor organist who survived two heart transplants in five years, has died from complications which resulted from the second operation.

Officials at the Stanford University Medical Center said Trout died yesterday while recovering from the second transplant on Sept. 22. They said he received his first donor heart on May 22, 1969, after suffering several heart attacks.

A spokesman said the Menlo Park, Calif., resident died from complications from the latest operation.

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

What About Larry Doby?

The baseball situation in Cleveland has been and may continue to be ridiculous. How they did as well as they did for as long as they did is amazing.

Spring training is the one time of the year when a ball club most uses its coaches. A large number of players are there and it is impossible for a manager to supervise all of them adequately. A coach will take smaller groups and work with them on a special phase of the game. The more coaches you have in spring training, the more work you can accomplish.

The Indians went to spring training with a vacancy on their coaching staff. They spent a great deal of time trying to hire Tommy McCraw, a player with the California Angels, to fill the coaching vacancy. The Angels refused to let McCraw go.

CLEVELAND NEXT turned its sights to Larry Doby, at the time a coach on the Montreal Expo staff. Doby had been a member of Gene Mauch's staff for a few years and had studied very hard learning his job. He observed Mauch, took the good and eliminated the bad. He studied individuals and how to handle them. Doby accepted the position with the Indians because it was an opportunity to further himself in his quest for the job he wanted most, major league manager.

The manager of the Cleveland Indians was Ken Aspromonte. He was on shaky ground last year but was rehired for one more year. I don't know if anything was promised, but I am sure that Larry Doby felt he had the job, if and when it became available.

The Indians, under Aspromonte, did a strange thing at the beginning of this year. They won. It was relatively late in the year before they dropped out of the pennant race. They got great pitching from Gaylord Perry but things kept happening to indicate that Ken Aspromonte had better start looking in the classifieds under Help Wanted - Male. The management staged a 10-cent beer night with no limits. When the inevitable riot developed, the Indians had to forfeit their game.

OTHER PROBLEMS arose. Aspromonte had trouble with all-star outfielder George Hendrick. Hendrick was quoted as saying he would't play for Aspromonte. Another outfielder Oscar Gamble, who leads the major leagues in hair, was accused in a rape case. At no time did the front office offer Aspromonte any support or help.

Meanwhile in Anaheim, Angel outfielder Frank Robinson was busy leading a mutiny againsst manager Bobby Winkles. The situation came to a head, and Winkles was fired. Dick Williams was given a five-year contract to replace Winkles. Williams immediately named Robinson team captain.

Back in Cleveland, the Indians finally were able to hire McCraw and he was closely followed by the newly named captain of the Angels, Robinson. There was no way that Williams would have kept Robinson around.

IN THE SHORT TIME he has been in Cleveland, Robinson (1) stated that he came to play, not manage; (2) got into a shouting and shoving match with Perry and (3) was named to manage the team.

The owner and his assistant are now reportedly leaving the team. The man who expected the job, deserved the job and was best qualified for the job — Larry Doby — is still without a manager's position.

Good luck, Indians.

Warriors' Lee Is 'In Shock'

Commissioner Rules That Forward Must Go To Hawks

HONOLULU (UPI) — Golden State Warriors forward Clayde Lee said he is "in shock" as a result of a decision by National Basektball League commissioner Walter Kennedy that he must go to Atlanta.

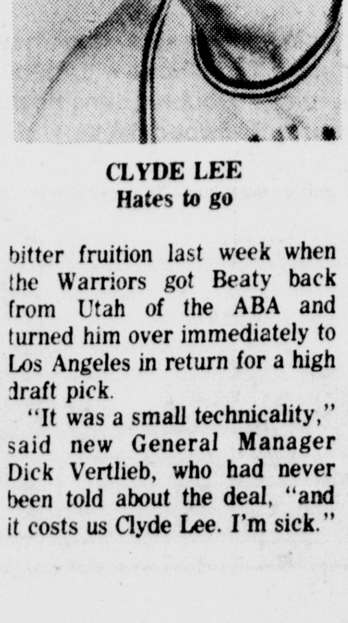
Lee, with the Warriors here on an exhibition swing, returned to the Bay Area after learning of Kennedy's decision yesterday.

"I hate to go," said the 6-10 Lee, a defense and rebounding specialist whose greatest service to the Warriors was in holding down opposing hotshots.

"I don't feel as sorry for myself as I do for (Warriors coach) Al Attles. I'm not saying I'm that good, but he helped me and I think I helped him. We have a team that is going to be a lot better than most people think and I thought I was part of that team."

Yesterday's stunner stems from a deal made nearly five years ago by owner Franklin Mieuli when center Nate Thurmond had torn ligaments and center Zelmo Beaty was sitting out his season with the Hawks waiting to jump to the American Basketball League.

Mieuli traded the Warriors top draft pick just to obtain the rights to Beaty and, in an agreement not known until last month, also agreed to give up Lee to Atlanta if the Warriors could sign Beaty.



CLYDE LEE
Hates to go

The latter agreement came to bitter fruition last week when the Warriors got Beaty back from Utah of the ABA and turned him over immediately to Los Angeles in return for a high draft pick.

"It was a small technicality," said new General Manager Dick Vertlieb, who had never been told about the deal, "and it costs us Clyde Lee. I'm sick."

San Rafael, San Marin Tie

By DAVID DEL GRANDE

San Rafael High School felt they could be successful last night if they could just do two things: (1) contain San Marin's Wayne Roche, and (2) keep San Marin from winning.

The Bulldogs accomplished both, yet could only manage a 7-7 tie with the favored Mustangs Marin County Athletic League in their football opener before 1,000 onlookers at Paul Miller Field in San Rafael.

A tenacious Bulldog defense, sparked by linebacker Mike McGrath and a hard-hitting front four, allowed 202 San Marin rushing yards, but these were almost exclusively on short gainers. The Mustangs broke only five rushes over 10 yards, two on 32 and 22-yard runs by Roche. But Rocher, who ran for 75 yards in the first quarter, was stopped after that and ended up with 86 yards in 18 carries, well below his preseason pace. Balancing Roche was Mustang Bob Bennett who rushed for 76 yards in 14 carries.

San Rafael scored first, two plays after Bulldogs Mike Roberts had blocked a Mustang punt and Mike Kinsella had recovered it at the San Marin five. Mark Meredith plunged in from one yard out for the score, midway through the second period.

But four minutes later, Roche rushed three yards for the equalizer. This touchdown came three plays after Mustang Steve Callison ran seven yards to the Bulldog six yard line after recovering a fumble.

Following the intermission, both teams tested their aerial attacks, but neither worked. Taking advantage of Bulldog quarterback Dave Steele's sore arm, Mustangs Brett Schaake, Glenn Stevenson, and Barry Leslie all intercepted fourth-quarter passes in Bulldog territory, but San Marin couldn't capitalize.

Perhaps the biggest threat of the second half came after Stevenson's interception as San Marin was at the Bulldog 14 with 35 seconds left. But on a halfback option, Roche fired a pass into the end zone that was

Dramatic Victory For Tam Gridders

NORTH HIGHLANDS, Calif. — Junior quarterback Dan Lucia fired four touchdown passes to lead Tamalpais High School to a 26-20, come-from-behind victory over Highlands last night in a non-league football game.

Down 14-0 at one point and 20-14 at halftime, the Indians pulled it out with two touchdowns in the last quarter. Lucia threw his final TD pass 18 yards to Rick Lapora for the winning points.

Arthur McIntosh caught two Lucia scoring strikes, for 28 and 14 yards, after Mike Lamb opened the scoring for Tam with a 17-yard TD reception. Lucia had 14 completions in 28 attempts for 187 yards.

Tim Grayson complimented the Tam passing attack with 105 yards rushing in just seven carries.

The victory gave the Indians a final pre-season record of 2-2. They open their Marin County Athletic League season next Saturday at 12:15 p.m. against Novato.

Marin Booters In Opening Win

Four goals by All-American Misak Pirinjian led College of Marin to a 6-1 victory over Alameda yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference soccer opener at Kentfield.

Pirinjian scored twice unassisted and with assists from Bob Gaddini and Tim Pidgeon. Gaddini and Lyle Weden had Marin's other goals.

WFL Storm Signs Receiver Glass

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Wide receiver Leland Glass signed yesterday with the Portland Storm of the World Football League.

Glass played the last two seasons with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League. He was playing out his option with the Packers when released two weeks ago.

QB Moroski Is On Money

Novato Receiver Hoog Cashes In For Victory

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Quarterback Mike Moroski was on the money and wide receiver Steve Hoog cashed in with three touchdowns yesterday to lead Novato High School to a 35-0 victory over Drake in the opening game of the Marin County Athletic League football season.

A crowd of several hundred fans at College of Marin field sat under balmy autumn skies and saw the Hornets explode in pursuit of a second straight MCAL championship.

Hoog caught six passes from Moroski for 134 yards, including touchdown tosses of 25 and 49 yards. He also dashed 81 yards to score on an end reverse, and intercepted a pass on defense.

The shutout was the sixth straight in league play for Novato, and the effort that produced it was team-wide. If one player stood out more than the rest, it was middle linebacker Rich Holshevnikoff. He led the charge that cut off Drake's ground game. He recovered a fumble in the third quarter. And he saved the shutout in the final minute with an interception in the end zone.

Moroski, continuing the pinpoint and poised passing that accounted for five pre-season touchdowns, completed 12 of 24 attempts for 177 yards. The finest pass of the day was the second TD to Hoog, who was so wide open he should have been arrested for over exposure.

The Hornets actually won the game early, as they marched 64 yards to score following the opening kickoff. Glen Dunbar, Novato's workhorse with 53 yards in 11 carries, got the final four.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Novato coach Al Scott removed Moroski and most of the first team offense from the game. He didn't want to run the score up any more.

But he forgot to mention that to halfback Mark Reagan, who took off on a reverse midway through the period and ran 46 yards to score the final touchdown.

Halfback Ross Perry, Drake's claim to a ground game, picked up 88 yards in 18 carries to lead all rushers. Pirate receiver Gary Peak had five catches for 88 yards.

The game was surprisingly clean, with only one penalty in the first half. Novato was not penalized until the fourth quarter.

WITH PRESSURE, MONEY ON LINE

A Study Of Contrasts In Baseball Playoffs

"You'll see them doing things they haven't done in 15 or 20 days, there's no doubt about it," Baltimore manager Earl Weaver said regarding the American League playoffs.

"A good club like the A's feels it can turn it on when it has to," said Orioles third baseman Brooks Robinson.

The A's, seeking a third straight world title, definitely feel they can win again despite a 14-16 record in their final 30 regular season games.

"Put $25,000 out there and we'll play the game over and see what happens," Reggie Jackson said recently of the World Series winners' share.

Baltimore won 28 of its final 34 regular-season games and needed every victory in the drive which carried the Orioles past New York in the Eastern division race.

"We were eight games behind with 30 to play and it was almost time to start thinking about next year," said Robinson, who had a .288 season as a batter.

Weaver said the A's, with a constant lead, were able to play it safe and look ahead in September and he expects them to open up now, especially with their base running.

"They didn't run much in September," he said, "and Jackson and Bert Campaneris missed some games with injuries. You couldn't expect much from them with those two out."

A's manager Alvin Dark said, "I think Campy is 100 per cent and Reggie seems to be all right. We should be 100 per cent healthy."

Meanwhile, a different picture is being painted for the National League playoffs.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, conceded an edge in pitching, surprisingly also had a power advantage over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

(Play began today in both best-of-five playoffs.)

The Dodgers traditionally have been thought of as a team which bunted, sacrificed and singled for a run or two, then relied on pitching to win. The Pirates, on the other hand, are recognized as a hitting club, one whose power overcame defensive deficiencies.

Manager Walter Alston, indignant when asked what he thought were negative questions, contended the 1974 Dodgers were superior over-all.

"All I've heard is how the Dodgers choked last year, were going to choke this year, and now I'm asked how we feel about losing all six games this season here," Alston said.

"What happened before doesn't mean a thing to me or my players," said the obviously annoyed Alston.

The Dodgers actually rely on more than just 20-game winner Andy Messersmith, 19-game winner Don Sutton and super-reliever Mike Marshall, a 13-game winner with 21 saves.

The Dodgers hit 139 homers to 114 for the Pirates, scored 798 runs to 751, batted in 744 runs to 692, and hit .272 as a team, just two points less than Pittsburgh's .274.

Thus the Western Division champion Dodgers, who won 102 games and finished four ahead of runner-up Cincinnati, are the choice to beat the Pirates and reach the World Series. Pittsburgh won the East by 1½ games in a dogfight with the St. Louis Cardinals that wasn't decided until the final day of the 162-game season.

Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh wasn't taking any comfort in his team's 8-4 edge against Los Angeles during the season.

"I'd say in a short series past performance means nothing," Murtaugh said.

The big guns in Los Angeles' attack are center fielder Jim Wynn who hit 32 homers and drove in 108 runs, third baseman Ron Cey who drove in 97, and Steve Garvey, 21 homers and 11 RBIs. The Pirates depend on Richie Zisk, 17 homers, 100 RBIs; Willie Stargell, 25 homers, 96 RBIs, and Al Oliver, a .321 hitter with 85 RBIs.

Sebastopol Bowler Deserves His Share

The Sebastopol bowler teamed with Barbara Delport to score 1,387 Saturday at Nave Lanes in Ignacio. He contributed a 290-238-243—781 series. In addition, Williams bowled on three other teams. He averaged 228 for 12 games.

There were 61 teams competing for $1,403. Eleven shares were paid out.

Two teams tied for second by bowling 1,364. They were Larry Kee and Jerry Stewart and Larry and Robert Betts. Each team will split $200.

Ray and Pat Rinaldo bowled 1,359 to earn $125. Ruth Phillips and Ron Mahoney totalled 1,347 for $100 to complete the top five.

Contestants rolled three games with total pins plus handicap in scoring. Play was held Saturday and Sunday.

JOHN ELLINGSEN turned in the top Marin County bowling league series this week, 700. The Hamilton Air Force Base resident bowled 207-279-214 Tuesday night in the Night Owls at Nave Lanes.

Combined AP & UPI

SACRAMENTO — The trout limit would be cut in three Northern California counties under new proposals issued by the state Department of Fish and Game.

Under the proposed regulations, the general season limit on trout would be reduced from 10 to five in Santa Clara, San Mateo and Marin County streams.

The proposals would also designate a section of the Feather River as a salmon spawning area and ban fishing there from the last Saturday in April through Dec. 31.

That section of the river would run from 100 feet upstream of Thermalito Afterbay outlet to the Highway 70 bridge in Oroville.

The recommendations were made yesterday to the California Fish and Game Commission, which will take final action on them Dec. 6.

NFL ROUNDUP

49ers To Host Potent Cards

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Don Coryell made his mark in college as an exponent of wide open offense but it's been his defense that has carried the St. Louis Cardinals to the top of the National Conference East.

Coryell, the Cardinals' second-year coach, had some of the highest scoring offensive clubs in the nation when he coached at San Diego State and is a firm believer in the "big play" theory — let the other guy control the ball, I'll try for touchdowns.

But the big plays this year have been made by the Cardinal defense as they have surged to a 3-0 record and face the San Francisco 49ers tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Candlestick Park. St. Louis held Philadelphia's potent offense to only three points in its opener and allowed only a touchdown and a field goal to Washington and a touchdown to Cleveland — just 20 points.

A strange turnaround for a team that last season gave up the most yards in the league.

St. Louis, in its three victories, had five straight touchdowns which covered 56 yards or more. Defensive end Ron Yankowski ran 71 yards with a fumble and Terry Metcalf had a 75-yard run from scrimmage against Washington. Then against Cleveland, Norm Thompson returned an interception 56 yards for a TD, Metcalf had a 94-yard kickoff return for another and Jim Hart passed 68 yards to Mel Gray for a third before Donny Anderson scored on a mere 10-yard run to snap the big play string.

The Cardinals' trip to San Francisco will also mark the return of running back Ken Willard to his old stomping grounds. Willard starred for the 49ers for nine years and gained 5,930 yards, becoming the No. 7 rusher in NFL history.

"I'm looking forward to it and then again I'm not," Willard said. "Going back and seeing so many people that I've known for years is going to be fun but actually, it just feels strange to be going against the people I was with for so long.

"There's a lot of nostalgia involved in this game for me. I had the majority of my successes there — and the majority of my failures. I really, really came to like the people of San Francisco."

Joe Thomas makes his debut as Baltimore coach when the winless Colts face the unbeaten Patriots. Thomas takes over for Howard Schnellenberger, who was fired after last week's 30-10 loss to Philadelphia.

And Atlanta coach Norm Van Brocklin, whose Falcons also have yet to win, could be in trouble if his team fails against the Giants.

Minnesota, the other unbeaten team in the NFL along with St. Louis and New England, faces a Cowboy team smarting from consecutive upset losses at the hands of Philadelphia and the Giants.

Raiders Stress Need For Attack

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders arrived here for their National Football League battle tomorrow with Cleveland knowing they'll probably have to open up the throttle on offense if they expect to get by the Browns.

Raider fullback Marv Hubbard noted that Oakland's statistics aren't too impressive on offense, but adds that "when the defense has gotten us the ball or we've had a good return, we put the ball in the end zone.

"We've scored the most points in our division, taken advantage of the opportunities we've had. That inspires the defense for you and gives confidence to the offense."

But Hubbard notes that Cleveland plays a wide-open brand of ball and says the offense will have to move the ball better against the Browns, since they have perhaps a little worse defense than the Raiders' first three foes but maybe a little more explosive attack, too.

Hubbard gained only 51 yards in the first two games, but rolled for 96 last week in a 17-0 shutout of Pittsburgh. Clarence Davis added 63 as the Raider ground attack seemed to jell.

Offensive guard star Gene Upshaw says "we're starting to get there. We're building, getting better each game. Offense is something that takes longer.

"You just don't walk on the field and have it click together, even though you're the same guys doing the same things. We haven't been bad, but we can be a lot better and will be."

Upshaw says that his opponent on the other side of the pit tomorrow, Jerry Sherk, is "tough, a real son-of-a-gun. He's a Pro Bowl guy. I'll have to go after him right away. Cleveland doesn't seem to impress people, but they're steady and they get the job done."

Oakland is fresh from shutting out Pittsburgh, the first time that has happened to the Steelers in 132 games.

Nameless Players On Baseball Field

The tipoff:

That's not an apparition you're seeing if you should happen to be in Las Vegas. That's Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder 42 pounds lighter after a long reducing session in the Duke University hospital.

Q. Why is it that some teams in both the National and American Leagues do not have the names of their players on the back of their uniforms? Is this a way of saving money or something? — David Hickman, Oil City, Pa.

The Hon. Chub Feeney, president of the National League, tells us it's a matter of decision for each individual club, which shows you where baseball is still at — in football, they insist on the individual identification as an aid to the public. Naw, I don't think money enters into it — on some clubs, maybe the owners don't want to know who's playing for them.

Q. What were the last three major college football teams to go undefeated, untied and unscored upon for the regular season? — G. R. Colvin, Concord, Calif.

That would be Duke in 1938, although the Blue Devils were finally dented in the last minute of the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1939 when unknown Doyle Nave threw a touchdown pass to Al Krueger for a 7-3 USC victory. In 1932, Colgate was disappointed at not getting a Rose Bowl bid and in the words of Andy Kerr was "unbeaten, untied, unscored on and uninvited." Finally, Texas A&M also joined the list in 1919. Other schools which had teams that never gave up a point were: Auburn (1908), Illinois (1910), Michigan (1901), Navy (1910), Pitt (1910) and Yale (1888-91-92, 1909).

Q. When Jimmy Wynn was an Astro, why was he unliked by many of his hometown fans and wanted to be traded to Los Angeles? — Jim Scourbes, Sacramento, Calif.

The Toy Cannon's 10-year tenure in Houston wasn't all negative. He blasted a lot of home runs. He also struck out a lot. But the failure of the Astros to progress as a serious title-contending club also hurt Wynn before the homefolks because, as a key guy on the team, he symbolized their collective failure. The change of scenery to Los Angeles got rid of a lot of his emotional hangups about playing in Houston.

Q. I think Bert Campaneris should have gotten the World Series MVP award last year (no offense to Reggie). What was Campy's reaction to his not being picked? — Anna Maria Tinonga, Oakland, Calif.

Utter disappointment. And he didn't mind expressing it while vowing that he'd get a better shot at it in '74. Campy's bitterness wasn't directed at Jackson. He felt that he wasn't picked by "Sport" Magazine, which makes the selection, because he doesn't speak English as well as Jackson, who made a fluent recipient of the honor (and the car that went with it).

Q. Scientists tried to establish that pitcher Nolan Ryan of the California Angels could throw faster than Bob Feller's generally accepted major league record of 98.3 miles per hour. I always had the impression that the great Walter Johnson was once timed at more than 100 miles an hour. Do you know whether this was true? — Ed Cary, Santa Ana, Calif.

A check with baseball authorities convinces me that Johnson never had a true test of his vaunted speed, mainly because there wasn't the sophisticated electronic equipment available in his time. Until Ryan's recent clocking of 100.9 mph for his pitch, Feller topped the list with 98.6 mph, followed surprisingly by Steve Barber at 95.5 and Don Drysdale at 95.3 mph. Where's Sandy Koufax, who was supposed to have the livest ball of all? When he was timed in 1960, same as Drysdale, he was 2.1 mph slower.

Parting shot:

In the sham era of Evel Knievel, the real athletic feat of Lou Brock, at the age of 35, breaking the all-time base stealing record didn't get nearly the recognition it deserved. But that's electronic exploitation for you.

Casa Grande Shows Its Explosiveness

By DIANE FISHER

Casa Grande High School has shown it has an explosive football team. The Gauchos demonstrated this last night by scoring 21 points in the fourth quarter to down Piner, 21-8.

The game on Durst Field in Petaluma was a Sonoma County League opener. After a scoreless first half, the Prospectors (0-3-0) took the lead in the third quarter on a 29-yard touchdown sprint by John Halvorsen. The Santa Rosans added a safety when defensive back Ed Smith tackled Casa Grande's John Lutz in the end zone.

But Casa Grande (3-0-1) promptly tied the score with quarterback Jim Bricker passing for the touchdown (to Lutz) and the two-point conversion.

Bricker then marched the Gauchos 68 yards in 10 plays; Lutz plunged over from the one. With Casa Grande leading only 14-8, Larry Thomas clinched the victory by returning an intercepted pass 33 yards for a touchdown and adding the extra-point kick.

Golf Star Sarazen Sees Ace On Film

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — When Gene Sarazen made his hole-in-one in the 1973 British Open, the five iron shot was shown on television. But Sarazen received a bigger surprise at the eighth annual Tony Lema memorial dinner here when the shot was shown on film.

Sarazen, the chairman of the Lema one-day tournament, said the British Open ace was the seventh of his long career. He also said a bigger thrill came in the 1935 Masters when he registered a double eagle.

South Africa Davis Cup Team Is Not Rejoicing

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South Africa stood to win the coveted Davis cup today, only the fifth nation to win the tennis trophy in 74 years. But there was no rejoicing in the home camp.

The award comes by default in the face of India's refusal to play the Springboks in the finals, an Asian gesture against South Africa's race policies.

South Africa took an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Italy in the fivematch semi-finals yesterday and plunged the International Lawn Tennis Federation into its first no-finals delemma in the cup's long history.

The Indian refusal robs her young players of the chance to capture the trophy, in the past shared among only four countries—Britain, France, Australia and the United States.

"We will not play South Africa under any circumstances," said Raj Khanna, secretary of the all-India Lawn Tennis Association." This means South Africa wins the Davis Cup by default."

But ILTF secretary Basil Reay, in Johannesburg to watch the match, telephoned Khanna in New Delhi who agreed to defer to the Indian Government after" I begged India to play."

South Africa also dropped its insistence on playing the finals in Johannesburg and offered to hold the contest at any neutral venue.

The Springboks made the semi-finals against Italy by defeating five Latin American nations in the Southern and American zone competitions but received one walkover when Argentina also refused to play them on the grounds they objected to South Africa's racial policies.

The South Africans triumphed in these semi-finals with three straight wins in the first two singles matches and the doubles yesterday.

Australian born Bob Hewitt, the Springbok number one, took the home side into the lead Thursday by defeating Italy's Antonio Zugarelli 4-6, 6-0, 9-7, 4-6 and 6-1 in the longest bout in the series.

In the second singles between South Africas Ray Moore and Italy's number one, Adriano Panatta, which was adjourned Thursday, the Springbok completed his sure win in only 70 seconds Friday. Moore took the match 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-4.

The South Africans began the doubles contest with a twomatch lead in the five-match semi-finals and Hewitt teamed with Frew Mcmillan for a closely-fought victory over Panatta and Paulo Bertolucci which ended 7-5, 6-4, 10-8.

Petaluma Gridders Triumph

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma High School bounced back from a losing football pre-season to whip Santa Rosa last night, 20-6.

Petaluma (1-2-1) claimed its North Bay League opening game victory with the help of defensive guard John Burke. Burke set up two Trojan touchdowns by blocking Santa Rosa punts deep in Panther territory.

The first blocked punt came in the second quarter with Burke charging through the Santa Rosa line to give Petaluma the ball on the Panther nine. Quarterback Sam Piezzi then passed four yards to Rick Schroeder for the touchdown.

In the second half, Burke again blocked a punt and Mike Alejos fell on it in the end zone.

Lake Placid Is Olympic Bidder

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — This Adirondack Mountain community of 5,000 people stands alone today in its bid to host the 1980 Winter Olympics — "the Golden Grail we've been chasing so long," Norman Hess says.

"But until the morning of Oct. 23, we're not going to rest on our laurels," added Hess, counsel to the Lake Placid Olympic bid committee. He spoke to a reporter last night following the official withdrawal of Vancouver from the 1980 Winter Games, leaving a lone bidder for the first time in Olympic history.

The news came just hours before Lake Placid organizing officials gave 300 townsfolk a sneak preview of the formal bid they will make Oct. 22 in Vienna, Austria, before the International Olympic Committee.

Lake Placid, which hosted the 1932 Winter Games, has "the site, the backing and the know-how," declared Art Devlin, a former member of U.S. Olympic ski-jumping teams and now a television sports commentator who runs a motel here.

There was no official explanation for Vancouver's withdrawal, but the British Columbia provincial government weeks ago said it could not give financial support.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Traders Send Mart On Toboggan Slide

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gripped by oil-price fear, traders sent prices into a toboggan again this week on the New York Stock Exchange with the Dow Jones industrial average skidding below the 600 level for the first time in nearly 12 years.

Not even a reduction in the prime rate yesterday could spark sustained buying interest, leading one observer to remark, "Wall Street had discounted everything but the end of the world."

And a half-hour extension of trading hours on the exchanges — to 4 p.m. EDT — did little to boost lagging sales on Wall Street. The new operations began Tuesday. The market opening of 10 a.m. was left unchanged.

Volume for the week totaled 73,189,970 shares, up from the 60,883,450 traded a week ago, but substantially lower than the 97,197,492 traded during the same week a year ago.

The Dow, the widely watched average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks, lost 37.39 to 584.56 this week, its lowest finishing since it closed at 579,34 on Oct. 29, 1962 during the Cuban missile crisis.

In the past 11 sessions, all losers for the average, the Dow has fallen 89.49 points. Its decline, particularly its failure to hold at the 600 level, depressed Wall Street.

So have the performances of other averages which have lost heavily in the recent slide. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 2.60 to 62.34. The NYSE common stock index surrendered 1.35 to 32.90.

Margin calls forced some selling early in the week and caused several big losses. The calls contributed in part to 1,257 issues declining in price for the week, against 487 advancers among the 1,981 issues traded. Of that number, 617 stocks registered new lows and only seven reached new highs. On a margin call, an investor must supply more cash or sell his stock.

ROBERT L. FISHER
Novato president

Robert L. Fisher was installed as president of the Novato Kiwanis Club and Dominic J. Selmi as president of the San Rafael Kiwanis Club in joint installation ceremonies.

Fisher, 54, was born and reared in Wray, Colo., and graduated from the University of Colorado. He enlisted in the Army Air Corps in October 1939. During World War II, he served as a weather officer in Africa and South America. His last overseas duty was at Bien Hoa Air Base, Vietnam, from April 1966 to April 1967. He retired in 1968 from Hamilton Air Force Base as chief warrant officer, top grade.

He then went to work for the Marin Council, Boy Scouts of America, where he currently is the explorer executive and district executive of the Muir District.

He and his wife, Vertie, live at 352 San Luis Way in the San Marin section of Novato. They have two sons, Robert, a teacher in Sacramento and Michael, a senior at Colorado State University at Fort Collins.

Other officers installed were Edward V. Lathrop, first vice; Worth Fenner Jr., second vice; Milton Kingsbury, treasurer and Max D. Maxwell, secretary.

Selmi was born and reared in San Francisco. He graduated from Balboa High School and the University of California, Berkeley, with a degree in engineering.

After he received his degree, he worked for the City and County of San Francisco, and then was city engineer of San Rafael from 1957 to 1965.

He then went to work for Dan Coleman Associates. He is a partner in the firm of Coleman, Selmi and Simpkins in Greenbrae.

He and his wife, Helen, live at 115 Ridgewood Drive, San Rafael. They have a daughter, Catherine, a student at the University of California at Davis and two sons, Robert, a student at the University of Southern California and James, a student tat San Rafael High School.

Other officers installed were H. Terry Smart, first vice president; Peter B. Brekhus, second vice president; Joseph P. Micheletti, treasurer and Linton T. Pratt, secretary.

The joint installation was held in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of the founding of the San Rafael Kiwanis Club.

Five charter members of the San Rafael Club, who have had 25 years of service, attending 1,300 meetings, were honored at the meeting.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

Sonomans Miss Financial Filing Date

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Several southern Sonomans are among the public officials who have failed to file financial disclosure statements with the county clerk's office here.

Although the governmental conflict of interests act required office holders to report income sources by last Monday, not all have done so, a check revealed.

Those failing to file include Rohnert Park Mayor Louis G. Beary, Cotati Planning Commission Chairman Adrienne Swenson, former Cotati City councilmen Stephen Laughlin and Annette Lombardi and Cotati City Manager Robert A. Switzer.

Mrs. Swenson and Switzer both said they will file as soon as they get a chance to fill out the forms. The other nonfilers could not be reached for an explanation.

The statements filed revealed no apparent conflicts of interest. In most cases they revealed only income from jobs.

Those filing included Carl P. Bellovich, the Petaluma planning commissioner who resigned last month.

Bellovich, a stockbroker for Dean Witter and Co. in San Rafael, said he would rather leave office than reveal his clients.

But like all the other southern Sonoma office holders covered by the state law, Bellovich was required only to outline his income sources in the broadest of terms.

The brokerage job was listed as his sole source of income.

Fred V. Mattei of Petaluma, a haberdahser and member of both the city council and planning commission, listed the most substantial stock portfolio of the southern Sonomans.

He disclosed more than a dozen securities, all yielding incomes of under $1,000 each. These included more than $10,000 worth of stock in the Petaluma Inn and $10,000 or larger investments in the Union Oil Co., Bank of America and Wells Fargo Bank. Mattei also owns real estate in Petaluma's central business district.

M. Patricia Hilligoss, a Petaluma planning commissioner, listed investments of more than $10,000 in Western Motors, her husband's auto dealership, and Western Motors East, a now-defunct subsidiary which sold recreation vehicles. She also owns real estate along Lakeville Highway in Petaluma, and receives income over $1,000 from the family auto business, of which she is vice president and secretary.

Rohnert Park City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan has invested more than $10,000 in Rodavco Inc., a firm owning land near the city golf course. He also owns an apartment house and land in the city of Sonoma. Callinan disclosed salary income from his city job and rental income of over $1,000 from his Sonoma property.

Phillip L. Joerger of Petaluma, second district Sonoma supervisor, disclosed savings exceeding $10,000 each in the Golden West and North Bay Federal Savings and loan companies of Petaluma. Other investments of more than $10,000 were a business loan and a long-term land lease.

Joerger's real estate holdings include the Texaco and Standard Oil service stations in the Denman Flats area north of Petaluma, a vacant lot in the same area and his home.

Joerger listed income from savings accounts, leases on the two service stations and the business loan. He listed his county job under employment and management positions although he did not mention its salary.

TEAM — Pianists Sylvia Jenkins and her husband, William Corbett Jones, will open the Bay Area Artists in Concert series with a program of music for four hands. The concert will be on Oct. 18 at the Tamalpais in Greenbrae.

4-Handed Piano Concert Opens Series At College

An evening of four-hand music for piano featuring husband and wife pianists William Corbett Jones and Sylvia Jenkins will open the College of Marin's Bay Area Artists in Concert series on Oct. 18 at 8 p.m.

The series is held on Friday evenings at the Tamalpais, 501 Via Casitas, Greenbrae.

The first program will feature Variations by Mozart, Divertisement a la Francaise D. 823 by Schubert, Bizet's Jeaux d'Enfants and Slavonic Dances by Dvorak.

Jones, pianist of the Alma Trio and artist in residence at the University of California, Santa Cruz, participates regularly in European festivals. This summer he and his wife gave concerts in Germany and Switzerland.

Miss Jenkins, a prodigy, has won many scholarships and prizes. She studied at Stanford University and was a prize winner of the Munich International Competition.

She plays concerts extensively in this country, Canada, Mexico and Europe, and teaches at the University of California, Santa Cruz, and Lone Mountain College in San Francisco.

Other concerts in the series include Amici Musicae, Nov. 22; Dominican College Chorus and Winfred Baker Children's Chorus, Dec. 13; Handel, his champions and rivals, Diane Trethowan Ray, soprano, and Walter Matthes, baritone, Jan. 17; Nicolai Ivan Massenkoff, bass-baritone, Feb. 21; music for cello and piano, Margaret Ashe and Sharon Polk, March 21; Music Now!! with Kay Colette soprano; Judy Phillips, flute, and Barbara Baum, piano-harpsichord, April 18, and Musica Frivola with Mark Jordan, violin; Rebecca Jones, soprano, and Patrick Loomis, piano, May 16.

Season tickets for the general public are $14 with single concert admissions, $2. College of Marin students and Emeritus College members may purchase tickets at half-price. Tickets are available through the College of Marin box office.

3 Local TV Programs Due

Marin Community Vieo will present three local programs at 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday on television cable channel 3.

The first is a play, "The Education," by students of Old Mill School in Mill Valley, followed by a tape of the 1974 Dipsea race and Marin Magazine, a music, entertainment and information program.

The programs will be broadcast to Southern Marin cable viewers Wednesday and repeated Thursday for Fairfax-San Anselmo area subscribers.

Civic Center Question Is To Be Aired

The question of a civic center for Novato will come before the Novato City Council again at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

Last Tuesday the council refused to hear from residents in the area between Sherman and Reichert Avenues and north of De Long Avenue whose property is being studied by the city for purchase or condemnation for the civic center.

The Novato Federated Women's Club has requested a hearing on the necessity of taking this property for a civic center before the city is ready to construct one and whether or not the city needs a civic center.

The council will have the second reading of an ordinance setting up a civic center acquisition and development fund.

The council also will reconsider whether or not to spend more than $100,000 to remodel the Novato Community House or spend a smaller amount to repair the building. The costlier proposal would enlarge the council chambers and kitchen, and move the rest rooms upstairs as well as reroof the building.

Teachers' Pay Pact Approved

Teachers and classified employees of the Mill Valley school district will receive an 8.2 per cent salary increase under a wage agreement that has been approved by district trustees.

The agreement, ratified by board members Thursday, is retroactive to July 1 and ends negotiations under way since April, according to a district spokesman.

Trustees also raised daily salaries for substitute teachers from $32.60 to $35.60. Substitutes will be eligible for the higher salary after working 15 days.

In addition, board members agreed to allow part-time teachers in the educationally handicapped program to participate in group medical and dental plans at their own expense.

Athletic Study Before Board

The question of girls participating on boys' athletic teams will be considered by the Novato Unified School District Board at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Novato High School lecture hall.

Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley has proposed that girls participate in basketball, swimming, tennis, golf and cross country running.

Other items to come before the board include a request by Western Weekend Inc. to use the vacant Atherton Avenue Elementary School site, a request from Domingo Canyon parents for bus transportation from there to Novato High School and setting the criteria for hiring a new superintendent.

Weekend Talks

ROME (UPI) — Politicans today began a weekend of intensive talks and meetings in an effort to either patch up the nation's crumbling government or come up with a new one — Italy's 37th since World War II.

JAMES L. BUCKLEY

HEW Draws Sex Rulings Challenge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., Friday accused the Health, Education and Welfare Department of trying to impose abortion as a "social norm" in proposed rules to prevent sex discrimination in educational institutions.

Buckley referred to a section of the regulations proposed by HEW's Civil Rights Office saying that pregnancy "means the entire process of pregnancy, childbirth, and recovery therefrom, and includes false pregnancy, miscarriage, and abortion."

A leader of the anti-abortion "right to life" movement, Buckley said he found he proposed rules "disturbing" because they represent a "kind of bureaucratic legislating" intended to "force acceptance of abortion as a social norm."

"The Congress does not hold that abortion is part of the process of pregnancy, and has made no law or statement to that effect," Buckley told HEW Civil Rights Director Peter E. Holmes in a letter.

Urging the word abortion be deleted wherever it appears in the new regulations, Buckley said the rules in question "are either deliberately subversive of congressional intent, or those who drafted them are dangerously obtuse."

Ferryboat Launching Due

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The super-ferryboat San Francisco, with plush seats, liquor bars and carpeted interior decks, will go into service in November.

The 165-foot, 100-ton aluminum-hulled boat, to be launched into San Diego Bay today, will carry a maximum of 750 passengers between San Francisco and Larkspur.

The vessel can speed up to 26 knots as its three 2,500 horsepower diesel engines propel water through rear chutes. It is one of three similar boats being built under a $12.6 million contract with the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District by Campbell Shipyard, better known for building all-steel tuna seiners.

San Francisco was scheduled to proceed to the Bay Area after sea trials following the launching.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Oct. 5, the 278th day of 1974 with 87 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Chester Arthur, 21st president of the United States, was born Oct. 5, 1830.

On this day in history:

In 1918, the German Hindenburg Line was broken as World War I neared an end.

In 1960, an Eastern Air Lines Electra crashed into Boston Harbor, killing 61 persons.

In 1965, Pope Paul made an unprecedented 14-hour visit to New York to plead for world peace before the United Nations.

In 1970, Quebec separatists in Montreal kidnaped British diplomat James Cross, demanding $500,000 and the release of 23 political prisoners.

A thought for the day: British historian George MacAuley Trevelyan said, "Education has produced a vast population able to read . . . but unable to distinguish what is worth reading."

Opening lead — ♠ 3

West opened the three of spades, and dummy won with the queen. Declarer led a low diamond from dummy and played the king from his hand to force out West's ace.

West led another spade, and dummy won with the ace. Now declarer led a low club from the dummy.

East played low, and West's ace was knocked out. Now West had no further entry to his long spades. He could lead a third spade to set up his suit, but he would never get back to cash the established spades. South easily made his contract with three spades and two tricks in each of the other suits.

East had his chance to be the hero, but he muffed it. When the club is led from dummy, East must step right up with the king. Risky? Perhaps, but what good is that king of clubs unless West has the ace?

As the cards lie, East wins the trick with his king of clubs. He returns his last spade, thus establishing his partner's suit. Now West still has the ace of clubs as the entry to his established spades. The defenders will surely get two spades, two clubs and the ace of diamonds. They will get another trick if South desperately tries the heart finesse in the hope of making his contract with four heart tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 9 8 5 3 2
♥- 7 4
♦- A 8 3
♣- A 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

If partner has 18 points and a fine fit for spades he will raise. If his no-trump is less ideal, he will pass; but then you will probably have very little play for a game.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD TO BURN MORTGAGE

The Southern Marin Assembly of God Church congregation in Mill Valley will officially burn the mortgage tomorrow on its $100,000 building at East Blithedale and Sycamore Avenues. The original building was constructed in 1913 by the Methodist Church. Wesley Hall was added to it in 1940. The church building was sold in 1959 to the Assembly of God. In 1960 that church remodeled the platform. The Assembly of God was formed in Sausalito during World War II. It was housed from 1945 until it moved to Mill Valley in 1959 at 35 Caledonia Street where the police station is now housed.

Tiburon Baptist Church To Dedicate New Annex

The Tiburon Baptist Church will dedicate a new addition tomorrow designed for use as offices, Sunday School space and a day care area for preschoolers and the elderly, according to Rev. Jerry Ashby.

A dedication service will be held at 11 a.m. with Rev. Bates Ivey as speaker. Ivey is associate executive secretary-treasurer of the California Baptist Foundation and director of the California Plan of Church Finance and helped the church finance the new facility. Following the service, members will have a picnic lunch.

The 3,500-square-foot addition, designed by Lyle Hood and Associates of Petaluma, cost the church $140,000 and has been financed through donations from members and sale of bonds. Harold Graves, president of Golden Gate Seminary, served as chairman of the building committee.

Groundbreaking was held a year ago, but construction was slowed by rains and a carpenters' strike.

The church began planning the annex about three years ago to provide more Sunday School rooms. Now up to 300 persons can be accommodated in Sunday Morning classes at the church.

REV. BATES IVEY
To speak at dedication

However, the church wants to use the annex on weekdays as well, Ashby said, and is exploring two possible programs — day care for preschoolers and day care for the elderly.

The program for seniors was suggested by a member who once worked in a similar program in Hawaii, Ashby said. It would provide half-day or all-day activities for wheelchair patients living with relatives. Seniors would have the benefit of social contact and their families would get a respite from continuous care of the elderly.

Ashby said that families interested in seeing either of these day care services launched can call him at the church in the mornings to discuss their needs.

He said the church also would like to reactivate a program of Sunday School classes which it once had for educationally handicapped children.

is SUNDAY SCHOOL OUT-OF-DATE?
It's never out-of-date to understand God, and man, and the true nature of the universe.
This understanding is what young people up to the age of 20 gain in our Sunday School.
They're taught a warm and practical Christianity, and how to apply it to everyday problems.
And as they study the Bible, together with Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, they're preparing to help solve the world's problems in the most forward-looking, fresh, and effective way.
Wouldn't you like your children to visit this Sunday?

Chamber Board Makes Right Move

THE DIRECTORS of San Rafael Chamber of Commerce showed commendable fortitude when they voted to forego thousands of dollars of subsidy from the City of San Rafael.

One of the weaknesses of the chamber's posture in times past has been that, while it alternately pleaded for and demanded handouts from the public treasury, it received less than the fiscal support it deserved from San Rafael business.

Among other functions a chamber should perform is that of spokesman for the business and economic interests of the community. This is a useful service because both public and public officials will make better decisions if they hear from all segments of the community, including business.

Sometimes, however, what business has to say to city hall, city hall would rather not hear. Under those circumstances, a chamber beholden to city hall for the money it receives as subsidy is not likely to speak up critically.

Thus the interest of business is not served. But public and public officials are deprived of hearing a strong presentation of the business point of view.

Self government never works at its best when one segment of the community is not heard from clearly.

OVER THE DECADES, San Rafael Chamber has from time to time experienced hard times in the pocketbook. The chamber is not exactly the epitome of affluence right now. So saying, "No, thanks" to the city on further tax subsidy cannot have been an easy decision casually arrived at.

The chamber has to have made the hard decision that it will swim unassisted or it will sink and drown.

The courage of the directors is commendable.

Now the chamber is in a position to represent the business community without equivocation. Actually, it can command more respect at city hall because it is independent.

Whether it survives or becomes defunct will depend now on how willing San Rafael business is to put its money where its mouth is.

Self government and the welfare of the community will benefit if the chamber survives.

Chamber directors have put it plainly up to San Rafael businessmen. If they want to have their collective voice heard in the community, they must be prepared to provide the necessary financial support for the chamber.

It Happened In Timberlane

With the threat of a teacher strike in San Rafael schools, we wonder whether any of the teachers have noticed an item in the October issue of Learning magazine. It follows:

"To dramatize their plight, the striking teachers of the Timberlane Regional School District in Plaistow, New Hampshire, marched from their native Granite State to the NEA's annual convention in Chicago last June. At that time, the strike of about 100 teachers was already the longest in the nation's history, and the cries of 'scab' had become a ritual as substitute teachers daily crossed the Timberlane Regional Educational Association picket line.

"But in this age of teacher oversupply, the march of the strikers backfired. They may have gained support from folks they talked to along their route, but they also unwittingly served as job recruiters for the Timberlane district. Shortly after the march ended, Supt. of Schools Robert Crompton began receiving job applications from unemployed teachers the strikers had met in towns along the way. By late summer, he had filled all the strikers' jobs — from more than 1,200 applicants, who obviously didn't think teacher conditions in Timberlane sounded so bad."

Stridulating Crickets

The sound of crickets rises to a mighty chorus in Marin and Sonoma these September evenings. We are strangely moved by this insect noise. It cannot rightly be called song. There is no voice involved. Rather it is stridulation — the vibration caused by pulling a grooved taut leathery forewing against a row of tubercles on the other forewing. Male crickets make this music to excite the females. It is another way of starting a fire by friction.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the City of Novato for adopting restoration of Novato's original post office as a Bicentennial project. We hope to see equally worthwhile projects for the Bicentennial by other cities and by Marin County.

BRICKBATS to Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr for failure to record their votes on repeal of the state legislature's infamous pension "ripoff." Both were too busy campaigning, we assume.

BOUQUET to the City of San Rafael for doing what should always be done, but seldom is, in a street resurfacing project: Having utility companies and water district do any digging up of lines necessary on H Street before giving the go-ahead for the resurfacing. We hope this will be standard practice hereafter.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Philosophy consists largely of one philosopher arguing that all others are jackasses. He usually proves it, and I should add that he also usually proves that he is one himself. — H. L. Mencken.

Fears Quake Danger To Warm Springs Dam

Geologists in our family tell us that an earth-filled dam on an active earthquake fault is hazardous. The structure planned for Sonoma County Warm Springs is obsolete by some 20 years.

Not only is there danger from a first earthquake in a series, but the 1971 reports on Southern California repeatable high ground accelerations from earthquakes force us to urge that the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors meet important design criteria.

Improvement in the design of Warm Springs Dam, as proposed, is imperative.

By voting no on Proposition B in Sonoma County, we can demand safety and protection for our people and the environment, not to mention preserving Dry Creek, one of the last remaining natural fish-spawning areas of the Russian River.

Councilmen Deserve Credit For Service

Over the past month or so there have been a number of articles and letters appearing in the I-J critizing the San Rafael City Council as a whole and in some instances naming specific councilmen.

In reference to Mr. Higby's letter of Thursday (Oct. 3), he seems to fail to recognize the fact that the councilmen are all outstanding citizens who take the time away from their families to devote many hours to the city's business for a small stipend. When a client of a councilman is involved in a council-related decision, what course of action, other than abstaining, can a councilman take?

I find it deplorable that Mr. Higby could so degrade the characters of Mayor Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack Nixon as to imply that they are not men of high moral principles and proven good character and that would resort to graft.

As a citizen who attends the San Rafael Council meetings regularly, I would like to thank the city council for the numerous hours of time devoted to serving the citizens of San Rafael, not only during regular council meetings, but the additional hours spent at budget time and more recently the exceptional number of meetings in the formulation of a general plan for our city.

Newark Sees Its Only Chance: Destabilization By The CIA

WASHINGTON — Newark has been a pothole in the poverty pocket of New Jersey for some time. I went up to talk to the chamber of commerce the other night, and all the speakers had some great ideas as to how they could get Newark out of its doldrums.

After the dinner was over I retired to my hotel room when there was a knock on the door. A man who refused to give his name said he had to talk to me. I let him in.

"LISTEN, ALL THAT talk you heard at dinner tonight about improving Newark — forget it!"

"Oh?" I said.

"It won't work. We need federal money and we're not going to get it. The mayor keeps going to Washington and all he gets is empty promises. No one down there gives a damn about the cities."

"That's true," I agreed.

He said, "Our problem is we keep going to HEW, HUD and the Department of Transportation — and all we get is the runaround. There is only one agency in Washington that has money to burn and it doesn't have to answer to anybody."

"YOU MEAN the CIA?"

"Right. What we want to do is have them destabilize Newark," he said.

"You have to be kidding."

"I'm not. The CIA spent $8 million to destabilize Allende in Chile. If we could get them to spend that kind of money in Newark, we'd be in great shape."

"But why would the CIA want to destabilize Newark?" I asked. "It's not a threat to the United States."

"Have you walked around it lately?" he asked me.

"Looks are not everything," I told him. "You have to do something that would endanger the security of the Western Hemisphere. Allende was Marxist and we couldn't stand something like that so near to North America."

"OKAY, WE'LL PUT out the word that our mayor is a Marxist, and then they can send us the aid."

"Would your mayor go along with that?"

"He's so desperate for money for the city, he'll go along with anything."

"That's all well and good, but what can I do for you?"

"Get word back to Kissinger that Newark is about to recognize Castro's government and is planning to nationalize the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. Have him call a meeting of the 40 Committee, and let them recommend that the CIA finance the overthrow of the Newark city government. If someone from here tells Kissinger, he won't believe us. But since you're the last foreign correspondent to have visited us, he might believe you. The CIA is our only hope."

"BUT IF THE CIA destabilizes you, they would have to destabilize New York, Chicago, Baltimore and every other city in trouble. They don't have that kind of money."

"How can you be sure?" the man said. "No one knows how much money the CIA has."

"Your idea has merit," I admitted, "and I'm willing to pass it on to Kissinger. But you know the CIA isn't dumb. What makes you think that they would believe that Newark has gone Marxist?"

"What makes you think it won't if we don't get the money?"

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

The Senate Watergate Committee has gone out of business, but other matters before Congress guarantee plenty of work for Sam Ervin's eyebrows.

No, Hubert Humphrey isn't running for president. But if two or three more persons ask him that question, he may sense an overpowering demand for a different answer.

A sour citizen says one way to cut the cost of government would be to pay all politicians according to merit.

If General Sherman were alive today, it would be interesting to ask him what he thought of peace.

Threats To Arabs Get U.S. No Support From Europe

This has been the period when the new Ford-Kissinger combination in Washington launched its first important foreign policy initiative, and it got a little bit out of hand — although probably with no serious consequences.

The operation was launched in the form of twin speeches by the president and secretary of state in which the president spoke of "dangers of confrontation" arising out of the high oil prices being maintained by the Arab oil-producing countries and Dr. Kissinger spoke of "deliberate decisions (by Arab producers) to restrict production and maintain an artificial price level."

The combination promptly caused excited speculation about possible American military action against Arab countries. This in turn caused Secy. of Defense James R. Schlesinger to issue a formal denial that any such thing was in the works. The State Department also insisted that military contingency planning was totally out of the question.

The immediate effect of the twinned speeches was to cause the important oil-consuming partners of the United States to take alarm and pull away from the United States. Clearly, they wanted no part of any operation which even hinted at military action against the Arabs.

The French were first to react by announcing their own oil-conservation program. They put a $10.1 billion ceiling on their oil imports for next year.

BEHIND ALL THIS is preliminary maneuvering over the next round of peace efforts for the Middle East. The last Arab-Israeli war began nearly a year ago. It was halted in a cease-fire which contemplated Israeli withdrawals from occupied territories in step with progress toward Arab acceptance of the permanence of Israel.

For six months there has been almost no progress in either part of this process. Israeli withdrawals are less than the Arabs had expected by this time, which in turn explains their refusal to date to reduce the price of oil.

Arabs talk of renewing the fighting unless the peace process is resumed. Israel has been heavily rearmed by Washington, and the Arabs by Moscow.

WAS TALK in Washington about a "confrontation" the best way of getting Mideast peace moving again? Apparently what the president and Dr. Kissinger wanted was the approval and support of Britain, France, West Germany, and Japan when the secretary of state goes to the Middle East next month to launch his next push for more peace (or less war).

The choice of words was unfortunate. It sounded too blustery and threatening for the other oil consumers, whose economies are still staggering from the consequences of last winter's oil embargo. Confrontation does not reflect their sense of the best way of getting the Arabs to reduce oil prices. Territorial concessions by Israel would be the better way (to the British, French, West German, and Japanese).

But can Dr. Kissinger persuade the Israelis to make more territorial concessions?

That is the key question behind all the maneuverings of the week. Such concessions are probably the indispensable first step to lower or at least stabilize Arab prices.

THE ARABS have a weapon in their oil. They have used it with powerful effect once. They are using it again right now, by holding up the price of oil when it could, of course, be brought down.

In effect, the Arabs are telling Dr. Kissinger, and President Ford, that the price of oil is tied to those Arab territories which Israel captured in 1967 and upon which Israeli troops still stand.

The Ford-Kissinger attack did not produce a common front of the industrial oil-consuming countries against the Arabs. But it certainly did underline the connection between oil prices and Israel's occupation of Arab territory.

It also clarified the lack of enthusiasm among the other oil consumers for any form of pressure on the Arabs. The only pressure they would approve would be on Israel to disgorge more of the 1967 conquests.

Such a course could not easily be coordinated with Washington, where Israel is the politically popular case. But Dr. Kissinger perhaps got a little leverage on Israel out of it all from the mere fact that he cannot carry a single other oil consumer along with him for any policy of toughness towards Arabs.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Summit, World Bank Meetings Talking Different Languages

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic summit and the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund might have occurred on different planets instead of in the same city. The appeal that each uttered was irrelevant one to the other.

President Ford, summing up the summit, called for holding down government spending to keep the federal budget at or below $300 billion. He asked Americans to devote 10 days of the month to conserving energy, listing ways to do this and exchanging the lists with neighbors.

With this voluntarism the American standard of living, the highest in the world, will not be seriously impaired.

PRESIDENT ROBERT S. McNamara called on the industrialized members of the World Bank to provide immediately billions of aid for the developing nations. Unless this comes about, the end will be death and disaster for those living at the bottom of the heap. Their already appallingly low standard has been gravely worsened in the past year by the quadrupling of oil prices and a resulting scarcity of food and fertilizer.

For each president, the verdict may be too little and too late.

Split between Democrats and Republicans, labor and management, the summit chose to ignore what has happened to the economy during the past 12 months.

Steel prices have increased by 40 per cent, almost the biggest increase ever. This was true even though in July less steel was produced, despite a greater capacity, than in July a year ago. Industrial chemicals jumped 50 per cent, nonferrous metals 46 per cent, oil 82 per cent. These basic increases are quickly reflected in consumer prices.

With an attempt to roll back these price levels sternly ruled out along with any form of wage and price controls, much of the rhetoric indulged in at the summit was just rhetoric. As a latecomer, Ford gets good marks for an exercise in education. But as for practical results in the war on inflation, they are not yet in sight.

McNAMARA CANNOT be faulted for failing to try. He has repeatedly inveighed against the complacency of the wealthy, industrialized members of his bank. This has hit hard at the United States, which with 6 per cent of the world's population uses more than 30 per cent of all resources.

He waged an increasing struggle, which was finally successful, to get the Congress to provide funds for the American share of a consortium to replenish the International Development Agency, the bank's low-interest subsidiary.

But for all the intensity and concentration of his efforts, the plight of the sub-Saharan nations has steadily grown worse. The structure of a relief system has not been built into what is largely an underdeveloped and primitive area. Even when relief supplies are available, it has often been difficult, if not impossible, to get food and medicines to the starving.

THE REAL GAP, however, is in the attitude of Congress and the public toward aid. It has come almost to a dead stop. Repeatedly, aid programs are cut, and they have become even more unpopular as they are involved, on the arms side, in big power politics.

McNamara is a man of conscience. In his opening address to the World Bank meeting he called the situation of one billion human beings in the poorest of the member countries desperate. Then he went on with an appeal that may or may not be heard on Capitol Hill:

"Aid is not a luxury — something affordable when times are easy, superfluous when times become temporarily troublesome. It is precisely the opposite. Aid is a continuing social and moral responsibility and its need now is greater than ever.

"It is true that the affluent nations in the face of shortages and inflation, and in order to continue to expend aid, may have to accept for the time being some selective reduction in their already immensely high standard of living. If they have to they can absorb such inconveniences."

Presidents Ford and McNamara were each calling for belt tightening. But their aims were light years apart. McNamara was in effect calling on the Congress to add a billion or two billion dollars a year to the aid budget. Ford was asking for budget balancing to hold down inflation.

Navy Due Toehold In Persian Gulf With Bahrain Pact

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The United States will be able to keep a naval toehold in the strategic Persian Gulf after all.

The Gulf island state of Bahrain has decided to let the U.S. Navy port facilities at Jufair, the harbor for its capital Manama, reliable Gulf sources report, and the news is confirmed by Western diplomatic sources in Beirut.

Bahrain had cancelled the base agreement during last October's Arab-Israeli war and the deadline for the Navy's pullout was set for later this month.

The island's reversal of its earlier decision means that the U.S. will be the only foreign country to have a permanent naval base in the Gulf — the strategic waterway through which 800 million tons of oil are exported every year.

Iraq ports at the head of the Gulf are being developed to levels described in Western reports as "well beyond the likely needs of the Iraqi navy" — presumably to accommodate warships of the Soviet Union, which has a treaty of friendship with Iraq covering military cooperation. But so far no evidence has been produced of a Soviet base in the sense of physical occupation of territory and a force permanently at anchor.

Bahrain's move marks a significant development in the controversial subject of superpower rivalry in the Indian Ocean.

The U.S. administration's decision to build a base on Diego Garcia island, which led to a sharp exchange recently between President Ford and the Kremlin, followed last year's announcement that Bahrain intended to cancel the Jufair base agreement.

So far Bahrain has given no public hints of the policy switch. Bahraini officials are searching for a formula to announce the news in a way minimizing the risk of outcry from radical Arabs both inside Bahrain and elsewhere in the Arab world.

While disclosing no details about the terms of the new U.S.-Bahraini agreement, Western diplomatic sources predict there will be no change in the American naval presence — officially known as Commander Middle East Force (COMIDEASFOR). The smallest operational fleet in the U.S. Navy, it consists of a converted amphibious transport dock, the USS LaSalle, which serves as flagship for Captain Edward Hanks, plus a pair of destroyers detached from the 6th or 7th fleets.

Although COMIDEASFOR officers insist their mission is primarily "flag-waving," communications functions are involved, and monitoring ship movements in the narrow Persian Gulf would be easy. During the October war, COMIDEASFOR destroyers raced around the tip of Arabia to the narrow Bab al-Mandeb straits at the Red Sea exit, where the Egyptian Navy briefly operated a blockade. The imminent reopening of the Suez Canal, expected next year, will increase the value of the Bahrain base.

Bahrain's decision to let the Navy stay followed a visit to the area last month by two top American officials, Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf II and Deputy Assistant Undersecretary of State Sidney Sober, a former Navy officer himself. The little publicized visit took the two men to Saudi Arabia, which has a considerable voice in Bahraini foreign policy, and to Iran, the powerful and assertive non-Arab Gulf state, which recognized Bahrain's independence in 1970 in exchange for assurances of Bahraini cooperation on Gulf defense.

The Shah of Iran has publicized his concern over intensification of Soviet naval activity in the Indian Ocean.

He's constructing rudimentary bases on one of three Gulf islands Iran occupied in 1971, but it offers no substitute to the Bahrain facility for deep water anchorage and shore facilities.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal originally put pressure on Bahrain to withdraw American base facilities last year. Bahrain's American refinery depends on crude oil supplied from Saudi oilfields by an undersea pipeline. But Saudi Arabia has started building its own navy, with American help. Continued American presence appears to fit a pattern of increased regional concern over Gulf security.

A green light from Saudi Arabia was essential for Bahrain to rescind the ouster order. Assuming Egypt will subscribe to Saudi views on Gulf matters, the main Arab criticism is likely to come from Iraq and from Libya. Domestically, Bahrain's new parliament, in existence since last December, has proved tamer than officials feared, as risk of an internal backlash seems light.

Bahrain was always reluctant to close down Jufain. The base brings in several million dollars in much needed annual income for the island. COMIDEASFOR purchases a substantial share of the output of the local refinery of the American-owned Bahrain petroleum company. Relations between the local people and the low-profile navy community are amiable.

The American high school in Jufair draws free-paying Bahrainis and other Arabs as well as Navy children. Bahrainis were distressed at the thought that the school would not reopen this year if Defense Department support ended. A check this week showed school in full swing, with a record enrollment both American and Arab.

Rising Production Costs Forcing Dairy Farmers Out Of The Business

By ROBERT M. PRESS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LITCHFIELD, Minn. — Almost half the commercial dairy farmers in the United States are expected to go out of business by 1980. Experts are split, however, on what this means for milk, butter (and margarine), ice cream, and cheese prices.

More and more dairy farmers either are retiring without their sons taking over the business or are switching work because of fast-rising production costs and lagging income.

Will this force dairy product prices up?

Yes, say dairy leaders. They say dairy farmers must be paid more to keep them in business.

No, says Department of Agriculture (USDA) economist David Cummins, who just finished estimates of milk production up to 1980. The loss in dairy farms and cows will be balanced by an increase in the size of herds on remaining farms, he says.

Cummins sees the price of milk rising inevitably over the next six years, but primarily from higher production costs, not from fewer farms. He thinks prices paid to farmers for milk may even be as much as 70 per cent higher than today by 1980.

Meanwhile, with prices boosted by inflation, Americans are buying slightly less milk than they did last year (average consumption per person in 1973 was about 32 gallons) and buying more margarine and less butter.

And unless farmers start getting more money for milk (many now get roughly 60 cents a gallon), more will quit the business, production will fall, and "consumers will pay wildly escalating prices for milk," says Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation.

Former farmer Glen Boldt of Baldwin, Wis., for example, says he sold all his dairy cows recently because "I wasn't getting a fair return on my investment" (which he estimates was $20,000 for cows and equipment.)

Last year dairy farmers were getting good prices (up to $8.50 for 100 pounds of milk), he said. This year 'you're lucky to get money for your feed back — and nothing for your work," he said.

But Cummins says the number of dairy farmers leaving the business will not make a big change in production levels of milk, cheese, butter, and ice cream.

He said his latest projections on trends in U.S. dairy farming show that from 1973 to 1980:

— The number of commercial dairy farms operating will drop 43 per cent, from about 384,500 to 218,000.

— But the number of milk cows will drop only 9 per cent from about 11,500,000 to 10,500,000.

— And milk production per cow will increase by about 12 per cent —due to better pasture conditions and being fed more corn and other grains.

The federal price support to farmers based on the prices in Wisconsin and Minnesota now is $6.39 per 100 pounds of milk. But in many areas farmers are getting another $1 as a premium from big dairy firms that want a regular supply.

The USDA is currently considering proposals to raise the support price to $7.50 per 100 pounds of milk. That, says Healy, could raise the consumer's price for a gallon of milk by 8 cents. But such a rise is unlikely, since proposed price is roughly the same as firms now pay farmers. The higher support price simply would mean more stability in what the dairy farmer can expect to be paid, he added in a telephone interview.

But David Grimsgard, who runs a dairy farm near Litchfield, says, "Lower milk prices make a better manager out of you. You don't keep the cows that aren't making money."

When he took over the farm from his father, he expanded the herd from 30 to 110 cows and hired a helper. But dairying "ties you down seven days a week from 12 to 15 hours a day," he said recently sitting on his porch just before lunch.

And that seems to be the feeling of many dairy farmers. "The bulk of the fellows who are quitting are getting sick and tired of milking cows all their lives — I am, too," says Garfield Kittelson, another Litchfield-area dairy farmer.

DAYS NUMBERED? — Like so many others, this Massachusetts dairy farmer may be reaching the end of the line. Boxed in by rapidly rising prices but stagnating income, more and more dairy farmers are finding it impossible to make ends meet, and are leaving the business. A rise in the price the consumer pays for milk and other dairy products also may result from this situation.

FRENCHMAN ON THE MOVE

Legrand Becoming Visible

By DAVID STERRITT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — On the 35th floor of a very posh hotel, the door of a very posh suite swings open and an affable, bright-eyed, slightly bushy-haired Frenchman ushers me breezily in. He looks sort of familiar — the way a celebrity looks whom you've admired only from a distance, or whose main contributions have been behind the scenes.

A fellow Frenchman would probably have known him a mile away, because this is Michel Legrand — whose early career in France included night-club pianizing, film acting, and a prodigious amount of composing.

As an American, I know him mainly as the king of the movie score, the man whose melodies have graced pictures ranging from "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg" (soon to tour the United States in concert form) to "Summer of '42," and "Brian's Song." His latest is "A Hero's Song," based on Homer's "Odyssey."

The day approaches when Legrand may be a household word on this side of the Atlantic too, as his career becomes more visible than ever through international night club work, Broadway show-writing (his next one will star Andy Williams), and a list of film/stage/TV/concert-hall projects that boggles the imagination.

At the center of all the Legrand activity, movie scoring remains an unassailed first love. As a young musician he sought out opportunities for film work because "I think the best expression for a composer today is really to work with films. This is where he has the largest medium to expose every different facet of himself, every possibility.

"What's nice in pictures, one day you have to write a jazz score, after that you have to do a heroic film, after that you have to do a very contemporary classical style. So it is an exercise in style all the time . . . It is a vast exposure for a composer in films, much better than in records, television, or in any other thing."

What makes a good score in the master's eyes? "First of all, the music should be very good by itself, it should stand by itself without the movie. And the music should be a sort of second dialogue. It has this importance, it should be equivalent to the drama, very emotional, very good, very right. And not necessarily in the same direction that the picture goes; sometimes you counterpoint. But it must have this kind of strength . . .

MICHEL LEGRAND
Prefers movie scores

"People are sometimes saying to me, good music in a picture is music you don't hear. But that's wrong, that's terrible . . . ridiculous."

Legrand's work habits are simple. He sees a film and, if he decides to score it, requests a copy. With a moviola and other equipment at his home, he "lives with the film" day and night, learning it frame by frame. He works fast, taking anywhere from two weeks to two months for a finished score.

He works with a music editor but has no other assistance, preferring to complete his own work right down to the orchestrations. He works at the piano only when searching for a main theme, "because the piano doesn't help me but it excites me . . . to go here and there."

When beginning work on a project, Legrand seeks "an over-all view of the movie. And I start to reach closer and closer. I write many different scenes and I try them and I try them . . . and finally . . . it's like walking slowly toward an emotion that you want to reach . . . And finally I find exactly what I would like to hear in this movie, as a spectator."

Ask Legrand when his professional career began, and he'll tell you that his work is "more an art than a business" so he can't really say. But he feels that he was gifted at a very early age, and he decided on a musical life when practically an infant. He began playing piano at four or five years of age, imitating songs he heard on the radio.

He started at the Paris Conservatoire at 10, staying there for 10 years and studying with the distinguished teacher, Nadia Boulanger.

Later he struck out as an accompanist for popular singers and as an orchestrator for records. Film scoring came next, and after some five years' work in Paris he headed eagerly for Hollywood — because "this is part of my adventure. I think I am sort of an adventurer, in life and in music too.

"(I wanted to) change my aquarium, to renew the water in which I'm in evolution."

In a personal way, Legrand found Hollywood "a different world" from Paris. But he considers the movie-making atmosphere much the same, except for better facilities. As a composer he seems to work efficiently under any circumstances, and he insists that deadlines can actually help his work — especially when they force ideas to flow during a noncreative mood.

Legrand has scored for television only once, working on the famous "Brian's Song" TV movie. He acknowledges that a TV score will only be heard a couple of times and then shelved along with the movie, but he professes not to mind, citing the huge audience garnered by a major TV show that is only aired once.

In the future, Legrand plans less film work, perhaps two movies a year. He wants to continue night club work and to find fresh new forms for stage and movie musicals. He also plans a return to more formal kinds of music, working in more conventional classical frameworks.

Color Photography Has Drama

By ADA GARFINKEL

A small, quite wonderful display of color photography by Duncan MacSwain at the Social Security Gallery in San Rafael, finds its basis in the momentary interaction and drama of things in their natural state of environment.

Though MacSwain's well-composed photos lend sustenance to his strong feeling and appreciation for life, he is not a professional photographer. Nor are these photos merely about nature.

MacSwain, who teaches psychology at Redwood High School, spends his summers leading hiking or backpacking trips. These photos, taken on location, appear to have been mainly shot at ground level and with a wide-angle lens, and usually in the soft light of dawn or dusk.

Like naturalist David Cavagnaro with whom he has studied, MacSwain dwells on the luminosity inherent in water and moist air. Too, there is a pervasive feeling that in the interplay of clear and dissolving light and form which surround his central images — a moth, a worm, or a beetle — that one is sharing a special moment in time and rhythmic motion.

And, as if to emphasize his microcosmic point of view, each of MacSwain's photos is mounted within a colored mat which, in effect, extends the plane of perception to infinity.

MacSwain's rapport with the quiet life and the more sculptural and textural manifestations of nature are seen in the bubbly, pearlescent gray-greens within and surrounding the scaly shell of "Fiddler Crab;" in a shot of a sleepy-eyed "Leopard Lizard," (cast in the same monotonal umber as surrounding fossilized rock and driftwood, their markings almost indistinguishible from his), and in "Western Frog," rising like an ancient jade sculpture from a bed of marsh reeds.

"Morning Blue" encompassing a larger perspective of background area, shows a frayed-wing moth hovering on the yellow mound of a huge shasta daisy. The sturdy strength of the latter emphasizes the fragility of the insect and its cyclical existence.

And the wiry, white antennae of "Cicada Nymph" lending a ghostly quality to this tawney golden shot reinforced by the deep brown tree trunk to which the insect is clinging, exemplifies again the dramatic tone that is basic to MacSwain's vision.

His most impressive landscape, which is also his largest photo, is "Eureka Valley Sand Dunes," a magnificent distance shot in coppery orange with a dusty mauve sky and deeply cleft shadows racing across its surface.

These photos will remain on display through Nov. 8 and may be seen weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Social Security Office is at 549 Northgate Drive.

High School Goals Sought

Supt. Robert D. Torrey will ask Tamalpais Union High School District trustees at their meeting at 8 p.m. Monday to direct the district Citizen's Advisory Committee to formulate a statement of district goals.

Torrey said that such a statement could be used as a basis for planning and evaluating resulting educational programs.

The trustees will also consider activating a legislative task force at the meeting in the district office in Larkspur.

Marin Consumers Told Of Defective Teakettles

Marin consumers who have purchased electric teakettle models which have been recalled should request stores where they were purchased to return the items to the manufacturer, according to Bette Wallace, county consumer affairs deputy.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration recalled certain models Sept. 26 because lead solder inside the kettles boiled into the water when the kettles were used, Mrs. Wallace said. But the FDA added that the hazard exists mainly the first few times the kettles are used, she said.

Recalled models, whose number appear on the kettles, are Everhot 431002, Toastmaster 599, Hamilton Beach 351 and 354, and Dominion 16-30, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 56, 57, 58 and 59, Mrs. Wallace said. If the retail outlet is unknown, the consumer should contact the manufacturer, Mrs. Wallace said.

The commission's resolution yesterday also accused supporters of the Nov. 5 ballot measure of "conducting an emotional and often inaccurate campaign" against the dam project.

Taylor Park Stands As Tribute To Tenacious Women

For almost three decades the verdant redwood and Douglas fir-filled Samuel P. Taylor State Park, on the banks of Paper Mill Creek, west of Lagunitas, has been one of the Bay Area's best loved and most widely used overnight camping grounds.

The 2,600 acre preserve, named for a Marin pioneer, who in 1856 opened the West's first paper mill, and later a resort hotel and one of the nation's first campgrounds on the site, became a state park in 1946.

State acquisition of the property came about due to the dedication and tenacity of the Marin Conservation League and its four founders who labored for five years to make the park a reality.

THE LEAGUE HAD been founed in 1934 by four Marin women — Mrs. Albert J. (Sepha) Evers, now of San Francisco; the late Mrs. Norman B. (Caroline) Livermore; Mrs. John F. (Portia) Forbes, both of Ross; and Mrs. Helen Van Pelt, a longtime San Anselmo landscape architect.

The four founders will be honored at an all-day public picnic climaxing a two-month membership drive next Saturday on Angel Island commemorating the Marin Conservation League's 40th anniversary.

(The league has also worked for acquisition of Drake's Bay Beach County Park; Tomales Bay and Stinson Beach State Parks; Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary; Point Reyes National Seashore; Golden Gate National Recreation Area and Angel Island State Park where the highest peak was renamed Mount Caroline S. Livermore in honor of the league founder.)

THE FOUR WOMEN, anticipating the effects of the 1937 opening of the Golden Gate Bridge would have on the then rural and sparsely populated county, in 1934, organized a Citizens Survey Committee and set out to raise $2,500 to study possibilities of setting up a zoning ordinance, according to a tape recorded history of the league made by Mrs. Van Pelt prior to her death at age 85 in Pasadena two years ago.

Soon membership in the league (the organization's name was almost immediately changed to Marin Conservation League) grew as men and women from across the county gathered around the fire in the living room in the Livermores' hilltop Ross home, she said.

"In an astonishingly short time," according to Mrs. Van Pelt, the league collected the needed funds.

They were used to hire pioneer planning consultant Hugh R. Pomeroy who in February, 1935, went to work with a crew of map-makers and draftsmen in Fourth Street's Hotaling Building in San Rafael.

MAPS AND A REPORT were soon drawn up. The report recommended the county hire a planning technician and initiate a zoning ordinance to insure orderly growth.

The result: In 1935 Marin had a county planning department and a zoning ordinance, one of the first to be adopted in the state.

Five years later, in 1940, the league embarked on a five-year struggle to turn Camp Taylor into a state park.

The land was then owned by an accentric widow, Elizabeth Rogers, who was living in San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel.

By 1932 Mrs. Rogers had stopped paying taxes on her Marin property and by 1940 when the league began trying to convince the Marin County Board of Supervisors that the land would make a good park site, her tax bill had climbed to $11,000.

CAROLINE LIVERMORE, who Mrs. Van Pelt said, "from the beginning inspired us with enthusiasm," suggested that if the county were to waive its delinquent taxes on Camp Taylor, the state might provide matching funds to buy it for a park.

Mrs. Livermore, a native of Galveston, Tex., where her father had been a founder of the Santa Fe Railroad and a pioneer banker, settled in San Francisco following her 1910 marriage. When the Livermores' five sons were growing up, the family, in 1929, moved to Marin.

(Mrs. Livermore later led the fight for the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, Angel Island and Tomales Bay State Park. She founded the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross and was among the founders of the Marin Audubon Society. She died at age 84 in 1967.)

ACCORDING TO MRS. Van Pelt, a native of Chicago and a Smith College graduate who moved to Marin from Pasadena around 1932, "there was skepticism on the part of the county" concerning the project — "was it worth the trouble?"

The ladies and the league went to work to prove it was.

Mrs. Sepha Evers, the league's first president and wife of a San Francisco architect, started making "weekly trips to Sacramento" to argue for legislation, according to Mrs. Van Pelt.

She had already gained experience successfully working in 1938 for the league-sponsored county ordinance that banished billboards from Marin roadsides and for acquisition of Drake's Bay Beach County Park and the park at Stinson Beach.

DURING THE FIVE years it took to make Camp Taylor a public preserve, "three bills were introduced into the state legislature," according to Mrs. Van Pelt.

She recalled frequent trips to Sacramento to testify before the 22 members of the Assembly's Ways and Means Committee sitting around a "U" shaped table.

Every time the state, county and property owner were ready to negotiate, Mrs. Rogers changed her mind, according to

Taylor State Park, that was preserved for public use three decades ago due to efforts of the Marin Conservation League. Long, Long Drive Of The George Ketrons

By DON KEOWN

Your 1974 vacation over, and you find yourself beset by gloom or boredom?

Rather than bemoan the completion of this year's vacation, why not adopt the happier frame of mind of looking forward to next year's holiday? And begin making plans for same?

Mr. and Mrs. George Ketron have one suggestion.

You might repeat — or work out your own version of their 1974 trip.

It covered 9,753 miles by road vehicle plus another thousand miles by ferryboat.

IT BEGAN JUNE 10 from their 5 Tappan Court, San Anselmo, home in their 1969 Rambler pulling a Junior Compact trailer, and it ended there two months and 11 days later.

And it took them up the Alaska Highway and beyond to a point eight miles north of the Arctic Circle, and it included visits to such points as Spokane's Expo '74 world's fair, Jasper National Park and McKinley National Park.

For those who might be contemplating such a trip, but draw back, intimidated by distance or reports of rough road conditions, the Ketrons offer this advice: "Go ahead. You won't be driving on freeways. And you'll no doubt encounter problems. But the experience is well worth the trouble. And it all adds to the adventure of the trip."

THE KETRONS HAD purchased their trailer, six feet wide and 10 feet long, equipped with stove, oven, icebox and sleeping accommodations, a year ago, and checked it our during a test run to Yellowstone National Park in 1973.

This was in preparation for the long planned drive to Alaska. And the trailer passed not only that trial, but "the real thing" this summer as well, serving efficiently and comfortably George and Eleanor Ketron and their two dogs, an Australian sheepdog and a cockapoo.

George, however, admits he had some misgivings about the trip to the Far North when on Highway 99, less than 150 miles from home, the radiator hose in the Rambler broke.

"I WAS JUST about ready to head back for San Anselmo," he says.

That early mishap, however, did not prove to be an omen of things to come, and the car performed exceptionally well through the long itinerary.

At Weed, the Ketrons branched off onto Highway 97, crossing the Columbia River at the Dalles, and turning off again at Ellensburg, Wash., to pass through the Grand Coulee of the Colorado and on to Spokane for two days at the world's fair.

For Expo '74, the Ketrons generally have high praise.

"IT WAS COMPACT and easy to see. The layout, and the transportation system were fantastic," says Ketron. "And the U.S. and Russian exhibit buildings were excellent."

But Mrs. Ketron had a couple of complaints. "The exhibits were too reptitious," she says. "The environmental theme was hit over and over again. The idea is fine, and important. But at each building, you got the same message all over again."

And the 100 degree heat made drinking water as important as sightseeing to the fair visitors.

So without too much regret, the Ketrons and their dogs left Spokane and headed north, clearing with some "very pleasant custom officers," and entering Canada at King's Gate.

CONTINUING NORTH, they passed through Fort Steele and over the Canadian Rockies, passing Lake Louise and Banff where "the skyride up Sulphur Mountain was one of the highlights of our trip."

It was in Jasper National Park that they began to encounter their first wild animal life — black bear, elk, moose, a bighorn sheep ("we fed him lettuce") and deer.

On to Prince George and then to Dawson Creek they went, and at that point — Mile 0 — they joined the Alaska Highway.

Dawson Creek was also a stopping point to prepare the car and equipment for the more rigorous travel ahead.

"IT IS ALMOST like one of the frontier outposts of the old West where the covered wagons gathered and prepared to cross the prairies," Ketron says. "At Dawson Creek, cars and recreation vehicles were being readied for the long drive up the Alaska Highway, and everyone was taking on provisions."

The preparations included screen protection for windshield and headlights, a cover for the gasoline tank, and mud-

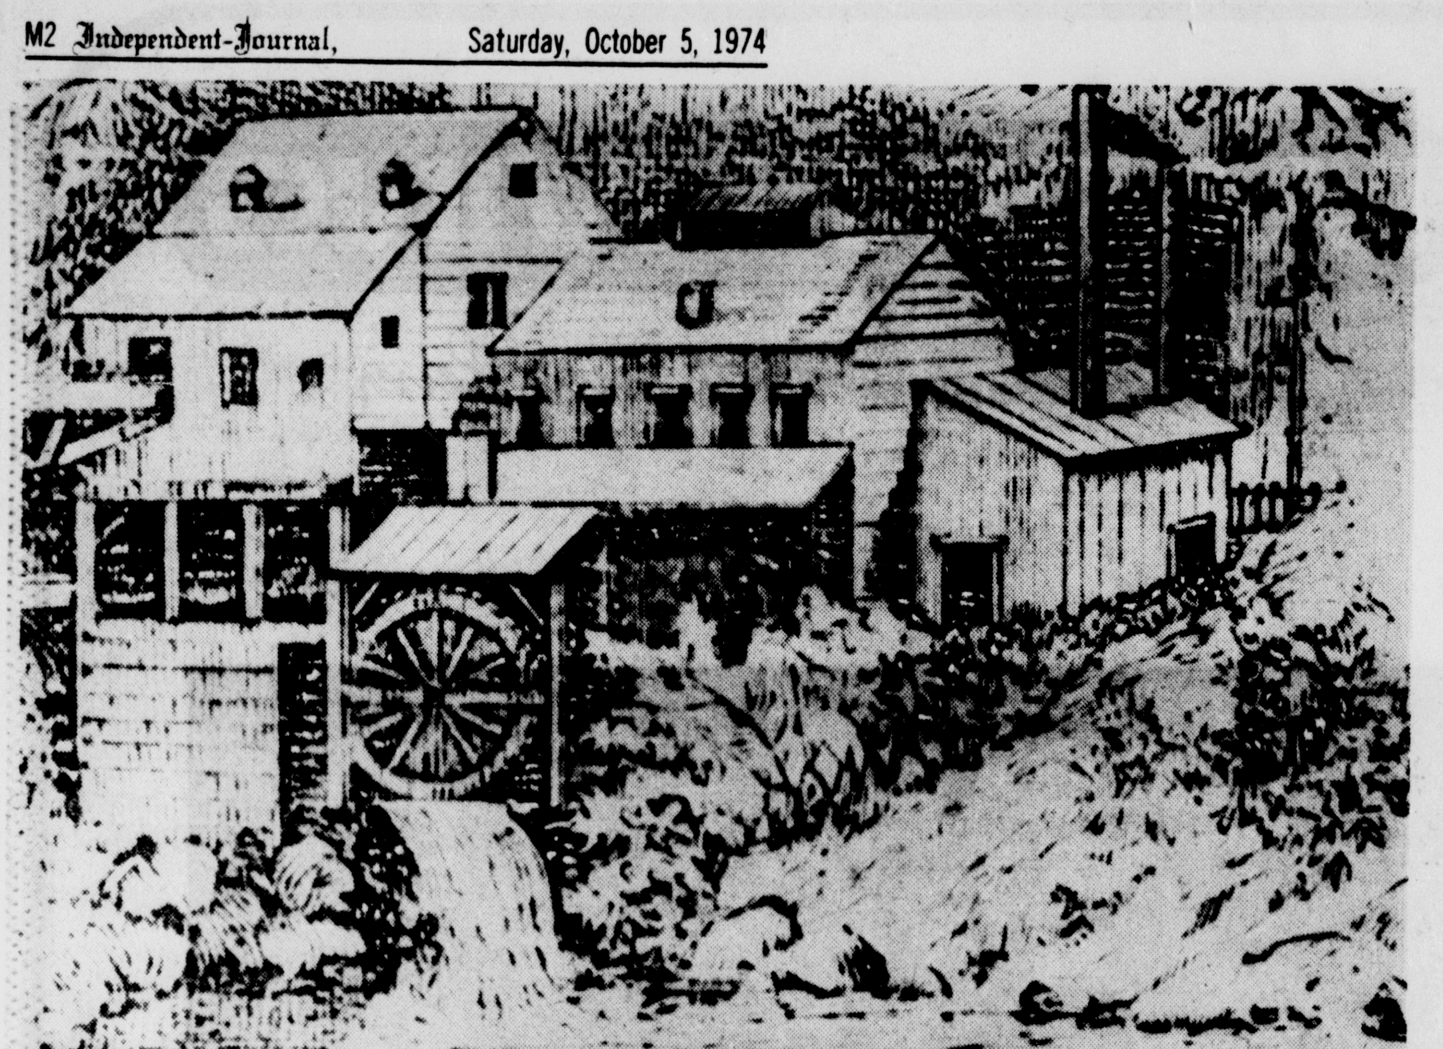
"Don't let others talk you out of making the trip," the George Ketrons advise those contemplating driving the Alaska Highway. "We were almost frightened out of it by some who told us we were too old for such a trip . . . But really, it's not great strain at all, as long as you drive sanely and keep in mind the road conditions."



THIS EARLY ENGRAVING of Samuel Taylor's original Pioneer Paper Mill shows the equipment the pioneer traveled to the East in 1854 to purchase. A thriving 19th century mill town, Taylorville, sprouted up around the old mill. Here the mill's workmen lived with their families in small cottages, shopped for provisions in a local store and ate meals in a large dining hall.

WITH HIS BUSINESS booming in 1884 Samuel Taylor erected this $165,000 water and steam-powered mill close to the tracks of the North Pacific Coast Railroad tracks. The mill was managed by his son, William P. Taylor, who later became a Marin County sheriff. After the mill closed during a financial panic, a San Franciscan foreclosed a mortgage on the property, ending the Taylor family's 40-year ownership of the land.

Park For Which The Conservation League Battled

Mrs. Van Pelt.

(According to Putnam Livermore of San Francisco, the founder's son who is chairman of the league's anniversary celebration, these setbacks often "temporarily discouraged" his mother. But soon, he says, "she'd call on her great resilience and be back on the telephone, trying again.")

MRS. CAROLINE S. LIVERMORE, founder of the Marin Conservation League, who later led the fight for the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, Angel Island and Tomales Bay State Parks, came up with the idea in the early 1940s that Marin County waive delinquent taxes and the state provide matching funds to buy Marin's historic Camp Taylor for a state park. Mrs. Livermore died in 1967 at age 84.

DURING THE MARIN Conservation League's five-year struggle to turn Camp Taylor into a state park, league founder Mrs. Helen Van Pelt, a San Anselmo landscape architect, ran a children's summer camp on the site to prove the weather was ideal for picnics and recreation. Mrs. Van Pelt died in Pasadena two years ago at age 85.

IN THE MEANTIME, to refute the county's contention that "there was too much fog near the coast" for a park, Mrs. Van Pelt began operating a children's summer camp at Taylor to "prove the place was ideal for picnics and recreation."

Next the league invited members of the California Park Commission to inspect the property, Mrs. Van Pelt recalled.

Plans called for Mrs. Evers and Mrs. Van Pelt to meet the commissioners' car at the Fairfax turnoff.

By the time the official car pulled up two hours later it was raining, Mrs. Van Pelt recalled, "and you know the effects on a redwood grove that was shady anyway."

THE COMMISSIONERS followed the league leaders' car to the site where "they didn't get out of the car," she said. "They just looked and our hearts sank to the bottom . . . thinking it was a lost cause."

The party went on to dinner at the country club where a parks spokesman announced, "Ladies, we can't thank you enough for showing us that remarkable property that is only 55 minutes driving time from San Francisco." He promised the commission would support the project.

Around this time, Mrs. Livermore, called by Mrs. Van Pelt, "a master strategist," was winning the support of the board of supervisors.

BUT CAMP TAYLOR'S owner, Mrs. Rogers, according to Mrs. Van Pelt, "was getting older, was not well and was becoming more difficult to deal with."

During the negotiations a real estate developer suggested to Mrs. Van Pelt that they "go at it together" with the state to take the left side of the creek for a park site and the developer, the right, for a summer cabin community.

Instead, she said, she told the league "to step up their action."

By 1945, when Mrs. Rogers' business affairs had been taken over by a son-in-law, she agreed to sell her land.

FOR THE FIRST time in history, the state agreed to match delinquent taxes and paid Mrs. Rogers $32,000 for her land. The county waived its $32,000 tax bill and the public had Samuel P. Taylor State Park.

The park's lushly wooded canyons and forest had first been seen by Samuel P. Taylor in 1852 as he rode horseback down the slopes of Mount Tamalpais along the banks of the Lagunitas Creek to Daniels Creek (later renamed Paper Mill.)

Taylor, a New Yorker who had come West to make his fortune during the Gold Rush, immediately realized that the virgin forest around him would be an ideal spot for a paper mill.

He purchased 100 acres from landowner Rafael Gracia.

"There was skepticism on the part of the county" concerning the proposal for a Samuel P. Taylor State Park, recalled the late Helen Van Pelt. "Was it worth the trouble?" The determined women who led the Marin Conservation League effort decided that it would be, and they went to work with a will that refused to accept defeat.

BY 1854 TAYLOR was on his way to the East Coast to hire millwrights and buy machinery. Next he was off to Massachusetts to renew his courtship of Sarah Washington Irving, a niece of author Washington Irving.

The next spring the couple married and returned to California. By 1856 Taylor's Pioneer Paper Mill was making newsprint for San Francisco's pioneer newspapers from rags picked up on the city's streets by Chinese immigrants.

In the early 1860s with paper prices in the East soaring 400 per cent, Taylor's mill was on the road to fortune.

Eventually Taylor added paper bags, manila paper, paper ballots (for the state) and the first paper wrappers used for fruit being shipped out of state.

HE ERECTED A home in Devil's Gulch for his family that eventually included seven sons and a daughter.

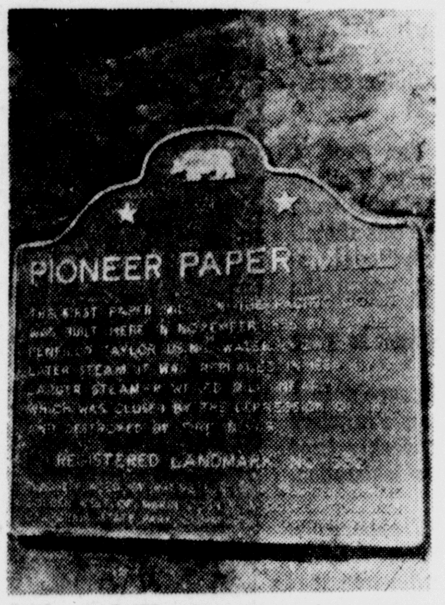
The area east of the mill and Taylorville (today's main picnic and barbecue area) became known as Camp Taylor, a popular vacation and picnic site that, according to Park Ranger Wesley C. Chapin, may have been the first outdoor campground in the nation.

It was here the Bohemian Club of San Francisco held its first encampment in 1878.

UNTIL 1875 A stagecoach carried passengers over the hills from San Rafael. It was replaced that year by the narrow gauge North Pacific Coast Railroad that was built to serve Point Reyes and the Tomales Bay region.

Taylor built a 100-room hotel, called it The Azalea and turned Camp Taylor into a leading resort.

The hotel, located on the creek side of today's picnic area, was surrounded by a dance pavilion, guest cottages, store, bowling alley, laundry and stables, according to a map drawn by the late Mrs. Bertha Stedman Rothwell who grew up in Taylorville.



THIS MARKER designates the spot in Taylor Park where Samuel P. Taylor erected his Pioneer Paper Mill in 1856.

(Mrs. Rothwell compiled a history of the area that is kept at both Taylor Park and Bancroft Library.)

ACCORDING TO Ranger Chapin, rose bushes from the old hotel grounds still grow in the picnic area. Nearby stands a redwood stump, all that is left from the Redwood Stump Bar that a century ago greeted visitors as they walked over a bridge across the creek to Camp Taylor from the train.

In today's Irving area of the park, Samuel Taylor's brother-in-law, James Irving, operated a tannery that processes polar bear and seal pelts and turned angora skins into rugs.

With business booming, Taylor decided in 1884 to build a new $165,000 mill to be powered by water and steam, according to the late Florence Donnelly, the Independent-Journal's long-time historian.

TAYLOR'S SON, William P. Taylor, who later became Marin County sheriff, supervised the three-story high operation.

When his father died at his Devil's Gulch home in 1886 he was buried on a knoll overlooking his mill.

William Taylor and his brothers continued to operate the mill until the panic of 1893 put it out of business.

Shortly afterwards, according to Mrs. Rothwell, the Taylors lost their land and buildings when "Mr. Montgomery" of San Francisco foreclosed a mortgage on the property.

When Montgomery died soon afterwards, his widow married his attorney, Arthur Rogers.

FOLLOWING THE destruction of the Hotel Azalea by fire in 1905, Mrs. Rogers, who later stopped paying taxes on her property, ordered all the remaining buildings razed.

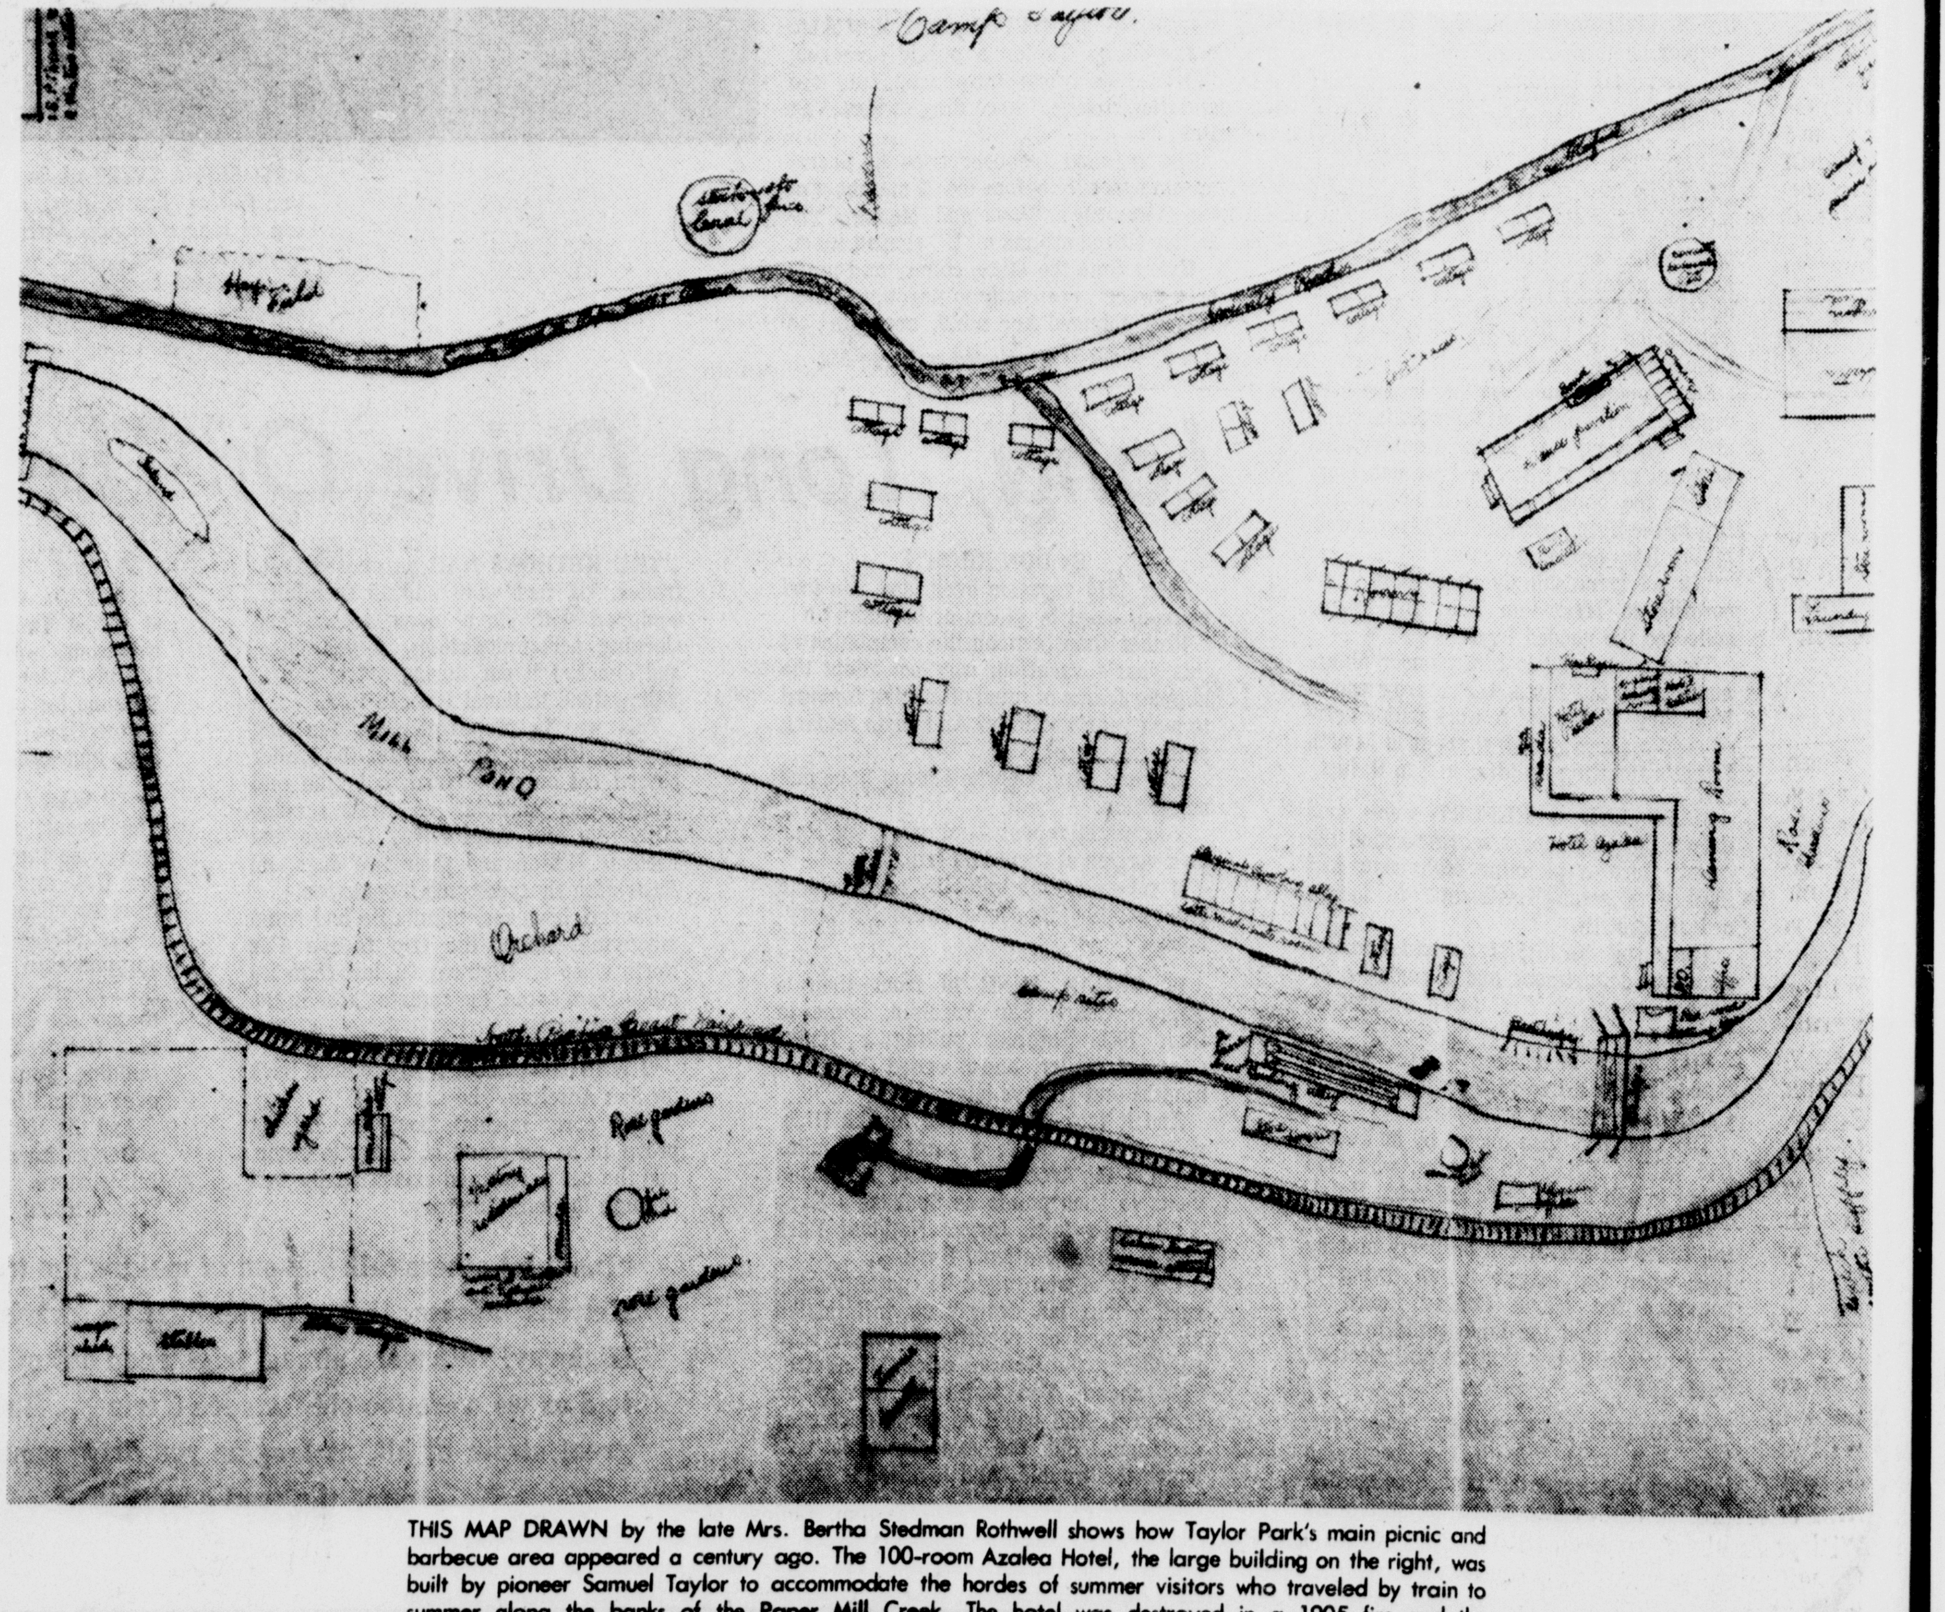
The mill was destroyed in a 1915 blaze apparently set by tramps living inside the building.

SAMUEL P. TAYLOR purchased in 1852 the region that one day would become a state park bearing his name. A native New Yorker who had come West during the Gold Rush, he erected the first paper mill in the West, built a 100-room resort hotel and opened the nation's first overnight campgrounds on his land, west of Lagunitas. Today some 180,000 persons visit the historic Marin site that became a public park 28 years ago.

Today nearly 180,000 of the 10 million persons who annually visit Marin's vast network of parks, go to Taylor.

Here they walk and camp along sylvan trails and roads where a century ago Marin's pioneer millmen worked and lived. They fish and swim in the creek where Samuel P. Taylor's eight children and the nation's first overnight campers splashed a century ago.

Next week the Marin Conservation League pauses to honor the four women who made all this possible.



THIS MAP DRAWN by the late Mrs. Bertha Stedman Rothwell shows how Taylor Park's main picnic and barbecue area appeared a century ago. The 100-room Azalea Hotel, the large building on the right, was built by pioneer Samuel Taylor to accommodate the hordes of summer visitors who traveled by train to summer along the banks of the Paper Mill Creek. The hotel was destroyed in a 1905 fire and the surrounding buildings razed by the eccentric widow who later sold her property to the state.

Corte Madera's Dr. Dorothy Morse Has Left Medicine To Devote Her Time To Dog Show Judging

By JEFF GREER

St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco had to convert an old X-ray room into living quarters when it accepted Dr. Dorothy L. Morse — now a Corte Madera resident — as an intern.

The hospital never had a woman physician in residence before that day in 1928.

The administration told the ice-breaking Dr. Morse that she'd have to find another woman intern to share the new quarters, in order to justify the remodeling.

"I could have gone into Children's Hospital — the staff was all women on those days — but I wanted to get into a co-educational hospital," Dr. Morse recalled. She got her way.

THE DOCTOR WAS 27 when she completed her internship and launched into private practice in 1930 — "right in the depths of the Depression."

The times were doubly hard for a woman doctor, even though she had opened the doors of one hospital to her sex.

"I went around and talked to a lot of doctors. They all told me to start some place out of town. But I was determined to stay in San Francisco," she recalled.

"I WENT DOWN and pestered the dickens out of the head of the city's public health department. Finally, I got a job — in the V.D. clinic" — and this was in the days when venereal disease was unmentionable in polite society.

Between her part-time duties with the city and her private practice, she made a life for herself in her native city, despite the discouraging advice from her seniors. Before she retired four years ago, Dr. Morse "delivered more than 4,000 babies before I quit counting them."

One of the highlights of her years in medicine came when she performed Cesarian delivery of triplets for a destitute family from Mexico.

"THE FATHER WAS an unemployed painter; the mother was suffering toxemia; but the two girls and a boy were fine," she recalled. "Neither the hospital nor I ever got paid, but I went around to the milk companies and other people and talked them out of food and clothing to get the babies through the first year. And then they went back to Mexico, and I haven't heard of them since."

She decided early in her medical training to specialize in obstetrics and gynecology, and this led to her selection by the city's medical staff for duties in the girls' wing of the San Francisco Juvenile Hall.

"I became a sort of mother confessor to the girls," as well as treating their ailments and delivering babies for many of them in the years between 1940 and 1965. In addition, she often was called in the middle of the night to rush to the city's Central Emergency Hospital to treat rape victims.

SHE CONTINUED midnight races with the stork to several San Francisco hospitals even after she moved to Corte Madera in 1948.

Perhaps, Dr. Morse confided, she might not have retired yet, but "I felt I was being too regimented" by red tape, spending time on bureaucratic paperwork instead of treating patients.

"One thing wrong with medicine now," she believes, "is there's less personal attention.

"A mother is anesthetized, the doctor delivers the baby and maybe sees her a few times in the next few days, and then she goes home and that's it."

SHE MAINTAINS her medical license and keeps abreast of the new developments. She holds honorary rather than emeritus membership in the San Francisco Medical Society.

Her roots go deep into California history.

> "Nobody ever told me what it would be like to be a doctor, but I wanted to be one," says Dr. Dorothy L. Morse. "I didn't even know until later there were other doctors in the family."

Her grandfather, a veteran of Union Navy service in the Civil War, won a post as lighthouse keeper in California, and left behind the rest of his family in New England to move into the old lighthouse at the Farralone Islands with his bride.

"WHEN IT CAME time for my father to be born, the Coast Guard had to send a cutter to the island and take my grandmother off in a breeches buoy, so the birth could occur in a San Francisco hospital," she said.

Dr. Morse spent her childhood vacations in lighthouses near San Francisco and Santa Barbara. Her grandmother, after being widowed, became the first woman lighthouse keeper on the West Coast, tending the light at Santa Barbara.

Dr. Dorothy's father became a plumber in turn-of-the-century San Francisco, and she was three years old when the great 1906 earthquake and fire wreaked havoc with the city.

"I REMEMBER IT distinctly — it was so different from anything that ever happened before or since," she said. "I remember my father going down to Dolores Street — it was the widest street in the fire area — and coming back to tell us how the firefighters had to open up the sewers and fight the fire with that water because the water mains were dry."

"But they stopped the fire" and her own family's home was not endangered, she recalled.

The future doctor attended McKinley Grammar School and Lowell High School, where she made up her mind to go into medicine.

"Nobody ever told me what it would be like to be a doctor, but I wanted to be one. I didn't even know until later that there were other doctors in the family back in New England," she said.

SHE RUSHED THROUGH high school in a little over three years to get into the University of California in the fall of 1920. She worked in her spare time to earn room and board at college. During summer vacations, she took education classes to guarantee herself a way of making a living should she be unable to study medicine.

Even after gaining her doctorate, she continued studying — taking and passing the stiff examinations in 1945 for admission to the national board of gynecology and obstetrics.

"I could have called myself a specialist without the exams — but I wanted to earn the title," she explained.

The determination that put her through medical school and earned her a place in the medical world's heavily male-dominated domain still shows up even after her retirement.

SHE'S LAUNCHED A new career, becoming a dog show judge, licensed by the American Kennel Club.

She's "always had Boston terriers since 1935" but became an owner and breeder of boxers in 1960. The name "Ben-Hame" (it means mountain home in Scotland) is now attached to three generations of champions.

She's been through the chairs of office in the Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club. As president this year, she supervised the largest dog show the club ever held, on Sept. 15. In addition, she has been active with the East Bay Boxer Club, the Golden Gate Boxer Club and Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders.

DR. MORSE NOW is toiling to schedule numerous educational and entertainment performances that will be highlights of the annual Expo K-9 dog show and fund day sponsored by Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders Inc. at the Marin County Fairgrounds on Oct. 27.

She said she has recruited teams of Doberman pinchers and their owners who will put on agility demonstrations, Shetland sheepdog marching and dancing drill units, a squadron of Bernese Mountain Dogs and Great Pyranees who will pull carts to give youngsters rides, sled dog races with wheeled sleds, and other activities.

She's also busy as a director of the Animal Medical Care Foundation of Marin, which recently put on the successful Animal Fair at the San Geronimo Valley Horsemen's arena.

EVER BUSY, SHE also occupies herself with turning the yard of her home at 458 Redwood Avenue into a lush but orderly sort of flowered forest.

She's been hostess there "to at least 10 generations of raccoons and thousands of birds." She feeds all the wild little creatures daily, getting to know them almost as well as the children she's delivered or her own pet dogs.

They now get the benefit of her longtime philosophy in her practice of medicine — personal attention and talk.

YOUR CHALLENGE, MY CHILDREN . . .

Count the distant stars.
Can you reach even one?
Catch a bird in flight.
Will you be as free?
Touch the softness of the night.
Can you feel tenderness?
Taste the dew on a morning flower.
Will you hold love as gently?
Paint a thousand dreams.
Can you bring just one to life?
Behold the weeping faces.
Can you make them smile?
Listen to the babbling voices.
Can you speak a word of peace?
See the forest of the blind.
Will you take their hands?
Feel the weight of the weary world.
Can you lighten it?
Look to the Giants of the Earth.
Can you stand as tall as a tree?
Look upon your inheritance.
Will you leave it to decay,
Or will you rise with the morning sun
And challenge all the shadows.
Will your children step into cold and darkness,
Or will they warm the world
With their legacy,
And shine will all your brightness . . .?

AT DAWSON CITY, the Yukon, Mr. and Mrs. George Ketron paused to enjoy its historic Gold Rush days sights, and to board the Yukon Lou along with other tourists for a boat tour of the Yukon River.

THE TRIP NORTH on the Alaska Highway and ancilliary routes is pitted with nails, and murder on tires. Here George Ketron changes a tire that has fallen victim to spikes at the Dawson City campgrounds.

WELCOME TO CIRCLE CITY
The End of the Road

AT CIRCLE CITY in the far, far north, the George Ketrons relax outside the trailer and automobile that served them so well on their long trip. The Yukon River appears in the background of this snapshot.

MARIN LIVING

The George Ketrons Enjoyed Every Mile Of Alaska Highway

The first 93 miles were on paved road. Then the gravel began. "And you have to see the highway to believe it," says Mrs. Ketron, shaking her head in recollection of dust, bumps, chuckholes and mud.

THE KETRONS were to cover all but 25 miles of the Alaska Highway. At Whitehorse, after enjoying its famous train ride and its sights, they took the Klondike Loop up through historic Dawson City.

The Taylor Highway in Alaska they remember for its "chuckholes more than a foot deep."

At Tetlin Junction they rejoined the Alaska Highway — and paved road. But that lasted only 13 miles. Then along the Glenn Highway and next the Richardson Highway to Valdez, where Kipper the dog was lost for 18 hours.

Word spread around town and the posting of a notice in the post office brought Kipper's return, thanks to a Valdez woman who found the strayed pet.

AT VALDEZ THE Ketrons also saw the stacks of pipe — over 400 miles of it — that had been assembled there for the building of the Alaska Pipeline. Later they were to see the second stockpile, for the other end of the pipeline, in Fairbanks.

The Ketrons describe Valdez as "beautiful — a veritable little Switzerland."

Anchorage, their next stop, they describe as "just another city." But there they visited with Mrs. Ketron's daughter, Kathy Burch. They then continued on to Seward, to Homer and to Anchor Point "where we drove out a mile on the finger of the Cook Inlet which is as far as you can drive on the Western Hemisphere, and from where you can see the Aleutians."

THE KETRONS DROVE then to Mount McKinley National Park.

Weather obscured the visibility of the mountain itself, but the Ketrons were much impressed with the abundance of wildlife, sighting grizzly bear, moose, caribou, eagle, etc.

At Fairbanks, they were stunned by grocery prices that included $1.15 for a dozen eggs, $1.72 for a pound of bacon, 73 cents for a quart of milk and 53 cents a pound for carrots.

Out of Fairbanks "we really started hitting those Alaskan roads."

EVEN PAVING IS not the answer to Alaska's road problem, they report, since the permafrost, the thawing and the continuing movement of the sub-surface of the earth play havoc with such roadbeds, as well as with the foundations of buildings.

Driving the Steece Highway to Circle City, they then took a plane flight to Fort Yukon and its Indian village eight miles north of the Arctic Circle.

On July 21, it was 80 degrees. And at 10:30 p.m. the sun was too bright for photography.

RETURNING TO THEIR car and trailer at Circle City, they again visited the Athabaskan Indian friend they had made there, Sandy Roberts, 73 years old, born 160 miles above the Arctic Circle, and still planting his own garden.

A stretch on the Elliott Highway brought the Ketrons "the worst dust yet. It beat them all!"

From Fairbanks they returned to the Alaska Highway and to Haines Junction and on down to Haines. There they caught a ferryboat down the Inland Passage.

Their first stop was Juneau, Alaska's state capital, followed by Sitka where they admired the treasure-laden Russian Orthodox St. Michael's cathedral, restored by the townspeople of all faiths after a disastrous 1966 fire.

IN ALL, THE Ketrons rode "all five ferries of the Alaskan Ferry System," also visiting Wrangell ("where Kipper was lost again") and Ketchikan ("which has the heaviest rainfall in the state, but where we saw our only sunshine of our stint on the Inland Passage").

Several of these towns offered "homespun" entertainment re-creating the flavor of earlier times that the Ketrons enjoyed thoroughly.

From Prince Rupert, B.C., the Ketrons drove to Prince George and made a sidetrip through the Kamloops and the fertile Okanogan Valley. They followed the Fraser River Canyon to Vancouver, and took the ferryboat to Vancouver Island.

Three days were spent enjoying the charm of Victoria.

FROM THERE, THEY crossed to the U.S. mainland at Port Angeles by ferryboat, "and as soon as we hit the shore the dogs seemed to know that we were headed home."

The return home was made via Highway 101.

"And we got home still speaking to each other," chuckles Ketron.

"And without any illnesses. We didn't even have to take an aspirin tablet," adds Mrs. Ketron.

THEIR VEHICLES HAD taken a fearful battering, they admit, but except for the to-be-expected flat tires, had stood the assault well.

"The Canadians and Alaskans are terrific people," they report. "The Canadians, in particular, seemed happy to have visitors. And whenever there was work to be done on the car, the men charged quite reasonably for their labor. There was no taking advantage of the tourists."

Gasoline prices were a pleasant surprise.

"We were 600 miles along the Alaska Highway before we paid as much for gasoline as we were paying here," George Ketron says.

THE HIGHEST PRICE they paid was 90 cents a gallon at remote Circle City. "But gasoline was not one of the really high cost items."

They sighted lots of other recreation vehicles on the highways and roads of both Canada and Alaska. And a good many carried California license plates.

The Ketrons have this advice for Marinites who might be considering a trip to our northern-most state in 1975:

"BE SURE YOU have your car in good mechanical condition. Start out ith brand new tires, including the spares.

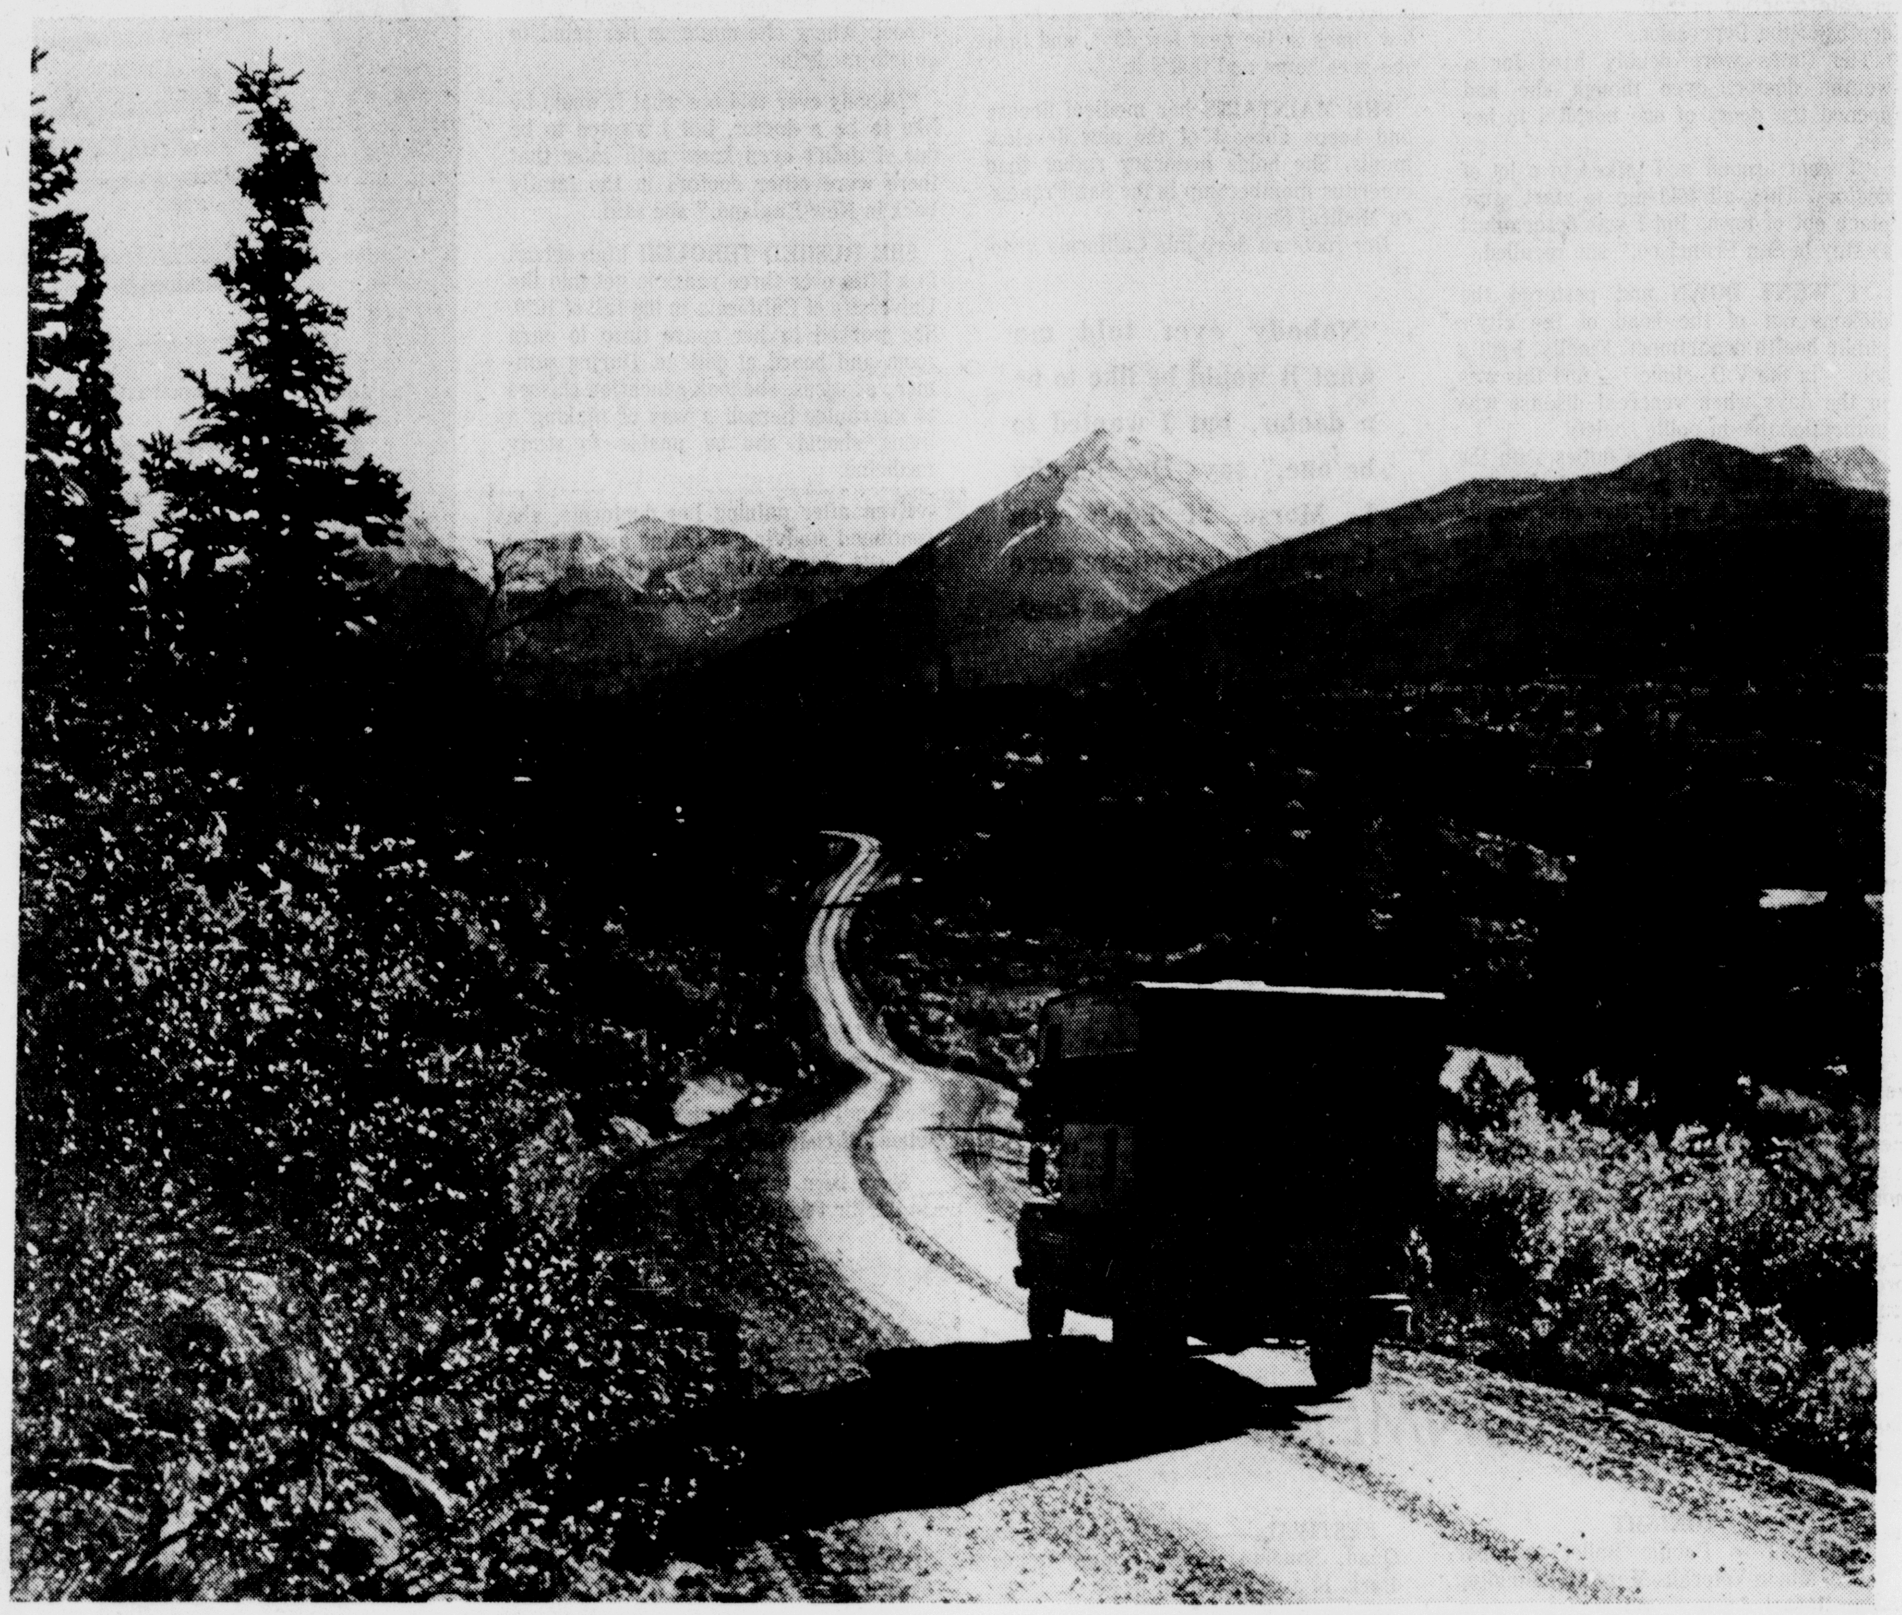
"And be prepared to replace the windshield when you get home. It will have had it."

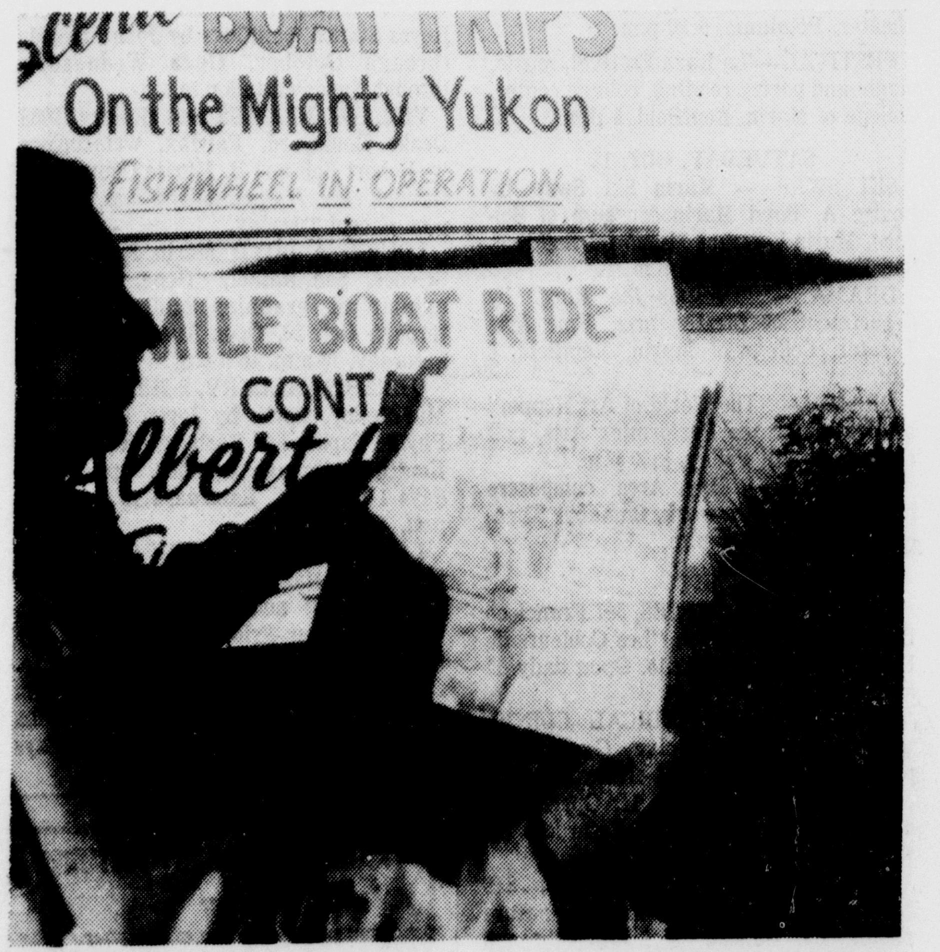
And George Ketron suggests that if you duplicate their ferryboat portion of their trip, you arrange when you buy your tickets for drop-off privileges at every port whether you expect to exercise them or not. Otherwise you can't drop off without an extra charge.

AND FINALLY, THIS piece of advice: "Don't let others talk you out of making the trip. We were almost frightened out of it by some who told us we were too old for such a trip. But while we are almost 60, we saw lots of older travelers on the roads, enjoying themselves and experiencing no difficulties.

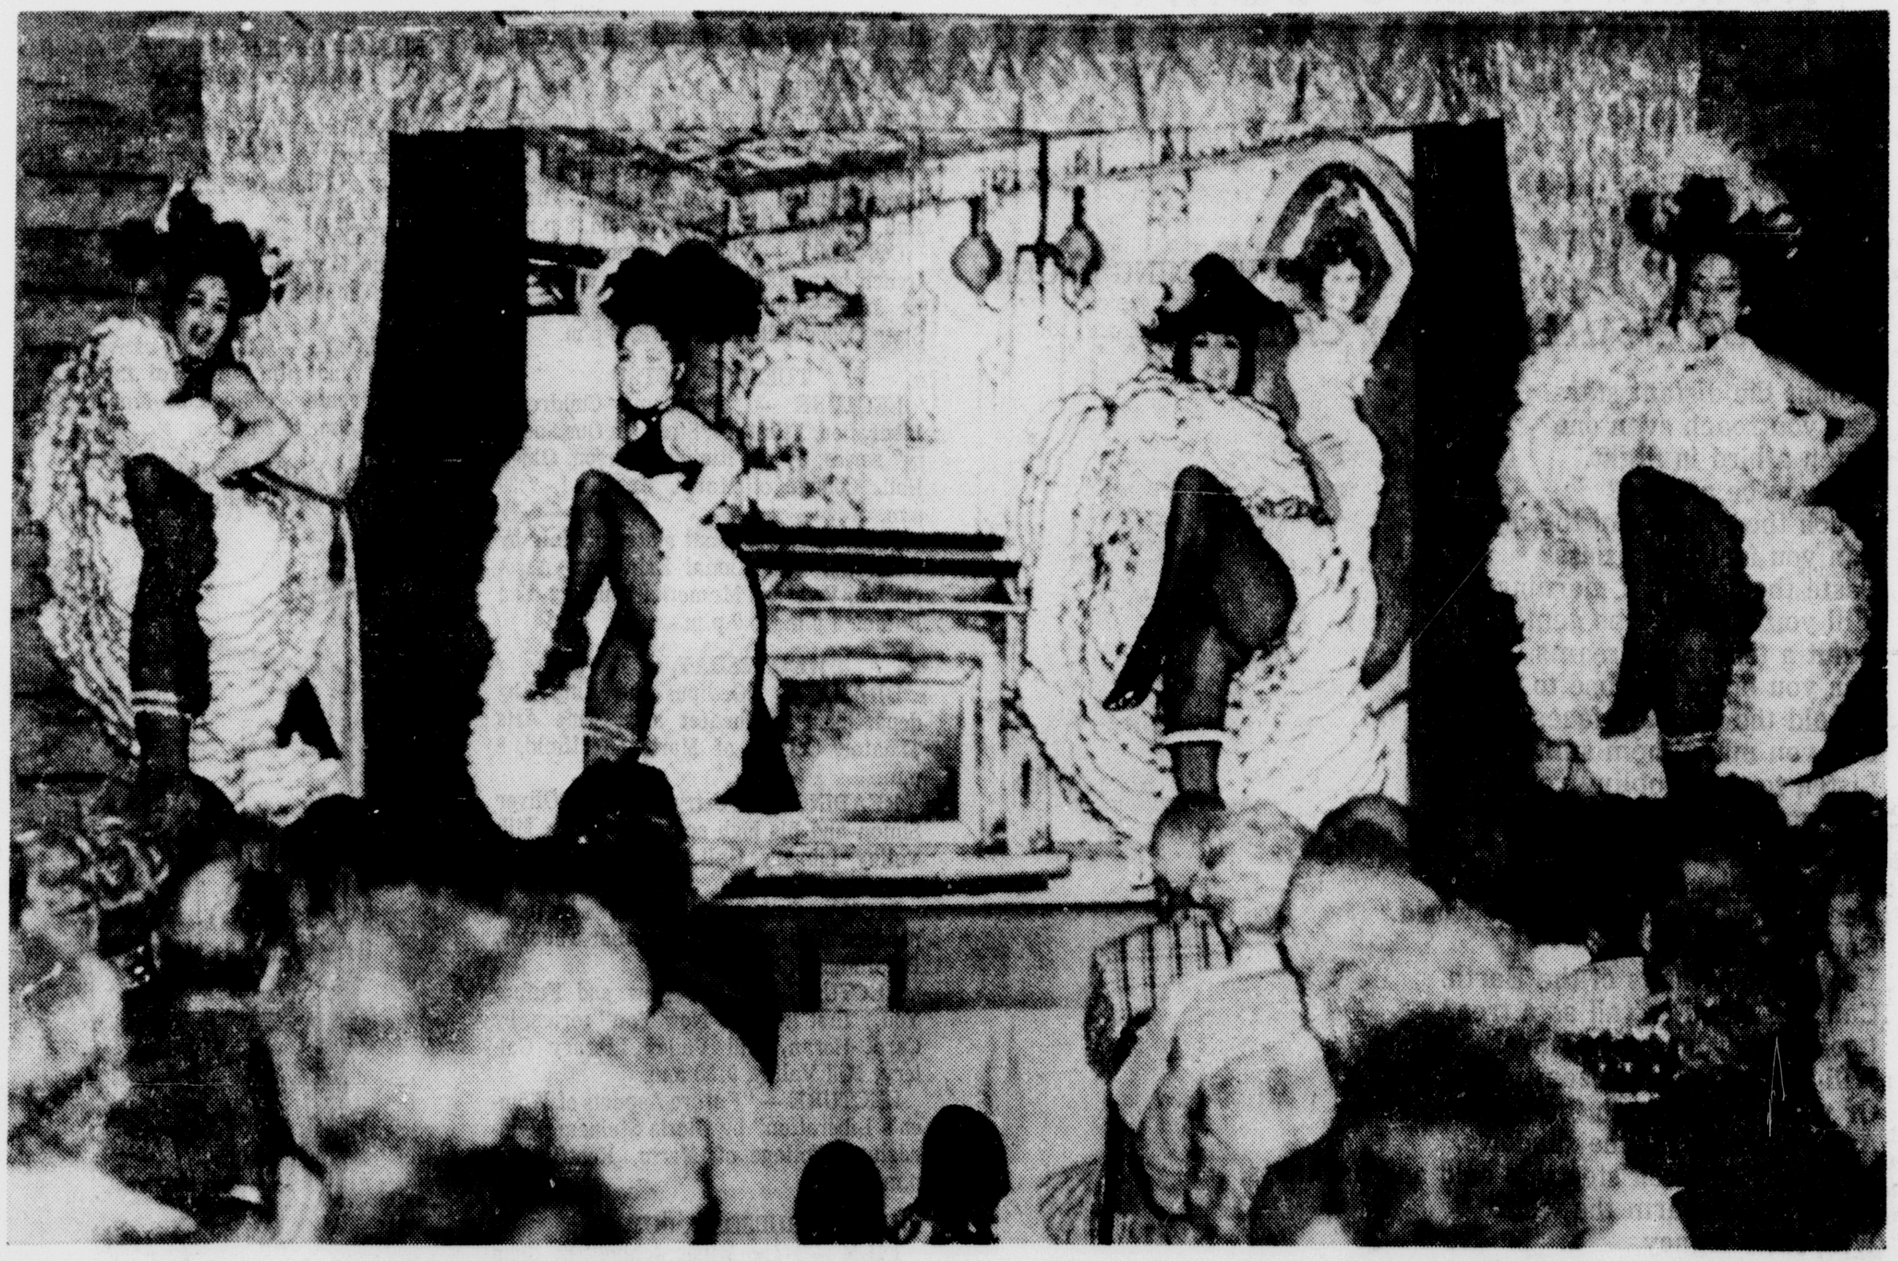
"Really, it's no great strain at all, as long as you drive sanely and keep in mind the road conditions. Your worst problem is the trucks that boom along at 50 to 60 miles an hour, throwing up rocks and dust. But just take it easy and enjoy yourself. There's always something new and interesting, waiting for you up the road."



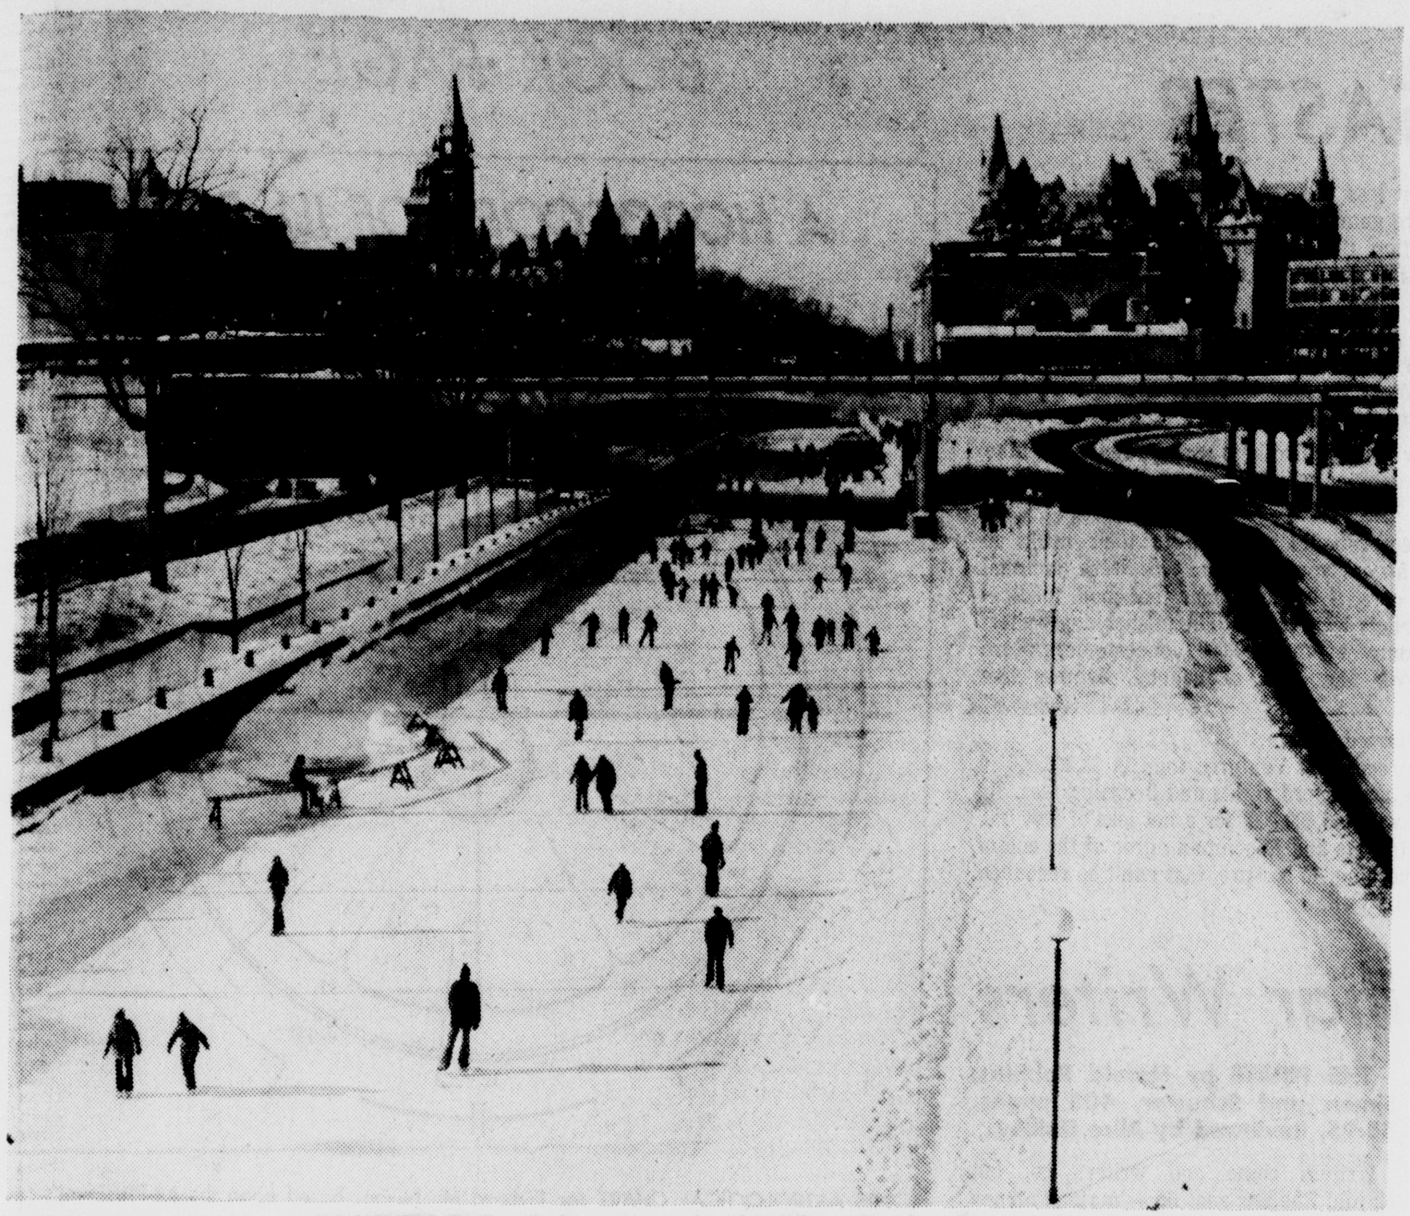
THE ROADS AND highways of the Yukon and Alaska are very different from California's freeways, admit George and Eleanor Ketron. Nevertheless, recreation vehicles negotiate them with ease. And often there's a Californian behind the steering wheel. The scene here is the Canol Road in the Yukon Territory, with the grandeur of Canada's mountains ahead.



THE NEWS IS A bit old, but Eleanor Ketron, nevertheless, enjoys the "touch of home" that comes from a reading of a copy of the San Rafael Independent-Journal that she found inside their trailer. The place is Circle City, beside the Yukon River. And the time is 10 p.m., but with plenty of natural light for outdoor reading.



THE FRIENDLY PEOPLE of Alaska and the Yukon often stage shows for their visitors that feature home talent and recall the colorful days of the Gold Rush and other early times. The can-can dancers here are residents of Whitehorse, performing before a packed audience that included George and Eleanor Ketron.



IN WINTER-TIME, which comes early, the Rideau Canal in Ottawa, Canada, becomes a gigantic ice skating rink, five miles long, through the heart of the city and ending at Parliament Hill. Last winter there were 38,000 skaters on the ice in a single day. And in the summer, the canoeing enthusiasts take over.

Ottawa's Long, Long Rink

By MARY JANE CHARTERS

A canal designed as a "back door to the Great Lakes in case of an invasion from the south" is now bringing back the days of mom's apple pie, fireplaces and baked beans.

The Rideau Canal, built in the precautionary days following the War of 1812, is a skating rink — a five mile sheet of ice through the center of Ottawa, Canada's capital, that turns winter weekends into old-fashioned Christmas card scenes.

The parents who canoe their children down the canal in summer, pull them along the route on sleighs in winter. The hopeful Bobby Orrs, Karen Magnussens and Toller Cranstons share ice time, hot dogs and hot chocolates with grandparents, teen-agers, university students and couples on a first date.

LAST WINTER AS many as 38,000 skated on the canal in a single day.

From Parliament Hill where the Rideau Canal meets the Ottawa River, the canal wanders past the National Arts Center newer additions to the University of Ottawa, downtown residential sections of the city, Lansdowne Park and Dow's Lake before ending up at the campus of Carleton University. In all, there's 14 million square feet of ice surface.

Along the way are food concessions, skate sharpenters, benches and change houses. Proficient skaters trained in first aid, act as skate patrols every day from 4 p.m. to midnight and all day on weekends.

The Rideau Canal was constructed on the recommendation of the Duke of Wellington to provide safer lines of communication between Montreal and new settlements on Lake Ontario in the event of resumption of war with the United States. The 123-mile canal connecting Kingston on Lake Ontario with Ottawa, took six years to build and was completed in 1832. It cost the British government four million dollars.

Much of the old stonework on the original locks and dams remains unchanged. Today the canal adds greatly to the natural beauty of the federal capital region of Ottawa — boulevarded driveways, flower gardens, bikepaths used by walkers and cross-country skiers in winter, and huge trees have made the area a park both winter and summer.

Skating along the canal was proposed in 1969 by the then chairman of the National Capital Commission, Douglas Fullerton. The idea was in keeping with the commission's philogosphy of finding imaginative and enjoyable uses for unused resources and prompted Fullerton to write a piece on "how to survive the urban winter." The rink is not a panacea for all winter ills, he said, but a priest had suggested to him that canal skating had done more for family togetherness than all his sermons on the subject.

But the rink was not without its problems.

A skate changing station and four tractors have fallen through the ice; new methods for maintenance had to be devised to avoid large cracks along canal walls caused by the expansion of water as it freezes.

After experimenting with different water levels, researchers discovered if the water was lowered five feet, expansion damage would be minimized and the skating surface would be left as large as if the water hadn't been lowered at all.

A variety of light and heavyweight machinery is used by an ice-clearing staff that works 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to insure best possible conditions.

To re-surface the ice, holes are drilled to the water below and pumped to the surface where it is spread as evenly as possible and allowed to set. Burners are also used to melt the ice surface and make it smoother.

The National Capital Commission has strung colored lights along the canal and initiated a flag system to let skaters know the condition of the ice.

When green flags are up, impromptu skating parties are called, students strap on backpacks full of books, and public servants stride off for work down the "longest-man-made skating rink in the world."

Britain Lays Emphasis On Architecture

Four projects in Britain have been chosen for special attention next year as part of the 1975 European Architectural Heritage Year.

They're the leading items in Britain's participation in a major event designed to awaken the interests of Europeans in their great architecture of the past. Emergency programs are being mounted to prevent the destruction of great architecture threatened by "progress."

More than $2,500,000 is being spent on Britain's pilot projects under the presidency of Prince Philip. The New Town of Edinburgh, once a model of city planning, is to be restored and revitalised.

Chester, in western England, already one of Britain's most beautiful towns, will restore and reconstruct a formerly beautiful street.

Poole, in southern England, will preserve and protect the 15 acres of the town center known as "the precinct." In Fife, the Scottish county, which is the home of St. Andrews and the old Scottish capital, there is beginning a program of restoration of many small houses and cottages.

Although these four projects are being taken as keynotes, dozens of other communities in the British Isles are adopting projects for the preservation of everything from 14th century half-timbered buildings to early factories and foundries which were part of the Industrial Revolution. For example, next year is also the 150th anniversary of the foundation of the first railway, which was between Darlington and Stockton in northern England. Numerous observances and restorations are being planned to mark this event.

Thirty one countries are taking part in the event under the auspices of the Council of Europe.

Copenhagen—The City Where The Tourists Really Feel Welcome

By NEIL MORGAN

COPENHAGEN — In theory it is no longer possible to Meet the Danes.

That novel program, through which the people of Copenhagen invited foreigners into their homes for an evening, began in 1946 in the happy flush of Allied victory. But it has recently been abandoned.

"DANES TRAVEL so much now," says Mette Carstens, who helped to direct the program. "They have their own foreign friends. Foreign people are not that interesting to Copenhagen people anymore."

But in a lamp shop not far from the Royal Theater a hearty Dane sweeps the foreign visitor in from the sidewalk, pours coffee, discusses everything but lamps, and finally locks his shop to take the stranger to lunch.

In his taxi, Svend Ryting reminisces about the kindness of western Americans to him and his family when they spent months camping across the United States enroute to his tenure with the Danish seamen's mission in San Francisco.

NIELS HJORTH, whose son pilots an SAS jet to Los Angeles, takes the visitor to the Museum of the Danish Resistance and recalled the close ties of Danes and Americans in World War II.

He points to a statue of Winston Churchill.

"Do you know why he is looking down at the ground?" he asks with the twinkle that the visitor recognizes as standard in smiling Copenhagen. "He has dropped his cigar."

ALONG THE WINDING Strojet, the walking street lined with some of the world's most enticing shops, two backpacking, bearded Americans are agog.

"We shoulda come here sooner," says one. "I dig the vibes of this town."

Copenhagen's mayor has written an open letter that goes to young visitors from all lands, along with invitations to enjoy the city's tent camps that offer overnight lodging and breakfast for $2.50. It notes that Copenhagen welcomes all young people, "even those with whom we disagree."

THAT COMES AS close as anything to suggesting the relaxed, joyful mood of this great Danish city. It is a city to which this reporter returns with increasing affection and appreciation.

It is a tough, honest working city, but its people infuse it with an admirably balanced sense of gaity and restraint.

The Danes' obsession with good design extends to their homes and shops, their sidewalks and public buildings, their ceramics and furniture, and even their own bodies.

BUT THE "PORNO" shops of Copenhagen are old hat, largely inhabited by curious tourists from Germany. The American visitor can no longer curl his lip in sanctimonious abhorrence of Scandinavian sex mores. The most prominently advertised porno films on exhibit in Copenhagen are American-made.

The nightly magic of Tivoli, the walled, 20-acre entertainment center next to Town Hall, continues a daily tribute to the Danes' ability to entertain themselves and their guests with unique charm.

It is a fairyland of colorful lights, flowers, games, music and food. Presumably, its format has undergone constant adaptation since Tivoli opened in 1843, but its impression is that of an unchanging classic. After a dozen visits over the years, this reporter can only conclude that Tivoli's secret is linked to the Danes' instinct for balance and form.

IN THE TRIVOLI Jubilee Book of 1918 one may find a clue:

"Everything must be in the old way, or we cannot understand it. But everything must also be new, or it bores us."

The admission price this year to Tivoli, with its free concerts and displays, is about 50 cents. It is among the best tourist buys left on this troubled continent.

TAXES AND INFLATION, those mortal enemies of carefree travel, dictate that the visitor bring his own alcohol and drink his cocktails in his own hotel room, preferably at an establishment away from mainline tourism.

It is no coincidence that foreign visitors are seen often at hot dog stands, pizzerias and in hotel coffee shops.

The American in Europe is no longer gaudy in his lavish expenditures.

But these high costs tend to push the visitor off tourist thoroughfares and force him to mingle more with the Danes in their own milieu. There remain few countries in which he is more welcome, or the rewards greater.

(Copley News Service)

ONE WAY TO BEAT inflation while touring Copenhagen is to eat in the small, cozy cafes, such as this one. Here a party of young people, particuarly drawn to Copenhagen, enjoy the Danish delicacies at the Small Pharmacy cafe.

Seven Wonders Made By Man

The United States Travel Service recently conducted an unofficial poll of the American travel industry to determine the "Seven Man-made Wonders of the USA."

The winners: The Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco; Mount Rushmore National Memorial; South Dakota; Astrodome, Houston, Tex.; Statue of Liberty, New York Harbor; Hoover Dam, Arizona-Nevada; Walt Disney World, Lake Buena Vista, Fla.; and Gateway Arch, St. Louis, Mo. Designed to specify the "constructions" in the USA with the greatest tourist appeal, the USTS poll elicited 539 votes for 106 different attractions.

The Cruise Ships Are On The Move

Despite the fuel crises and inflation — or maybe because of them — West Coast pleasure cruising seems to be doing fine, thank you.

The salt water bonanza that began a half-dozen years back has just totted-up its gaudiest Alaskan summer, and now steers south for the old season, to sunny Mexico, the Caribbean and Polynesia.

Passengers evidently like the security of the pre-sold ticket, and the lines have raised fares enough to cope with the added fuel costs while keeping the customers coming. Brand-wise, some of the familiar names have disappeared, and a few new ones are on the horizon.

Showing British aplomb, P&O Line bought Princess Cruises in July, but instead of digesting the popular Italian-flavored carrier, P&O phased-out its own West Coast cruise operation. The new subsidiary will sail both Island Princess and Spirit of London under the Princess flag, with the latter re-named "Sun Princess".

In 1974-75, there's a new pattern emerging. Some territories are literally dominated by the lines best-suited to serve 'em most profitably.

For example, the Caribbean resembles a Norwegian lake for West Coast cruisers. From now through next June, Royal Viking Line sends its three 22,000-ton liners, nine decks tall, on 18 Carib' jaunts; mostly from California ports (with numerous fly-cruise options), but several from New Orleans. These touch the Gulf Coast of Central America to inspect the amazing Mayan cities, just being reclaimed from the jungle.

Just to keep RVL alert, Island Princess as Caribbean schedules, and so does Fairseas of Sitmar Cruises. Taiwan-based Orient Overseas Line offers 20-day Mexico-Central America trips on the 300-passenger "combination" freighters Oriental Esmeralda and Carnaval, with the first departures in November from San Diego.

Hawaii remains a favorite cruise destination, as it was in Gatsby's day. Hawaiian chief is the U.S.-flag carrier, Pacific Far East Line, sailing comfortable Monterey and Mariposa. October through June, the sisters make five-day passages to Honolulu from California (or vice versa), and they also offer nine 18-day round-trip calls on four Hawaiian Islands.

Mexico is scheduled for more than 50 visits by California-based ships during the season beginning Oct. 12. Island Princess and Spirit of London split the honors evenly, with cruises ranging from one week to 15 days.

Two Royal Viking sailings add to the total on Dec. 22 and Jan. 5. Ports to see and shop include Acapulco, Manzanillo, Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Cabo San Lucas.

The South Pacific is the domain of PEEL's Monterey and Mariposa, featuring 43-day round-trips to the most exotic isles, Australia and New Zealand. The competition is Royal Viking Star and Sky whose cruises last 46 days. Royal Viking Sky also offers a 69-day Circle Pacific adventure to the Antipodes and the Orient, with bon-voyage sailing out of San Francisco on Feb. 24.

Fuel problems resolved, Orient Overseas Line is back in the Asiatic cruise trade. Leisurely 62-day trans-Pacific round trips are highlighted by generous stopovers (for freight) in Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Japan. Esmeralda and Carnval are the ships.

Also in the longer category are a 67-day European cruise in April by Monterey, and several "to and from" by the Royal Vikings. Gem of the collection is Royal Viking Sea's around-the-world cruise, 96 days, from New Orleans next Jan. 6.

There's a free folder listing most of these cruises, by destination and date, available from the Pacific Cruise Conference, 311 California Street, San Francisco, 94104.

THREE DAYS OF UNMITIGATED DISASTER

John Roberts and Joel Rosenman were just your basic rich kids out to make their marks on the world back in early 1969.

Six months later they were a million and a half dollars in the hole and the target of numerous lawsuits and hordes of creditors, angry farmers and assorted hangers on in the rock subculture — all as a result of having promoted the love generation's sweetest flower, the Woodstock music festival.

What happened in those frantic months, and after, is described wryly and with flashes of considerable insight in "Young Men With Unlimited Capital."

Much of the book's humor doubtless is the work of writer Robert Pilpel, a law school chum of Rosenman, who collaborated with the promoters and who, according to the liner notes, "considers his sense of humor essential to writing and living."

The book takes its title from an advertisement Rosenman and Roberts inserted in the New York Times: "Young men with unlimited capital looking for interesting, legitimate investment opportunities and business propositions."

From that ad, the two rather straight lads got into a scheme to build a recording studio, and finally were sucked into backing the now-legendary Woodstock Festival.

Because this book is written by the festival's promoters, the men who provided its financial backing, there is an understandable emphasis on money.

Things started going wrong right from the beginning — the original site in upstate New York was yanked out from under them, they fell in with a trio of cutthroat food concessionaires and New York's radical underground shook them down for $10,000 in protection money.

And so it went, right down to the festival itself — "Three Days of Peace and Music," it was billed.

Listening to Roberts and Rosenman describe it, though, it sounded more like "Three Days of Unmitigated Disaster."

The longhairs began arriving at Max Yasgur's dairy farm days before the music was to start, and soon it became evident that it would be impossible to separate the ticketholders from the gatecrashers.

So all pretense of collecting tickets (and money) from the assembled hordes was halted. Setback number one.

Then came the news that the food concessionaires — three fellows calling themselves Food for Love — were going to pull out less than two days before the concert unless they were guaranteed 100 per cent of the profits of their operation (the old arrangement was 50-50). Rosenman and Roberts had to agree — setback number two.

Great hopes had been pinned on earnings from a Woodstock movie, but in a typically unfortunate decision, the promoters decided to let somebody else take the responsibility (and the financial risk) for it.

That was how Warner Brothers was persuaded to take charge of the movie, which to date has grossed 17 million dollars. Still another setback.

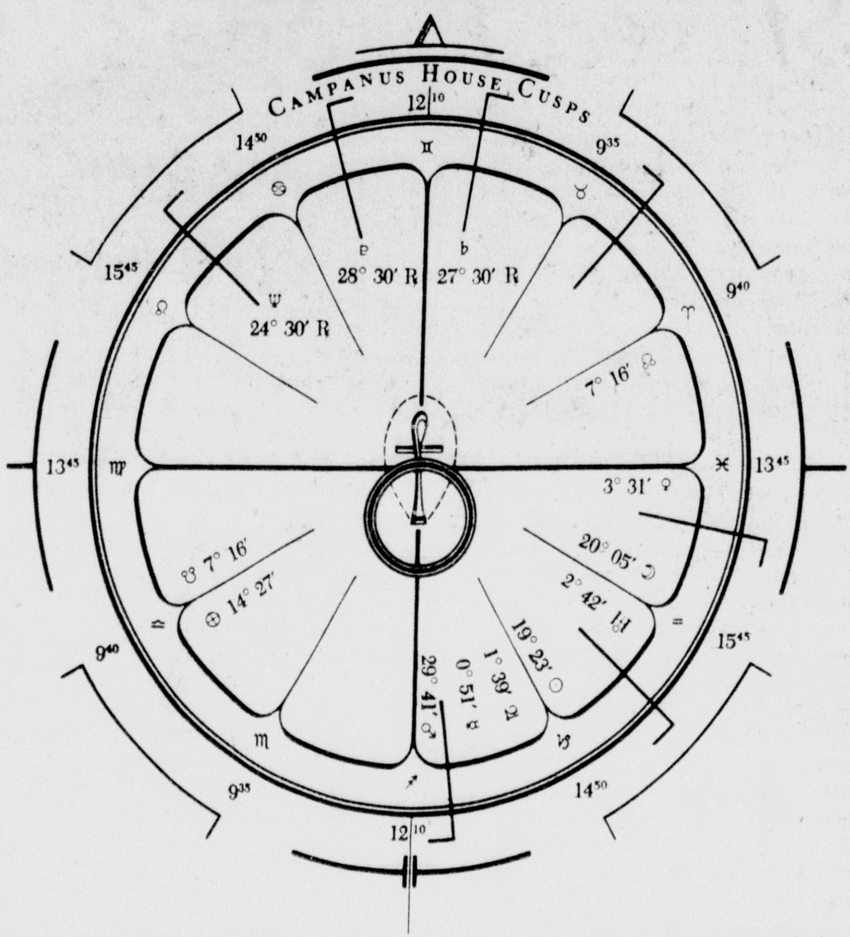
Soon the entrepreneurs were up to their necks in disasters. All access routes to the site were jammed with immobile cars, it became clear that food, medical facilities and toilets were going to be in shockingly short supply, and many of the 400,000 concert-goers were maurauding over the land of nearby farmers like locusts.

And then it started to rain.

In the end, Woodstock Ventures took in $3,300,000 in receipts, movie and record rights and licensing fees. Its total expenses were $3,400,000, for a net loss of $100,000.

Not so bad, Roberts and Rosenman agree at the end of the book, and nothing, to be sure, that can't be recouped if their book sells well.

A HOROSCOPE OF ILL-FATE



THIS ASTROLOGICAL CHART for Richard M. Nixon, based upon the ex-President's birth date of Jan. 9, 1913, at Yorba Linda, Calif., is taken from the book, "The Astrology of America's Destiny," by Dane Rudhyar, Random House publisher. "The electroal campaign of 1972 took place under astrological configurations which can only be called ominous, both for Nixon and the United States," writes composer-poet-painter-novelist-astrologer Rudhyar. Neither believer or disbeliever is likely to quarrel with that statement. Rudhyar also includes charts for the United States, its federal government and the 20th century in his $6.95 book.

New Novels By A Couple Of Very Familiar Writers

SOMETHING HAPPENED by Joseph Heller; Alfred A. Knopf, 570 pages, $10. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Joseph Heller, author of "Catch 22," has explored — to infinity and beyond — a battered and beaten theme: the frightened, though successful, middle-aged businessman; his frustrated wife; their unhappy children; and all their psychotic hangers-on and psychic hang-ups.

Bob Slocum, middle-management executive in a prototype company, tells all about his life, past and present, in a stream-of-consciousness style. His self-revelation is total and, somewhere about page 267, it begins to be a total bore.

We have all met Slocum and his crew before.

Heller — speaking as Slocum — is occasionally witty, always on the make, rarely compassionate, usually a double-crosser, and frequently deliberately cruel to his wife and children. Knowing that he is all these things, he continues to live his miserable life, reliving his youthful sexual exploits, enjoying incestual fantasies about his adolescent daughter, contemplating how to get rid of his brain-damaged son.

Then Something Happens — the archtypal event that should destroy him. But it does not. He goes on, his facade undented, his blurry personality undamaged.

Heller's Joe Slocum represents the tragedy of 20th century man and he probably will be dissected — endlessly — by book reviewers and professors.

"Catch-22" was better written and more fun.

THE PIRATE by Harold Robbins; Simon and Schuster, 408 pages. $8.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Writers come and writers go, but Harold Robbins goes on — making money — forever.

His new hero, The Pirate, is, except for native habitat, exactly like all his other heroes — pururient, perverted, vicious — a one-dimensional cardboard cutout of a man.

True to his formula, Robbins has the current crisis by the tail.

The Pirate is an Arab money man (born a Jew, but he doesn't know it), a wheeler-dealer manipulating oil supples, international currencies, Palestinian terrorists, Jews and, of course, assorted worshiping females.

The story sweeps wildly, via 707 jet, from Los Angeles to Geneva, from London to Capri to Syria to Israel — all characters bouncing from beach to beach, from bed to bed.

Each chapter has an Adventure, a Conquest, and at least one — sometimes several — episodes of explicit sex. All events are related in simple sentences — subject, verb, plus a few other one-syllable words.

Continental's John Wayne Of Board Room

MAVERICK: THE STORY OF ROBERT SIX AND CONTINENTAL AIRLINES by Robert J. Serling; Doubleday, 351 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

Three men, W. A. Patterson of United, C. R. Smith of American and Robert Six of Continental, were directly responsible for the growth, direction and accomplishments of this country's commercial aviation.

Of the trio, only Robert Six still actively runs his airline, and "Maverick: The Story of Robert Six and Continental Airlines" by Robert J. Serling ably chronicles not only his career but the story of the entire industry.

Robert Six is a rugged individualist of the old school, creating the odd image in the board room of John Wayne starring in a John Ford Western, and his simularity even carries over into a physical resemblance of the executive to the actor.

The danger with this sort of biography is either that it can be written hat in hand as a kind of cloying saint's life and hymn to big business, or else as an abrasive, unfair indictment of something misunderstood from the vantage of an ivory tower. "Maverick" avoids these extremes, being written by a veteran aviation writer who portrays Six, warts and all, while giving a wealth of historical detail that will delight the aviation buff and entertain the general reader.

A high school drop out from Stockton, Six knocked about the world for a few years before learning to fly and getting in the airline business, which of course is not as easy as it sounds. He has had many personal setbacks and near disasters during virtually all his adult years spent creating Continental Airlines from a local air service to a major carrier.

It is a very interesting story, and Six emerges as an extremely impressive man, both on account of his achievements, and the rare type of blunt honesty and integrity that has typified his career.

NICHOLS' MASTERPIECE

A Book That Enlivens The Literary Season

THE MILAGRO BEANFIELD WAR by John Nichols; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 445 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

"I knew Jose Mondragon couldn't go through his entire life," says Ruby Archuleta, who kills deer with her bare hands, "without attempting one great thing".

The enterprise occurs when the scrappy little Chicano farmer taps a big developer's stream to irrigate his beanfield.

A deceptively simple event, like the seduction of Helen sparking the Trojan War, is the central incident in John Nichol's new novel, "The Milagro Beanfield War," and it should enliven this literary season as Thomas Pynchon did a year ago with "Gravity's Rainbow".

"The Milagro Beanfield War" possesses a richness of plot and madcap inventiveness that were present in the author's earlier novels, "The Sterile Cuckoo" and "The Wizard of Unhappiness." Yet in his new book, Nichols has outdone himself by transforming what could be another dreary, social protest situation into a witty, universal statement.

This is a novel not to be missed.

That a man should illegally moisten the New Mexican fields of his ancestors with water legally stolen from him by politicians is a symbolic act. And it is not lost upon other dispossessed farmers or the Establishment responsible for the deprivation. In a way the action of Jose Mondragon is a miniaturization of American history and human life.

Knowing this, John Nichols is off and running, with the reader delightedly loping right after him.

Like Steinbeck, Nichols can explore the fantasies and peculiarities of the nonliterate in such a way that we laugh with them, not at them. This humorous compassion exemplifies the paradoxical high seriousness and conservatism of all effective satire.

The Anglo adversaries of the farmers are portrayed with equal understanding and fairness. They tend the mindless machine which is government, and assume it to be a numinous instrument that will make everything work out all right. They do not perceive that their legal codes are as much a part of their own folklore as the Evil Eye or cult of "machismo" define the old New Mexican culture.

People's various life styles are metaphors to explain reality, in the same way that a painter executes a canvas to interpret the world. What happens, of course, is that reality is thus further obscured by another layer of interpretation. Nichols discerns this, and the placid self delusion of his characters lends a fine psychological cutting edge to writing that is already technically outstanding.

The serious implications of "The Milagro Beanfield War", though, do not obscure the ever ascendant wit and humanity. Nichols is excruciatingly funny, piling up a wealth of anecdote and eccentric characterization into an elaborate structure that few other writers could either conceive or manage.

"The Milagro Beanfield War" will be enjoyed by all manner of readers on any level of participation, a hallmark of literary achievement shared with works like "Gulliver's Travels" and "Don Quixote."

What conclusions these readers draw from the war in the beanfield will probably derive from individual factors of temperament. Yet the deck seems to be stacked in favor of the farmers.

Like John Nichols, they are close to the earth and aware that men are amiable fools who should relish rotgut and jokes before their days run out.

Wine Pressings

by DAVE RAFFI

Do you have any of those straw-covered Italian Chianti bottles lying around in your attic or basement? If you do, it would be well for you to save them, because they are on the verge of becoming collector's items. Although still available, the traditional Chianti bottles called fiaschi are almost extinct because it is becoming more and more difficult to find peasant women who are willing to weave the straw baskets around the squat bottles.

(Fiaschi is the plural form of the word fiasco. Whether it has anything to do with the way we use the word in English is difficult to discern. Webster's primary definition for fiasco is "a crash" so perhaps it refers to what happens when a bottle of wine is dropped. Certainly dropping a bottle full of wine could be described as a "complete and utter failure.")

A hard-working Italian woman can turn out about fifty fiaschi in eight hours. She is paid on a piece-work basis at the rate of 7c per bottle. With Italy now becoming an economically thriving country, such employment is no longer rewarding.

Chianti's wine makers are therefore turning to the use of high-shouldered bottles similar in shape to French Bordeaux bottles. These bottles do offer one definite advantage over the fiaschi — they are easier to store on their sides. Italian vintners are aware of the world's demand for top-quality wines and bottle aging is a sure way to improve most wines. Romance may be on the way out in Italian wines, but quality is on the way in.

Some of the best bargains in wine buying today can be found among Italian wines. That Guide For Walkers, Now Even More Complete

Six years ago, when "The Complete Walker" came out, it was received as the last word on backpacking. Fletcher loaded that book with all so many details and fine techniques of the growing sport that the book did, indeed, seem complete.

But here we are with a new, revised and expanded edition — 50 per cent bigger, the publisher tells us. The list of suppliers has grown as has the list of hiking and camping organizations, sources of information and places to go.

Fletcher even describes gear that the manufacturers have not yet put on the market.

In addition to updating and increasing the details, Fletcher has reworded the text, and improved it, particularly in the opening chapter.

So here we have the last work on the last work in backpacking — recommended for veterans as well as beginners.

THE NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

The potential readership for "The Dog Lover's Reader," as assembled and edited by Timothy T. Clarke and handsomely published by Hart Publishing Co. at $12.50, has to be enormous.

The thick, nicely illustrated and imaginatively designed anthology is intended for "anyone who owns a dog, or has owned a dog."

Selections come from the works of such as James Thurber (his "How to Name a Dog" rib-tickler), Anatole France, E. B. White, Jack London, Rudyard Kipling (a piece from his "Actions and Reactions"), Corey Ford, Albert Payson Terhune, Leon F. Whitney, Konrad Lorenz and Raymond A. Sokolov, among others.

There's a strong strain of humor. But also some sound advice in the care and training of dogs. Some history of man's best friend. Some classic fiction. And considerably sentimentality, which is to be expected.

Photographs and drawings, both old and new, dress up the pages. And this, indeed, looks like a book that should cost $12.50 — or more. Corey Ford's "Every Dog Should Own a Man" is worth a good part of it, alone.

THE SOFTCOVER reprint publishing house that has been cutting the biggest swath of late is the Warner Paperback Library, whose batches of books inevitably include a number of titles of special interest.

The most recent output, for instance, includes the riotous "W. C. Fields by Himself" cornucopia of memorabilia of the great comedian, collected by his grandson, Ronald J. Fields. "A mammoth yet perfectly fascinating grabbag of Fieldsiana," said Publishers Weekly of the hardcover version.

A thick book, Warner offers it at $1.95 and includes some 100 photos and other illustrations.

Some companion paperbacks from Warner: John Cheever's collection of short stories, "The World of Apples," $1.25; "Separation: Journal of a Marriage" by Eve Baguedor, actually the journal of the collapse of a marriage, but with a happy ending, $1.50; "Expressway," the Elleston Trevor novel, $1.50; and "My Years with Edgar Cayce," written by that mystic's secretary of 20 years, Mary Ellen Carter, $1.25.

"HEALTH FOODS and Fads" by Canadian psychologist Frank J. MacHovec is a small $1.95 hardcover booklet from Peter Pauper Press, Mount Vernon, N.Y., that jumps into the heated nutrition controversy and tries to guide the consumer toward more wholesome eating without exorbitant costs. Generally, MacHovec upholds the value of the so-called natural foods, but he points out fallacies and exploitations that have sprung up in the mushrooming field.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

BATS FLY UP FOR INSPECTOR GHOTE by H.R.F. Keating; Doubleday (Crime Club), 180 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Mary Craig.

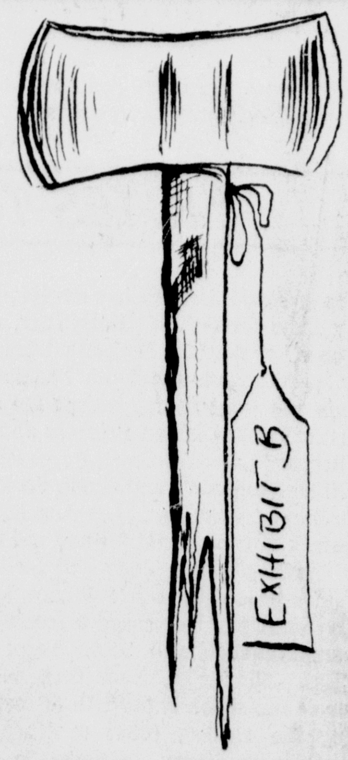
Readers who have followed Inspector Ghote of the Bombay police through his several previous adventures will find it inconceivable that any assignment could cause him to retire from the force.

But that was before Ghote was transferred (from the menial task of trapping pickpockets) to the staff of BATS.

The Black Money and Allied Transactions Squad had been formed to combat the racketeers who dealt in vast undercover tax evasion deals and who (in Ghote's words) "were callously ripping out the biggest hole in the financial fabric of the country."

Learning that BATS' failure seemed tied to an inside informer forces Ghote to develop total mistrust of everybody . . . his bosses, his peers, and in the end, even the people nearest to him.

Full of the great characters and absorbing action at which Keating excels, this is another good read for Keating aficinadoes. And through it all the sights and smells, the atmosphere and festivals of Bombay, set in a bustling modern time frame, provide a flavor that few other novelists of any genre achieve with such consistency.



IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM

The Voyages Of Columbus Stirred Europe's Imagination

MARIN LIVING

(Editor's Note: This is the second of 18 articles exploring the theme, "In Search of the American Dream," in the University of California at San Diego-developed Courses by Newspaper program. Entitled "Voyaging," this article is the first of a three-part discussion of the general subject of The New World as Utopia. The author of this article is professor of history at the University of California, Berkeley.)

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN

It requires effort to realize what a powerful impact the voyages of Columbus had upon the European imagination. By comparison, it could be argued, recent landings on the moon have been of no very great importance and indeed are merely one more extension of the historic process begun by Columbus.

Shortly after his discoveries, it became clear that America was not China and the "Indians" not natives of the sought-for Indies. Europeans thus confronted a world that was truly new.

It was precisely the newness of the New World that stimulated Sir Thomas More, in the 16th century, to write "Utopia." In this book about an ideal country, More used the unspoiled novelty of the new lands as a foil for exposing the stale failures of the Old World.

> "To each nation the advantages of the New World were enhanced by the knowledge that others were eyeing them. Interest in America was in reality the beginning of nearly 500 years of European exploitation of the peoples and natural resources of the remainder of the globe."

Sir Thomas' fellow Englishmen were late in taking so great an interest in the lands beyond the Atlantic. Had it not been for voyages in the 1490s by John and Sebastian Cabot, two Italian-born mariners somewhat offhandedly supported by Henry VII, England might not have been able to lay claim among the Christian nations to original discovery and therefore settlement.

As it was, England was just beginning to recover from a period of civil strife.

The country was headed for wracking political, religious, and social changes, which seemed at times to turn on the tortuous marital difficulties of Henry VIII. It was not until three generations had passed that Englishmen began to take an active interest in exploiting the claim established by the Cabot voyages.

> "It took experience and experimentation, but gradually Englishmen in America were able to realize the hope that the New World would give forth wealth to the Old. Wealth meant power and national greatness. America came to nurture the island nation."

Rather suddenly, in the 1570s, a number of gentlemen-adventurers became interested in the New World. It was not merely a matter of mounting a voyage to America or of actually going there (which some of them did); it was above all necessary to rouse the English nation or (as we would now say) to advertise the desirability of colonization. Some men did both.

Sir Humphrey Gilbert, for example, not only wrote the first promotional tract (1576) but himself led two expeditions. It proved easier to advocate colonization than to achieve it. His first voyage never reached America; the second did, but Sir Humphrey was lost at sea on the way back.

He was last seen seated in the sternsheets of a 10-ton fishing smack, reading (of all things) a copy of More's "Utopia."

The greatest English publicist of American settlement was Richard Hakluyt (the Younger). Known as Preacher Hakluyt, he was a successful preacher of divinity; more effectively still, though, he preached to the entire literate English nation the importance and indeed necessity of English planting in the New World.

Today it still is possible to sense the stirring impact of his glorification of the cause. (As was once said of him, "Master Hakluyt hath served for a very good trumpet.") At the behest of Gilbert's half-brother, Sir Walter Raleigh, he addressed a tract to Queen Elizabeth, commonly called "A Discourse Concerning Western Planting" (1584), which set forth the case for settlement as a national program.

Hakluyt's "Discourse" was a persuasive "collection of certain reasons to induce her Majesty and the state to take in hand the western voyage and the planting there."

Some reasons were economic: "cheap commodities" might be sold to the Indians and particularly might a market be found for English woolens.

Some reasons looked as much to social as to financial advantage: unemployed mariners, returning war veterans, and "the fry of the wandering beggars of England, that grow up idly" might in America be put to gainful employments.

A point not to be neglected was that "we shall by planting there enlarge the glory of the gospel, and from England plant sincere religion" — by which Hakluyt meant, naturally, Protestantism. Yet clearly what most animated his "Discourse" was Hakluyt's fear that all these advantages might accrue not to the English nation but to someone else.

As he eloquently phrased the matter, "This enterprise may stay the Spanish king from flowing over all the face of that waste firmament of America, if we seat and plant there in time." It was a bold suggestion; this was before the defeat of the Armada and Hakluyt was urging the English nation to take on the world's super-power. Opposition to Spain wrapped national pride, financial gain, and religious faith into a single glorious enterprise.

As Hakluyt put the matter, planting in America would enable the English "to spoil Philip's navy, and to deprive him of yearly passage of his treasure to Europe, and consequently to abate the pride of Spain and of the supporter of the great Antichrist of Rome." The New World would be the fulcrum by which England would raise itself to greatness in the Old.

Thus it is clear that European perceptions of America were from the beginning very much shaped by European national rivalries.

To each nation the advantages of the New World were enhanced by the knowledge that others were eyeing them. Interest in America was in reality the beginning of nearly 500 years of European exploitation of the peoples and natural resources of the remainder of the globe.

The Spanish had begun such exploitation of the New World nearly a century before the English. Not all Spaniards had been motivated by the lust for treasure which drove Cortez and so many of his followers.

Some came to save souls and, as they conceived it, to better the lot of their Indian subjcts; Vasco de Quiroga, first bishop of Michoacan, successfully organized two Indian villages on the principles laid down in Thomas More's "Utopia." But such utopian ventures were exceptional, and for the Spanish conquerors, the primary issue was gold.

Although the Spanish claimed a monopoly on the entire New World, in fact they effectively controlled those accessible portions of South and Central America where precious metals were readily available. Englishmen, enormously frustrated by this fact, of necessity focused their attention elsewhere in America.

It took the English a long time to realize that they were not going to find much gold themselves and even longer to appreciate that they had not been shunted into the less desirable parts of the New World.

Sir Walter Raleigh was so firmly convinced that the gilded city of "El Dorado" actually existed in South America that he mounted a disastrous attempt to found an English colony in Guiana.

Another Elizabeth adventurer made three voyages in the 1570s in search of the supposed Northwest Passage to the orient; he became so diverted by his discovery of "gold" that he hauled several hundred tons of ore back to London.

Upon assay, however, the ore proved to contain only fool's gold (iron pyrites), and for several decades the ore lay heaped just inside the gates of the Tower of London, entirely blocking the way. Even as late as 1607 the first settlers at Jamestown, Va., went searching for gold while the tiny settlement nearly starved out of existence.

Gradually Englishmen came to realize that their portion of the New World could produce other forms of wealth.

The fisheries yielded the first genuine profits. Pulling fish from the North Atlantic, one of the world's great fishing grounds, was scarcely a glamorous business, nor was it a business for gentlemen-adventurers. But the fisheries came to be greatly appreciated, both as nurseries for seamen and as a supply of food and of trade to other nations.

The forests, another great natural resource of the northern parts of the New World, soon were equally appreciated as a boon to England's national defense and economic self-sufficiency.

The northern forests yielded masts, spars, and other stores for the backbone of national power, the navy. These same forests were teeming with fur-bearing animals. Furs were greatly in demand in Europe, and for nearly two centuries the fur trade was a central concern in England's diplomatic relations with the native nations of America.

What Englishmen did not appreciate initially about America was that in the long run, truly enormous wealth could be derived from certain agricultural staples which could be cultivated there.

The most important staple proved to be sugar, a product which turned the little islands of the Caribbean into by far the most profitable part of the Old British Empire.

Another was tobacco, and Englishmen in Virginia were soon able to prove, despite many assertions to the contrary, that it was indeed possible to "found an empire upon smoke."

Other products proved disappointing.

Operating upon the age-old geographical supposition that similar latitudes necessarily had similar climates, countless attempts were made to cultivate such products as silk, wines, and citrus fruits, all of them pronounced failures.

Much of the labor for these enterprises came from Englishmen who were lacking opportunities at home. A very sizable proportion of English settlers came to America as "indentured servants," having sold their labor for a period of years to a master in exchange for their ocean passage. By thus alleviating some of the pressures of population within England, the colonies further contributed, as Hakluyt had predicted, to her social and economic welfare.

It took experience and experimentation, but gradually Englishmen in America were able to realize the hope that the New World would give forth wealth to the Old.

Wealth meant power and national greatness. America came to nurture the island nation. Richard Hakluyt had been absolutely right.

ON THE STEREO SCENE: A Band Called Kansas

By BRUCE MEYER

Probably because of its unbroken geography and the conservative nature of its politics of late, the state of Kansas has acquired a modern image of — well, dreariness. Not the kind of place you'd expect to find a powerful rock band.

But the present-day image of Kansas belies its stormy past — a land of bitter violence, political extremism and contrasts as sharp as any in the nation. It is the kind of history that fits well with the eclectic rock band of a band that calls itself Kansas.

KANSAS IS THE fourth incarnation of a five-year-old group that began in a Topeka high school.

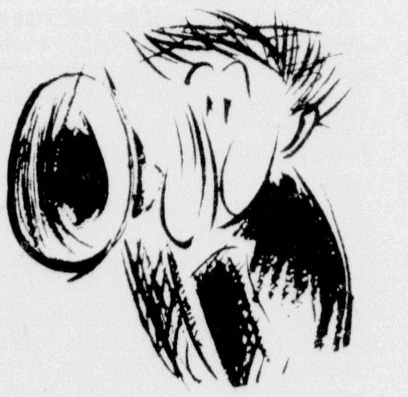
Life has not been easy for a band featuring an amplified violinist and that insists on playing all-original material in a state with no ready-made audience like that found on the coasts.

Drummer Phil Ehart: "It's too hard to get out of there. There's no music scene. The music world doesn't know Kansas (the state) exists — other than maybe a distributor dropping some albums there every three years or so."

"He won't even land — he just parachutes them out," adds bassist Dave Hope, with a grin.

Some months back, Kansas (the band) got lucky. A demonstration tape found its way into the hands of super-promoter Don Kirschner, who signed them up for his new record label.

IT WAS AN UNUSUAL move for Kirshner, who has a reputation for manufactured commercial groups, including the Monkees and the Archies. His approach apparently works; he is credited with some 300 million records sold. But he apparently believes in Kansas.



"Kirshner — you know, he's really centered around the almighty single," says Phil. "But our album sales this week hit 95,000 without a single (one attempt to pull a single from the LP failed), so he's not giving us any pressure."

The album, "Kansas" (Kirshner K2-32817), is one of the best debuts of the year — a showpiece for the band's varied and impressive talent.

Nearly every cut is a gem, from "Belexes," a multi-level boogie with a dose of Led Zeppelin and a dash of country reel, to "Journey from Mariabronn," a heavily classical, serious kind of tune that lets the band show off its solid firepower and tight rhythms.

Kansas: So long, Topeka. Hello, world.

FACES GUITARIST Ron Wood should have his new solo album out very soon. The LP features such guests as Mick Jagger, George Harrison, Keith Richard and Rod Stewart . . . Fleetwood Mac — the real one, with Mick Fleetwood, the McVies and Bob Welch — has won its fight with a former manager over use of the name and will have a new album this fall . . . Emerson, Lake & Palmer's latest three-record LP is already platinum: sales over two million dollars before it was released . . .Zoo World magazine quotes Rick Wakeman as saying he left Yes because "it was like five people all going in different directions" . . . Meanwhile, Yes has replaced Wakeman on keyboards with Patric Moraz, formerly of a band called Refugee.

For String Quartet Fans, A Feast Of Recordings

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

For string quartet lovers, an exalted group, the recording industry has provided some good listening.

For RCA the fine Cleveland Quartet group has recorded the 14th of Franz Schubert's 15 string quartets, in D minor, sometimes seductively intitled "Death and the Maiden" (ARL 1 0483).

The Cleveland group, now based at the State University of New York in Buffalo, has been given rave notices since it was formed in 1969, and this recording confirms them. On the reverse side is also Mozart's Adagio.

Another excellent group now playing is the Tokyo Quartet, a Japanese group which records for a German company, Deutsche Grammophon.

Their latest record (DGG 2330 440) includes the first two of Joseph Haydn's six "Prussian quartets" — so named because he dedicated them to Friederick Wilhelm II of Prussia in gratitude for the gift of a diamond ring. This is more fine listening.

Finally, there is Stephen Bishop playing Anton Dvorak's delightful piano quintet, Opus 81, with members of the Berlin Philharmonic Octet (Philips 6500 363). On the reverse side is the string quintet in E Flat, written in the summer of 1883 when Dvorak was vacationing in the Czech settlement of Stillville, Iowa.

Bishop is a fine pianist and the group is one of the best playing.

Jorge Bolet is possessed of prodigious technique and plays the piano in great Romantic tradition for most of us who missed his Carnegie Hall recital last February it was recorded in a two record set by RCA (ARL 2 0512).

Recording live is, of course, a compromise. What one loses in studio conditions, one is supposed to gain in the artistic tension of a live performance.

At any rate, Bolet is one of the great artists who merits the trouble. He makes music in a fabulous way in this program of Bach, Chopin, J. Strauss, Wagner-Liszt, Moszkowski and Rubenstein.

Recommended: Alfred Brendel playing Schubert's Sonata in A Minor and "moment Musicaux" (Philips 6500 418).

David Distrakh playing and directing the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in Mozart's violin concertos, Nos. 4 and 5 (Angel S 36894).

Neville Marriner and the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields playing Mozart's early symphonies, Nos. 1, 4, 5 and 44 (Philips 6500 532). The development towards Mozart's greatest music.

Mobilize Now For Winter To Win The Fuel War

In the battle to slash living costs and save fuel supplies, home owners can hold gas and electric bills to a minimum by preparing now for the winter, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. advises.

Proper care of home heating equipment and adequate insulation offer ways to get the most out of each energy dollar.

Heating costs can be cut as much as 45 per cent by weatherstripping and proper insulation of walls and ceilings. Because heat rises, cracks and crevices under the roof usually are responsible for the greatest heat loss. Attic floors should have six inches of insulation to provide protection from the cold. Insulation batts tacked inside sloping rafters also will help prevent heat loss.

All cracks or excess space around doors and windows should be sealed with felt or metal stripping. Sweeps will keep cold air from entering along the bottoms of doors.

AN EFFICIENT heating system can save fuel and keep home heating costs down. PG&E offers these tips:

1. Clean heating equipment thoroughly, removing dust, lint and other obstructions from all accessible parts. Clean or replace dirty filters that make the furance work harder to provide heat. (Turn off thermostat and all blower controls before cleaning.)

HOMES PAGE

2. Heating system ducts should be checked for air leaks, especially around the connecting joints. Leaking warm air can be costly, but usually leaks can be repaired with cloth adhesive tape. Where exposed to cold air, heating ducts should be wrapped with insulation.

3. Make sure the gas furnace burner produces a blue flame. A yellow flame indicates improper combustion and requires adjustment.

4. Move furniture or rugs that block hot or cold air registers and reduce furnace efficiency.

5. Set thermostat at 68 degrees and leave it, except for turning it down when you leave home or go to bed. Turning up the thermostat does not produce more heat; it merely keeps the furnace operating longer, wasting fuel and increasing your bill.

AS THE WEATHER turns cold, let "close it" become your rule of thumb. Close up unused rooms, and close the heating vents into those rooms. Close the damper when the fireplace is not in use so heat does not escape up the chimney. Keep all exterior doors — and those to garage, attic and basement — tightly closed to keep heat indoors where it is needed.

At night and on gloomy days draw drapes across windows to avoid up to 16 per cent loss of heat, but keep drapes open on sunny days to take advantage of nature's heat.

To prevent further heat waste use hot water efficiently. Properly insualte hot water pipes exposed to cold air to hold down heating costs.

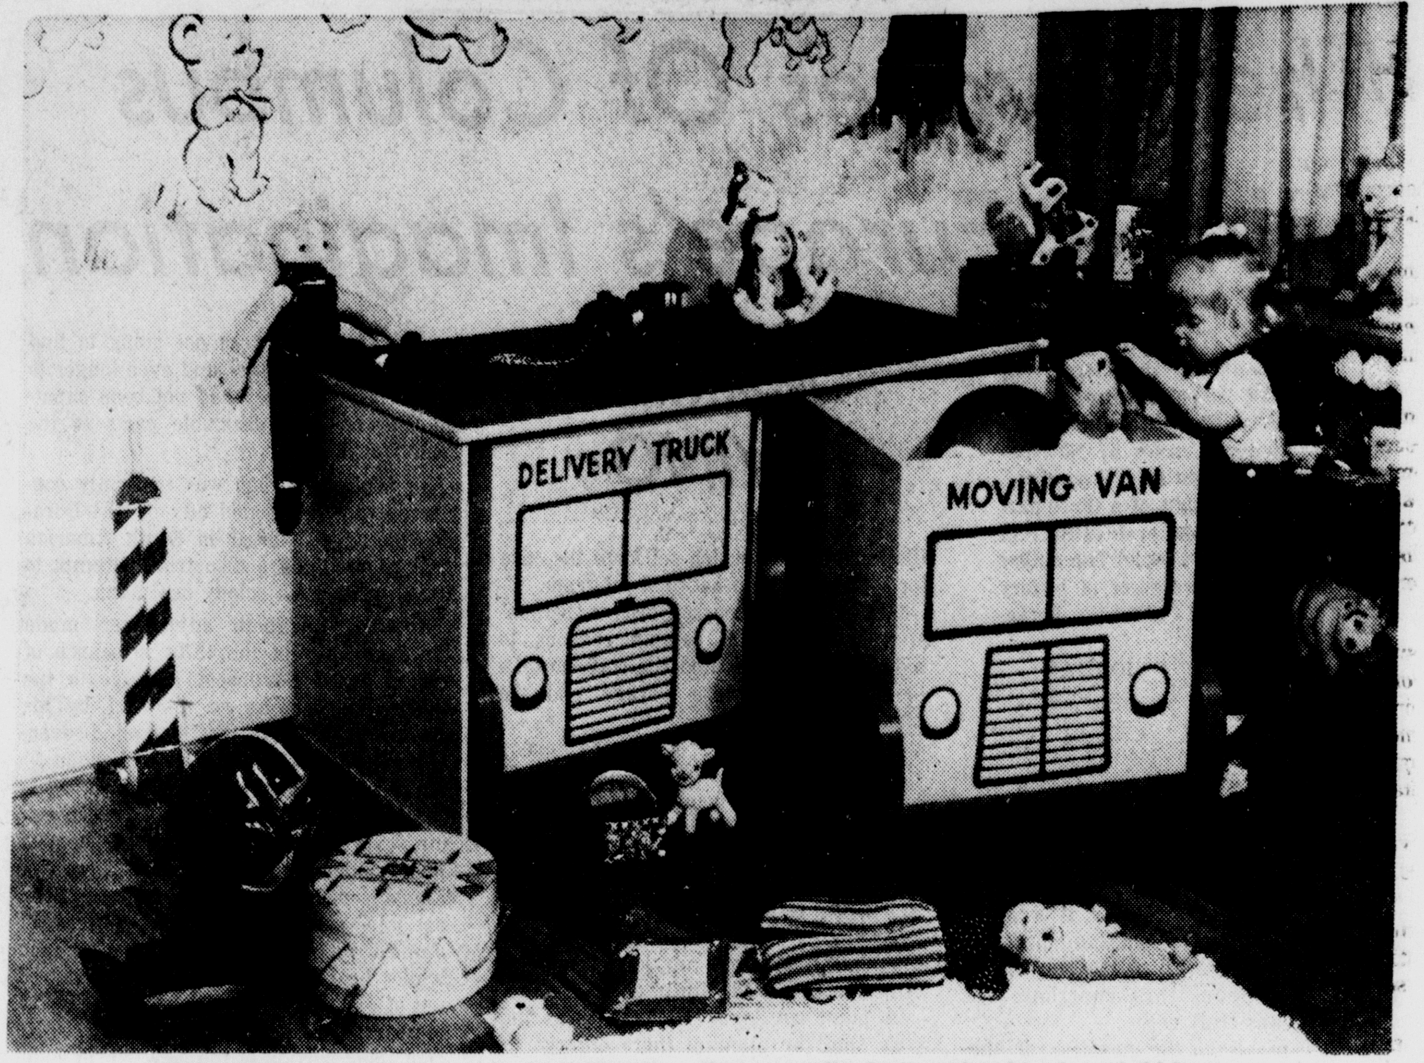
Replace worn faucet washers and turn off faucets to prevent leaking water. A dripping hot water tap can keep your water heater working to heat water that just runs down the drain.

SET THE WATER heater thermostat at 140 degrees, the normal setting, or slightly above if a dishwasher is used.

These steps can save energy and help hold bills to a minimum, PG&E says, but some factors affecting energy use and heating costs are outdoors, not inside. The prevailing winds in the locality and whether the location is sheltered or exposed can make a difference.

Other variables are the size of the house, the height of ceilings, the kind of roof, the amount of window glass, the kind of drapes and whether the floors are bare or covered with rugs.

A FLEET OF HER OWN



TOTS, TOYS and trucks are a natural combination. Give your tyke these simulated trucks to hold his or her toys, and suddenly he or she will become an addict for neatness, persisting in the loading of his possessions into his own personal vans which can then be backed into his or her very own garage. It's another imaginative project created by Steve Ellingson. And to build it for your child — or grandchild — you can begin by sending $1.25 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Movable Toy Storage Plan 546. Whether To Stain Or Not To Stain? Here's The Answer

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Letters from furniture buffs suggest that there is a good deal of confusion about the use of wood stains. Today I'll try to set the record straight.

Stains have an important place in the finishing of furniture; but, with rare exceptions they are not finishes.

Normally, a finish coat must be applied over the stain. Stains are used to give color to wood that has no natural color beauty, such as white pine and gumwood. It seldom is used on naturally beautiful woods like mahogany and walnut.

They also are used to match the color of differing pieces of wood or a patch with the surrounding wood.

The use of stains requires some consideration and planning. Don't jump to conclusions. Consider carefully whether a stain will enhance the beauty of the piece you are finishing or whether perhaps it will have the reverse effect.

Stains are commercially available in a wide assortment of colors and stains of a similar type may be mixed by the dealer to achieve the exact color you want if it's not on the color chart. There also are varieties of stains — including water, oil, spirit, pigment wiping and vegetable stains — as well as a number of specialty stains. Each has its place in wood finishing.

THE PROSPECTIVE user should consult his paint dealer concerning the stain best suited to the immediate job and follow the instructions on the label.

However, there are some general rules that apply to the use of most stains.

The surface you are about to stain must be dust-free and thoroughly dry. I suggest that before applying a new stain to your furniture you try it on a piece of similar wood.

You will get the best results in applying stains by quickly brushing it on, if possible on a horizontal surface. All surplus stain should then be wiped off with a lint-free rag. Wipe all over to an even color.

The longer you wait before wiping, the darker the color you will obtain.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

PUZZLED ABOUT CARPETING? It's no wonder, with so many fine new materials available to you, offered in such a dazzling range of colors and textures.

Here are a few brief pointers to help you choose. Wool is the most luxurious of all carpeting — and the best wool broadloom is also the most expensive. It is highly crush resistant and you can choose from deep plush piles and handsome sculptured patterns.

Among the modern man-made fibers, the acrylics are especially rugged and easy to clean, and they don't mat. The nylons, which are a current favorite, especially the long fiber continuous filament nylons, are very long wearing and easy to clean, with no shedding or piling. These take to vibrant colors beautifully.

Where economy and service are the most important considerations, there are fine cotton carpetings to choose from, the lowest-priced carpets for comparable quality.

So the choice is wide and colorful . . . just as the selection of fine home furnishings and accessories is colorful and complete in our showroom. Stop in — for the answers to all your decorating problems!

Add Storage Without A Lot Of Cost

The storage space in any home just seems to shrink with the passing of the years, as possessions accumulate.

Thus the high priority given shelves and cabinets.

But the purchase of bookshelves or of cabinets, or the employment of a cabinetmaker, can be expensive undertakings.

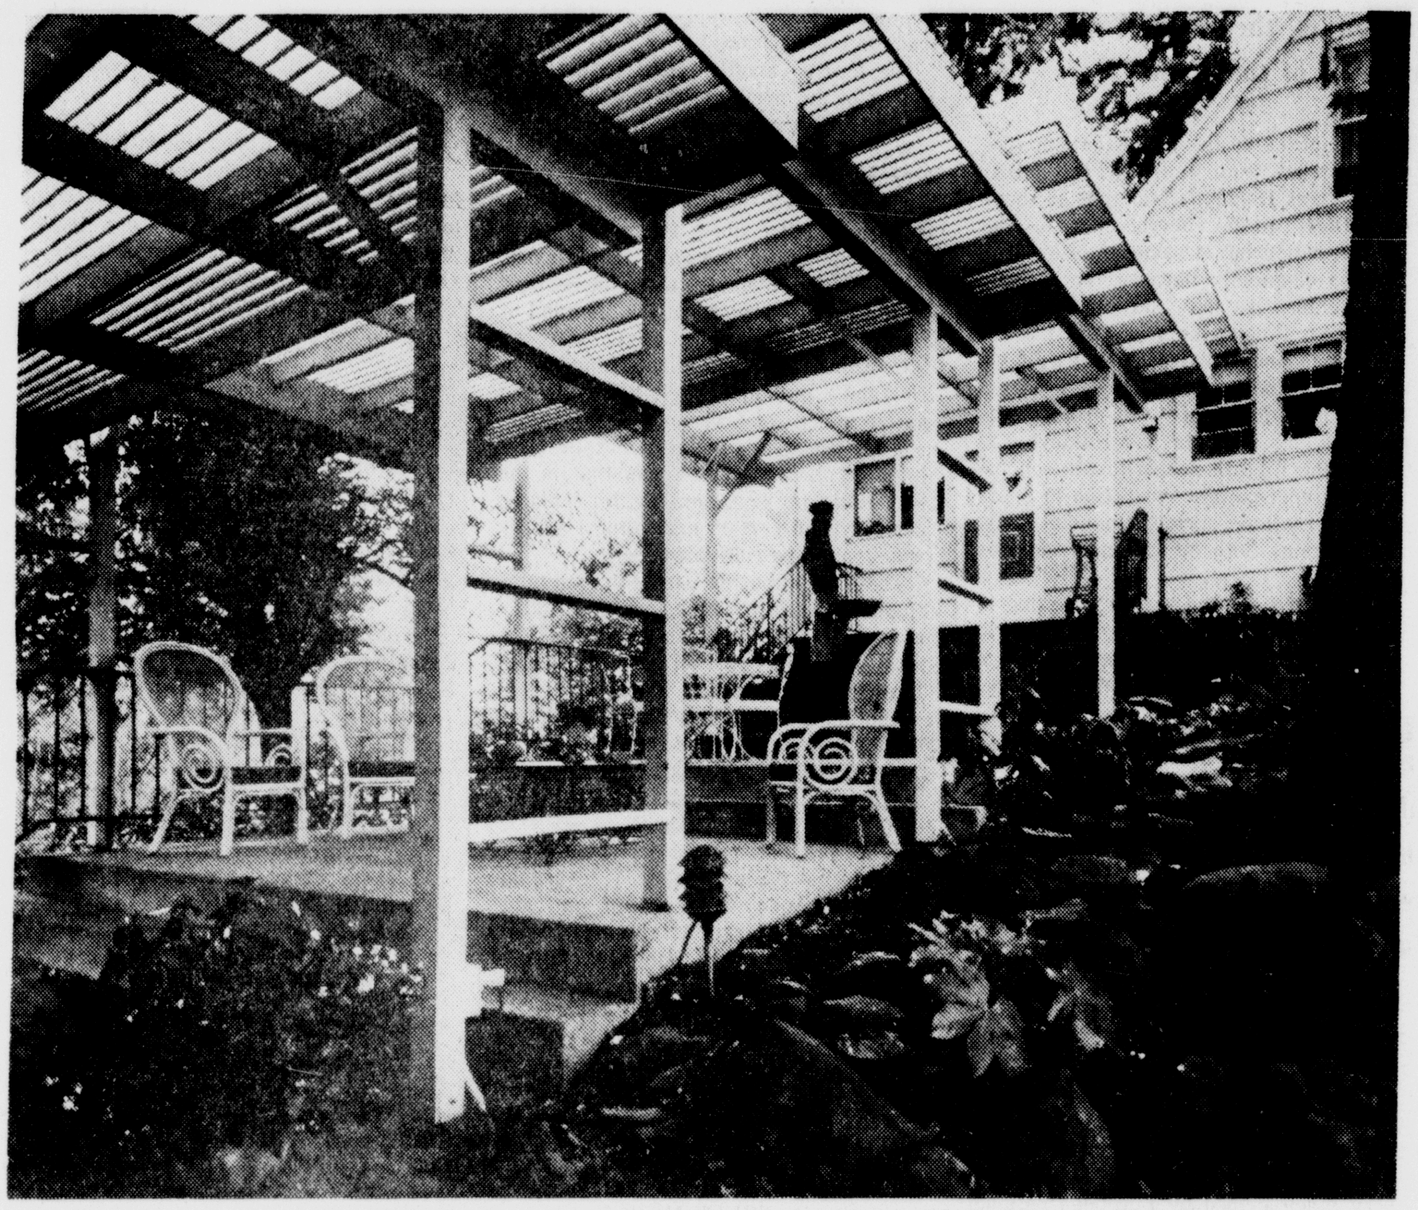
Sunset editors claim to have the solution in their newest building book, "Bookshelves & Cabinets," priced at $1.95 in paperback.

Introductory chapters deal with the basic woodworking techniques. Then come sections applying those techniques to the making of bookshelves and cabinets. And, finally, specific projects, some 25 in all, from serving carts to storage cubes to modular units for the kitchen.

As with all Sunset books, there is a strong emphasis upon illustrations to supplement and clarify the directions. These include both photographs and drawings.

"Even if you have never handled a saw, you can make professional looking shelving and cabinets at a reasonable cost," promise the editors, perhaps carried away a bit by their enthusiasm. For "professional" results, some experience with woodworking tools would appear to be a requisite.

The book can be ordered from the publisher, Lane Publishing Co., Willow and Middlefield Roads, Menlo Park, Calif., 94025, or purchased at many retail and book stores. D.K.



YOU CAN BEAT wet and windy weather by covering the walkway between your back door and garage, and at the same time provide yourself with a protected patio. This wide post and beam cover has been accomplished with four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts, four-by-six-inch beams and two-by-six-inch joists supporting translucent roofing. The eight-foot-wide tiered walkway eases the slope and increases safety.

For Your Safety And Convenience

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

An automatic garage door opener: like the dishwasher, any one can live without one — until he's had one.

Basically, the automatic opener does by remote control what the driver does for himself: opens the garage door, turns on the light, closes and locks the door, turns off the light.

The convenience and luxury of not having to get out of the car is obvious, particularly in these days of the mandatory seatbelt interlock which makes it harder than ever to climb in and out of an auto. No more struggling with a heavy door in all kinds of weather.

THE SAFETY FEATURES are an even stronger incentive.

As Marian Finney, home consultant for the NuTone Division of Scovill, points out:

"Light is a powerful crime deterrent. With an automatic system you need never be in the dark from the time you enter your driveway until you're safely in your home. Light also eliminates the chance of stumbling over toys or whatever else is stored in the garage, before reaching the light witch."

With the automatic opener, you won't be tempted to leave the door open because you're in a hurry — an announcement to burglars that no one is at home. Because there is light in the garage before you get out of the car, there's less chance of a prowler lurking in wait.

SAFETY IS A consideration, too, in buying an automatic grarage door opener, Mrs. Finney stresses.

"The first thing to look for is safety. There are certain features that are optional, others you simply should not do without. Safety is one of them," she says.

Good systems, she adds, should have built-in safeguards to prevent the disaster of a child or pet being crushed by a descending door.

In an automatic stop system, the door stops immediately if it encounters an obstruction during the opening or closing cycle. When you activate the operator again, it realigns itself and reverses the door.

WITH AN AUTOMATIC reverse system, when a door comes in contact with an obstruction, it reverses itself and returns to its original open position. This feature is particularly good, she says, where there are small children.

A good automatic system includes a positive security lock that automatically locks the door each time it is closed. It is designed to open only in response to the signal from your particular transmitter, an outside key-operated switch, or a pushbutton inside. Forced entry, Mrs. Finney says, is virtually impossible without extreme noise.

The system also should include a safety release that readily converts to manual operation in the event of power failure.

THE EXPERTS AT Chamberlain Manufacturing Corp., a leading manufacturer of residential garage door openers, echo Mrs. Finney's advice on safety and offer other tips on choosing a system.

"It is wise," they say, "to make careful examination of the existing manual door and spring system on your garage. Many home owners mistakenly believe an automatic garage door opener will solve a variety of garage door ills.

"If the existing door has a bent track, for instance, or the door itself is warped or unbalanced, the automatic mechanism may be overloaded in opening the door. Automatic openers can do only what the homeowner does manually — only more efficiently."

IT IS SUGGESTED that in evaluating an opener you make sure both opener mechanism and remote controls are made by the same manufacturer as assurance the two independent systems will operate properly, and to simplify dealings if problems should arise. It is wise, too, to check to see if local installation and service is available either from the dealer from whom you purchase or the manufacturer.

The opener and control should have the Underwriters' Laboratory seal of approval, as with any electric appliance.

You should check that the system you choose is designed for your type of garage door.

CHECK DRIVE MECHANISM of the opener. Some operate under the rotating screw principle, some use a chain-cable combination and others combine sprocket and roller chain.

The last, Chamberlain says, is the most popular drive in the industry because it gives positive transmission of power for a variety of door sizes and weights and provides quieter operation, especially important in attached garages.

Covering The Walk Is Simple

When a garage is detached from the house, the hike from auto to kitchen door has some disadvantages.

Not that a little exercise ins't beneficial — but lugging bulgy bags along a wet, slippery walkway risks life and limb, and the groceries, too.

Fortunately, that's a situation which can be remedied. A roof over the walkway does it.

ROOFING THE PATH also presents a golden opportunity to correct other problems while adding a little zip to this often drab-looking area.

If, for instance, the walk slopes noticeably, grading it with level terraces and steps makes it safer. A brilliant second thought is that, since the roof must be at least eight feet wide to provide effective cover, the walk can be broadened and one terrace developed as a covered outdoor sitting space.

Whether or not the walk is terraced, top appearance can be achieved by building the roof in stepped tiers.

IN A LEVEL SITUATION, three tiers could be used with the two end sections built at the same height and the center tier either higher or lower. On a slope, the roof should be tiered to follow the stepped terraces.

In both cases, the roof sections should overlap each other a couple of feet to keep rain out.

Construction of the roof is a matter of a post-and-beam framework. Four-by-four-inch Douglas fir posts and four-by-six-inch beams are the dominant choice, with two-by-six-inch joists used to support the roofing material.

IN AREAS WHERE extreme winds are a factor, it will be necessary to engineer the roof to meet those extra requirements. Through most of the country, however, the roof can be built much as a patio roof would be, with corrugated fiberglass used for roofing.

If the posts are to be mounted over the walkway's paving, use commercial post holders: U-shaped, stirrup-like affairs that bolt to the concrete and hold the post butts a couple of inches above the paving.

They're available at lumberyards, are easy to use, and make it simple to plumb the post.

Let Nature Help You

Just about everyone has some sort of secret in the yard that would be better kept from public view.

Often it's the trash cans, sometimes a utility meter, an air conditioning unit, a compost pile — something that can be an eye-sore in an otherwise handsome corner of the world.

A clever planting of any of a number of different kinds of bushes can create a screen to conceal the secret, serve as a most attractive addition to the landscape at the same time. Right now is a good time to put the plants in so they will begin doing their domestic job when their next growing season begins.

THE VARIETY OF bushes you use and where you place them depends, of course, on your own preferences and the location in your yard where the secret is kept; however, in most cases a sight-barrier planting should be one that will grow to fair height.

Your nursery garden center can provide good advice and instructions on the subject.

The American Association of Nurserymen has some planting and care suggestions that apply to most of the different shrubs you might select:

The first consideration, the nursery spokesmen advise, is the spacing of the plants, and this depends on the size they will attain when they are fully mature.

DIG INDIVIDUAL holes for each plant slightly larger than the root structure or container of the bush (much larger if the soil is tightly compacted). Prepare the soil generously with peat moss, leaf mold or other organic matter that will increase the moisture-holding capacity.

Set the plant in the center of the hole no deeper than it was in the nursery, then replace the soil, packing it snugly around the roots. Finally, water the soil well to bring it close to the roots.

Most sight-barrier shrubbery will need about the equivalent of an inch of rainfall every ten days during their growing season, but during dry spells they should be soaked thoroughly every seven to 10 days. Be sure the water reaches all the way down to the bottom roots.

YOU WILL WANT to feed the plants next spring with organic or commercial fertilizer, and your garden center or mailorder nurseryman can suggest the best type of plant food for your needs. Whatever you use, the food should be mixed in well with the soil around the plant's perimeter according to instructions on the package.

SHE'S GOT A SECRET, but it's well hidden. Handsome shrubbery creates a sight barrier and hides trash cans that would otherwise be an eye-sore. The bushes used here are young holly. And when they reach maturity the trash cans will be completely obscured. There are many other plantings that will do the job equally well.

Presenting The Other Side Of The Organic Gardening Argument

By EARL ARONSON

Last week we presented the views of an organic gardener. This week we present a report that says modern science has continuously provided new and improved methods and procedures for the safe production of quality food that contributes to better health rather than its deterioration.

The report, by Purdue University researchers, says, "For one to arrive at a general conclusion based on a one-time experience or observation is not practical and the information is not reliable. How could one know that the result would be the same the next time?"

SUPPOSE, THE report says, you wanted to determine the value of organic matter in a soil.

"If all the plants grown in the experiment were grown in soil rich in organic matter, how could we determine just how valuable the organic matter was to plant growth and vigor? And, do we know for sure that plants growing under similar conditions, but in soil low in organic matter would not grow as well or possibly even better than those growing in soil supplied with organic matter?

"To provide a control or comparison in the experiment, some plants must be grown in soil with little or no organic matter and some in a soil either naturally organic or one that has been enriched with organic matter. Organic content of a soil can be determined by laboratory analysis and recorded for each sample used in the experiment. All plants must be grown under identical environmental conditions with the only difference in treated or untreated plots being the organic matter.

"Plants growing in soil with little or no organic matter will serve as the control or comparison in the experiment."

IF PLANTS GROWING in organic enriched soil are taller, more sturdy and vigorous than those growing in soil with little or no organic matter, then we can conclude that organic matter does contribute to improved growth and development.

In reading gardening literature, the report suggests, one should read carefully and critically, considering whether the information given and the statements made were likely arrived at on the basis of research that would produce reliable information.

"Man," the report continued, "must intervene to assist nature in growing adequate, quality products . . . The gardener assists nature in producing abundant yields of top quality food by using modern, scientific agricultural methods. This often involves the use of biological, physical and chemical materials and methods.

"The important consideration is getting safe and productive results."

"Nature's way," the report said, "is not always the best way to produce food, especially where people could starve to death if nature's insect and disease 'control' system fails. Chemicals are nothing to be afraid of if they are used in the proper way . . .".

Autumn Should Be Clean-Up Time In Your Yard

By BILL MEACHEM

Fall is the time of year when you take a good look at the yard and want to turn around, shut the back door and go inside to watch the new television shows.

But if you can spare a little time outside now it will be a big help and timesaver next spring when the work rush starts.

The lawn is your first project.

Every gardening piece you read now will tell you to keep mowing right up until the grass stops growing. I wish I could say no to this, but I can't. The reason for mowing right to the end is to prevent the long grass from matting on the surface. Long, matted grass on the surface could smother the crown and roots of the little plants. The crown is that part of the plant from which both the blades and roots grow.

THIS IS ALSO another reason people say to remove any leaves from the lawn. They'll mat, too, and cause problems. There are a few lawn diseases which, believe it or not, grow during winter. These will flourish under matted grass or leaves.

But there's a solution to the last mowings and leaf removal. Use your rotary lawn mower for both jobs — at the same time. There is a suction coming from the mower blades and this will pick up the leaves and deposit them in the catcher bag, along with the clippings from the last mowings. It works — I do it all the time.

In fact, I was able to buy an oversized bag for the mower just for collecting the leaves in fall.

I KNOW A friend who uses his rotary mower to clean up his vegetable garden. He runs the mower over the plot without the catcher bag and leaves all the chopped-up plant stems on the surface to rot and help the soil. He claims that it makes the area look better and that his soil is improved because he tills in all the debris in the spring.

I have mentioned many times about using leaves collected in the fall to make a compost pile. When they are chopped up a little, which happens when they are collected with a rotary mower, they will decay faster than if left whole.

But, suppose you don't have the place for a compost pile, what then? You can take the chopped-up leaves and place them around your shrubs and other plants. When they are shredded like this they will not mat together as they would if left whole. In spring you can dig them into the soil — this is on-the-spot composting.

NOW, THERE IS some plant debris that you don't want to put on a compost pile. The remains of all your perennials should be destroyed. These are plants like peonies, day lilies, iris, Oriental poppies and chrysanthemums. These should be thrown out in the waste.

They could contain some diseases which you may not know you have. Certain of these diseases live over winter in the dead plant remains and start growing again in spring. Take no chances — throw them out.

Also, it would be a good idea to spray the soil around them — yes, the soil. A short burst from an aerosol spray will get any insects harboring there. Sprays also contain materials that can help control some diseases.

ROSES ARE PRUNED in the winter so don't do too much with them now. But, if you find some stems that grow exceptionally tall you can cut them down to about three feet high. Long stems whipping back and forth in the winter can loosen the roots and result in injury to the swollen stem at the base called the bud union — where the good rose was budded on to the wild rose understock. This is the weakest spot on the rose plant.

You could also spray your roses even if there is no active growth and only a few leaves remaining. Spray the stems because this is where some insects lay their eggs to hatch come spring.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Note the trees in your neighborhood that are showing autumn colors — and then plant one of your own.

✓Give Chrysanthemums a final feeding if their buds are still not showing color. If you haven't done so already, stake the plants securely.

✓Cut off those dead hydrangea blooms now, but most growers prefer to wait until late winter to do a real pruning job.

✓Snails and slugs become more active as cool weather arrives. Bait to stop the pests before they gain a foothold.

✓This is an excellent time to set out California natives. Check your nursery's varieties of ceanothus, fremontia, toyons and other fine California plants. Most of them are sun-loving, drought-resistant and need little care.

✓This month is a signal to get spring-blooming bulbs into the ground. Daffodils, freesias, ranunculus and anemones are but a few of the many easy-to-grow bulbs available at nurseries now.

✓October is a good time for planting lawns in most of California. The earlier you start the better. Your nurseryman can outline planting procedures and recommend the best type turf for your family's needs and the local conditions.

✓Dahlia stalks should be cut back to about six inches above the ground and let stand for 10 days. Then lift the bulb gently from the ground, hose off excess dirt and sun dry before storage. Tubers should not be separated until ready for planting in the spring.

✓Keep fallen leaves raked from your yard, so as not to smother the grass.

Teammates: Ranunculus And Anemone

It is recorded that ranunculus were grown for their beauty over 375 years ago.

In the early 1800s they were one of the most popular flowers grown in the European spring garden. Today ranunculus along with anemones are two of the most popular plants of the bulb world for gardeners in the West and Southwest of the United States.

Now with the newer and more vigorous strains of ranunculus available, millions of "Tecolote" Giant Ranunculus are harvested annually in Southern California alone. As a tribute to their stamina and vigor, these bulbs are exported around the world as well as providing enjoyment for gardeners throughout the United States.

THOSE WHO HAVE had the thrill of viewing the results of their plantings want to make it an annual event. As well as adding a rainbow of color to the garden, ranunculus make an excellent cut flower.

Bring spring beauty indoors. Just imagine: one bulb is capable of providing from 50 to 70 flowers — plenty for garden beauty and also cutting.

Available for your pleasure today, ranunculus come in many shades; red, yellow, pink, gold, rose, white and orange, as well as a picotee (bi-color) mixture which is relatively new to the garden scene.

RANUNCULUS WHEN planted one inch deep and eight inches apart will create one of the most colorful borders any garden can behold. These plants reach a height up to 18 to 24 inches and will produce armloads of colorful florist type blooms for over a five to six week period.

This is where the "Tecolote" Anemones come in!

Being of the same family as ranunculus, only lower growing, they are the perfect companion to plant with your ranunculus. Anemones also bloom over a five to eight week period and along with ranunculus make excellent cut flowers.

Enjoy the broad spectrum of colors ranging from blue, violet, red, pink and white, both as color accents in your garden and as a focal point in arrangements.

GROWING RANUNCULUS and anemones to perfection is very easy!

Plant the bulbs in the fall, watch and water in the winter and enjoy the rainbow of color during March and April. There is absolutely nothing else in the gardening world that is as easy to grow or gives you so much for your money as do ranunculus and anemones.

The time to plant is September to January in our mild climate and in the spring where there are freezing winters.

You should select your bulbs early while there still is a good supply to choose from, but hold off planting until the weather has cooled before planting.

IF YOU'RE NEW to this area, you may wonder why you have not heard of either ranunculus or anemones. The reason for this is simple and easy to explain. Neither of these items are winter hardy, so they cannot be planted and grown in the fall in climates where low freezing temperatures occur.

However, the weather conditions here are ideal for these two outstanding bulbs and in our climate they easily grow to perfection. As a matter of fact, because of these ideal climatic conditions, the world's largest commercial planting of ranunculus and anemones is found in Southern California.

This is the famous Tecolote Ranch located near Oceanside, California where each year over 100 acres are devoted to these two crops alone. During March and April people driving along the Pacific Coast Highway are thrilled by the wave upon wave of exciting color that meets the eye when the fields are in full bloom.

Daffodils Are A Must In Your Bulb Garden

Be sure to include daffodil bulbs in your fall planting kit.

Plenty of these bulbs are now available in many varieties at nurseries througout Marin.

Daffodils are a big favorite in the California — they are permanent, increasing from year to year; can stand cold and heat and are so useful in many garden situations: in containers, display beds, borders or under trees and shrubs.

DAFFODILS HAVE fascinating flower forms along with elegant colors. The colors are basically yellow and white, but there are many variations of orange, red, apricot, pink and cream.

The California Association of Nurserymen recommends you check with your nursery for the different classes of daffodils.

THE MOST FAMOUS of all early blooming daffodils is the King Alfred, with its yellow trumpet.

Then there's Golden Dawn, with clusters of yellow and flame orange flowers; Riotus is a huge double; February Gold has star shaped petals with a fluted orange trumpet and Fortune is a large-cupped yellow beauty with a semi-long golden-orange trumpet.

There are also mid-season and late season daffodils as well.

Landscaping Through Mail

Most home owners spend considerable time in the selection of their lot and plans for their home and furnishings.

However, an equal share of planning time should be devoted to the landscaping of their home grounds. A well developed landscaping plan adds considerably to the value of a property.

You can enroll now in Pennsylvania State University's correspondence course on Landscape Planning and be prepared, when spring arrives, to put your developed plans into action.

To enroll in the course write to Box 5000, University Park, Pa., 16802 and request "Landscaping." Enclose your check in the amount of $4.25, payable to Penn State.

A 'Human Libber,' Valerie Harper Has An Eye On Her Life

By ARTHUR UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

You are invited to the Oct. 28 wedding of Rhoda Morgenstern and Joe Gerard . . . on CBS.

Yes, Mary Tyler Moore's upstairs neighbor, who migrated back to New York only three weeks ago ("Rhoda," Mondays, Channels 5 and 10 9:30-10 p.m.) has found a mate.

Star Valerie Harper is only too happy to share her home and her ratings ("Rhoda" jumped into the number one spot in her first week on the air) with actor David Groh, who plays her husband. Julie Kavner plays her sister Brenda and Nancy Walker (on off days when she's not Rock Hudson's maid or selling paper towels plays Mother Ida.

In Los Angeles, where the MTM Enterprises crew has just finished the special one-hour marriage show (which, by the way, also will feature most of the Mary Tyler Moore cast), Valerie Harper is resting up for a couple of weeks before heading back to the sound stage for more "Rhoda."

According to Valerie, she is not so different from Rhoda.

"I call on a lot from my own life," she says. "But, I guess I am not as funny a person as Rhoda . . . or as free. I'm working on it but Rhoda is very free. That's what I like about her — she's the person who says the unsayable. I'm getting better — but I must admit that I am a little more uptight than Rhoda. Otherwise I guess it's me.

"I, too, have a weight problem. When I started on the 'Mary Tyler Moore' show I weighed about 150, then lost about 30 pounds."

In private life Valerie Harper is Mrs. Richard Schaal. Her husband is an actor and director very much involved in his own theater group in Los Angeles. They both studied and acted with Paul Sills of "Second City" and his mother, the famous coach, Viola Spolin. Three-time Emmy winner Valerie Harper also has been a ballet dancer.

Has the instantaneous success of "Rhoda" changed the daily life of Valerie Harper? "Well, we were never really poor. Dick always has managed to work as an actor. We've been down to very little money but we were never hurting hurting.

"Now, we have a business manager and all that — I feel like a teen-ager again with an allowance. It's less than I used to give myself.

"And we bought a house in Westwood. Not a mansion — a house with neighbors, and we can walk to the rest of the village. We just hated the idea of living in a canyon and depending upon a car.

WEDDING INVITATION — Valerie Harper, Mary Tyler Moore's old upstairs neighbor, will be getting married Oct. 28 on her own show, "Rhoda," shown Mondays on CBS. That's Channels 5 and 10.

"Dick's daughter by an earlier marriage lives with us — she's 20 . . ."

Rhoda is a rather liberated character. Why is she getting married?

"Well, at first I resented that as a compromise. But then I realized — Rhoda would want to be married. She's not the swinging singles type — and when she meets the right guy, she wants a wedding and all that."

Is Valerie Harper a liberated woman?

"I'm not sure what that means. I'm ever thankful to 'MS' Magazine — I read it and think it's fabulous. I've given 25 subscriptions for Christmas. And I can remember being absolutely altered by Germaine Greer's book. And in my own way I think I'm working daily at my consciousness being raised. Sure I'm a libber — a human libber, though.

"Don't forget that in the acting profession, males and females operate on the same level — we're all kind of pieces of meat. We're always being used — so there's a common bond. Also no man can fill my job. So, I believe — but I haven't joined any organization.

"Maybe I ought to?" Miss Harper often asks questions of herself, of anybody around her.

What comes after "Rhoda"?

"I'd like to dance again. And do many different things. I've been offered many roles like Rhoda, but I'd be a fool to do her anywhere but on this show. For one thing, she could never be as well written as she is by our own writers. But, I've learned that Broadway is not the only place for talent. There's just as much artistry and probably more rewards in television and movies."

Rhoda Morgenstern is Jewish. Valerie Harper is not. Has playing the role made her feel more Jewish?

"There's a lot of Gittl (of 'Two for the Seesaw') in my Rhoda. I saw Anne Bancroft in it many years ago. But I guess I have an identity crisis because I feel Jewish and I feel Italian and I am neither. But, having lived in New York for a long time, I think maybe I'm more Zionist than a lot of Jewish people I know, but, no question about it — I've never paid any dues. I've never faced exclusion, discrimination.

"We'd all be so much happier, though, if we all just danced together in the garden."

There'll be dancing in the garden . . . and probably in the streets as well . . . at the Morgenstern house on Oct. 28 when Rhoda marries her fellow in what may turn out to be the most publicized domestic event on television since Lucy had her baby. And they're dancing right now at MTM enterprises . . . over the phenomenal ratings.

Masterpiece Theatre Brings Ads To PBS

I-J Special Report

Under Federal statutes, no advertising of any kind is permitted on public television. So what has Masterpiece Theatre come up with on PBS? A new Lord Peter Wimsey detective series set almost entirely in an advertising agency.

But don't call the FCC. It's not the typical Madison Avenue agency. It's a London agency of the 1930s, a time when not only the TV commercial but television itself had not yet arrived into the nation's living rooms.

So while advertising does rear its head as an integral clue in "Murder Must Advertise," the ad in question was designed for newspapers. Public TV remains sacrosanct.

The fourth BBC-produced Lord Wimsey series to be televised in this country, "Murder Must Advertise" will launch the new fall season on the Mobil-funded Masterpiece Theatre. With Ian Carmichael again portraying writer Dorothy L. Sayers' aristocratic amateur sleuth, the four-part series will be aired over Channel 9 Sunday evenings at 8:30 P.M. beginning tomorrow. Alistair Cooke will be on hand, as usual, as program host and narrator.

Using an advertising agency as a backdrop for "Murder Must Advertise" was a natural for the author. She herself worked several years in a London agency. Benson's. Viewers, as a result, can be certain the facts in "Murder Must Advertise" are authentic. The original story, in fact, is considered one of the best novels ever written about the advertising profession.

In the story the head of an agency is confronted with the murder of an employee. He hires a detective to join his firm as a copywriter, not knowing the detective is really Lord Wimsey in disguise. With his usual aplomb and the assistance of Chief Inspector Parker, the whimsical Wimsey ties the murder into a drug-smuggling ring operating out of the agency and finally, after facing death himself, unmasks the killer.

Critics have termed previous Wimsey mysteries on Masterpiece Theatre as "lovely stuff," marked by "super performances and period charm." Carmicahel's enactment of Wimsey was described as having "exactly the right outward touch of aristocratic frivolity, but more than the ability to suggest the steel underneath."

Assassinated Kennedy Brothers To Be Portrayed In A Special

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The assassinated Kennedy brothers will be portrayed for the first time in a dramatic television story when "The Missiles of October" is telecast Dec. 18.

Producer Irv Wilson and playwright Stanley R. Greenberg choose to call their three-hour drama of the Cuban missile crisis "theater of fact."

In addition to John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy such other figures as Khrushchev, Adlai Stevenson, Dean Rusk and Pierre Salinger are represented on screen.

Martin Sheen, the brilliant young actor who won accolades last season in "The Execution of Private Slovik," portrays Bobby Kennedy, a man he knew and loved.

"I met him several times," Sheen recalled. "And I was a campaign worker for Bobby in his 1964 senatorial election in New York. I followed every step of his career closely and watched all his television appearances.

ROBERT KENNEDY
To be portrayed

"Portraying him in this show I used all his mannerisms and voice inflections, including the flat Boston-New England accent."

Sheen spoke a few words that were unmistakably Kennedy patois. But his eyes were sad. He didn't smile.

"I did everything I could in my performance to sound and behave like Robert Kennedy," he said. "This was a labor of love. I wanted to play President Kennedy originally, but I am too short and too young.

"The role went to William Devane.

"They'd have had to surround me with shorter actors. JFK was 6-foot-1 and Bobby was only 5-foot-10." Sheen is at least two inches shorter than the late senator.

"The missile crisis was the high point of the Kennedy administration. It was certainly the most dramatic moment of his presidency. But it was Bobby who steered the course away from bombing Cuba in favor of confrontation with the blockade."

Sheen read three books dealing with the crisis — by RFK, David Powers and Ted Sorenson.

"They all pretty much agree on what each man said and did during meetings and making decisions," Sheen said. "It was the only time Bobby and the President really clashed. Bobby wanted to get rid of Adali Stevenson. The President refused. Bobby backed down. This is all in the script. And in his book Bobby admits his mistake.

"So far as I know this is the first time the Kennedy brothers have been portrayed on the tube. I hope the family understands the seriousness of our intent and agree that both men are honestly portrayed."

Personally Sheen is attuned to the Kennedy family. His politics are precisely those of the brothers.

Yet he would just as quickly play Richard M. Nixon, whom he abhors, should a dynamite script dealing with the ex-president he offered him.

"You play any role out of love for your craft and yourself," Sheen said. "Even if I'm unsympathetic to Nixon, I'd get involved with the role emotionally and play it as honestly as I have Bobby Kennedy. I would have the same conviction that I do in 'The Missiles of October.' "

Perhaps. But it would not be a labor of love.

Bit Parts: Jack Jones will star in an hour-long musical special for television in November . . . Dennis Weaver was named first national chairman for the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve's annual "Toys for Tots" drive . . . Polly Bergen, away from acting roles for two years, stars in "The Cruise," an ABC-TV Movie of the Week.

Score for Redford

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Oscar winner Henry Mancini has signed with producer-director George Roy Hill to compose the musical score for "The Great Waldo Pepper" starring Robert Redford.

DICK CLARK, host of the longest-running sock hop of them all — "American Bandstand" — is seen at 11:30 a.m. Saturdays on Channels 7 and 11.

Salmi Is No Super Star, But In Finland He's A Hero

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Albert Salmi, so far as he knows, is the only prominent actor in the world of Finnish extraction — and he may be seen weekly co-starring in the new "Petrocelli" series.

A familiar face in movies and television, Salmi is no super star and probably never will be. But in Finland he is a hero.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., where he was reared in what he calls a Finnish ghetto, Salmi now lives with his wife Roberta and daughters Elizabeth, 10, and Jennifer, 9, in Brentwood, a fancy Los Angeles suburb.

Salmi and Roberta admire genuine antique furniture, selecting every piece with care. Their home is a showcase of excellent furnishings.

The actor is particularly fond of an ancient chest which he bought in New York. It is a duplicate of one on display in the Tower of London. On a trip to England he examined the original and found it wasn't in as good shape as his own.

The Salmis' Dutch-English house is rustic in appearance with leaded glass window panes and high beamed ceilings. His den includes a polished wood bar and cozy fireplace.

It is colorfully decorated with old playbills from Salmi's theatrical appearances, along with a rich collection of pewter mugs. In one corner an ornate umbrella stand holds 18 old and beautiful walking sticks he has collected over the years in various countries.

But in order to star in the new NBC-TV adventure series it was necessary for Salmi to move away from his comfortable surroundings to live six months a year in a hotel room in Tucson, Ariz.

That's where the "Petrocelli" show is filmed on location.

There is no opportunity to spend his weekends at home because the series films six days a week. During the summer Roberta and the girls spent their vacation with Salmi, but now they are back in school.

Live-in help allows Roberta to visit her husband for four or five days at a stretch, especially when Salmi has a light schedule.

Most of the time he works only three or four days of the week, for five or six hours at a stretch. But he must be on call at all times.

He fills his free hours by fishing in local streams for bass and catfish, swimming in the hotel pool and polishing his formidable tennis game at a local tennis club.

Salmi is also free for long days of sight-seeing and shopping for his precious antiques, collecting old firearms and branding irons.

It is an altogether different life from what he is accustomed to back in Brentwood where he and Roberta often host small dinner parties for their friends. Once a year they throw an enormous party for as many as 150 acquaintances as a means of repaying social obligations.

Weekends at home are devoted to Elizabeth and Jennifer.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BARBARA WALTERS

Which has been your most memorable interview, and which has had the most lasting effect on your personal life?—Lillian Sheps, Reno, Nev.

● It was one of the first I did when I began on the "Today" program. I interviewed deaf-blind poet Robert Smithdas, who teaches those with similar handicaps at a training center and home in Brooklyn. He's the first deaf-blind person to have earned a master's degree. We communicated by his putting his thumb on my lips. No celebrity, politician or leader I have ever interviewed moved me as much as that meeting with Robert Smithdas. More than his courage, I was impressed with his humor.

FOR MICHAEL DOUGLAS,
star of "The Streets of San Francisco"

When were you first aware you were the son of a celebrity? —Betty G., Kingsport, Tenn.

● At six. We were visiting my father, who was making a film in Paris. There were other children on the plane, but when we got off, all the photographers made a mad rush toward me. They asked my dad to lift me up and kiss me, which he did. I remember being blinded by all those flashbulbs and asking my dad what the funny lights were.

FOR ANN LANDERS

I've heard that you and your twin sister, who does the "Dear Abby" column, haven't spoken for years. If you do talk, do you ask each other for help on reader problems?—Mrs. J.B., Buffalo, N.Y.

● My twin sister Abigail Van Buren and I have a very good relationship, in spite of constant rumors to the contrary by people who love controversy. We do not counsel one another, however, and keep our work out of our social and family lives.

FOR BILL HUDSON of the Hudson Brothers

Is Hudson your real name, or were you inspired by Rock Hudson?—R. Jeffries, Mansfield, Ohio

● Hudson is our real name. We weren't inspired by Rock, and only met him once, on the MGM lot, where we were introduced by my uncle Keenan Wynn. The one who did inspire us was Elvis Presley (I was six, and my brothers were four and two, when we saw him at a concert). After that my mother bought us ukes and drums, and that's when we got started.

FOR LORETTA LYNN, singer

Is it true you were married at the age of 14?—Kelly Huenergardt, Amarillo, Texas

● Absolutely. I was married right before my 14th birthday to Mooney Lynn. Mooney is five years older than I am and was fresh out of the service when we met. He worked on farms and was a garage mechanic. He started me on my career by persuading the manager of a local club to hire me. Mooney's a better manager than he was a mechanic. Look what's happened to me since then!

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Whatever happened to the fabled millions that Mafia chief Frank Costello was said to have accumulated during his lifetime?—Frances Scott, San Francisco, Calif.

● The IRS would like to know the answer to that too! According to Leonard Katz, author of "Uncle Frank," a biography of the late gangster (which Anthony Quinn announced he'll make into a movie), no one knows what happened to all his wealth. He died intestate. He and his wife Bobbie were childless. Mrs. Costello, who claims she's flat broke, now lives with her brother in New Orleans. The late Mafia boss had a passion for collecting gold watches and gold cuff links—he had thousands of them. At the height of his power, he named judges to the bench, owned real estate on Wall Street, gambling casinos in New Orleans and Las Vegas, and was reputed to be the head man in the national gambling empire.

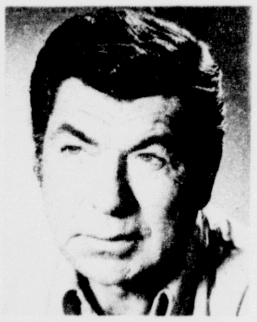
Costello

Quinn

FOR MARY BACON, jockey

I'm 12. Please tell me what training I need to become a lady jockey like you.—Cindy Love, Elmendorf, Texas

● First, learn to ride at your local stable. When you're 16, go to the track and get a job walking or grooming horses. Your trainer will teach you to gallop horses. By this time you'll know if you want to make riding your career (it takes from one to three years). It's fun—till you break that first bone. And remember: Even though you're a man on the horse, be a lady when you're on your own two feet.



FOR CLAUDE AKINS, star of "Movin' On"

Is it harder to play a bad guy than a good guy?—Dan Trent, Utica, N.Y.

● No, it's almost impossible to sneer badly. But try smiling for a photograph and you'll get an idea how hard it is to act the good guy!

FOR JERRY STILLER

Why don't you and Anne Meara have your own TV show?—Larry Freund, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Just give us the chance, and we'll break the speed record as we run to accept! Unfortunately, we have not yet had an offer that we could not refuse. We've made several pilots together, but they never made it to the series stage. Our dream is to do a variety talk show, and if that ever happens, Anne has given me her solemn promise that she'll let me get one word in at some point during each show.

FOR GOV. RONALD REAGAN of California

If you should decide not to continue in politics, would you consider returning to acting? If not, what would you do?—Dick Mack, San Leandro, Calif.

● I left my film and TV career for good when I entered public service as governor. Two things I do plan after I leave office are to speak on college campuses and do the "mashed potato" circuit to try to dispell some social and economic myths that are hurting our country. And, if I have time, I'd like to do some ranching too.

Amy Vanderbilt on the Lighter Side of Being "Commissioner of Etiquette"

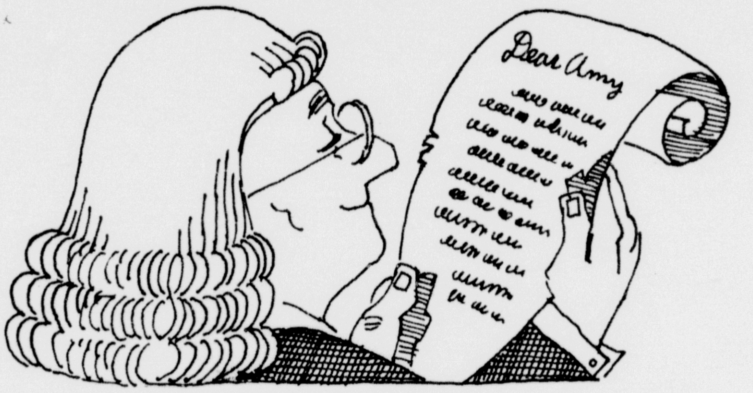
Recently, I received a letter from a reader whose letterhead announced him as Lucifer D. Satan. It read as follows:

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt,
>
> In the event that I will be taking a long trip to Heaven over the holidays, I will be faced with a problem. How do I address the King, saints and all of the other Heavenly beings? I do attain a different set of manners in my humble abode and am not familiar with the situation of life in Heaven. Could you please send me some helpful hints on how to act in the presence of the Heavenites?
>
> Fashion is another problem. In light of the fact that you have much knowledge of current fashions, what is the latest fad in Heaven? I know that I will have to buy a whole new wardrobe, but I don't know what to buy. Please send me some information on fashions too. Thank you for your time and help.

His name was signed with red ink.

I don't know whether Mr. Satan is a put-on artist or simply some strange variety of kook. But the point is, etiquette, like the prune, can be funny. And, in the course of my career as an etiquette authority, I have been on the receiving end of a fair number of funny (either intentionally or unintentionally) stories.

A very funny question from a reader was once quoted in FAMILY WEEKLY. It read as follows:



"How do I address the King, saints and all of the other Heavenly beings?"

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt;
>
> I'm an unmarried mother, but that's not my problem. I don't know about correct table setting. Can you help me? —A.B.

One is not born with a sense of etiquette, of course, and some of the most embarrassing gaffs are made by children—including (I'll admit it!) my own.

Once I was traveling with my children in Denmark. We were invited to a tea given by a charming woman who had once been the premiere danseuse of the Danish Royal Ballet. A royal princess was to be at the tea. I explained to my children that they were to be on their best behavior and that one does not direct questions to royalty except in the third person—for example, "Would Your Royal Highness like to have a cookie?" My middle son practiced this awkward circumlocution all afternoon. When we got to the tea, he looked around for the royal princess, but was told that the princess couldn't be there because of an accident. My young son was then presented to a baroness. His disappointment showed in his face. "You mean you're just a baroness?" he blurted.

I do get some strange mail from abroad. This amusing letter came from England in response to a question of mine as to why people feel they must say, "Please excuse me; I want to wash my hands," instead of expressing their more basic need quite frankly.

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt:
>
> I want to tell you about an instance of false modesty that almost caused a respectable middle-aged married man to be picked up by the police. The man I refer to was visiting my apartment. When he arrived, he said something about his car, held up his hands with a few grease marks on them, and asked where he could wash them. I directed him to the kitchen. He seemed a little surprised, but I thought nothing of it.
> Soon afterward, we were shocked by the arrival of the police. A neighbor had called and reported seeing a man in the dark just inside the iron gate that leads to the back of the building. The neighbor didn't know if the man was a prowler, a Peeping Tom or an exhibitionist—but he certainly was not acting properly! It took us a while to put two and two together – but when we did, we all had a good laugh (all, that is, except the disgruntled policemen).

Of course there are letters that come to me that I can't answer, even with the help of a big law firm, a friendly psychiatrist who helps me or other experts. Here is one:

> I have a friend whose sister goes by her first husband's name. She divorced him and was married twice afterward and then lived with a man for many years before he died. Now she goes to Florida with another man and goes by his name in Florida. Otherwise, she signs everything with her first husband's name. Is this legal? What name should she go by? It is hard to know how to introduce her. Also, she has taken another first name because she doesn't like her own. It is a mess. Her sister thinks it is wonderful that she is having such a good time. I think it is terrible. Also, this person I'm writing about drinks and smokes.

Some letters from mothers are very delicate.

> My daughter is now 12 years old and started maturing quite early. I started her shaving her legs and under her arms when she was about nine. I bought her an electric shaver to take care of herself but sometimes she neglects to do so voluntarily. Sometimes my husband tells her to go shave. Do you think it is proper for the father to tell a girl to go shave?

> We are arguing over the age of an old maid. We say the age for an old maid is 25. They say 30. Please answer as it is important.

Or how about this one?

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt,
>
> When we purchased our home, the real estate agent showed us an area that he referred to as the "butler's pantry." We are thinking of acquiring a butler and wonder how to install him in this pantry.

And a mother gets her syntax a little confused in this one:

> My daughter is being married. As I paid much more than I feel like I can afford to buy the most beautiful gown, I would like for everyone to have the privilege to see it walk down the aisle. Please advise.

Perhaps the classic funny question that I received is this:

> My husband and I are always arguing about which side he should walk on when we are out. To settle the argument, please tell me the proper method of street walking.

And I can't end without this rather strange letter from a New Jersey man:

> Dear Miss Vanderbilt,
>
> Please inform me on your public affairs.
>
> Very truly yours, etc.

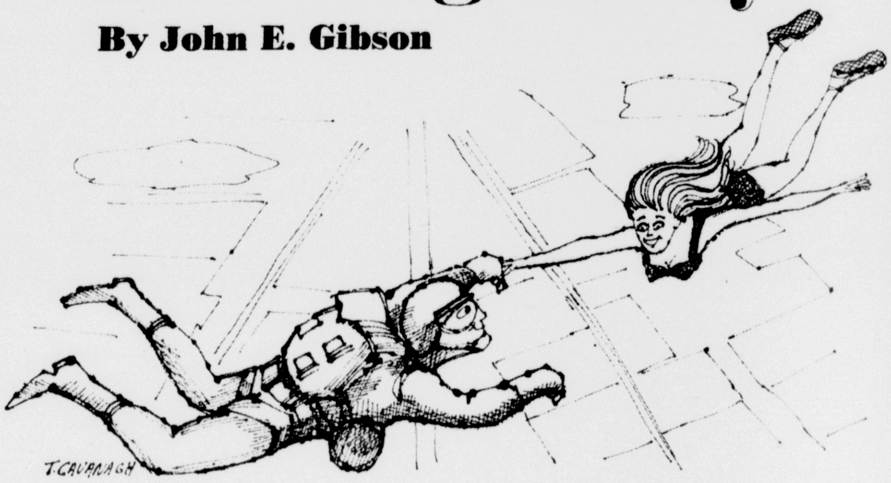
With Their Money...
With Their Lives...

What Makes People Live Dangerously?

By John E. Gibson



True or False: People who risk their lives in sports that involve extreme hazards—sky-diving, etc. —are the most susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex.
(See number 1)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who risk their lives in sports that involve extreme hazards – sky-diving, etc.—are the most susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex.

2. People will take greater risks when they've been drinking than when they're cold sober.

3. People are willing to take the biggest risks when they are feeling discouraged and depressed because they figure "What have I got to lose?"

4. People with the best balanced personalities are the least prone to risk-taking.

5. If you're driving all day on a trip, there is a three-hour period when you're most likely to take chances you shouldn't and thereby run the greatest risk of accident.

ANSWERS

1. False—as shown by a psychological study of participants in extremely high-risk sports done at the University of British Columbia. Investigators found—after administering a battery of personality tests—that devotees of such extremely hazardous pursuits were less susceptible than others to the charms of the opposite sex. One might say that they tended to prefer courting danger to courting love.

2. True—however, the type of liquor a person has been drinking plays a significant role in determining how willing he is to take chances. In one university study, for example, it was found that subjects "who were given bourbon took significantly more risks than those given vodka." The findings of other investigators indicate that the person who's been drinking doesn't actually think of himself as willing to take greater chances than he would if he were sober, but the liquor causes him to perceive various actions as less risky than they really are.

3. False. Studies of hundreds of men and women from various walks of life, conducted at the Institute of Psychiatry, University of London, show that people who are feeling depressed tend to be the most cautious where risk-taking is concerned.

4. False. Studies show that people who are cautious in the extreme, who are afraid to take risks even if the odds are clearly in their favor, tend to be afraid of life itself—which, of course, is also a gamble. They do not, needless to say, rank among the best balanced personalities. Neither do those at the other end of the pole, who regard taking high risks and courting chancy situations as a way of life. The best balanced personality, psychologists have found, is likely to follow a middle path between these extremes.

5. True—according to findings of the Medical Research Council, Applied Psychology Research Unit, Cambridge (England), which showed that for an all-day driving period – 12 hours—"risky maneuvers were found to be initiated 50 percent more often during the last three hours." fw

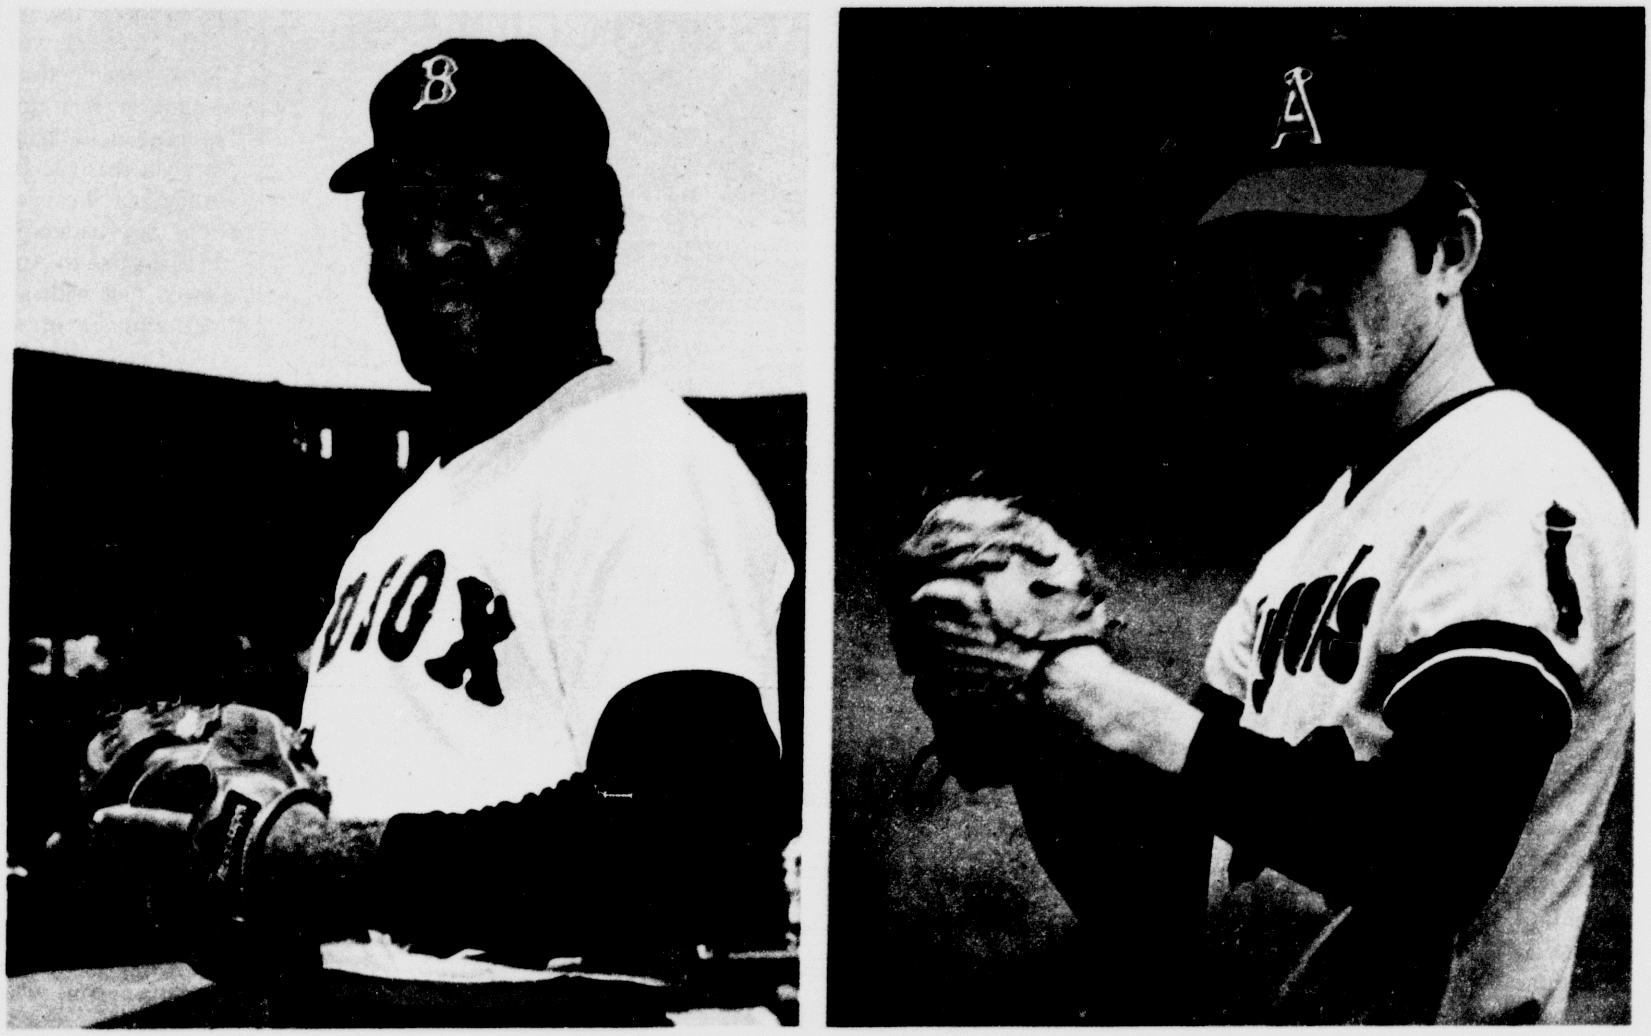
How Baseball's Best Hitters Rate The Best Pitchers



The American League's Best, Luis Tiant, and Its Fastest, Nolan Ryan.
In the National League, the kingpins are Andy Messersmith (see our cover) and Tom Seaver (fastest).

Last March 31, a FAMILY WEEKLY panel of top major-league pitchers compiled hypothetical lineups of the batters they would least like to face. With the pennant playoffs now in full swing in both the National and American leagues, and the opening game of the 71st World Series only a few days off, FAMILY WEEKLY has turned to big-gun batters to evaluate the toughest pitchers and rate them in various categories of effectiveness.

Seven top hitters from each league comprise the FAMILY WEEKLY panel, listed elsewhere on these pages.

Here's how the panelists rated the top pitchers in the major leagues:

BEST OVERALL

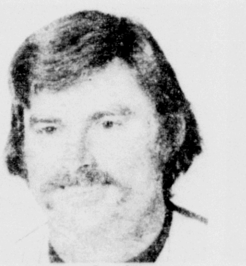
Ironically, both Tiant and Messersmith came to their present clubs labeled questionable. After winning 21 games and posting a league-leading 1.60 earned-run average for Cleveland in 1968, Tiant faded to the minor leagues by 1971. He eventually recaptured his effectiveness and was brought back to the majors by the Red Sox, whose mainstay he has been for the past three years. Now 34 years old, the 5-11, 190-pound native of Havana, Cuba, is a master of deception. On the mound he rarely even looks at a batter, but gazes skyward, all around him, to either side—everywhere but straight ahead. Then, from behind a high leg kick and one or two head feints, he delivers a bewildering assortment of pitches.

Last August 23, Tiant—son of another Luis Tiant who was a top pitcher in the Negro National League a quarter-century ago—became the first pitcher to reach the 20-victory mark in the majors this year. Number 20 was a sparkling six-hit, 3-0 shutout over the defending world-champion Oakland A's. Tiant also won 20 for Boston in 1973.

A 6-1, 200-pound, 29-year-old from Toms River, N. J., John Alexander (Andy) Messersmith came to the Dodgers from the California Angels in a pre-1973 season trade. Andy won 20 games for the Angels in 1971, but the former pitching star at the University of California never fulfilled all the promise that was expected of him in the American League.

With the Dodgers, however, Messersmith struck out the first six Philadelphia batters he faced in one of his first 1973 appearances and has gone on from there. Combining a powerful fast ball and a change-up that is regarded as the best by far in the senior circuit, Andy has recorded low earned-run averages and low hit yields in each of the last two seasons. He was the National League's starting pitcher in the 1974 All-Star Game.



Steve Carlton

Tom Seaver

Don Sutton

BEST FAST BALL

No one today throws a ball as hard as Nolan Ryan, the California Angels' 27-year-old flame-throwing right-hander, and perhaps no one ever did. All the American League batters on our panel conceded that Ryan threw the fastest pitches they faced all year. In 1974 Ryan became the first major-league pitcher to strike out more than 300 batters for three straight seasons. He fanned an American League record 19 Red Sox batters in one nine-inning game in August and followed that with a 19-strikeout performance in an 11-inning game against Detroit—which he lost, 1-0.

Despite a below-par 1974 season, Tom Seaver, a two-time Cy Young Award winner as the top pitcher in the National League, still drew the nod from the majority of our NL hitting panelists as the hardest thrower in the league. Seaver, 30, an eight-year veteran with the New York Mets, throws a rising fast ball that, in the words of Mike Schmidt, the slugging third baseman of the Phillies, "comes at you belt high and winds up at your letters with plenty of smoke on it."

BEST CURVE BALL

Bert Blyleven of the Minnesota Twins was a virtually unanimous choice among our panelists as the league's top curve-baller. Rod Carew, who has won four AL batting championships, says his Dutch-born teammate "has the best breaking ball in the league. It's common knowledge." Carew says that Gaylord Perry of Cleveland throws the best curve ball among the opponents he faces. But Blyleven, who won 20 games for Minnesota in 1973, was the choice of the rest of our panel. Jeff Burroughs, the strapping young outfield star of the Texas Rangers, says Blyleven's curve is "hard and fast, with a quick break about three-quarters of the way down toward the plate."

The Dodger pitching staff customarily ranks among the

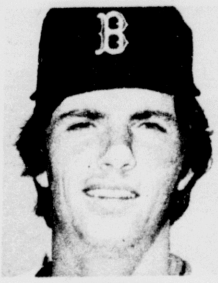
Messersmith and Cuellar Display Best Change of Pace



Bill Lee

Jim Kaat

best in the National League. This year, Messersmith has drawn most of the raves, but Dodger Don Sutton has not been overlooked. According to our seven-man NL panel, the handsome nine-year NL veteran throws the best curve ball in the league.

Others whose curve balls were rated highly in the NL were Lynn McGlothen of the St. Louis Cardinals, Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh and Jack Billingham of Cincinnati. But Sutton's curve was the consensus choice. Richie Zisk of the Pirates says of the Dodger right-hander's breaking delivery: "You can practically hear it speaking to you. It's a quick one, and it bites."

BEST CHANGE OF PACE

Andy Messersmith throws a change of pace that is the scourge of the NL. It is his best pitch, according to the batters who face him. "His fast ball is very good too," says Ralph Garr, Atlanta's 1974 NL batting champion. "But he sets up his change-up with his fast ball. He gets this change over all the time, and he throws it with exactly the same motion as he does his fast one. Messersmith's change is pretty fast, too–about three-quarters as fast as his regular fast ball."

In the American League, Gaylord Perry, Luis Tiant and John Hiller, the classy left-handed relief specialist for the Detroit Tigers, were praised for their change-ups. But overall, the nod went to Mike Cuellar, the Baltimore Oriole southpaw, for his deceptive change curve. "It goes up before it finally breaks down over the plate," says New York Yankee outfielder Bobby Murcer, "and Cuellar throws it with different speeds and different breaks. All of them are tough to hit."

BEST MOVE TO FIRST

Bill Lee of Boston, one of the best left-handers in the AL, was rated tops at keeping base runners on first. Others mentioned in the AL were Ken Holtzman of Oakland and Clyde Wright, who are also left-handers.

Rod Carew cites Steve Busby, the young right-hander of the Kansas City Royals, who has pitched two no-hit games in his two-year major-league career, for his move to first. Busby is the only righty mentioned in this category by our AL panel.

One of the big stories this past season was Lou Brock's chase of the single-season record for stolen bases. This makes Brock a man to be listened to on the subject of pick-off artists. Brock mentions Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Jim Barr of San Francisco and Wayne Twitchell of Philadelphia among those who tend to inhibit his all-out stealing style.

Our panel of top batters rated these four pitchers best in two additional categories:

American League

Best move to first
Bill Lee, Boston Red Sox left-hander

Best fielder
Jim Kaat, Chicago White Sox left-hander

National League

Best move to first
Dick Ruthven, Philadelphia Phillies' right-hander

Best fielder
Mike Marshall, Los Angeles Dodgers

BEST FIELDER

Over the years, veteran Jim Kaat in the American League has dominated the fielding statistics. Kaat, a 36-year-old left-hander who spent nearly 15 seasons with Minnesota and was dealt to the Chicago White Sox late in the '73 campaign, draws the praise of our AL panelists. "When he pitches, his team has an extra infielder in the lineup," says Baltimore's Brooks Robinson, himself a master of defense. "Kaat is excellent at getting off the mound to field bunts, covers first very well, and never seems to make a defensive mistake."

According to our experts, the best fielding pitcher in the NL is Mike Marshall of Los Angeles, who established new standards this season for appearances by a relief pitcher. A scholarly doctoral candidate at Michigan State, the mustachioed Marshall throws one of the most baffling screwballs in the game, which results in opposing batters rapping a lot of grounders to him or to members of the Dodger infield. "He's a terrific fielder," says Mike Schmidt. "That's just another way he has of beating you. He can start the pitcher-to-second-to-first double play as well as anybody, and he's quick off the mound to cover first. His pitching is tough enough, but he really works on his fielding."

BEST RIGHT-HANDER

Luis Tiant of Boston edged Nolan Ryan in the American League balloting, as he did in the "best overall pitcher" category. Blyleven of Minnesota was the only other AL right-hander mentioned, though Baltimore's Jim Palmer, who sat out much of 1974 with an ailing arm, drew praise for his past efforts, including four consecutive 20-victory seasons, 1970-73.

Los Angeles' Messersmith, also cited as the NL's best overall, was the choice as best right-hander in that circuit. Messersmith's two Dodger teammates on our panel, first baseman Steve Garvey and center fielder Jim Wynn, tabbed Tom Seaver of the Mets and Lynn McGlothen of the Cardinals as the toughest righties the Dodgers faced this year.

Though he hasn't duplicated his sensational 24-8 season as a 22-year-old in 1971, Blue at 25 has become a more mature moundsman, our American League panelists point out. "He may not be as fast as he was a couple of years ago," says Bobby Grich, the Orioles' second baseman, "but he still throws very hard, and he mixes up his pitches better than he did in the past."

Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies was rated the top NL southpaw. "He throws very hard and has an excellent curve and slider too," says Pittsburgh's Richie Zisk, a top hitter to all fields. "He sets up right-handed hitters like me with his slider. The last seven or eight feet down to the plate it moves a few inches in on your fists and makes it very tough to handle."

Other senior-circuit southpaws who drew special praise were Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Don Gullett of the Cincinnati Reds and Jerry Reuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "I don't think Matlack is as good yet as he's going to be," says Steve Garvey of the Mets' 24-year-old lefty. "He has the ability to work in tight to the hitters. He needs to improve his confidence."

Why you should buy a chain saw from a company that cuts it with lumberjacks.

Homelite is the largest maker of professional chain saws in America.

Which is a great reason to buy their new homeowner's saw.

Because it just makes sense that the company that can satisfy the demands of the professional logger can make a saw to meet the needs of the average homeowner.

And a perfect example of that is the new Homelite XL which sells for under $100.

The XL has a tough, lightweight engine which allows you to feel like a lumberjack without requiring that you be built like one. It also features an all-weather ignition system which makes for fast starts. And automatic chain oiling. For $99.95, the new XL is really a great chain saw.

But then again, so is the Homelite XL 2, which sells for $119.95. The big thing about the XL 2 is that it has two triggers.

A trigger up front which lets you get right up on top of your work, where you need control.

And a second trigger in the rear to give you leverage for the big jobs.

The XL 2 also tips the scales at a light 7¼ pounds.* It comes with a 12" guide bar. And the same Power Tip® sprocket nose that professional loggers use to boost their cutting power.

And right now, to really make a case for buying the XL 2, we throw in a case, free. This carrycase regularly sells for $10.95 and can accommodate the chain saw plus all its accessories.

Of course, another benefit in buying a Homelite chain saw is that we have more dealers to serve you if something should go wrong. More than 7,500 of them in the U.S.

Homelite's XL and XL 2. Considering everything they come with, it's hard to believe what they go for.

I smoke. And I'm not going to apologize for it.

Sure, I've heard it all. I'd light up at a cocktail party. And somebody would remind me of what they've read about smoking in the papers.

Well, I read the papers, too.

I've heard all that stuff they say about high 'tar' and nicotine. And I'd be less than honest if I said it didn't make me concerned.

So I went the whole route. Tried one of those low 'tar' cigarettes, and got as much flavor out of it as a toothpick.

But I kept trying. Guess I enjoyed smoking too much.

That's when I ran across Vantage. And what do you know. It tasted like a cigarette.

Now Vantage wasn't the lowest in 'tar' and nicotine. It didn't claim to be. Just the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette that still gave me the full tobacco taste I'd missed.

Maybe it's the Vantage filter. Frankly I don't know, and I don't care.

I just know I can cut down on 'tar' and nicotine. Without cutting out the flavor.

Now I don't have to make any excuses for smoking. Not since they made Vantage.

Maybe you'll feel the same way.

What Our Panelists Said

Murcer

Garr

Reggie Jackson on Luis Tiant:

"He's the best right now. When he gets into a groove, he's tough to beat. But Jim Palmer of Baltimore, who missed a lot of the 1974 season, is as good as anybody when he's right. He has a great fast ball, great off-speed pitches and control."

Al Kaline on Bert Blyleven:

"Blyleven's curve is real hard and sharp. He has good control with it, but the major feature of his curve is that he throws it harder than anyone else. It breaks very sharply about three-quarters of the way down to the plate."

Bobby Murcer on Luis Tiant:

"He has every pitch there is. And he's a very smart pitcher. All the head motions he goes through on the mound aren't done for effect. Every one of them has a meaning and can really confuse you if you pay too much attention to them."

Jeff Burroughs on Nolan Ryan:

"I hate to face him, even though he throws mostly fast balls and I'm a fast-ball hitter. He's quite a bit faster than anyone else. When he's right, you can't touch him. Among left-handers, Vida Blue is the toughest for me. I've faced him since minor-league days, and I've had trouble with him from the very first time."

Johnny Bench on Andy Messersmith:

"He developed a lot more consistency with his change-up this year and became awfully tough to hit. He is able to throw his change all the time and get away with it because you can't anticipate it. He throws his changing stuff with exactly the same motion and delivery as his fast ball."

Jim Wynn on Tom Seaver:

"His effectiveness was down this year, but he still throws as hard as anyone in the league. The most impressive thing about his fast ball is that it rises as it comes in on you, until it's about letter-high. It's very tough to time properly. Lynn McGlothen of St. Louis, who came to the National League this year from the Boston Red Sox, throws a good fast ball and a hard curve. He's going to be real tough in the next few years."

Ralph Garr on Steve Carlton:

"Whenever I'm up at the plate, I'm just trying to make contact with the ball. We're a power-hitting team, and I try to set things up for the homer hitters who follow me in the lineup. Carlton, with his hard slider, gives me trouble, and so does Tommy John of the Dodgers, who throws a good sinker."

Steve Garvey on Bob Gibson:

"He's still one of the toughest pitchers around, especially with men on base. I wasn't in the league during his real big years, so I didn't face him at his peak. But he's still very fast and very tough. You'll get your hits off him, but you have to work hard to score. He's an excellent fielder too. Very quick at getting off the mound on bunts and on covering first."

Richie Zisk on Andy Messersmith:

"He has the best overall stuff. His fast ball is good, his change-up is excellent, and he knows how to pitch. I was more effective against him in 1973 than I was this year. He comes right at you and challenges you. Because he's on a staff that has several very good pitchers, he probably doesn't get as much credit as he should."

Rod Carew on Nolan Ryan:

"He's the fastest in the league. But Jim Bibby of the Texas Rangers isn't too far behind, and Jim Palmer always has been one of the hardest throwers around."

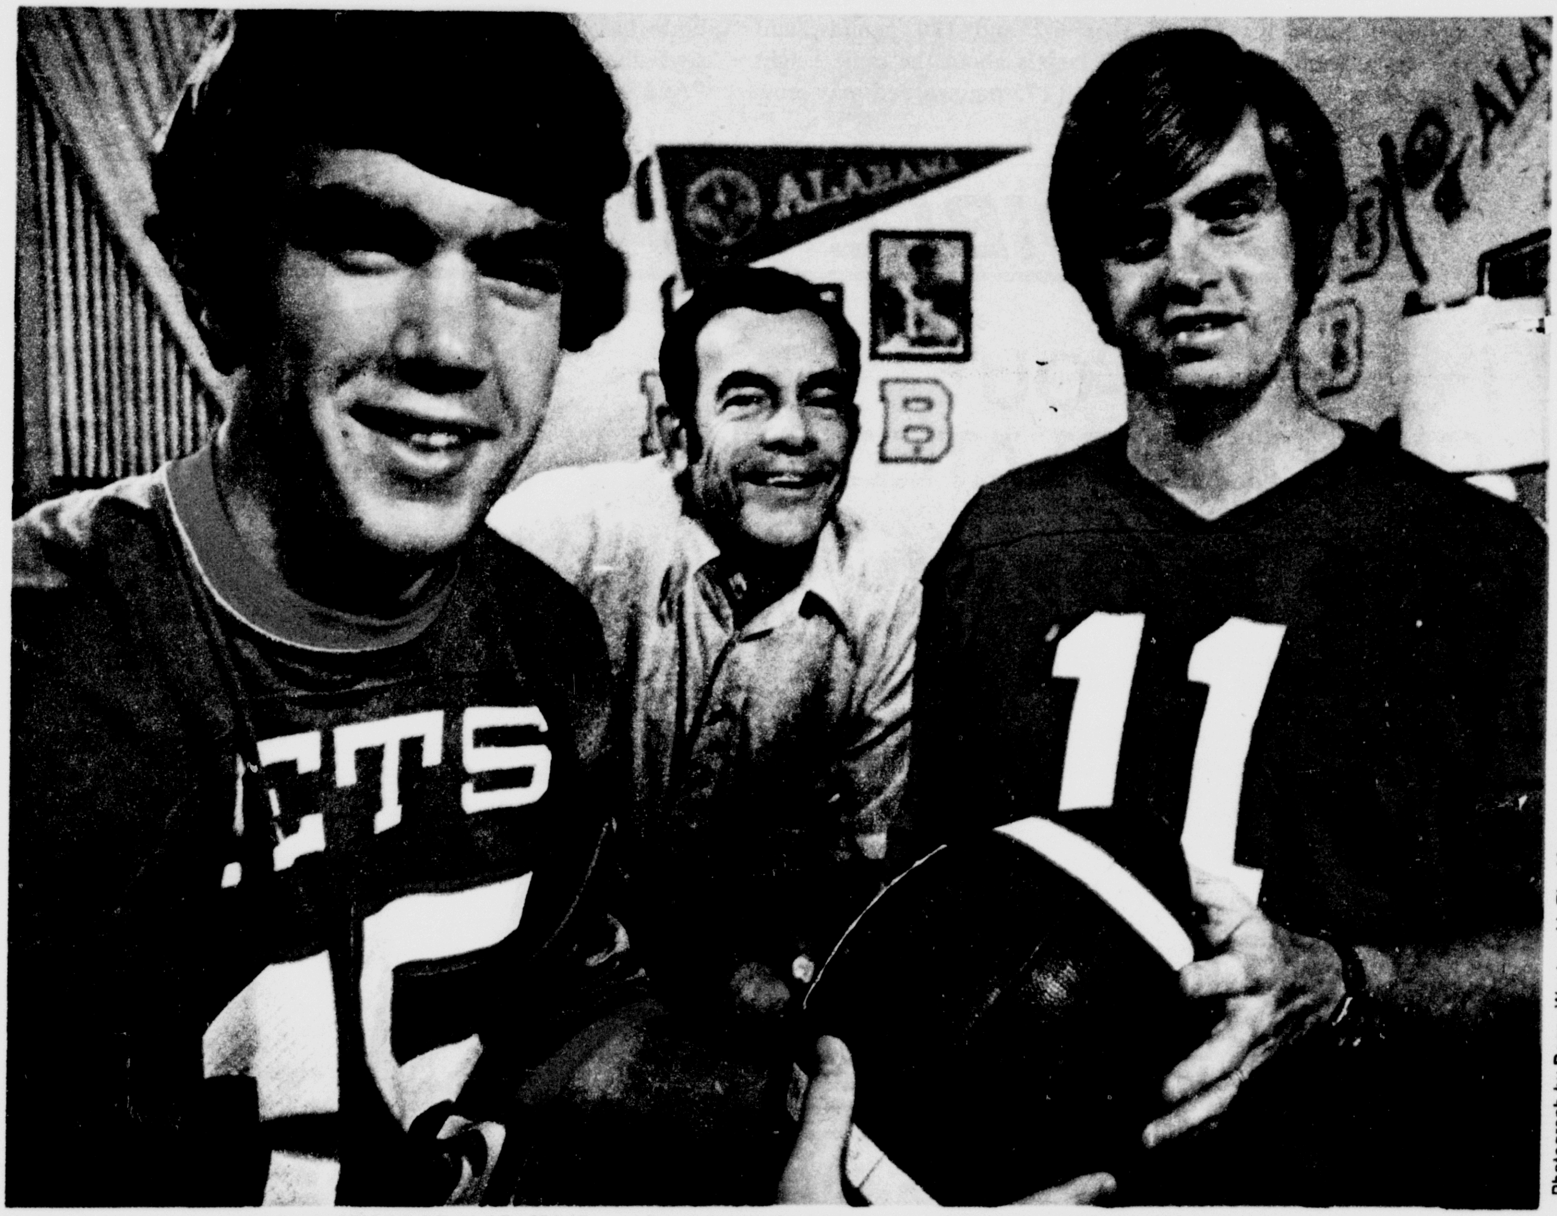
Family Weekly's High School All-America Forecast

By Larry Bortstein

College coaches see these high school stars as tomorrow's football heroes on university campuses



Photograph by Roger Wentowski, The Montgomery Advertiser

THE RUTLEDGES OF ALABAMA: Proud Papa Jack with his two quarterbacks, Jeff (left) of Birmingham's Banks High School, and Gary, who does his quarterbacking at the University of Alabama.

A quarterback who passed for 2,178 yards . . .
A running back who scored 19 touchdowns . . .
A lineman who stands 6-6 and weighs 250 . . .
Will one of them be tomorrow's Heisman winner?

Football recruiters for colleges across the country may be wearing out the roads that lead to Birmingham, Ala., by the time the 1974 high school season winds down. The football bird dogs have an uncommon interest in Alabama's biggest city this fall. The reason? Of the more than 300,000 residents of "the Pittsburgh of the South," two are considered among the most prized high school senior prospects in the nation.

They are Jeff Rutledge, the quarterback at Banks High School, and Tony Nathan, a running back from Woodlawn High School. Along with 28 other highly touted youngsters, Rutledge and Nathan drew raves from a panel of men representing seven of the finest university football programs in the U.S. – Alabama, Maryland, Michigan, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Southern California and Texas.

Jeff Rutledge's family has known its share of athletic accomplishment. His father Jack was a scholarship baseball player at the University of Alabama in the early 1950's and spent six seasons as an infielder in the Chicago Cubs' farm system. Gary, the redheaded older brother of brown-haired Jeff, is the starting senior quarterback for the current University of Alabama football squad, and is considered an outstanding candidate for All-America honors this year. Last fall, in leading the Crimson Tide to the Sugar Bowl, Gary paced the Southeastern Conference in completion percentage and was voted the conference's "Back of the Year."

The Rutledge home in Birmingham's South End is only two blocks away from Banks High, where Jeff has thrown for 2,178 yards and run for another 1,046 yards in leading his team to the state championship the past two years. Banks has won 25 and tied one without losing at all over that span.

With two University of Alabama products in the same household, many expect Jeff to join Bear Bryant's troops at Tuscaloosa in the fall of 1975. "But he hasn't ruled out other schools completely yet," says Jack Rutledge, a buyer for Stockham Valves and Fittings in Birmingham. "He'll probably wind up at one of the Southeastern Conference schools, but not necessarily Alabama."

George White, who has coached both Gary and Jeff at Banks, thinks Jeff, his current field leader, "has more physical ability than Gary did. Jeff is 6-2 and 190 pounds, and Gary is about the same height and 175 pounds. Jeff may grow some more too."

For his part, Jeff hopes to enter professional sports someday, either in baseball or football. He batted .385 as a shortstop for the Banks baseball team last spring. He also averaged about 15 points per game as a forward on the basketball team, but plans to abandon basketball this year to concentrate on honing his other sports skills. "I like both baseball and football," says the youngest Rutledge. "And I'd like to stay with both as long as I can before I have to make up my mind which one I'll concentrate on."

Right now, Jeff is concentrating on Friday evening, November 8. On that night, his Banks squad takes on Woodlawn High at Birmingham's Legion Field in a contest that could have a large bearing on the Alabama state title. Legion Field, the home stadium of the Birmingham Americans of the World Football League and the site of many of the University of Alabama's top games, has a seating capacity of 72,000. The Banks-Woodlawn clash is expected to attract more than 20,000 fans—an astonishing number for high school football. But they may well be watching an astonishing contest that night. Last year, Banks beat Woodlawn 17-7, after Nathan, the ace ballcarrier from the school on the east side of Birmingham, reeled off a 68-yard touchdown run in the opening two minutes of the first quarter. "Luckily, our defense held Nathan in check the rest of the way," recalls Banks Coach White. "But there was no question that he was the best back we faced last year. He's really something."

Tony scored 19 touchdowns in all in 1973, running from scrimmage and on kick returns. He scampered for more than 1,000 yards. Of the 6-2, 195-pounder from Woodlawn High, one member of our panel of college recruiters says, "He's just a big kid with great speed. Everybody wants him." Jerry Pettibone of the Oklahoma coaching staff points out that the Sooners rarely have looked to the state of Alabama as a supplier of football players. "But in Nathan's case, we hope he'll consider us carefully before he makes up his mind."

Ronnie Smith, big Baytown, Texas, tackle.

If Nathan isn't the best running-back prospect in the U.S., the only other candidate for that designation is Paul Rice of Lewisville, Texas. According to a FAMILY WEEKLY recruiting panelist, Lewisville High, about 50 miles northwest of Dallas, gained prominence in Texas prep-football circles only in the past two or three years. Rice, a 5-11, 195-pound lad, will see to it that the school continues to be highly regarded this fall. Paul has rushed for more than 1,000 yards in each of the past two years and has been clocked at 4.6 seconds for 40 yards. In one 1973 game, Rice picked up a whopping 328 yards on the ground all by himself.

Top Ends and Linemen: Big and Talented a drop-back passer, threw for 12 touchdowns a year ago.

Jesuit High of Dallas is turning into a factory for great tight-end prospects. This year's senior standout is Dennis Grindinger, a strapping 6-6, 230-pounder.

Top line prospects include two from the state of New Jersey, which has sent many big blockers and tacklers into college and pro ball. Lincoln High of Jersey City offers Willie Young, a great center, and Bayonne has Richard Dimler, a 6-6, 250-pound tackle. Ronnie Smith of Sterling High School in Baytown, Texas, Dan Schultz, a 265-pound lad from St. Ladislaus High in Detroit, Mack Guest of Central High School in Macon, Ga., and Alvin Dixon of Conroe (Texas) High School are other leading prospects among prep linemen. fw Painful elimination is unnatural.

Many people have experienced the pain of dry, hard stools. And many have come to accept this, as if it were a natural part of elimination.

But there's nothing natural about it.

No matter what your age, you should have comfortable elimination.

And Serutan makes this possible.

Serutan is the effective laxative that forms a smooth gel in the lower digestive tract, where it combines with intestinal waste to give you comfortable relief.

There's no strain, and no cramps. That's because Serutan, with its natural ingredients, adds the necessary moisture and bulk to work with your system for smooth, easy results.

If you suffer from painful elimination due to constipation or dry, hard stools, try Serutan. You'll be very comfortable with it.

"When we found out what AARP does for people over 55, my wife didn't mind telling her age."

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. Non-profit. Non-partisan. An association of more than 6 million people. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's probably one of the few organizations in the world that offers you the opportunity to give so much of yourself, if you so desire and at the same time provides so many benefits and services. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health insurance. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents your interest with state legislatures and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights for all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf, and what remains to be accomplished.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So one of AARP's most important benefits is eligibility for supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They help you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a Skilled Nursing Facility and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by more than 6 million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? The AARP recommended travel service can help you do it. You can choose from a wide variety of quality tours and cruises, ranging from luxury to economy, escorted by experienced tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, may be able to help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

Irma and Peter McNulty

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are over 1600 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aide Program. Or just meet new friends.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

As an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto-insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina, Texas and Massachusetts.

NICOLA NAYLOR
Blind, yes, but . . .

Nicola Naylor’s life changed the day she met a spirited horse named Storm Haven. Pretty blonde Nicola, almost totally blind since birth, is also a willful wisp of a woman. For some reason the combination of Nicola and Storm Haven was the right one. They struck up an immediate mutual understanding that has led them, astoundingly, to show jumping, ribbons and silver trophies. How does a girl with tunnel vision in one eye and no sight in the other manage to guide her horse over a jumping course? Easily, is Nicola’s reply. She walks the course with Storm Haven before the events and counts the strides between each fence. “I memorize the turns and discover whether the obstacle is a wall or a gate,” she says. Her form over the fences is so good that judges are generally unaware of her problem.

MARY JOHNSTON
Oldest “paper boy”

Next Saturday is International Newspaper Carrier Day, named in honor of more than a million newspaper carriers throughout the world. The vast percentage of newspaper carriers are boys, generally in the 12-14 age bracket. The “paper boy” in Coalgate, Okla., is not a boy at all. She is a woman, Mary Johnston. She is 88, has been delivering newspapers for 34 years, and, according to the International Association of Newspaper Circulation Managers, Washington, D.C., is the nation’s oldest paper carrier. Daily, Coalgate residents see Mrs. Johnston striding briskly up and down the streets of the small town delivering the Ada, Okla., Evening and Sunday News. Her route covers five miles, and she walks it six days a week, rain or shine. She admits she is occasionally tempted to give up her job. But she always reconsiders. “Keeps me limbered up,” she says. “I’m old, and if old people don’t do something, they start to set. They wind up setting in wheelchairs. Not me!”

Ssssssssssss . . . Hissing back at a hooded-cobra radiator cap on a car that once belonged to Rudolph Valentino is one of the ways 17-year-old Nancy McIntosh likes to clown at work. Her job: car polisher for the 85 antique automobiles at the Merle Norman World of Beauty at San Sylmar, located just outside Los Angeles in the San Fernando Valley. San Sylmar, completed only recently, houses a large collection of “functional fine arts” (that is, everything there was designed for use, and can still be used). The cobra radiator cap was a gift to Valentino from Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

My four-year-old daughter regularly watches a puppet program on TV in which the main character is King Friday. One day she asked me, "Is King Friday a puppet, or is he real?" I replied, "He's just a puppet." She then asked, "You mean he's not real?" "No, he's not," I replied. She thought about this for a while, then asked, "Does he KNOW he isn't real?"

A revolutionary 3-part Home Learning Center

The first new idea in encyclopedias in 200 years

Available to You Direct-From-The-Publisher

A breakthrough in encyclopedia publishing history. Since 1768, Encyclopaedia Britannica has been recognized as the reference standard of the world. Now . . . the world's most authoritative and complete reference work has been redesigned and totally rewritten to bring you and your family a far more readable, usable, informative encyclopedia than ever before available.

A revolutionary new encyclopedia for today . . . and the 21st Century. While realizing the satisfaction that comes from the publication of the world's most respected encyclopedia, The Editors of Britannica have struggled for decades to develop a work which would be more than a reference . . . a work which would also excite and satisfy the appetite for knowledge of educationally-minded families. Now, after 17 years and 32 million dollars, the Editors proudly announce a startling all-new encyclopedia—BRITANNICA 3—which outmodes every other encyclopedia ever published. In a dramatic 3-part arrangement that makes seeking, finding and knowing easier than ever, BRITANNICA 3 provides immense help in homework assignments and, as never before, is a great help to school children in everyday learning. At the same time it can motivate student and adult alike into the magical world of fact and self-enrichment.

More useful . . . in more ways . . . to more people. The extraordinary usefulness of the revolutionary BRITANNICA 3 is founded on a simple objective . . . the desire to serve the three basic requirements of a meaningful, family encyclopedia. Consequently, BRITANNICA 3 is arranged for three distinct purposes into three distinct parts:

1. TO GET AT THE FACTS, OR A SINGLE FACT, QUICKLY AND EASILY. This need is served by the 10-volume Ready Reference and Index (Micropedia), containing 102,000 short articles, each less than 750 words, and written in a style that makes them quickly and easily readable. So readable, in fact, that many school children will find the Ready Reference and Index of immense value in homework assignments.
2. TO DISCOVER THE MEANING OF THE FACTS. This need is served by the 19 Knowledge in Depth volumes (Macropedia), containing 4,200 authoritative articles on major subjects, providing the reader with knowledge in depth and with the understanding, insight, and wisdom that is available in every field of learning.
3. TO EXPLORE ENTIRE FIELDS OF KNOWLEDGE—TO HAVE AT YOUR DISPOSAL THE TEACHING RESOURCES OF A UNIVERSITY WITHOUT WALLS. This need is served by the one-volume Outline and Guide (Propedia), which is a readable outline of the whole of human knowledge, with introductory essays that make it a helpful guide to study in the Britannica any area of learning.

BRITANNICA 3 Provides Thousands of Subjects of Practical Value. BRITANNICA 3 has special articles on interior design, medicine, science, mathematics, religion, politics, health, sports, child care and more . . . useful information that can save you many dollars and make everyone in your family a better informed individual.

BRITANNICA 3 is Abundantly Alive With Colorful Illustrations. With over 24,000 magnificent maps and illustrations—thousands in vivid color—BRITANNICA 3 doesn't merely show "attractive pictures." The illustrations are an integral part of an approach which brings life and greater meaning to the facts they depict.

Immense Value in Homework—Never Before As Useful to School Children! For students, BRITANNICA 3 is indispensable. It is the finest, most complete reference published in the world. It helps develop the active, alert minds that bring success in school and later life.

May we send you, free and without obligation, our new Preview Booklet which pictures and describes BRITANNICA 3 in detail. We'll also give you complete information on this exciting offer. For details on this complete program, just mail the attached postage-free card today.

Business Is Biggest Energy Saver In U.S.

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — If Americans have enough gasoline and home heating oil this fall and winter, they can primarily thank the U.S. business community — biggest energy saver in the nation.

Individual Americans and the U.S. government also are conserving energy, according to the latest estimate by the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

Business, says Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, consumes 70 per cent of all energy used in the U.S. and business across the board has cut its energy demand about 5 per cent in the last year.

Many firms — Alcoa, Dow Chemical, Dupont, Boeing and others — save even more, with some companies, according to experts, having trimmed their energy consumption 20 per cent or more.

Overall, this adds up to the equivalent of millions of barrels of oil saved each day, which leaves more gasoline and heating oil for American families.

Individual consumers are still saving energy partly because it costs so much more and party, said Ronald Bass of the U.S. Treasury, because "people still are responding" to the government's plea to cut down energy use.

American families, prompted by a mixture of cost-consciousness and patriotism, remarked Bass, still are turning out unneeded light and using less air-conditioning in their homes than last year.

The federal government's savings are quite spectacular. From July, 1973 through April, 1974, according to fresh calculations, the U.S. government cut its energy consumption by "25 per cent below anticipated use." This includes the Army, Navy and Ar Force, all thirsty gobblers of oil.

"Put another way," declared an official of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA), "the government during those nine months saved 75 million barrels of oil, valued at $600 million."

Preliminary estimates show that the U.S. government now conserves at least as much, perhaps more, energy than in the previous nine months.

Also contributing to energy savings is a sharp dip in electricity consumption throughout the U.S., said Bass, springing primarily from "tremendous increases in electric utility rates."

These increases, in turn, derive from a roughly 400 per cent price rise in the two fuels used chiefly by utilities — oil and coal.

U.S. stocks of gasoline and higher than they were a year ago, before the Arab embargo began. Weekly production of gasoline at U.S. refineries also is up over last year.

Stocks of distillate fuels, including home heating oil and residual oil for factories and utilities, are somewhat higher than they were at the same time in 1973.

Old Man Insists His Grandsons Live It Up

POZAREVAC, Yugoslavia (AP) — Mile Milovanovic, a retired railroadman, never has had time to go on a spree, so he decided he will give his grandsons a chance.

He worked hard all 40 years of his employed life, married off three daughters and now enjoys three grnadsons.

Recently he made a will bequeathing his entire property to his grandsons, but stipulated that they squander the entire sum eating, drinking and making merry.

"I have had a hard life. Youth passed quickly and I have never got around to go on a drinking spree, once. What I failed to do I wish my grandsons to make up," Mile explains.

Inez Garcia Convicted In Slaying

MONTEREY (UPI) — A convict's wife who admitted the vengeance slaying of a young man who she alleged raped her was convicted yesterday on charges of second-degree murder.

A superior court jury of seven women and five men deliberated three days before returning its verdict to end a seven-week trial which was attended by numerous representatives of women's liberationist groups.

Inez Garcia, 30, once screamed during her trial: "I did it and I'm glad I did it."

She was referring to the slaying last March of Miguel Jimenez, 21. Mrs. Garcia claimed that Jimenez and Luis Castillo, 17, raped her.

She testified that she pumped six .22-caliber bullets into Jimenez in an alley later when they tried to kill Fred Medrano, 25.

Medrano was accused of driving Mrs. Garcia to the death scene but the jury failed to reach a verdict in his case and a retrial was set Nov. 14.

WESTON, Mass. (UPI) — Pulitzer-prize winning poet Anne Sexton, 45, was found dead yesterday in the garage of her home. Police said it was a possible suicide. demands to be accommodated would be for the board of supervisors to amend the master plan.

"This is clearly a policy question which has already been once resolved (to exclude such housing) and cannot be negotiated by this office . . .," Maloney wrote.

Maloney's assessment was borne out by Hirsch in a letter to the Independent-Journal saying, "Our clients' demands for 20 per cent low and moderate-income housing, at federal standards, remains firm."

Hirsch called erroneous any impression at the supervisors' meeting on Tuesday "that I softened my demands for low-cost housing to be developed on the R-8 (redevelopment) lands."

The matter will come back before supervisors Tuesday. Their meeting is slated to being a 11 a.m., following a 10:30 a.m. meeting of the open space district board.

COURT

asked to look at the redistricting of the New Orleans City Council and racial standards the Federal Communications Commission must use in determining television station ownership.

The court will be meeting all week in private conference to vote on the backlog. The first list of new cases the court will decide by written opinion, and which it will reject, comes Oct. 15. In most instances Supreme Court rejection of petitions for review will allow lower court decisions to become final.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is expected to preside at the brief ceremonial opening, despite a variety of injuries suffered when he fell from a bicycle near his Arlington, Va., home on Sept. 20. Opening day sessions are very short, with the chief justice announcing the start of a new term and admitting a few attorneys to practice.

Seven men on North Carolina's death row brought capital punishment to the high court again. They urged the justices to expand their ground-breaking 1972 decision by banning the death sentence in all circumstances. The earlier opinion held the practice "cruel and unusual punishment" as then carried out by the states because some people would not be sentenced to death while others would be for the same crime.

But because of technicalities in the North Carolina cases, the court could save the men without using their case for another landmark ruling.

Wiretapping, a major source of contention in the Watergate scandals, comes up on an issue hitherto left open: May the government wiretap without a warrant to gather foreign intelligence and may the information be used in a criminal trial. Igor A. Ivanov, a Russian trade agency driver covicted of espionage in 1964 in Newark, N.J., is posing the question.

The court in 1972 barred warrantless wiretapping for domestic security reasons on the ground that it violates the Constitution's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

Nuclear Energy Talk Scheduled

Dr. John Gofman of San Francisco will speak on possible harmful effects of nuclear energy at noon Tuesday on the college center lawn at the College of Marin.

Gofman is a consultant on nuclear physics and a director of the Committee for Nuclear Responsibilities. The talk will be sponsored by the Marinites for Safe Nuclear Energy.
